Armed Soldiers Have Repressing Effect on Riotous Miners.

QUIET FOLLOWS A RIOT

Reign of Terror Prevailed in the Town, Due to Collision Between the Police and the Strikers.

Shenandoah, Pa., July 31 .- The arrival of armed troops appears to have had a repressing effect upon the striking miners and their sympathizers. Last night the town was in the hands of a raging mob and a reign of terror existed. This morning it was noticeable that the pickets who have been guarding the approaches to the mines were not on duty. If they had been their vigilance would not have been rewarded, as no person til there will be a general resumption of was venturesome enough to run the mining. gauntlet after the exciting experience of Policeman Yacopsky is still in a precarious condition, but the other wounded policemen are doing well.

Joseph Beddell, who was reported to have died on the way to the miners' hospital, is still alive at that institution, but small hopes are entertained for his recovery. Two machinists of the Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Comdelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company's shops were severely beaten and are in the Pottsville Hospital. W. W. Pasco, a deputy, while escorting a number of workmen at Merriam colliery near Ashland, received a load of buckshot in his shoulder and he is now in the state hospital at Ashland. His as-ailant is unknown. No Hooting at Soldiers. The soldiers spent the day in establishing camp at Columbia park. A provost guard has been established throughout the town. At 1 o'clock extreme quiet prevails, but the streets of the town are full of idle men. They are watching the militiamen in their work of making camp. There has been no hooting or jeering of the soldiers, but the miners are inceused at the calling out of the troops, which President Mitchell was up early and asked for the newspapers. After reading the account of the trouble he was asked if he had anything to say for publication and he replied: "I am very sorty this thing has happened."

All the local leaders of the United Mine Workers deplore the shedding of blool and the calling out of the troops. They say the presence of the soldiers will encourage the operators to start up their nines and after the collieries in the Scharlkill district are put in operation.

As soon as a satisfactory site start was the presence of the soldiers in the Scharlkill district are put in operation. It develops that no one was killed or fatally injured and that the entire trouble might have been averted had the deputies kept cool and used greater discretion. While I greatly deprecate acts of lawlessness by anyone, particularly by those on strike, I am naturally pleased to learn that the trouble is not as serious as first reported. I have repeatedly warned the strikers that any violation of law on their part would militate against themselves alone and I am hopeful that there will not be a repetition of trouble of this character. He made a thorough study of his own case and of the causes of the disease, following this with the experimental use of remedies suggested by the knowledge thus gained. Ultimately he found a combination of herbs which completely rid his system of every trace of rheumatism, and, though years have elapsed, he is still perfectly free from any symptom of the old ailment. Neighbors and friends to whom Mr. Smith gave the remedy were cured with equal thoroughness and permanence and "Gloria Tonic," as Mr. Smith named the discovery, began to be in demand. Since that time many thousands have by its use been relieved of the terrible affliction of rheumatism. Mr. Smith has 75,000 sample packages of this remedy he was himself tortured by this disease

THE PEANUT'S ALIASES. Called Earth Nut in England-Pindar and Goober.

Considering its universal popularity and excellent standing in agricultural circles, it is remarkable how many aliases there are under which the peanut travels. Whenever it is introduced to a new community, the toothsome offering of the sod adopts a new name and comes forth with an additional "soubriquet" which makes it almost unrecognizable to its old acquaintances. If the "edible fruit" as the dictionaries call it—had ever one anything to be ashamed of the pub-c might understand, but as things are, e eccentricities of peanut nomenclature

An Improved Telescope.

The medial telescope is the name applied by the inventor, Prof. Schupmann of Aachen, to a refractor of peculiar construction. The objective of an ordinary efractor consists of two lenses of dif-erent densities. This combination is necessary in order to correct for spheri-cal and chromatic aberration. In the me-dial telescope, however, the objective consists of one lens, and the light which alls upon it passes through uncorrected. Mais upon it passes through uncorrected. Near the eye piece is placed a somewhat complicated optical system, which not only corrects for spherical and chromatic aberration, but does it better than is possible with the ordinary objective. For, even with two lenses of different densities, it is not possible to correct entirely for chromatic aberration, there is left for chromatic aberration; there is left what opticians call the "secondary spec-trum," the effect of which is to make he images somewhat indistinct in even he best of telescopes. With the medial telescope the secondary spectrum is greatly reduced in intensity.

A telescope of this description has been built at Urania Observatory in Berlin; its aperture is 13 inches and its focal distnace is 16 feet. The secondary spec-trum is only one-twentieth as intense as that in an ordinary refractor of these dimensions. It is reported to be of exellent definition and to give surprisingly aultless views of the planets, even un-ter bad atmospheric conditions. By simply turning a small screw, the image of a star may be broadened out into its spectrum with any desired degree of disersion. The advantages of this instru-nent are its almost perfect achromatism and its inexpensive construction. Its dis-advantages are its small field and the great loss of light which arises from the

Stirring Hunting Tales Told by Civil En-

A civil engineer recently returned from the hacienda of Jimulco in Coahuila, an immense property containing over 2000 square kilometers, tells some stirring tales of shooting wild game. Antelopes abound, but great care is necessary in approaching these wily crea-tures, owing to their habit of always head erect, peering and sniffing to the four points of the compass, and give a swift alarm the moment an enemy ap

As he ap proached his prey a dozen or more javali that were hiding in the tall grass attacked him ferociously, and one fastened his tusks in the hunter's heel, hanging on like grim death. The others came to their companion's excitation came to their companion's assistance and the brute was killed, but the were sunk so deep into the heel that the hog's jaws had to be pried apart with a gun barrel before the man was freed. Strange as it may seem, the wound closed quickly and with no serious results.

It is not generally realized that the mountain lions of Mexico will attack a man, but several recent encounters show them to be as dangerous for men as fo beasts. One of the mozos in a recent hunting party had but one hand, the stump of his left arm bearing witness to a terrible struggle with a lion he had shot and then approached, thinking the brute was dead. A gentleman who has hunted in the state of Senora tells of a certain spring where two men have been killed by lions while camping there for the night. At the time, now some years ago, when subscriptions were being solicited for the erection of a statue in New York city to President Washington, a gentleman called to secure a contribution from an old resident, who, although wealthy, was a little because it would cost $1000 to dig a pit

On learning the object of the visit, the rich man exclaimed:
"Washington! Washington! Why "Washington! Washington! Why, Washington does not need a statue. I keep him enshrined in my heart!"
In vain were the visitor's solicitations, and he was naturally indignant at the parsimony of the millionaire.

"Well, Mr. R.," he remarked quietly, as he rose to leave, "all I can say is that if the Father of his Country is in the position in which you describe him, he is in a tight place!"—Short Stories.
