THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

Following an honored custom and in conformity with the proclamation of the president of the United States, I, W. H. Upham, governor of the state of Wisconsin, do hereby set apart Thursday, the 29th day of November, 1896, as a day of public thanksgiving. Notwithstanding the general industrial depression which has prevailed in the country, we have been favored with unprecedented crops and a marked freedom from calamities, and the year is closing with the promise of a high degree of prosperity in all departments of industry. It is fitting, therefore, that a day be set apart in which all the people of this state may join either in their homes or in public places of worship, to render thanks and humble acknowledgments to the Providence which has vouchsafed to us these many blessings.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

In the Puritan days of long ago, the elements which entered into the joys of Thanksgiving day were the plum pudding, the pumpkin pie and the old goose. But, times have changed, and now but few could enumerate all that seems necessary to grace a dinner-table on Thanksgiving. The old turkey-gobbler now sits in state, and for at least one day in the year throws the American eagle in the shade. However, with all the additional delicacies, one cannot refrain from asking, Does the day retain the genuine joys and pleasures of long ago?

The glory of the day, from a social point of view, has largely departed. We are living in an age where society is divided and sub-divided until we have little left but clans and cliques; an age, too, where "cent" aristocracy struts along with an air disgusting to all who have a sense of appreciation of that which is noble, true and good. But, enough of this; it is the unpleasant portion of reflections which the coming holiday brings up.

To the readers of the STATESMAN we say, may yours be a joyous Thanksgiving; may your homes echo with the sweet voices of friends and dear ones, from morn' till night; may your tables be laden with delicacies; and, last but not least, may your day's happiness be made complete by acts of heaven-born charity.

The battle of the ballots is past and gone, but the battle of the money bugs goes steadily on.

If the report is true, that "the friends of Benjamin Harrison are to be given offices" by William McKinley, the "friends" of the former may outnumber those of the latter.

If the question, "What is he worth?" were asked more from a moral standpoint and less frequently from a financial point of view, the world would be better for the change.

The patriotism of Spaniards was recently shown by the fact that the fund wanted to carry on the war in Cuba was over-subscribed. Meanwhile, the patriotism of the insurgents is being shown by the way they fight without any such subscription.

If the Roentgen ray proves so successful in making the blind see as indicated by a news item in these columns, the beneficiaries will likely escape the sight of all that is unpleasant to look upon and view only that which is pleasing to the eye.

The announcement that P. C. Cudahy contemplates using the refuse of his packing plant for feeding chickens in a 1500-foot henery, about the 1st of next February, will make farmers in the vicinity of Cudahy wonder whether the prices of products in this line are to be controlled by a monopoly.

If "to the victors belong the spoils" is true of the late presidential contest, the Badger state is entitled to at least one position in Major McKinley's cabinet, judging from the majority which it gave him. However, only an unprincipled Democrat would aspire to such a position under the guise of being a gold-bug.

The proposition to make up the $30,000,000 yearly deficiency in our government revenue by doubling the present tax of 92 cents per barrel on beer cannot be realized even through an "overwhelmingly popular demand" if what Senator Mitchell said on the subject last winter is true, viz: "A further tax on beer would be as unjust as a tax on bread."

CHANGING presidents every four years seems to be too often to suit the members of the Outagamie county board, so they will petition the legislature to memorialize congress "for the adoption of a constitutional amendment fixing the term of the president of the United States at six years and making the president ineligible for reelection."

The returns in the office of the secretary of the state indicate that the proposed amendment to the constitution, to enable the legislature to increase the salary of the superintendent of public instruction, was defeated. As the Democratic legislature of 1893 proposed it and the Republican legislature of 1895 approved the same and provided for its submission, neither the Democratic nor the Republican orators made much mention of it through fear of detracting the attention of the people from matters upon which the two old parties differed. However, the returns show that there was only one way to carry anything in the late state election, and that was to have had it placed upon the Republican ticket.

The electors of this state will meet in Madison on Dec. 2 and cast the vote of Wisconsin (12) for McKinley as our next president. They will also make distinct lists of all persons voted for as president and as vice-president together with the number of votes each received, sign, certify and transmit said lists to the president of the senate at Washington; and, on Feb. 12th, congress will open the certificates, cast the votes of all states and declare the result. As the present indications are that Mr. McKinley will have many more than the 224 necessary for a choice, the house of representatives will be spared the trouble of electing the next president; and, as Mr. Hobart seems to have a similar majority of the electoral votes, the senate will have no occasion to elect the vice-president.

EFFECT OF A CLEVER ANSWER.

Numerous instances Where it Has Secured Promotion.

A long list might be given of men who have owed their advancement in life to a clever answer given at the right moment. An account of how two of them managed it may be appropriately given. One of Napoleon's veterans, who survived his master many years, was wont to recount with great glee how he had once picked up the emperor's cocked hat at a review, when the latter without noticing that he was a private, carelessly said: "Thank you, captain." "In what regiment, sire?" instantly inquired the quick-witted soldier. Napoleon, perceiving his mistake, answered, with a smile: "In my guards, for I see you know how to be prompt." The newly made officer received the commission next morning.

A somewhat similar anecdote is related of Marshal Suwaroff, who upon receiving a dispatch from the hands of a Russian sergeant who had greatly distinguished himself on the Danube, attempted to confuse the messenger by a series of whimsical questions, but found him fully equal to the occasion. "How many fish are there in the sea?" asked Suwaroff. "All that are not caught yet," was the answer. "How far is it to the moon?" "Two of your excellency's forced marches." "What would you do if you saw your men giving way in battle?" "I would tell them that there was plenty of whisky back of the enemy's line." Baffled at all points the marshal ended with, "What is the difference between your colonel and myself?" "My colonel cannot make me a lieutenant, but your excellency has only to say the word." "I say it now," answered Suwaroff, "and a right good officer you will be."—X.

Clemens F. Luckaschenski of Oshkosh is a young man whose sweet-heart objected to the length of his name, so he petitioned the county board and had it shortened to Luck, which pleases the girl so that she will share it with him shortly.

A silo has been completed in Jefferson county which is said to be the largest in the world. It is 62 feet in diameter and of proportionate height, and required 72 cords of stone, 40 barrels of cement, 62,000 feet of lumber and a good wagon-load of nails. Its cost was $2,400.

Ben. Winship of Tarr Valley, west of Funnell City, met with a very painful accident. He was going to town with some cattle, and one of the dehorned cows of about 1200 weight ran away; and, when he tried to catch her, she lunged at him, knocked him through a fence, stepped upon his head, crushed his nose and broke his jaw bone.

John Quinn's 15-year-old daughter had a thrilling experience one evening recently while returning from a social in the country school about 12 miles north of Spooner. She was pursued by wolves until compelled to drop her lunch basket and climb a tree for safety. The hungry animals tore the basket to pieces, devoured its remnants of lunch with apparent relish, and finally skulked away into the woods. The young lady then descended to the ground, ran home and reported her experience to her father and brothers, who afterward succeeded in killing one of the wolves and wounding another.
