Violent Hailstorm.

A violent hailstorm struck Fond du Lac shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday af-ternoon, but fortunately was of short duration. A man didn't need the lens of a compound miscroscope to see hailstones the size of a walnut and during the downpour the storm caused considerable confusion among teams on the street. A horse belonging to C. F. Carstens hitched on the post and making an exciting run through the thoroughfare. Many winthrough the thoroughfare. More than 60,000 men have passed through this port during the war. Gen Shafter, Col. M. P. Maus, inspector general of the department of California, and Captain of Detectives Seymour are investigating the matter. It is stated by Seymour that collusion between prominent army officers will be proved as well as widespread swindling in the matter of selling government goods taken from the Presidio and other places of storing.

Capt. Seymour said today: "The government unquestionably has been robbed for a long time past, and I believe the amount of the losses sustained by Uncle Sam through the treachery and dishonesty by of some of his army officers and others will reach into the hundreds of thousands of dellars.

Stores Advertise the Goods.

For months past various stores about the city have been exhibiting signs bearing the words, "Government goods for sale here," and advertisements have even been printed in the daily newspapers boldly announcing the sale of goods stolen from the government and put upon the market at ridiculously-low prices. These articles included everything used by soldiers. Col. Maus began an investigation and located large stocks of goods in stores and warehouses which came from the growth and bought the goods of Lippman Abrams, who formerly kept a store near the Presidio. Abrams and his son George were at once arrested, charged with selling government property. They were released on $5000 bail each.

COMPANY NOT GUILTY. DE WAYNE STEBBINS DEAD. Insurance Commissioner Finds In Favor of Equitable Life Insur-

Madison, Wis., June 13 .- [Special.]-Insurance Commissioner Emil Giljohann this morning handed down his findings in the case of the complaint of William Marx against the Equitable Life Assurance society of New York. The com plaint charges that the society gave to Colin McLean a policy for life insurance or $100,000 as a gift. According to Mr Giljohann's findings the Equitable Assur ance company is not guilty of the charge brought.

ance Society.

Mr. Giljohann's decision was as fol lows:

I find the following to be the facts: On the 26th day of November, 1900, the Equitable Life Assurance society, through the general agency of Archibald C. Haynes at New York, issued to Colin McLean a polley for $80,000 with annual premium of $5094.40, for which the said Haynes accepted notes signed by McLean as follows: Note, $500, due March 26, 1901; note, $2000, due May 26, 1901; note, $2594.40, due July 26, 1901.

The note drawn March 26 has not been paid.

The note drawn March 26 has not been paid.

On December 14, 1900, the Equitable Life Assurance society, through this same gen cral agency, issued to McLean an additional policy for $100,000. The number of this policy, photograph of which also accompanies the complaint, is 1,630,155, with annual premium of $6308, and is dated June 14, 1901. This policy, by a provision on the back of the contract dated December 14, 1900, is made a six-month's term Insurance contract, from December 14, 1900, to June 14, 1901, at a premium of $1551.

This is the policy which forms the bask for the complaint and, although McLean ander oath states that it was presented to him as a gift, A. C. Haynes presents for the inspection of the commissioner a note for $1531, signed Coiln McLean, December 15, 1900, and due October 15, 1901, and, according to the testimony of A. W. Maine, associate auditor, and the books of the Equitable, the premiums would appear to have been paid to the commany. sociate anottor, and the books of the ultiable, the premiums would appear to be been paid to the company. What the purpose was of accepting a tenniths' note for a six-months' term insurce contract—a note becoming due four ants after the term insurance has exced—the commissioner is unable to say, can the commissioner recorded the prodired—the commissioner is unable to say, for can the commissioner reconcile this note with the affidavit of McLean.

The commissioner, however, cannot but xpress his surprise that policies aggreating $180,000, with premiums amounting $6,000,000, with premiums amounting $6,000,000, with premiums amounting of $600,000, with premiums amounting of $600,000, with premiums amounting to the total premiums, the ten-months for he total premiums, the ten-months' note eing accepted for a six-months' term incrance and failing due four months after he insurance has expired.

A. C. Haynes testifies that the notes were made payable to him personally and that he made payment in each to the company of the net amount due, and that the notes were deposited as collateral with a trustward of the made payment. The charges, therefore, against the Equi-able Life Assurance society have not been roven and the complaint is hereby dis-dissed. In obtaining the facts the commission nas examined the associate auditor of the company, its general and subagent, and also the books of the company, which testimony is on file in this department.

