HE CHEATED JUSTICE.

John Ginnow, Accused of Attempted Murder at Milwaukee; Cuts His Throat.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 4.—[Special.]—Milwaukee, who on May 29 made a murderous assault on W. D. Reed, assistant secretary of the Northwestern National Insurance company, last night committed suicide by cutting his throat with a razor.

A warrant charging him with assault with intent to murder has been issued against him at his home on 554 Twenty-fifth street, by Patrolman William H. Doherty.

The crime of which Ginnow was accused has puzzled the police considerably. Some time ago W. D. Reed bought Ginnow's house and lot at 504 Twenty-fifth street and on May 29 Mr. Reed received an anonymous letter saying that the foundation of the house was rotten and that all the walls and cellar were cracked.

That evening Mr. Reed went to his house and asked the painter to examine the walls. Ginnow struck him ten blows over the head with a heavy hammer and injured him so badly that Mr. Reed has been under treatment in a hospital ever since.

The only cause that has been suggested for the assault is that Ginnow had entered into a contract with Reed to build a house on the lot and that he had refused to do so.

It is believed that Ginnow had some quarrel with Reed and that he had intended to murder him.

Communications sent to this office for publication should be enclosed in respectable language and signed by the author, in order to receive proper attention.

GEO. NUGENT, Editor.

The Reed beams go off like ten-cent packages of firecrackers, compared to the emanating being done for McKinley.

In Johnstown, Pa., memorial services are held annually in honor of the departed ones who lost their lives in the great flood which occurred on Friday, May 31, 1889. St. Louis will probably indulge in like practice hereafter.

The Oshkosh friends of ex-Senator Sawyer are reported to be booming him for governor. Should Mr. Sawyer receive the nomination for governor, J. C. Spooner will have pretty clear sailing to the United States senate chamber.

The recent crowning of the czar of Russia proved unusually disastrous to people there. We say unusually disastrous because the mere crowning of a czar is a disaster to the people of any country, to say nothing of what caused the death of so many persons on the occasion referred to above.

The report that the Milwaukee street railway strikers recently tried to buy a lot of groceries from a wholesale house would seem to indicate that there are preparing for a protracted siege. However, such a step would have tended to shorten rather than lengthen the duration of the strike, as the retail grocers naturally consider that boycotting on their part should be followed with reciprocity upon the part of the strikers.

The Memorial day orator who asserts that "while every Democrat may not be a rebel, every rebel is a Democrat" should remember that there is a counter assertion to the above—While every Republican may not be a negro, every negro is a Republican. Then, too, while every Memorial day orator may not be a politician, most politicians are Memorial day orators. Again, while all human beings may not be politicians, all politicians are human beings.

E. C. WALL, who returned to Milwaukee last Tuesday from a meeting of the Democratic national committee in Chicago, reports that the free silver element will have a majority of the delegates in the National convention, which meets in the Garden City on the 9th of next month. However, as a rule provides that the presidential nominee shall have a two-thirds majority, the gold element will have a fighting chance in the convention. Still, if silver should only have a bare majority, Albigel will be the strongest man in the Democratic party.

The famous newspaper woman, Kate Field, was stricken with pneumonia in Honolulu, Hawaii, on May 19th. She was well and favorably known by all writers of prominence, and one of them once wrote of her as follows: "When speaking of unique women, one thinks instinctively of Kate Field, who is without doubt one of the most picturesque characters of the day. There is scarcely anything this lady has not turned her hand to—the stage, the shop, the lecture platform, the writing desk, and now the editor's chair. She understands politics much better than most men; she proved more of a power against Mormonism than all the laws enacted against this heinous stain upon our government. She was a splendid drummer for the California wine companies, and I am sure she could conduct a post mortem or preach from any text quite as well as the average doctor of medicine or divinity."

