oh, it must be more than that—thirty years ago."

"And never had a holiday since?"

"No; that's the only one I ever had."

We spent the afternoon in going from court to court, and from room to room, chatting with everyhedy, and in only one court to court, and from room to room, chatting with everybody, and in only one single case did we find a woman who had had a holiday since she had been married. One middle-aged woman had just come back from a visit to her native place after nineteen years' absence from it. It was the only holiday she had ever had since she was there before, and she seemed to think it improbable that she should ever go again, but with a brisk, cheery sort of optimism, and in terms of the rather unctuous piety that she probably thought would please the worthy missionary, she declared that she had much to thank the Lord for. She had so much enjoyed it.—London News.

TREATY IS INVOLVED.

Alleged that No Convention with Prussia for Extradition of Fugitives Exists. Chicago, Ill., Oct. 16 .- [Special.]-Was the treaty of 1852 between the United States and Prussia abrogated by he formation of the German empire in 1871, and is it now possible to extradite person to Prussia under any existing vention between the governments?

These were questions raised in the United States district court today by Attorneys A. C. Umbreit of Milwaukee and Albert W. May of Chicago in filing a petition for a writ of habeas corpus in behalf of Gerhard Terlinden. In Jail Since Last August. Terlinden has been kept in jail by the United States authorities since last Au-gust, when he was arrested in Milwaukee on the charge of embezzling large sums of money in Prussia, where he had a large mercantile business.

The hearing of the petition will be be-fore Judge Kohlsaat tomorrow afternoon. At that time the defendant hopes to se-cure his release, or at least to be allowed give bail.
The filing of a petition for a writ of habeas corpus came as a surprise to the lawyers for the German consul, who had been vainly striving for some time to have the hearing begin before United States Commissioner Foote. The defense secured another delay today, when the case was set for October 28.

the case was set for October 28. Illegal Imprisonment Alleged. Several reasons are presented by Ter-linden in his effort to prove that he is il-legally imprisoned. He states first that or convention for extradition es from justice exists between of fugitives from justice exists between the United States and the German em-pire; secondly, that the treaty for the ex-tradition of such persons, concluded be-tween the two governments—Prussia and the United States—in June. 1852, was terminated in the creation of the German empire and the adoption of the constitu-tion in 1871. No treaty between the two government has been made since then, it is urged.

The point is also raised that even it the treaty of 1852 were still in force, the offense charged against the prisoner is not extraditable under this convention. Point Never Raised Before.

Attorney May says this point has never been passed on, so far as Terlinden's rep-resentatives could learn. He is confident

ERROR IN LOWER COURT The Case was Prejudiced by the Admission of Evidence as to Another Crime. Albany, N. Y., Oct. 15 .- The court of appeals has granted Roland B. Molineux, the alleged poisoner, a new trial. Molineux was convicted of the murder of Catherine J. Adams in New York city and sentenced to death. The court grants a new trial on a prevailing opinion writ ten by Judge Werner of Rochester, his point ground being that the lower court erred in admitting evidence as to another alleged crime, the death of Barnett, and thus merged two issues. Every member of the court of appeals argued the reversal of the judgment of conviction of Molineux on the ground that the trial court erred in receiving in evidence the declaration of Barnett made to Drs. Phillips and Douglass that he had received Kutnow powders through The only subject about which the members of the court differ in their opinions relates to the testimony introduced tend-ing to show that Molineux caused the death of Barnett by the same method as that used in taking the life of Mrs. Adams. The majority report reads: "As a part of the theory or theories upon which the prosecution sought to connect the defendant with the killing of Mrs. Adams, evidence was offered and received to show that the defendant was responsible for that the defendant was responsible for the previous killing of one Henry C. Barnett, who came to his death at the Knickerbocker Athletic clubhouse on the 10th day of November, 1898. The general rule of evidence applicable to criminal trials is that the state cannot prove against a defendant any crime not alleged in the indictment, either as a foundation for a separate punishment or as aiding the proofs that he is guilty of the crime charged."

Review of Molineux Case. On December 24, 1898, Harry S. Corn-On December 24, 1898, Harry S. Cornish, director of athletics in the Knickerbocker Athletic club, New York city, received through the mail a package containing a silver holder and a bottle labeled "Bromo-Seltzer." Four day later, December 28, Mrs. Kate J. Adams, with whom Cornish boarded, died suddenly after partaking of the supposed harmless drug; and chemical analysis showed her death to be due to poisoning by hydrocyanic acid and cyanide of mercury, the latter of which had been mixed with the bromo-seltzer. A coroner's jury returned latter of which had been mixed with the bromo-seltzer. A coroner's jury returned a verdict that the poison had been sent to Cornish by Roland B. Molineux, who was arrested February 27, 1899. On March 1 the grand jury brought in an indictment against him.

