Witter of Grand Rapids has now provided the means to employ the additional instructors and lecturers upon special topics necessary to make two strong supplementary courses at the session in 1902. The first of these two courses will cover four weeks' work and will include library work with the children and schools, special work in children and schools, special work in cataloging and the selection of books. The second course will also cover four weeks and will be devoted to instruction in the cataloging, classification and use of pub-lic documents. The immense mass of valuable material now published by the national and state governments is not of much use to the general public because it is not properly arranged. The course in public documents will be given by Miss Adelaide R. Hasse, formerly of Milwaukee, chief of the document department of the New York Public library. Miss Hasse was also librarien in the office of the New York Public library. Miss Hasse was also librarian in the office of the superintendent of public documents, Washington, D. C., from 1895-'97. The pole of the water tank was thrown The condemned man made a brief speech in the chair. He said he was not against the flagman's shanty which stands beside the crossing and the buildsorry for what he had done, but expresed regret that he had not seen his father.

Slept the Sleep of the Just. Czolgosz retired last night at 10 o'clock and slept so soundly that when Warden Meade went to the cell shortly before 5 o'clock this morning the guard inside had to shake Czolgosz to awaken him. He sat up on the edge of his cot and made no reply to the warden's greeting of "Good morning."

Thayer gave the signal and the current was turned through the electric lights, flooding the chamber with brilliant light and dramatically showing the power that was used to kill the prisoner.

Cool to the Last. Warden Mead gave the signal to have the prisoner brought in, and at 7:10½ o'clock Chief Keeper Tupper swung open the big steel door leading to the condemned cells, and as the steel bars behind which Czolgosz had been kept were swung aside two guards marched the prisoner out into the corridor two statement: the prisoner out into the corridor, two others following and the chief keeper walking in front. "I am not sorry for my crime." he said am not sorry for my crime." he said bouldy, just as the guard pushed his head back on the rubber headrest and drew the strap across his forehead and chin. As the pressure on the straps tightened and bound the jaw slightly, he mumbled, "I am awfully sorry I could not see my father." father."

It was just exactly 7:11 o'clock when he crossed the threshold, but a minute had elapsed and he had just finished the last statement when the strapping was completed and the guards stepped back. Warden Mead raised his hand and at 7:12:30 Electrician Davis turned the switch that threw 1700 volts of electricity into the living body.

Statement of Electrician.

Electrician Davis made this statement as to the execution: "I used 1700 volts of electricity, turning it into the body at full voltage for seven seconds and than slowly reducing it for forty-five seconds. Then I threw the full voltage on again for eight seconds. Then, at the suggestion of Dr. MacDonald, I turned it on again for a few seconds. I did not think there was any necessity for the third contact and the lack of resistance shown, when it was administered, proved that when it was administered, proved that life was extinct. The body showed eight amperes of resistance. That is a little more than would be given by a larger or stouter man, where the current could have more chance to percolate. Y., Oct. 29.—After the autopsy the body of Leon Czolgosz was placed in a black-stained coffin, every portion of the anatomy being replaced under the supervision of Dr. Gerin and Warden Mead. Shortly afterward it was removed to the prison cemetery and an extraordinary precaution taken to completely destroy it. A few days ago, under the warden's order, an experiment was made to determine the power of quicklime in the destruction of flesh and bone, which was not satisfactory. Warwhich was not satisfactory. Warden Mead then conferred with some of den Mead then conferred with some of the physicians present and de-termined, in conjunction with Supt. business men of the city and there has never been a greater character or more man who says his permanent place of remarkable man in the county than residence is Chicago, to evade the pay-He was born in the town of Stafford, Genesee county, N. Y., June 22, 1822. In the summer of 1841 he came to Ra-cine and opened a forwarding and com-mission office and also conducted the Ra-cine Exchange, Racine's first hotel. In cine Exchange, Racine's first note. In 1845 a company was organized and a large elevator was erected. Mr. Dutton was the leading member of the firm and a few years later three more elevators were erected by the same firm and mil-lions of bushels of grain were handled by the company.

Mr. Dutton was the first agent for the Goodrich company at this port and he was the first man to take a line from the Goodrich steamer on entering this port. He also owned an interest in several vessels plying between Racine and Buffalo. In 1848 he erected wha was called the Dutton mansion. The residence is a large brick structure and is still the home of the Dutton family.

Mr. Dutton served four years as a member of the council and for two years was its president. For fifteen years he had been employed in northern Wisconsin, and when he decided to go back to Chicago he decided that railroad fare would make too big a hole in his scanty savings. Therefore he selected a North-Western boxcar loaded with lumber consigned to the South, and climbed in. He had the car to himself until the train reached a point north of Neenah. Then three tramps unceremoniously crawled in, and before long one of the trio asked Gurgle if he could give him a bill in exchange for silver. Gurgle thought it best to comply, and as he was about to do so he was attacked and thrown down upon the lumber.

to keep your eye on the BIG STORE this fall. We are now making improvements and adding new fixtures in order to enable us to properly show at least a part of our heavy fall purchase. Our buyer, Mr. Fohn, is now in Chicago taking advantage of the "snaps" that overstocked wholesalers have to offer at this season of the year.

We are going to show you a larger array of styles and fabrics than we have ever shown before. Most of them are fabrics that you depend upon for good serviceable wear and stylish appearance.

