Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 14.-Capt. Fer lan of the Australian steamship Etekla has brought to this port news of a prob-able marine disaster. Early on the mornof November 8, when the Etekla in latitude 41 north, lontitude 59 was in latitude 41 north, lontitude 59 west, Capt. Ferian states his attention was drawn to what he believes to have been a burning steamship. The craft was invisible, but the glare of the flames could be plainly seen. The course of the Etekla was changed, but before she could reach the burning vessel, an explosion suddenly occurred and the steamship was torn to pieces. The Etekla cruised about in the vicinity but could find no trace of any of the crew, who it was thought might have taken to the t was thought might have taken to the mall boats. Capt. Ferian says just before the ex piosion the flames shot high into the air, which leads him to believe that the vessel was probably an oil carrier.

COMPLETE BIG DEAL.

Company Formed to Acquire Properties of Great Northern and Northern Pacific Railroads.

New York, Nov. 14 .- The sweeping New York, Nov. 14.—The sweeping character of the recent Northern Pacific railroad settlement is revealed by the details of the formation under the laws of New Jersey, of the Northern Securities company, with a capital of $400,000,000. This company is to take over the stocks of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific railroads and control those properties. The three incorporators named crties. The three incorporators named—George F. Baker, Jr., Richard Trimble and Abram M. Hyatt—are merely temporary representatives of the Morgan-Hil interests. They will be replaced by a board of directors, in which the Union Pacific interests will have a liberal representation Lie formation of the new company is the formal ending of the rivalry waich developed into the most bitter ranroad war in the history of the country. In-terests representing hundreds of millions of dollars clashed in a financial duel which for a time threatened grave dis-aster not only in this country but to the entire world. The struggle was for the control of the Purlington system, the Hill-Morgan or Northern Pacific interests seeking to keep the important line out of the hands of the Harriman or Union Pacific ways.

Prompt work by financial houses averted the threatened assaster by safeguarding the houses in perd, and this country Harriman Party Ahend. The feeling in Wall street is that settlement is a distinct victory for E. H. Harriman, Jacob H. Schiff of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and William Rockefeller over Mr. Morgan and Mr. Hill and show conclusively that when the stockholdings of Northern Pacific held by each side was totaled up the Harriman-Kuhn-Loeb forces held the balance of power. The Harriman interests are to have equal representations with the Hill-Morgan interests in the discrete gan interests in the directorate of Chicago, Burlington & Quincy rail road, an arrangement which will prevent the Burlington being operated in a way that will be prejudicial to Union Pacific and advantageous to Northern Pacific and Great Northern. The plan of James J. Hill when he got possession of the Burlington to invade the territory of Union Pacific is thus defeated.

POLICY.

Kruger and Leyds Credited with Being Willing to Modify Their Demands.

London, Nov. 13 .- Peace negotiations are reported from every quarter, except Botha's headquarters in the saddle. The National Liberal federation is agitating for a full and explicit declaration of terms from Downing street, but this is a political maneuver directed by the pro-Boers. Kruger and Leyds are credited for the first time with a willingness to consider something less than actual national independence as a basis for peace. but the rumors from Holland are contradictory and illusory. There is a story that the Boers in arms have approached Kitchener, and have intimated a desire for peace, without any reference to Kruger, Steyn or Botha, but this is a transparent fiction, started for the purpose of explaining Salisbury's veiled reference to grounds of confidence which he could not lay bare. There can be no peace while 8000 Boers and Cape rebels hold the field under a dozen or more guerrilla leaders.

Kitchener's last report shows how scat-tered these forces are and how narrow is their range of operations. Dewet has re-appeared in a quarter of the Orange River colony where he can co-operate with Botha and it is surmised that an-other attempt to invade Natal is impend-ing.

