HAYWARD HANGED.

Catharine Ging's Murderer Pays the Death Penalty. Retained His Bravado to the End—No Occasion.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 11.—Harry Hayward, the murderer of Catharine Ging, was hanged at 2:05 o'clock this morning.

The murderer went to the gallows with a laugh on his lips, and went down with the trap, just as he uttered the words, "I have no regrets."

After 10 o'clock and was surrounded by the deputies and the death watch. Just before the death watch was read, Hayward turned to his brother, Dr. Thaddeus Hayward, and said: "You know I am a great believer in spiritualism. If I get safely on the other side I will send a message to you."

At 2 o'clock Hayward listened to the reading of the warrant. Soon after Sheriff Holmberg entered and the condemned man said earnestly: "I want to ask you a last favor. Please let me pull the trap. It will save you life-long trouble and will give me eternal satisfaction."

The sheriff replied: "I cannot do it, Harry. I know my duty. I must admit some respects to Sir Julian Pauncefote. His resolution was to grant the state of Pennsylvania permission to occupy the United States territory at Seneca and Williamson during the session of the Senate on the 11th inst. and to the widow of the late secretary of state, Gen. W. G. Graham."

At 10 o'clock and he partook of it with apparent relish. The Rev. Father Timothy arrived shortly after, not upon the summons of the condemned man, but in respect that at the last moment a repentant man for a spiritual adviser.

During the evening and joked with a lengthy conversation with his attendants, and laughed and joked on the subject of the heavy doors, which he thought would be opened by the hinges. He said he would like to see the account of how this thing came out and about any actions on the scaffold, and again he laughed and said he was going to a picnic instead of to his death.

Was an Atrocious Crime. The murder of Catharine Ging was one of the most sensational that has been committed in recent years.

Our representative in congress, S. S. Barney, has introduced a bill to pay a pension to Francisca Romain, an Oneida Indian who served as a scout.

The senate confirmed the nomination of Rufus H. Peckham of New York, as associate justice of the Supreme court of the United States, last Tuesday afternoon.

The shower of bills for public buildings all over the country, involving a large appropriation of public money, indicates that the republicans in congress are not half as much distressed by the treasury deficit as they pretend. —Philadelphia Record.

The hanging of Harry Hayward at Minneapolis, Minn., on the 11th inst., for plotting the murder of Catherine King on the evening of Dec. 3, 1894, reminds that Minnesota justice is all right. It was in that state that the Youngers and Barretts received their just deserts, too.

Officials of backwoods towns, who doff their identity to "see the elephant" in Chicago, should profit by the experience of Mayor Coulter of Niles, Mich., and include their $250 diamond pins, etc., in the duffing process, as nothing seems to be too good for the demi-mode of the World's Fair City to take and keep.

The president of the state board of health, Henry C. Schrand says that medicine manufactured in this state by registered pharmacists or physicians of Wisconsin must have the formula on the bottle in order to be handled by general dealers. This seems like an unjust discrimination against home manufacturers.

The selection of a site for the Republican national convention is second only to nominating a ticket, and nominating seems equivalent to electing; and now that Kentucky has elected a Republican governor, the selection of a site so far south as St. Louis for the convention on the 16th of next June, seems to be a wise move.

CLEVELAND, OUR PRESIDENT, is a great fisherman; but he evidently has more than he bargained for on his trout-line, judging from the trouble he is having in landing Salisbury; and, at last accounts, the Venezuelan stake was trembling in the current. However, we earnestly hope that congress will help him out of the predicament.

The towns that got left on securing the Corbett-Fitzsimmons mill may now become equally as conspicuous by bidding for the Populist national convention, not that the latter will draw a bigger crowd than the former would, but because there is no law to prevent political pugilism, even upon the part of a third party.

The charge of improper conduct upon the part of physicians and attendants in the Emergency hospital at Milwaukee should be thoroughly investigated by the Common council of that city, as people from different parts of the state have been patients therein and are still subject to such emergencies.

TROUBLE has evidently begun already in Washington. The south is disgruntled at its slight in the matter of sharing in the house organization, and the promise is very naturally of malign influence in the national convention. It is quite clear that a good deal more will be done in congress with reference to next season's campaign than with reference to the public need. —Detroit Free Press.