The La Crosse Press thus moralizes on the death of Mark M. Pomeroy: "So 'Brick' is dead? The wires Saturday night flashed the news to the four quarters of the globe, and how few there are to mourn. In La Crosse, where he really made his reputation, there is probably not one real friend. 'Brick' Pomeroy made no friends. Some people admired him and many feared him, but none loved him. Brilliant in brain, dashing in execution, he was too selfish to make warm friends, and so he dies unwept in the city where his genius planned its flight. That he possessed good qualities cannot be denied; he was enterprising, liberal and strictly honest, and gave freely to charity, it is said, but his reputation was gone through the espousing of an unpopular cause, and though it brought him gold it left him poor, indeed, in the respect of his fellow-citizens. He had pluck and enterprise and energy enough for two men. He made and lost several fortunes, but died in rather straightened circumstances, although he was president of a company capitalized at millions. For several years he has published Pomeroy's Advanced Thought in New York, the sole purpose of the publication being to boom his tunnel project. Shares were sold at almost any price, and the revenue received from his deluded admirers all over the United States has kept the wolf from the door for many years. There is a moral in the life and death of 'Brick' Pomeroy which every young man should take to heart. It is this: that notoriety without respect and love can be of no possible value to a man, and that wealth acquired in a wrong cause is never enjoyed. Possessed of energy and talents sufficient to build up a reputation, let them be used for the bettering of humanity, and not for the sake of mere notoriety."

BEECHWOOD BEAMLETS.

Mr. J. O'Connell had a corn-planting bee last Wednesday. John Arndt has quit working for Messrs. Stahl, Backhaus & Co. A. McDonald is having a new foundation made for a barn. Peter Seil is doing the work. The Schneider & Plann Co. will do the mason work for Jo. O'Connell's new house next Monday. Frank Schoenbeck of Jackson, who is agent for the Rumley Mfg. Co. of La Porte, Ind., called on friends here last Wednesday. Quite a number of young and old folks attended the silver wedding at Charles Leimann's last Monday, and a good old time was had by all. Reinke Bros., the carpenters, are pressed with work, having numerous jobs on hand, and still there are others who would like their services. William Schulz, one of Beechwood's enterprising boys, had the misfortune to lose two calves while taking them down to Batavia last Tuesday, but after a long chase he succeeded in capturing them. Frank Rose, our genial well-digger, nearly lost his life last week at Fred Koepke's well while a bucketful of mud was being hoisted, as it became unfastened and fell back into the well, peeling Frank's nose and smashing the thumb of his right hand.

NEW FANE FLATS.

For first-class dried fruits call on J. M. Marx. George Braun, with his men, is working out of town. A lathing bee was held at William Fick's last Friday. Wm. Heberer made a business call here last Tuesday. Folks in this vicinity are busy working at the highways. Mr. Retzlaff has about half completed Wm. Fick's building. Wm. Pesh and Wm. Klein are busy working for S. Windisch. Mrs. J. M. Marx made a business trip to the Cream City last Wednesday. Theodore Fick of New Cassel made a short visit at F. Backhaus' last Wednesday. The gutters on S. Windisch's house were put there by P. J. Smith, last Tuesday. The new building for S. Windisch is expected to be ready for him by the 15th of July. Mrs. Witzig and daughter and Mrs. Ockenfels were visiting at J. M. Marx' last Wednesday. The party which was held at the home of the Kruegers last Sunday was well attended and dancing was kept up till 12 o'clock.

Frank Seidel, one of Kewaskum's merchant tailors, was in our burg last week and lost all of his game with John Ruppinger. John Mathien has completed a good job of painting at Joseph Mack's hotel. John will have to hustle as he has a good many more jobs to do this season. His next job is for John Barenann. A birthday celebration was held last Saturday evening in one of Jacob Weisner's dwelling houses, and all of the masons who work on the church attended. It was the 23d anniversary of the foreman's birthday, and everybody who attended enjoyed it. One team was kept going to and fro, and on the way home some people were left hanging on wire fencing.