LEADER OF A GANG. Charges Made Against George R. Downs, a Former Resident

Kenoshå, Wis., June 13 .- [Special.]-George R. Downs, a former Kenosha cit izen, who is alleged to have been the leader of a famous gang of horse thieves in southern Wisconsin and northern Illi-ncis, was arrested last night at Mon-meuth. Ill., on a warrant issued in this city, charging him with stealing a team of horses from Harry Kupfer, the livery-nan.

The career of Downs has been a romantic one. Many years ago he was a member of a well-known family in Kenosha, but he had been missing from his native haunts for many years. As an employe of the Bain shops under the old regime he had a large number of friends in Kenosha and when it was announced that a warrant had been issued for his arrest it caused a great deal of surprise among his former friends here. Downs, it is stated, left Kenosha on account of trouble with a sweetheart and since he left here he had been traveling the downward path in a reckless manner. He never returned to Kenosha, but it is claimed that the path of the transgressor proved to be a remunerative one and owned by a Chicago man. The stone was bought by Harry Deakin, formerly of Milwaukee, who has art rooms in the Fine Arts building, and he obtained it from an agent who in turn got it from a Prairie du Chien man who promised a fisherman to name the gem after his wife, if he, the fisherman, would part with it. The clamfisher was given $17,500 for the stone, and the agent paid $25,000 for it; the price paid by Mr. Deakin is not known, but it was a large sum. is claimed that the path of the transgressor proved to be a remunerative one and he is said to have a beautiful home in one of the leading residence districts of Chicago. It has been alleged that his wife and children were not acquainted with the crime which he is alleged to have been mixed up, but they had always supposed that the husband and father was a traveling man.

Downs is accused of stealing many horses, but the officers seem to think that it will be exceedingly hard to trace many of the crimes directly to his door as they allege that he has been at the head of a gang of thieves who have practiced their work most successfully in the last two months. Downs is alleged to have directed all these thefts and to have profited largely from them. Deakin is not known, but it was a large sum.

The pearl weighs 103 grains, is three-fourths of an inch long and five-eighths of an inch in diameter. It is pear-shaped and perfectly symmetrical. It has an indescribable pink luster and, under electric light, gleams and glistens like the last ruddy glow over the horizon at sunset. An ordinary pearl weighs four grains, so that the great value of this fine stone can be well understood. Mr. Deakin yesterday secured an offer of $40,000 for the pearl, but refused it. It his price is not accepted here he will take the gem to Europe, where it will assume a nuch greater value. the gem to Europe, where it will assume a nuch greater value.

Mr. Deakin has been in the business of collecting pearls for many years, and saw only one pearl in the orient that outweighed this. Its weight was 400 grains, but it had no luster, and the Chicagoan says he would not have given $5 for it. This pearl is undoubtedly the largest in the country, and few, if any, in the old world will compare with it in tint, shape, and perfection of luster.

The curiosity of the clamfisher's wife is responsible for the pearl not being overlooked. The man had found a number of clams, and this one was picked up near Lansing, Ia.. in the Mississippi river. The clam had been thrown aside in the fisherman's but when his wife came in the room to call her husband to dinner. She absently picked up one of the clams from a heap and opened it. She screamed loudly, and her husband thought she was ill. He rushed to her side, and seeing the immense stone in the shell seized the

PEARL WORTH $50,000 DEMANDS OF GERMANY. Stockholders in Transvaal Railroad Ask Compensation from Wonderful Gem Found by Fisher-

Great Britain.

London, June 13 .- The report of the British Transvaal Concessions company is severely condemned here by the whole press as being high-handed and denying private property rights in war, against the practice and theory of all civilized countries. The correspondent of the Associated press learns from a reliable source that the German government has instructed the German embassy in London to protest against the gross wrong meditated against a large number of Ger the name of a pearl worth $50,000 and man stockholders in the Netherlands-South African railroad. Germany takes the ground that the German stockholders have an undoubted right of full compensation from Great Britain for the shares. Cheese Hoops and Presses,

He May Have Plenty of Shooting. There is probably no country on the American continent where the life of the farmer carries with it that assurance of comfort and success as does Western Canada. Nor is there to be found anywhere else such a pleasant combination. Game abounds every perfect amusement. A noted sportsman writing of the favorite pastime says: saw a man drop seventy mallards one morning, and bring them all to bag, too, for they dropped in open water or en flat prairie. At the right season of the year you can see black lines and triangles cut sharply out against the sky all round you, moving very swiftly, and you begin to wonder whether you have enough cartridges to hold out. You can hear the prairie chicken crowing like barn-door fowls; and a little to the northeast is a bit of marshy ground, cattle-poached, and dappled with gleaming pools, where the snipe with gleaming pools, where the snipe are nearly as thick as mosquitoes. A thin column of blue smoke curling up in the distance shows you where a few wandering Indians have pitched their camp, but there is no other indication of civilization in sight. Still, the neighborhood is well settled, and a short drive will bring you to a farmhouse where you can buy the finest butter and the freshest eggs for uncivilized

"A very short railway journey will bring you to a country full of deer and the lordly wapiti, the king of the deer tribe the world over; and down on the flat, boggy land by the lake shores the moose will stand knee-deep in water on the summer evenings, ready to lie down when the flies get bothering. All day you breathe the wild free air of the prairie, and at night you are lulled to sleep by the surge and ripple and splash of the waves on the beach, broken now and then by the weird bansheecry of strange water fowl."