Hardly a day passes without persons calling at the hotel where Mr. Dickinson and the newspaper correspondents are staying with information to sell regarding the case. This information is either stale or fabrications. A Greek priest yesterday introduced himself with the statement that he had met a Turkish officer with Miss Stone and Mme. Tsilka near Pjumaiabala. He added that the two women asked him to tell the people that he had seen them. This fiction is three weeks old. Miss Stone's statement in her letters that the movement of troops compel the brigand band to keep in constant motion proves that the troops in question must be Bulgarians, as the Turkish troops in Macedonia are stationary.

The lifesavers hurried to her aid and found the woman huddled up against a small shed, her thin garments drenched. She seemed waiting for the waves to wash her into the lake. When told that the crew had come to save her, the woman only smiled and asked if many people had committed suicide by leaping from the pier. She said: cide by leaping from the pier. She said:
"It looks like an easy death."
The men took her away by force and carried her to the station, where her clothes were dried, and without a word of thanks she disappeared. The girl admitted she was an actress and had been a member of the "Trip to Buffalo" company, but refused to give her name. A card found on the pier bore the name "Miss Mildred French." Treasury.

Waukesha, Wis., Nov. 14.-[Special.]

-Word was received here today that President Roosevelt had appointed Maj. William Haverstick general inspector of the treasury department, to succeed the late R. O. Jeardeau.

Maj. Haverstick has resided in this city for several years and is well known throughout the county. He was formerly connected with the Wisconsin Central Railroad company, but resigned his position during the Spanish-American war to take up the duties of paymaster, to which situation he had receiped an appointment, having the rank of major. Upon the close of the war he returned here and has since acted in the capacity of traveling engineer for the Wisconsin Central railroad. His new position yields $3000 a year in addition to all traveling expenses.

Modern Methods Make Citizen Soldiers Equal to Profesionals. In an interview in the London Mail on the military situation in France, M. de Bloch says the lessons of the Transvaal war are that the methods of warfare hitherto employed have become obsolete and impossible; that professional soldiers no longer possess their former superiority over civilians transformed into soldiers; that, on the contrary, the intelligent citi-zen possesses more individual initiative and independent action. The soldier's present training is almost usless on the battlefield. The Boers, who are simply peasants, have proved excellent soldiers. Just as Plevna was a revelation from he point of view of defensive tactics, so he Transvaal compaign has demonstrated that in future wars at every step there will be Plevnas, for the defense of which soldiers who are only good marksmen will suffice. Even for the offensive warfare the experience of England tends to the conclusion that seven-months' training for artillery and a few months for infautry are quite enough. As to the cavalry, all training is useless, since, according to Col. Henderson, "the small bore and smokeless powder have destroyed the last vestige of the traditional role of cavalry. Cavalry armed trained and equipmed as Cavalry armed, trained and equipped as the cavalry of the continent is as obsolete as the Crusaders."

The floor was tesselated after the French fashion, and plentifully strewn with skins and rugs. At one end of the apartment stood a great white marble fireplace, like a smaa room in itself, fitted up, as was the ancient custom, with an iron stand in the center, and with broad stone benches in the recess on either side. Lines of hooks above the chimney piece had been used, as I surmise, to support arms, for the wealthy merchants of England were wont to keep enough in their houses to at least equip their apprentices and at least equip their apprentic

While this was we eeding we stood in a group by the door with our caps doffed, and spent our time in observing the company more closely than we could have done with courtesy had their eyes not been cast dewn and their thoughts elsewhere.

They were of all ages, from gray-beards down to lads scarce out of their teens, all with the same solemn and austere expression of countenance, and clad in the same homely and somber garb. Save their wide white collars and cuffs, not a string of any color lessenged the sad severity of their attire. Their black coats and doublets were cut straight and close, and their Cordovan leather shoes, which in the days of our youth were usually the seat of some little ornament, were uniformly squaretoed and tied with sad colored ribbon. Most of them wore plain sword belts of untanned hide, but the weapons themselves, with their broad felt hats and black coats; were laid under the benches or placed upon the settees which lined the walls. They stood with their hands clasped and their heads bent, listening to the untimely address, and occasionally by some groon or exclamation testify. Touching that same battle of Ober-Graustock, colonel, what part was played in the fray by that regiment of Pandour horse in which, as I understand, thou didst hold a commission?" This was a question on which, as may