Why is crude and refined petroleum specifically omitted from the traffic which is to be subjected to uniform and equal rates by the new trunk line agreement? The omission seems to have a peculiar significance. This provision of the agreement thus makes possible the continuation of those special rates and favoritism on which the Standard Oil trust has climbed to its dizzy height of wealth and power over the ruins of competitors not so favored. —Springfield Republican.

The first importation of steel rails since the repeal of the McKinley bill has just been made, and it will be followed by others, which will continue until the American manufacturers get ready to take control of this market. After that, no more European rails will be laid on American tracks. The United States is already the greatest iron-producing country of the world. When foreign rails are sold here it is only because our manufacturers find other lines of iron-making more profitable than rail-making. —N. Y. World.

THERE is only one way to deal effectively with the tramp, and that is to set him to work. The jail has no terrors for him. It is, on the contrary, but a hotel in which he is sure to better food and lodging than he gets elsewhere, with the single drawback that he cannot leave when he wishes. The only system that is successful in repressing the kind of vagrancy that develops to the professional tramp is the workhouse system. If this is properly managed it serves both as a punishment and a corrective for tramps and a place of relief for the needy and honest unfortunate who are unable to find employment. —San Francisco Chronicle.

THE DISPUTED TERRITORY.

Sir Robert Hermann Schomburgk is now a famous man. He is the man who discovered the Victoria Regia, the queen of water lilies; that is something. As the head of a British commission, and without the aid or consent of Venezuela, he fixed a boundary line between Venezuela and Guiana, set up posts along the meanderings.

The boundaries of Guiana and Venezuela were fixed in 1648 at the treaty of Westphalia; and, as they had other very important matters on hand and knew little or nothing about the country concerned, they left the demarcation grandly indefinite. When it came into the possession of Great Britain, in 1814, the English took it "unsight and unseen," as it stood.

Venezuela claimed the Essequibo river under the Holland transfer of 1648. In 1827 the British began to cross this limit and Venezuela grumbled. In 1841 the famous Schomburgk was sent out by Great Britain to fix the boundary line. He drew a crooked line a little more than half way between the Essequibo and the Orinoco, adding to the British territory, as Venezuela avers, a tract about the size of North Carolina. In 1844 the British, heeding the protests of Venezuela, tore up Schomburgk's stakes, abandoned his line; and then, out of pure kindness, he drew another, cutting off a part included by Schomburgk on the coast and taking in a much larger piece in the interior, where gold was reported. Strangely enough, Venezuela was not yet satisfied. Meanwhile the British took possession of the country up to the Schomburgk line by fortifying Barima at the mouth of the Orinoco.

In 1887 they claimed still another slice on the north end of their former claim, including some valuable mines. This was too much, and Venezuela withdrew her minister from near the court of St. James. There has been no official relations between the two governments since. Now Great Britain claims a territory west of the Schomburgk line extending 250 miles west and 210 north and south in extreme measurement, about as large as South Carolina. The Schomburgk line divides the entire disputed territory into two parts, the east part being somewhat the larger, which Lord Salisbury says Great Britain will not arbitrate, and the west part which she is willing to submit to arbitration. Venezuela has always been ready to arbitrate the whole question, without reserve, and once Great Britain agreed to do so, but a change of administration broke it up before it could be brought about. Now, it seems, Great Britain proposes to fight it out on the Schomburgk line. —X.

Bayard's Edinburgh Speech.

The objectionable speech was delivered in Edinburgh, Scotland, on the 7th of last month. Mr. Bayard said: "In my country I witnessed the insidious growth of a form of socialism, styled protection, which has done more to corrupt public life, to banish men of independent mind from public councils and to lower the tone of national representation than any other single cause. Protection now controlling the sovereign power of taxation, has been created by its proper function of generating revenue to support the government, into an engine of selfish profit allied with combinations, called trusts. It thus has sapped the popular conscience by giving corrupting largess to special classes, and it throws legislation into the political market, where jobbers and chaffers take the place of statesmen."