Theisen and wife visited their sons, Jacob and John, at Port Washington last Saturday and Sunday. A pleasant party was held at Fred Haak's last Sunday evening. It was well attended and all had an enjoyable time. Nic. Priebe, Peter and Anna Berres of Young America, Lena Feiten of Boltonville, Philip Schneider and wife, Frank Schneider and wife, Mary and Mat. Schneider spent Sunday with John Berres, Sr.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

In a newspaper announcement a Georgia candidate makes his position plain, as follows: "I never was in the war; never hollered at the surrender and never killed anybody that let me alone; and the only thing that I know about the financial question is that I need money."—Atlanta Constitution. A crow and a fox once engaged in a game of poker—just a friendly game, you know. They had played but a short time when an owl came past and stopped to watch the game. He was a wise owl, and honest as well, and when he saw that things were not right he called the crow one side and observed: "You are a fool to play poker with that sharp. He goes to the deck and sorts out straights and flushes with regularity." "To be sure," replied the crow; "that is where my graft comes in. That fox is so busy looking for flushes and like trifling hands that he does not observe how I assemble full houses by inspecting the discard. That fox is easy." Moral: There are others.—Truth. "I thought you had that hand all fenced from the defendant settled on it?" An attorney in a government land case was cross-examining a home-steader. "Yes, I did." "Was that being hoisted, as it became unfastened and fell back into the well, peeling Frank's nose and smashing the thumb of his right hand." "Well—er—I can't say." I noticed that the witness hesitated, floundered for the first time, and the attorney noticed it, too. "Was it a rail fence?" "No." "Brush fence?" "No." "Wire fence?" "No; I don't know what it was made of, but it kept everything out," declared the witness, who had become desperate. "Tell me what that fence was," persisted the attorney. "Well, it was a man with a shotgun."—San Francisco Post. What is known as the rose of Jericho is possibly the most curious specimen of plant life. The rose of Jericho is said to be brought from the valley of the river of that name and to be the resurrection plant mentioned in the Bible. When received the plant is simply a bundle of dried, withered and worthless sticks tightly pressed together. If placed in a glass of water the branches will expand, buds and leaves start and the whole plant grows. The Mexican resurrection plant is the fluffy, fern-like variety often noticed in florists' windows, and is a favorite with children, as it quickly expands from a hard ball to a beautiful metallic green plant. The experiment can be repeated many times. There is only one variety of resurrection plants which blossoms. All varieties may be kept indefinitely and all the strength seemingly never exhausts itself. It was at a country election that the following took place: Every man for miles around was in attendance, from the prosperous farmer to the lowest farmhand, and here and there in small groups they held lively discussions about the respective candidates. Finally the chairman rapped for order and the speaker began. The wily orator explained loudly and long about the poor condition of the country's welfare, and wound up by asking all those who wished for a betterment of things to stand up. Every man arose except an old gray-whiskered farmer who had fallen asleep over the long-winded oration. "Now," thundered the orator, after his listeners had seated themselves, "if there is a man here who does not wish for a betterment of things, let him stand up!" The old farmer awoke in time to hear the last two words of the command and stood up, stared slowly around as a number of hisses were cast at him, and said: "Waal, Mister Speaker, I don't know whether we be votin' fer or agin the sentiments of my brethren here; but you an' me, I reckon, are in the minority."—Harper's Round Table. One of the many stories which the death of Col. North has set afloat is the following, related by a writer in Vanity: Apropos of Col. North, I have a new story. One day he made an appointment to meet John W. Mackay on business of importance, and, as usual with the English millionaire, the meeting was arranged to take place at luncheon. Col. North was famous as a good liver and the proceedings began with cock tails, followed by champagne, etc. As is his custom, Mr. Mackay declined wine and drank nothing but Johannis. After the luncheon North remarked to a friend: "Mackay is a very nice man and has a fine business head, but I'll be hanged if I can see how he ever made fifty millions on a diet of mineral water." An hour later Mr. Mackay, having arrived at his house, said to the same friend (Col. Ochiltree): "Col. North is a very fine man and a business executive of great ability, but I am blessed if I can understand how he ever made fifty millions on a diet of rum and champagne." Thus did two millionaires estimate their respective advantages.

DOPY ON DIALECT.