Particulars regarding settlement of the lands of Western Canada can be had from any agent of the Canadian Government, whose advertisement appears elsewhere in your columns. OLD READER.

CHAPTER XLII.—(Continued.) Sawny's bag was quite heavy when again he started across the coverts to his next station. A little farther on a hare lay yet warm across the path. Her neck was fast in a wire "grin." Death, as the newspapers' reports say, had been instantaneous. Sawny attended to this, not so much from morives of humanity as from those of caution. A bare sent in a wire grin." Was it you they were after, na, Sawny?" where, and nowhere does it afford such next station. A little farther on a hare There is one particular spot where I the newspapers' reports say, had been from those of caution. A hare caught in an ill-set wire cries out with a half-human cry which can be heard a long way off, and has been known to attract the keepers, who, instead of picking up the animal, have simply let it lie until the poacher came along to lift it, when both hare and captor were marched to jail. There was a little fall in the run at the point where Sawny's wire was set, on the principle of the drop, and he had taken the precaution to draw his foot for some distance along the other hare runs, forming an obstacle which no self-respecting hare would pass, so that poor Malkin was positively shut in to this mode of self-execution.

A covey of partridges fluttering in a net, a bewildered rabbit or two come to the door of its hole for a breath of night air, another dead pheasant swinging with his neck broken in a loop hung from a branch—these were the further contents of Sawny the poacher's bag when he began to think of turning homeward. The song brought no thought of wrongdoing to the mind of Sawny Bean, dull in all that did not concern the things of nature, but he stopped mechanically, with a dull sense of annoyance. He would stop that singing. He would twist their necks for them. He would leave his bag in the ditch and stop their noise. But at this moment he heard the sharp sound which the steel-rimmed heel of a boot makes when sentening on a stop. In which the steel-rimmed heel of a boot makes when scratching on a stone. In a moment he realized that he had nearly walked into a trap. There was a rush of men from behind the great split boulder. A cry of "Hae ye gruppit him, Lamont?" A reply of "Here he is, boys!" Sawny threw himself flat and stiff on the ground. The foremost man tumbled headleng over him, and the second over on the top of the first. "Tendered Him."

Washington, D. C., June 11.—The following statement has been given out at the white house:

"The Work House is the Capital of Hashington for the Western world is now an established fact. Along about February last the lawgivers of style in this city sent out their edicts of what men should wear this summer. Plates went all over the United States, and in every tailor shop in every town may be seen the sign. "I regret that the suggestion of a third term has been made. I doubt whether I am called upon to give it notice. But am called upon to give it notice. But there are now questions of gravest importance before the administration and the country and their just consideration should not be prejudiced in the public mind by even the suspicion of the thought

It used to be the thing for men traveling to get their clothes made in London, and for the women to order in Paris. But it is now known that the London tailors cannot fit as well as the best New York cutters. A good cutter has an inicome far higher than the average clerk, and more than the average lawyer, and about six times the salary of the average Methalist minister. He is an artist, an autocrat, a man of ideas, a dictator, a lawgiver as to clothes. He takes the men of destiny and bosses them.

Some of the great tailors have agents travelling throughout the country taking orders. It is a common thing for merchants visiting the city to get measured for clothes and take them along on their return. Many merchants leave their measure and order by mail every season. It is a common thing for foreign ambassadors, members of Congress, military men and wealthy men from all parts of the country to order clothes from their favorite tailors in New York. And some, when they have once been measured, let the tailors depend upon those measures for a few years at a time and have their clothes sent on without ever coming to the shop.

The Fly Settled the Question.

At a recent meeting of the Entomological society in London the president, G.
H. Verrall, told an amusing story to prove that a knowledge of insects may even be useful in settling questions in literary history, says the Youth's Companion. Commentators on the works of Robert Louis Stevenson were trying in vain to discover whether the notes made by him in a certain book were written before or after he took up his residence in Samoa. It happened that a fly had been squeezed between the pages, and when Mr. Verrall saw it, he instantly recognized it as belonging to a species peculiar to the Polynesian islands. That settled the question.