New goods are arriving daily. Come in and look at them. Our clerks will make it as pleasant as possible for you.

marched along the coast under command of Lord Grey of Wark, and Wade, the lawyer. At Bridport they were opposed by the red Dorset militia and part of Portman's yellowcoats. If all be true that is said, neither side had much to boast of. Gray and his cavalry never indicated bridly until they were back in boast of. Gray and his cavalry never tightened bridle until they were back in Lyme once more, though it is said their flight had more to do with the hard mouths of their horses than with the soft hearts of the riders. Wade and his footmen did bravely, and had the best of it against the king's troops. There was much outery against Grey in the camp, but Monmouth can scarce afford to be severe upon the only nobleman who hath joined his standard." "Pshaw!" cried Saxon, peevishly. "There was no great stock of noblemen in Cromwell's army, I trow, and yet they held their own against the King, who had as many lords by him as there are haws in a thicket. If ye have the people on your side, why should ye crave for these bewigged fine gentlemen, whose white hands and delicate rapiers are of as much service as so many ladies' bod-

"In good sooth, yes!" cried Master Pet-igrue, heartily. "What though he be lothed in a Joseph's coat of many col-is, and hath strange turns of speech, no nan could have fougat more stoutly or hown a bolder front against the enemies of Israel. Surely the youth hath good in his heart, though at present he be en-angled in the net of worldly follies and agreed ventices?

"It is to be hoped so," quoth Saxon, levoutly. "And what else can you tell as of the revolt, worthy sir?"

"Very little, save that the peasans have flocked in in such numbers that many have had to be turned away for want of arms. Every tithing-man in Somersetshire is searching for axes and scythes. There is not a blacksmith but is at his forge from morn to night at Somersetshire is searching for axes and scythes. There is not a blacksmith but is at his forge from morn to night at work upon pikeheads. There are 6000 men of a sort in the camp, but not one in five carries a musket. They have advanced. I hear, upon Axminster, where they must meet the Duke of Albemarie, who hath set out from Exeter with 4000 of the train bands."

"Then we shall be too late, after all!" I exclaimed.

reschied that it has not yet gone 10. It is clear that Monmouth's forces have not reached it yet, else had there been some reached it yet, else had there been some to reached it yet, else had there been some to reached it yet, else had there been some to yet reached it, the real center of the rebellion. It was a prosperous place with a great wooden and kersey trade, which gave occupation to as many as the pattern of the pa rebellion. It was a prosperous place, with a great woolen and kersey trade, which gave occupation to as many as 7000 inhabitants. It stood high, therefore, among English boroughs, being inferior only to Bristol, Norwich, Bath, Exeter, York, Worcester and Nottingham among the country towns. Tanntage at Rienzi cemetery. the whole town bore a grimly martial appearance, as though she were a veteran among boroughs who had served in the past, and was not averse to seeing the flash of guns and hearing the screech of past, and was not averse to seeing the flash of guns and hearing the screech of shot once more.

Charles' council might destroy the battlements which his soldiers had been unable to take, but no royal edict could do away with the resolute spirit and strong opinions of the burghers. Many of them, born and bred amid the clash of civil strife, had been fired from their infancy by the tales of the old war, and by reminiscences of the great assault when Lunsford's babe-eaters were hurled down the main breach by the strong arms of their fathers. In this way there was bred in Taunton a fiercer and more soldierly spirit than is usual in an English country town, and this flame was fanned by the unwearied ministerings of a chosen band of Nonconformist clergymen, among whom Joseph Alleine was the most conspicuous. No better focus for a revolt could have been chosen, for no city valued so highly those liberties and that creed which was in jeopardy.

A large body of the burghers had allegist flash of guns and Leander Ferguson of Brandon.

Returns from Alasko.

Edwin Fox has returned from Nome. for a revolt could have been chosen, for no city valued so highly those liberties and that creed which was in jeopardy.

A large body of the burghers had already set out to join the rebel army, but a good number had remained behind to guard the city, and those were reinforced by gangs of peasants, like the one to which we had attached ourselves, who had trooped in from the surrounding country, and now divided their time between listening to their favorite preachers and learning to step in line and to handle their weapons, In yard, street, and market square there was marching and drilling, night, morning and noon. Ae we rode out after breakfast the whole town was ringing with the shouting of orders and the clatter of arms. Our own friends of yesterday marched into the market place at the moment we entered it, and no sooner did they catch sight of us than they plucked off their hats and cheered lustily, nor would they desist until we cantered over to them and took our places at their head.

"They have yowed that none other"

"You will have enough of hattles before Monmouth exchanges his riding-hat for a crown, and his laced roquelaure for his reyal purple," quoth Saxon. "Should our worth rf--shere be correctly informed, and such an engagement take place, it will but be the prologue to the play. When Feversham and Churchill come up with the King's own froops, it is there that Monmouth takes the last spring, that lands him either on the throne or the scaffold."

While this conversation had been proceeding we had been walking our horses down the winding track which leads along the eastern slope of Taunton Deane. For some time past we had been able to see in the valley beneath us the lights of Taunton town and the long salver strip of the river Tone. The mon was shining brightly in a cloudless heaven, the fight of control of the fight of corn land, dark groves with the glint of lamplit windows shining from their of lampling from their of lamplit windows shining from their of lampling from their or the town hall. So, on, smartly there, rear rank!" he shouted as the minister, thould lead them," said the minister, standing by Saxon's stirrup.

"To cold not wish to lead stouter fellows," said he. "Let them deploy into downs, the head stouter fellows, in the town hall. So, on, smartly there, rear rank!" he shouted as the shouted as the best of the went and let the others of lampling he head them," said the minister, though the minister, though

Many persons with delicate skin suffer greatly in winter from chapping. Frequently the trouble arises from the use of impure soap and chap salves. The face and hands should be washed only in clear, hot water with Ivory soap. A little mutton tallow or almond oil may be used after the bath to soften the skin.