A plodding professor of Mozambique in seven different tongues could epique—Roostian, Proosian, Andalusian, Chinese, Choctaw, Dutch and Grioque. A magazine editor, maudlin and misquoting, hearing of him, cabled the polyglot frique. Whom he hired on the spot. To write dialect rot. At seventy thousand plunks a wigwag. —New York Press. One Minute Cough Cure touches the right spot. It also touches it at the right time if you take it when you have a cough or cold. See the point? Then don't cough.—C. Miller, druggist. The town of Coleman, in Marinette county, will build fifteen miles of new road this summer to accommodate the many new farmers who have located within its borders. J. W. Pierce, Republic, Ia., says: "I have used One Minute Cough Cure in my family and for myself, with results so entirely satisfactory that I can hardly find words to express myself as to its merits. I will never fail to recommend it to others, on every occasion that presents itself."—Chas. Miller, the local druggist. Thomas A. Unicycle Roller Skate. A very curious roller skate has been patented recently. It is a sort of unicycle for each foot, and is warranted to carry a man over any kind of smooth ground at the rate of twenty miles an hour or more. For each foot there is one large wheel, twelve inches in diameter. The wheels have pneumatic tires of course. A strap passes around the ankle and another over the instep. Considerable practice must surely be required to travel on such a pair of wheels, but think how one could spin along on them! Though Shanks' mare, under ordinary conditions, is an undesirable means of getting anywhere, in this form it is the poetry of locomotion.

AN HONEST DOCTOR.

ENDORSES LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND.

The Best Medicine Ever Invented for Women—Advises Her Patient to Use It.

The following letter from Mrs. E. R. Weber, of 1707 Jefferson St., Baltimore, Md., should dispel all doubt from the minds of the most skeptical people.

"I was a great sufferer of indigestion, and the food I ate from the womb until I was five years old, was very indigestible. My dear old doctor told me I would never be a well woman until I had under my feet the good old vegetable compound. I went on an operation, and even then, I would not believe in patent medicines, but I will say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the medicine that God ever invented for woman.

Continue to use it. I did so and am entirely cured of all my troubles, and am strong and well. It will prove itself a blessing to me, if they will try it."—Mrs. E. R. WEBER, 1707 Jefferson St., Baltimore, Md.

The Greatest Medical Discovery of the Age.

KENNEDY'S MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

DONALD KENNEDY, OF ROXBURY, MASS.

Has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures every kind of Humors, from the worst Scrofula down to a common Pimple. He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in one case (that thunder humor). He has now in his possession over two hundred certificates of value, and is sending twenty miles of Boston. Send postal card for book. A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the right quantity is taken. When the lungs are affected it causes shooting pains, fits, headaches, and other troubles; the same with the Liver or Bowels. This is caused by the ducts being stopped, and always disappears in a week after taking it. If the stomach is full or bilious it will cause sickness feelings at first. No change of diet ever necessary. Eat the best you can get, and enough of it. Dose, one tablespoonful in water at bedtime. Sold by all Druggists.

If you accept a substitute, you must not fuss because it is not good as genuine HIRE'S Rootbeer.

IRIPANS TABLETS.

ME. H. F. BARNES, a reporter for the Sunday Herald, published at Canton, N. Y., under the name of H. F. BARNES, writes to the Ripans Chemical Company that he knows a working-man who has been benefited by Ripans Tablets after a severe attack of the Grippe, and he appends the following statement: "I am permitted to publish the testimonial of Thos. J. Meals, of the city of Canton, Stark County, O. I had an attack of the grippe four years ago this spring that left me in a bad way. My nervous system was broken down and my digestive apparatus in a condition that made me miserable for days. While unable to work at my trade as shearer man in a rolling mill, I suffered more or less all the time with my stomach. Bitters and tonics were literally taken by the gallon, and every variety of pills and poisons that promised relief, failed to give me any benefit from the use of some of them if I continued taking them, but if I quit a few days my old trouble would return. Noticing the advertisement of the Ripans Tablets, for impaired and bad digestion, I bought a box, and in a few of them, which I am pleased to inform you have proven all or more than I expected of them. While I have taken but a few of them, they have done me more good than all the other remedies that I have tried. They relieve the distressing and sore stomach almost at once, and I feel better in every way since I commenced taking them. The distressing headaches, which I always had preceding a fit of indigestion, have entirely left me. I will be glad to recommend the Tablets to anybody suffering from stomach troubles." (Signed) "THOS. J. MEALS, 'CANTON, O.'"

MANAGEMENT OF THE FARM, GARDEN AND STABLE.

A Home-made Spraying Contrivance that May Be Used with Success and Profit—Tree Trunk Support for Sweet Peas—Agricultural Suggestions.

