BY THE FIREPLACE.

The red blaze up the chimney leaps,
And bright the sparks are flying;
Her tryst with me old Mem'ry keeps
And sets my soul a-sighing.
But—well-a-day!
Lift hath its May.
And still must face its winter gray.

This winter right by hill and mead The storm hath his desire, And I have mine, where now I read Life's lost dreams in the fire.

And—well-a-day! The red flames play And blithely sing the dreams away!

And sighs the Night: "No more-no more The lives—the loves entrancing!"
But hark! that clamor at the door—
The girls have come for dancing!
And—well-a-day!
I've had my May—

So dance, my dears, the dreams away!

The Indiana Girl Market. A young Hoosier was able to purchase a wife a few days since for the bar-gain counter price of $4 and 6 bitsprobably marked down from $5. From what we have learned about Indiana girls we believe the price to be too low. So far as our observation extends, there is scarcely a girl anywhere along the Wabash far away, or any of the other streams in that state, that oughtn't to bring $5.25. Is Indiana overproducing, or what is it that's no over there? Los or what is it that's up over there?-Los Senator Revokes His Previous Determination to Withdraw.

Circumstances No Longer Interfere and Unwilling to Thwart General Desire of Republicans.

Janesville, Wis., Dec. 10.-Senator Spooner has at last broken silence regarding the election of his successor by the Legislature which convenes next month. An appropriate opportunity came when he received a letter of inquiry signed by Senator Whitehead and the three Republican members of the Assembly from Rock county. The letter of inquiry cited the overwhelming sentiment of Wisconsin Republicans in favor of the senator's re-election and the fact that 102 Republican members of the Legislature had been publicly committed to his city, though his injuries consisted of severe bruises and three fractured ribs. His reason for keeping quiet was that he was in company with two young girls from Green Bay at the time the alleged fracas occurred. Upon reaching Green Bay, however, he presented a claim for injuries to an accident company, which aotified its attorney at Green Bay to look up the matter. Attorney P. H. Mr. Spooner replied to the letter by saying that he was sincere in his letter of withdrawal written two years ago and that he sincerely expected to retire. The Inquiry and His Reply.

The correspondence in full follows:
Hon. John C. Spooner, United States senator, Madison, Wis.—Dear Sir: As Republican members-elect of the coming Legislature, the duty will devolve upon us to take part in the election of a United States senator for the term commencing March 1 next.

We have heretofore declared our desire, and again declare it, that you should continue to serve our state in that capacity, and in so doing we but voice the desire of the Republican party of Wisconsin. Not only the state of Wisconsin, but the whole country appreciates your great ability, unswering Republicanism and loyal devotion to all public interests.

Responding to public sentiment ninety-eight Republican legislative conventions instructed their nominees to vote for your unconditional return to the United States Senate, and 102 Republican members-elect of the Legislature have, publicly and otherwise, unqualifiedly manifested their desire to the same effect.

But since you have never announced yourself as a candidate for re-election rumors are current to the effect that your decision of two years ago not to return to the Senate is irrevocable.

The demand or your return is so universal among the Republicans of Wisconsin that we are led to confidently believe that you will not disregard it. That you are not a candidate is of no moment to them.

What they ask is that you shall accept a re-election, which now but needs the formal ratification of the Republicans of the Legislature.

Believing that all doubts which may still exist in the matter should be dispelled, we

Believing that all doubts which may still exist in the matter should be dispelled, we feel warranted in addressing you this letter with confidence in your patriotism, and hope for a favorable reply. Yours truly,

The Senator's Statement.

The Senator's Statement.

The Honorable John M. Whitehead, C. L. Valentine, Alexander White and J. A. Brittau. Janesville, Wis.—tentienen: I have received since my retura to the state your favor of the 29th ult. signed by you as the Rock county delegation in the Legislature of 1903.

In it you assure me of your desire that I shall continue to serve the state in the Senate of the United States, and that your desire in this regard is in harmony with the sentiment of the Republicans of Wisconsin. You inform me that, "responding to Republican sentiment, ninety eight Republican legislative conventions instructed their nomainees to vote for your (my) unconditional return to the United States Senate and 102 Republican members-elect of the Legislature have publicly and otherwise unqualificuly manifested their desire to the same effect."

Advising me that because of my communication to the Republicans of Wisconsin two years ago announcing an unalterable purpose not again to be a candidate for the Senate, and my silence upon the subject since then, rumors are current to the effect that I would not accept a reelection, you request of me an expression which will remove all doubt upon the subject. The circumstances warrant the request, and entitle you and the other Republican members of the Legislature to be fully informed as to my attitude.

Expresses His Gratitude.

Expresses His Gratitude. Expresses His Gratitude.

