The president, in his message, spoke of the general arbitration treaty as the "general scheme." Therefore the London Globe may have some ground for saying "the passage in our history, beginning with the Venezuelan trouble and ending with the conclusion of the treaty, contains nothing to be approved and a great deal which most of us would be glad to obliterate."

GOOD-BYE.

"Good-bye," indeed quite a little word. Yet what pain and sorrow lies therein. And untold woe for those who part...

"Good-bye," a husband said at part. As he kissed his wife and little ones there. "Business will keep me very late tonight. So do not wait darlings for me."

"Good-bye," a young man said to his weeping bride. "Pray do not weep, it will not be long. A few short years, and I'll return."

"Good-bye" is a little word. But how heavy its weight in sorrow and pain. For loved ones who part and in all this world are destined never to meet again.

Fred. Mehlors, the cattle buyer from Batavia, passed through here on the 8th inst. Albert Schulz and Michael Hecker of Milwaukee visited relatives and friends here this week.

The marriage of Miss Florence Driscoll of Milwaukee to J. P. O'Connell of Beechwood was solemnized in the St. Matthew church at Milwaukee on Jan. 7th by the Rev. F. Ryan.

The church was decorated with Christmas greens and natural flowers. Promptly at 10 o'clock Mrs. Kane, who presided at the organ, struck up the wedding march of Mendelssohn and the wedding party marched to the altar in the following order: Miss Elanor Margaret O'Connell, maid of honor; Miss N. J. Rooney of Plymouth; Miss Nettie Clancy of Milwaukee; and Jas. O'Connell, brother of the groom.

The bride was attended in a high-necked gown of white with a shawl trimmed with lace and orange blossoms. The tulle veil was attached to a high coiffure fastened with orange blossoms. She carried bride's roses. The bride's maids wore cream gowns of cashmere trimmed with smilax and lilies of the valley.

The ceremony was largely attended, and at the conclusion thereof a reception was given, at the home of the bride's father, to immediate friends. The couple left Milwaukee on an evening train for a wedding tour, but they will be at home in Beechwood after Jan. 20th.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

No Place for Her.—"I'll wager that woman submarine diver doesn't stay under the water more than ten minutes at a time." "Why?" "Nobody down there to talk to."—Chicago Record.

His Last Alias.—"Your cousin was a sort of easy speaking feller with a crook in his eye," said Rubberneck Bill to the inquiring tourist. "Yes, his right name was William Hickelberry. Did he go by that name here?" "Naw. He had half a dozen names, though. The last one, I remember, was give to him by the boys. An' it was Ole Stocking."

Senator Coke of Texas was once pitted in a race for an eloquent man named Cole, who was an eloquent fellow and thus getting the best of the match. The Coke party gave a big barbecue, but their best speaker could not be on hand. The committee discovered that no talent was available except a rough and tumble fellow, who had been a coal miner in West Virginia.

"Many people are unaware," said Representative Curtis of Kansas the other day, "that Kansas had a shibboleth in border state times. In 1854, when the first tide of New England settlers began to drive into the Southwest, it is related that the Missourians tied a cow at each crossing of the Missouri river. When an immigrant arrived at the crossing he was certain to make some remark about the animal. If he said 'cow' he was suffered to cross, but if he said 'keow' he was hustled out of the country as a bloody-minded abolitionist."

Western Judge—You are charged, sir, with being the leader of a party which hunted down and lynched a horse thief. The days have gone when citizens of this great commonwealth can thus take the law in their own hands, hence your arrest. What have you to say? Prominent Citizen—I ain't guilty, judge. I'll tell you how it was.

There was a storm comin' up and we couldn't spare him an umbrella very well, so we stood him under a tree. That was all right wasn't it? Judge—Certainly. P. C.—Well, the clouds kept gathering and the wind was blowin' pretty high, and we didn't want him blown away, so we tied a rope around his neck and fastened the other end to a limb above—no tight jedge, just so as to hold him—and we left him standin' solid on his feet. Nothing wrong about that, was there? J.—Nothing at all. P. C.—Then I kin be excused, can't I? J.—But, the man was found suspended from that tree and stone dead the next morning. P. C.—None of us had anything to do with that, jedge. You see, we left him standin' there in good health and spirits, for we give him all he could drink when we said "good-bye"; but, you see, during the night rain came up and I s'pose the rope got partly wet and shrank a couple of feet. That's how the sad accident happened, jedge.—New York Weekly.