Home-made Spraying Outfit. Where spraying is conducted on a considerable scale, various rigs have been made to squirt insecticides and fungicides over all portions of a tree. The spraying contrivance illustrated here has been used with good success and profit. Many fruit growers use an average rig with box and tank and a 50-gallon barrel; but if one has much spraying to do, it is generally economy to use a larger tank, especially if water has to be hauled some distance. More thorough work can be done in old orchards if the operator is elevated above the barrel. The use of long pieces of 1 1/2-inch brass, iron, copper or even gas pipe, with nozzle attachment to the end, is advisable when working among the tops of trees; such are apt to be a nuisance if one works from the ground. These are awkward if more than ten feet long.

In my orchard of twenty-five acres the trees are twenty to thirty feet high. With my outfit, one man to drive and pump and two men in the tower, each with a brass extension tube eight feet long with double nozzle on each end, every part of a large tree may be sprayed in from three to five minutes. We find it much easier to spray on a level with our work or downward, than to stand on a wagon box and spray up with the hose. The rig is made by running down our sleeves and into our faces. The work is also more thoroughly done. In 1894 I used a power pump and sprayed from a wagon. I had the fruit up as far as the spray went, but the tops of the trees were left fruit, proving to me the virtue of the rig. The rig is on a pair of wide-tired trucks coupled so that we can turn from one row of trees to another. I pumped the water, mixed the ingredients and did the spraying of my orchard in three days. The spray pump caused no expense or hindrance throughout the season.—A. H. DUTTON, in Farm and Home.

Selecting Seed Grain. It is impossible to tell by looking at grain in a heap or bin what its value for seed is. The plumpest, finest-looking berry, and one with unimpaired vitality may have grown from a seed that produced only a single stalk and head that poorly filled. Such a seed will tend to produce a like plant from that on which it grew. What may be done by the proper selection of seed is shown in the great improvement that is made in the productiveness of corn, which with skillful cultivators is always chosen on the stalk, selecting those that are well filled ears. Yet if size of kernel were the test the largest and best grains might often be found on the rubbish corn where the ears were not filled out, so that each grain could grow round and full instead of being compressed as it is in a well-filled ear. Yes, on such an ear the seed will be found at the tip and but some grains that had room to grow full size. Those will produce better and stronger plants than will the compressed grains from the middle of the cob.

The Weather Bureau. This institution is doing better work this year than ever, says Farm and Home. Its weather forecasts are not only accurate, but they are so plain that they will be possible to make them absolutely true for every nook and corner of the country, but they are a great help to farmers who are so located as to be able to get them in time. The farmers want to-morrow's forecasts the afternoon, so that they can plan their work accordingly. Every farmer should also obtain the weekly weather and crop report issued by his State weather bureau in co-operation with the national weather bureau at Washington, and the latter publishes a weekly crop and climate bulletin that will be found of great value. In most of the States, the headquarters of the bureau is at the State capital and it may be addressed there.

Bad-Tempered Bulls. Too much care cannot be taken to keep the bull always in subjection. A ring should be put in his nose before he is a year old, and if this is done a restraining stout stick to the ring, and which can be detached when not in use, will keep the animal in perfect subjection. On no account should a bull be led or driven without this contrivance. The bull when feeling well is a very playful animal, but if in play it draws blood, the sight of it will make him furious. The tempers of most bulls are spoiled by teasing them and then getting out of the way. If the bull never sees any one who is not his master, and is always kept in subjection by the stick and ring, his usefulness may be protracted till he is 8 or 10 years old.

Applying Land Plaster. A little at a time and often should be the rule in applying land plaster. The finer it is ground the more evenly it can be spread, and a very light dusting will do as much good for the time as a heavier application. A bushel per acre, which will be about 100 pounds, is what farmers usually sow on clover. If they have the plaster on hand they sometimes apply another hundred pounds after the first crop is cut, to make a larger second growth. This is not done, however, on clover where a seed crop is to be grown, as the extra growth of stalk and leaf is made at the expense of the seed.

Enemies of Birds. Small birds are so common and so numerous that they are commonly attributed to their destruction to gratify woman's spite in trimming her hats. But the song birds have other enemies also, especially the English sparrow, which drives them away from their old haunts near dwellings. In the wild woods the