This was a question on which, as may be imagined, Saxon had much to say, and the pair were soon involved in a heated discussion, in which the experiences of Roundway Down and Marston Moor were balanced against the results of a score of unpronounceable fights in the Styrian Alps and along the Danube. Stephen Timewell in his lusty youth had led phen Timewell in his lusty youth had led first a troop and then a regiment through the wars of the Parliament, from Chal-grove Field to the final battle at Worcesgrove Field to the final battle at Worcester, so that his warlike passages, though less varied and extensive than those of our companion, were enough to enable him to form and hold strong opinions. These were in the main the same as those of the soldier of fortune, but when their ideas differed upon any point there arose forthwith such a crossfire of military jargus such speech of estageados and palisagon, such speech of estacados and palisa-dos, such comparisons of light horse and heavy, of pikemen and musketeers, of heavy, of pikemen and musketeers, of Lanzknechte, Leaguers, and on-falls, that the unused ear became bewildered with the babble. At last, on some question of fortifications, the mayor drew his outwork with the spoons and knives, on which Saxon opened his parallels with lines of bread, and pushing them rapidly up with traverses and covered ways, he established himself upon the re-entering angle of the mayor's redoubt. This opened up a fresh question as to countermines,

While this friendly strife was proceeding between the elders, Sir Gervas Jerome and Mistress Ruth bad fallen into conversation at the other side of the table. I have seldom seen, my dear ehildern, so beautiful a face as that of this Puritan damel; and it was beautiful with that sort of modest and maidenly comeliness where the feature derive their sweetness from the sweet soul which shines through them. The perfectly moulded body appeared to be but the outer extends the sweet of the countermines and festered until its vermin brood flooded the streets, and the godly were themselves driven to shun the light of day. Apollyon had indeed triumphed for a while. A quiet man could not walk the highways without being elbowed into the kennel by swaggering swashbucklers, or accosted by painted hussies. It amused me much to listen to the efforts which Sir Gervas made to converse with her, for the damsel and he lived so entirely in two different worlds that it took all his gallantry and ready wit to keep on ground which would be intelligible to her.

"No doubt you spend much of your time in reading, Mistress Ruth," he remarked. "It puzzles me to think what else you can do so far from town."

"Town!" said she, in surprise. "What is Taunton but a town?"

On the train returning home from Springfield one day last winter were the Honorable Mr. Merrill and several other members. After a time one of them said:

"Merrill, what time do you get to Chillicothe?"

This attracted the attention of an old man who had been apparently awaiting some identification of Mr. quite an important item in fitting up a house and proceeded to get it by smug gling it from the hotel storerooms. More Males than Females.

The enumeration of 1900 shows that there are more men and boys than women and girls in this country, and that the difference exceeds 1,800,000 in a population of 76,303,387. The excess appears more distinctly, perhaps, when it is said that there are 512 males and only 488 females in every thousand people in the United States.

Child Training in Germany.

In the German cities it is most refreshing to find scattered through each park many good-sized beds of clean sand. These beds are confined by awooden border to prevent the sand being scattered or washed away by rains No matter how small the park, or in what quarter of the city it is situated.

what quarter flow small the park, or in what quarter of the city it is situated, one is sure to find at least four or five of these small spots of delight for the children, and from early morn until sometimes far into the twilight you will never find one of these little enclosures entirely deserted.—Harper's Bazar.

The average woman cannot judge how much a foot is within several inches, but she can estimate a yard very closely, while with the average man the case is reversed, says St. Nicholas. If someone asked you which was the longer, a horse's head from the tip of his ears to the end of his nose, or an ordinary flour barrel, you would naturally say the barrel, though the horse's head is the longer. The eye is very easily deceived if it is called on to pass judgment on something that has not been brought home to it by experience.