The address which John McBride delivered at the meeting of the American Federation of Labor in New York last Monday is refreshingly palatable, comparatively speaking, as it contains practical views and contemplates feasible plans for bettering the condition of American workmen. However, it is safe to predict that John is not long for the presidency of the Federation; it takes a calamity howler to hold that position, now. When organized labor learns that it needs instructors, rather than leaders, men like McBride will be more in evidence as presiding officers.

The resolution offered in the house of representatives, Tuesday, by Barrett of Massachusetts, will not be carried further than giving our British ambassador, Bayard, a "raking over the coals," and, if the action proves justifiable, the victim will resign—at least that is the way impeachment proceedings generally terminate in such cases. However it seems that the people of the United States naturally expect their representatives abroad to speak well of this country and its people; and, when a representative begins feeling too big to be bound by his oath of office, he should be kicked—well, that's just the time when we can best get along without him.

ANENT the recent debate upon the government control of railroads, we beg leave to remind our literary society that the government control of mails shows that the people's interests can best be subserved by being employers of individuals rather than by letting individuals remain employers of the people, so to speak; besides, under government control, the best service possible would soon be obtained and at a lower rate than formerly, judging from the government's experience with the U. S. mail. Yes, the "greatest good to the greatest number" indicates that the people had better let the government control the railroads rather than let the railroads control the government.

Bubbles or Bubbles?

"Best sarsaparilla." When you think of it how contradictory that term is. For there can be only one best in anything—one best sarsaparilla, as there is one highest mountain, one longest river, one deepest ocean. And that best sarsaparilla is... There's the rub! You can measure mountain height and ocean depth, but how test sarsaparilla? You could, if you were chemists. But then, do you need to test it? The World's Fair committee tested it, and thoroughly. They went behind the label on the bottle. What did this sarsaparilla test result in? Every make of sarsaparilla shut out of the Fair, except Ayer's. So it was that Ayer's was the only sarsaparilla admitted to the World's Fair. The committee found it the best. They had no room for anything that was not the best. And as the best, Ayer's Sarsaparilla received the medal and awards due its merits. Remember the word "best" is a bubble any breath can blow; but there are pins to prick such bubbles. There's others are blowing more "best sarsaparilla" bubbles than the World's Fair pricked the old ones. True, but Ayer's Sarsaparilla has the medal. The pin that scratches the medal proves it gold. The pin that pricks the bubble proves it wind. We point to medals, not bubbles, when we say: The best sarsaparilla is Ayer's.

PROTECT USERS OF "ROYAL."

Baking Powder Company Wins Its Case in the United States Court.
The decision of Judge Stowell in a recent case that came up before him sustains the claims of the Royal Company to the exclusive use of the name "Royal" as a trademark for its baking powder. The special importance of this decision consists in the fact that it is the first time that the name "Royal" has been held to be a trademark for its baking powder.

Bubbles or Bubbles?

"Best sarsaparilla." When you think of it how contradictory that term is. For there can be only one best in anything—one best sarsaparilla, as there is one highest mountain, one longest river, one deepest ocean. And that best sarsaparilla is... There's the rub! You can measure mountain height and ocean depth, but how test sarsaparilla? You could, if you were chemists. But then, do you need to test it? The World's Fair committee tested it, and thoroughly. They went behind the label on the bottle. What did this sarsaparilla test result in? Every make of sarsaparilla shut out of the Fair, except Ayer's. So it was that Ayer's was the only sarsaparilla admitted to the World's Fair. The committee found it the best. They had no room for anything that was not the best. And as the best, Ayer's Sarsaparilla received the medal and awards due its merits. Remember the word "best" is a bubble any breath can blow; but there are pins to prick such bubbles. There's others are blowing more "best sarsaparilla" bubbles than the World's Fair pricked the old ones. True, but Ayer's Sarsaparilla has the medal. The pin that scratches the medal proves it gold. The pin that pricks the bubble proves it wind. We point to medals, not bubbles, when we say: The best sarsaparilla is Ayer's.

THE SCOTTISH SKERRIES HAVE WRECKED

The neighborhood of the Vee or West Skerries (three large rocks on the north-west coast of Scotland) is in the opinion of seamen, the most dangerous stretch of the whole coast of the British Isles, and many vessels have been wrecked there.