On April 12, 1899, the indictment was dismissed and the case ordered to be resubmitted to the grand jury and received and considered other legal evidence. On May 9 the grand jury refused to indict Molineux and he was discharged from custody, but only to be rearrested at once on a charge of assault in the first degree in sending poison by mail to Harry Cornish. Bail was furnished on June 9 by the prisoner's father; but he was immediately again rearrested, on the old charge of murder, and held without bail. On June 19 Justice Fursman ordered a resubmission of the entire case to a grand jury not later than July 7. On July 20, 1899, Molineux was again indicted.

Sentenced to Death.

Sentenced to Death.

On this indictment Molineux was brought to trial November 14, 1899, before Recorder Goff. The taking of testimony consumed the time between December 6, 1899, and June 24, 1900. There was then an intermission till February 5, caused by the illness of one of the jurors. No witnesses were called for the defense. Counsel took about two days on each side for summing up. On February 10, after nine hours' deliberation, the jury returned a verdict, "Guilty," and on this verdict sentence of death was pronounced February 16, 1900. Sentence was stayed on writ or error to the court of appeals. The trial is believed to have cost the county and state $175,000.

The evidence against Molineux was wholly circumstantial, and consisted of a

MADISON STUDENTS PROMOTE DOG FIGHTS.

Championship Events Between Greek Letter Society Pets. Madison, Wis., Oct. 17 .- [Special.]-The various Greek letter fraternities of the University of Wisconsin are engaged the University of Wisconsin are engaged in an interfraternity dog fight champion ship series. Nearly all of the Greek societies have canine pets, the favorite kind being the buildog. Recenty the Beta of Theta Pi dog, Pat, attacked the Psi Upsilon dog, Psi, and defeated him. Shortly afterward the Delta Upsilon dog, Stagg, chewed the Beta dog into submission and the owners of Stagg made the boast that their animal was the champion fighting dog of the university.

This led to contradiction from the other Greeks and now a regularly scheduled series of championship dog fights is on. Yesterday the attraction was a battle best tween the Psi Upsilon dog and the Delta Upsilon canine, in which Psi took revenge for his previous defeat.

The fights take place on the football seed for the owners of the wounded dogs. At present a match is being arranged between Peter Sterling, the Phi Delta Theta dog, and an animal which is being imported from Chicago or Milwaueke by the Theta Delta Chi fruternity.

to keep your eye on the BIG STORE this fall. We are now making improvements and adding new fixtures in order to enable us to properly show at least a part of our heavy fall purchase. Our buyer, Mr. Fohn, is now in Chicago taking advantage of the "snaps" that overstocked wholesalers have to offer at this season of the year.

We are going to show you a larger array of styles and fabrics than we have ever shown before. Most of them are fabrics that you depend upon for good serviceable wear and stylish appearance.

New goods are arriving daily. Come in and look at them. Our clerks will make it as pleasant as possible for you.

Russian Merchants Display Pictures of What They Have to Sell. ero is one custom in St. Petersburg.

holding all over Russia, so droll that all foreigners laugh over it. The shophold-ers have huge signs over the miserable peepholes they call show windows, and these signs are painted with the reproductions of the wares that are in the shops. This was formerly a great convenience to those who could not read, and even at the present day was not too much ridiculed by myself.

One could get along famously in Rus-ia could he read the jaw-breaking tongue but the letters in some fronts and street corners look like the signs of the zodiac to the average foreigner, and do not mean as much. If one could read and form an idea of syllables the veriest idiot would have a passable knowledge of suf-ficient traveling Russian in a month. Rusficient traveling Russian in a month. But the language bars you out and bowls you over because perforce you do not know the fifty-two letters that resemble tripods and crescents and scarfpins and inverted r's and other things. So the signs do very well. For example, a dairy will have a demonstration on each side the door where a cow will stand flanked by a couple of tubs of butter and leaning against a background of cheeses, while glasses of foaming milk stand temptingly around. I was going to say that a pile of eggs was another feature, but never un-less the hen is portrayed proudly chuck-ling over their freshness.—St. Petersburg

HOW AMERICA WAS NAMED.

Title Due to a German Scholar Who Admired Amerigo Vespucci. I wonder wehther all Americans are aware of the fact that even the name of their continent is due to none but a German scholar, says a writer in the National Geographic Magazine. In 1507 Martin Waldseemuller, also known as Hylacomylus of St. Die, in the Vosges, edited a book called Cosmosgraphiae Introductio, in which he gave a translation of Amerigo Vespucci's description of his voyages. That was just the time when Amerigo's fame filled the world, while Columbus' disgrace overshadowed his merit, and evidently his name had never reached the quiet village in the Vosges wonder wehther all Americans are merit, and evidently his name had never reached the quiet village in the Vosges when Amerigo trumpeted forth his own glory. So Hylacomylus proposed that, since the new continent was, after all, not a part of the Indies, no name would suit it better than that of his famous explorer, Amerigo.

The book was read far and wide, and so quickly was the proposition accepted that, when later on the true discoverer was known, the name was already rooted too deeply in general use to be abolished, and was even extended to the north part of the continent, while Hylacomylus had only meant it for Amerigo's special stage, the present South America.

"This is Master Reuben Lockarby, also of Havant, and Sir Gervas Jerome of Surrey," I replied. "They are both here as volunteers desiring to serve under the Duke of Monmouth."

"Ah. Brother Sandcroft," cried the pastor, "there is much sweetness and manna hidden in thy conversation. But the way is long and dreary. Shall we not lighten it by a song of praise? Where is Brother Thistlethwaite, whose voice is as the cymbal, the tabor, and the dulcimer?"

"Lo. most pious Master Pettigrue," said Saxon. "I have myself at times ventured to lift up my voice before the Lord." Without any further anglogy he tured to lift up my voice before the Lord." Without any further apology he broke out in stentorian tones into the follewing hymn, the refrain of which was un caught up by pastor and congregation:

The Lord He is a morion
That guards me from all wound:
The Lord He is a coat-of-mail
That circles me all round
Who, then, fears to draw the sword,
And fight the battle of the Lord?

"Stop that cart, Clarke," cried Saxon, vehemently, pointing with his sword to an old wagon, piled high with furniture and bedding, which was lumbering along drawn by two raw-boned colts. At the same moment I saw him drive his horse into the crowd and catch at the reins of another simildr one. Giving Covenant's bridle a shake I was soon abreast of the cart which he had indicated, and managed to bring the furious young horses to a standstill.

"Bring it up!" cried our leader, working with the coolness which only a long apprenticeship to war can give. "Now, friends, cut the traces!" A dozen knives were at work in a moment, and the kicking, struggling animals scampered off leaving their burdens behind them. Saxon sprang off his horse and set the example in dragging the wagon across the roadway, while some of the peasants, under the direction of Reuben Lockarby and of Master Joshua Pettigrue, arranged a couple of other carts to block the way fifty yards farther down. "Lo! this same candle waxed big and burned sooty, even as an offense to the nostrils, in the days of our fathers," cried a burly red-faced man, whose dress proclaimed him to be one of the yeoman class. "So was it when Old Noll did get his snuffing shears to work upon it. It is a wick which can only be trimmed by the sword of the faithful." A grim laugh from the whole party proclaimed their appreciation of the pious waggery of their companion.

"Ah, Brother Sandcroft," cried the paster "Nay, it's no matter for idle betting," said I, shortly, for his light-hearted chatter "thore is much sweetness and manna" the shone from their eyes, to see that they were not the men to quail, either from superior numbers or equipment.

"By the mass!" whispered Sir Gervas, "it is magnificent! An hour of this is worth a year in the Mall. The old Puritan bull is fairly at bay. Let us see what sort of sport the bull pups make in the baiting of him! I'll lay five pieces to four on the chaw-bacons!"

"Not long ago I had occasion to go to Pittsburg and borrowed a pass from a friend of mine, who is a physician in addition to being one of those favored by the railrond. The conductor took up the pass, with the others, for over night, as is the outer and I thought overthing not to have a stake on it one way or the is the is the custom, and I thought everything was all right. But about 3 o'clock in the morning I was aroused from a sound "Our lives are the stake," said I.
"Faith, I had forgot it!" he replied, still mumbling his toothplek. "'To be or not to be?" as Will of Stratford says. the morning I was aroused from a sound slumber in my berth by someone shaking me. I looked up startled. It was the conductor. 'Sorry to disturb you, doctor,' he said, 'but there's a man in the car very sick. Won't you take a look at him?' 'Here's a pretty fix,' thought I, 'but I'll have to make the bluff good or forfeit the pass.' So I got up, slipped on my clothes and looked at the patient. He was breathing heavily. I felt his pulse solemnly, measured it by my watch, and then said, as though I knew just what ailed him: 'Is there anyone here who has a flast?' I had half a dozen offers in a minute. While we had been making our dispositions the troop of horse—for there appeared to be but one—had trotted down the crossroad and had drawn up across the main highway. They numbered, as far as I could judge, about ninety troopers, and it was evident from their three cornered hats, steel plates, red sleeves and bandoliers, that they were dragoons of the regular army. The main body halted a quarter of a mile from us while their officers rode to the front and held a short consultation, which ended in one of them setting spurs to his horse and cantering down in our direction. A bugler followed a few paces behind him, waving a white kerchief and blowing an occasional blast upon his trumpet.

"Here comes an envoy," cried Saxon, who was standing up in the wagon. "Now, my brethren, we have neither kettle-drum nor tinking brass, but we have the instrument wherewith Providence hath endowed us. Let us show the redcoats that we know how to use it.

I could well believe at that moment that the Spartans and found the lame singer Tyrtaeus, the most successful of their generals, for the sound of their own voices increased the confidence of the country folk, while the martial words of the old hymn roused the dogged spirit in their breasts. So high did their courage run that they broke off their song with a loud, war-like shout, waving their weapons above their heads, and ready, I verily believe, to march out from their barricades and make straight for the horsemen. In the mdist of this clamor and turmoil the young dragoon officer, a handsome olive-faced lad, rode fearlessly up to the barrier, and pulling up his beautiful roan