I find peculiar pleasure in the receipt of your letter, since it not only testifies a continuance of the confidence and friendship so freely given me many years ago by the Republicans of Rock county, but brings relief from an embarrassment which has lately pressed heavily upon me, in that it presents the first opportunity for me with propriety and publicly to express something of the gratitude which fills my heart for the commendation given by Republicans throughout the state through conventions, the press and otherwise, of my work in the Senate.

Aside from the indorsement of my official career, so generously and so generally accorded, of which I shall always be proud, the action of so many legislative constituencies through their respective conventions and by public committal of their nominees, neither inspired nor solicited by me, declaring their wish that I should continue to serve them in the Senate, is, all things considered, including my announcement of two years ago and my silence upon the subject since then, an honor which I had not conceived could possibly ever come to me. It is more to me than the honor of election to any office, and for it I am inexpressibly grateful.

Sincerely Expected to Retire.

Sincerely Expected to Retire.

Ordinarily one cannot consistently with self-respect avow his own sincerity. Circumstances justify, however, a word here concerning my letter of July 6, 1900, announcing my purpose to retire. It was deliberate, explicit and sincere. My determination was impelled by a sense of duty which no manly man could disregard, into which there entered no element either of business or of politics. I expected and intended to be taken at my word, and since then it had been my expectation to retire from the public service at the expiration of my term. In fact, until within a half year, the condition which moved me in the arst instance to the determination which I announced had not so far changed as to render possible any change of purpose. In that letter, among other reasons given for the announcement of my purpose so long in advance, was the following:

"Again there are many Republicans, among them long-time friends and supporters of mine, well entitled by reason of ability, integrity, party loyalty and dignity of character to be favorably considered for the succession, who might, by my silence, be deterred from candidacy, to their detriment and to the detriment of the public interests."

I have no reason to doubt, nor did I doubt, that long before this candidacies would have been announced which would have precluded me from honorably permitting, even by silence, the formal use of my name in any event. No such candidacy has been announced. I therefore find myself in replying to your letter as free from restriction from any standpoint of honor as if my declaration of 1900 had never been made. Sincerely Expected to Retire.

my declaration of 1900 had never been Says He Cannot Disobey. Says He Cannot Disobey.

The action of the Senate and Assembly conventions and the public committal of nominees in response to the sentiment of their constituents leaves me in no doubt that it is my duty to say to you in response to your request that if the members of the Legislature shall, in accordance with the instructions and other pledges to which you refer, choose me to be my own successor in the office of senator, I shall consider such action as a command which the Republican party of Wisconsin may rightfully lay upon me and which I, since private duty no longer obstucts, may not rightfully disobey. ## Convincing Proof.

Case No. 41,206.-Capt. Alfred G. Rigler of Hose Company No. 4, Canton, Ohio, says: "I had a weak back ever since I was a boy, and about six years ago the cause developed into rather a bad ease of kidney complaint. It was not a little backache now and then, but backache which caused actual suffering day and night, and the harder I tried to get rid of it the worse it became. stage it was difficult to sit down, and when down it was just as hard to regain an erect position, on account of the twinges of pain in the kidneys. I can only describe some of the pangs as similar to that received from a knife

"In time, distressing and terribly in convenient urinary weakness resulted, causing annoying embarrassment during the day and loss of sleep during the night. "I took everything which came to my notice from reading, from observation, and which my friends and acquaintances advised. I consulted physicians, but none of them were able to relieve the trouble, let alone stop it. "It became so well known that I had a pronounced case of kidney complaint that I often received circulars from medical companies offering to cure me, handed to me by the mail carrier.

"When Doan's Kidney Pills attracted my attention I wanted to try them, just as I had tried everything else, and Mrs. Rigler went to Durban & Wright Co.'s drug store for a box. Re-

"I knew after a dose or two that the medicine was acting directly on the kidneys from the altered condition of the kidney secretions, and, encouraged, I continued the treatment. Finally, the backache and other complications

"Let me sum up my opinion about Doan's Kidney Pills by saying I would willingly pay one month's wages for a box of them if I could not buy them for less. You can refer anyone to me about Doan's Kidney Pills and I will convince them that they act just as represented." Four Years After. "Lapse of time has strengthened my appreciation of Doan's Kidney Pills. I gave this remedy my unqualified indorsement in the summer of 1896, because of the results I obtained from a course of the treatment. I can now add to my original indorsement the experience of a number of others who are just as enthusiastic, when they ex-press their opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills, as I." A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Rigier will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. LIVER MEDICINE A sallow complexion, dizziness ousness and a coated tongue and kidney diseases. Stomach and bowel troubles, severe as they are, give immediate warning by pain, but liver and kidney troubles, though less painful at the start, are much harder to cure. Thedford's Black-Draught never fails to benefit diseased liver and weakened kideys. It stirs up the torpid liver to throw off the germs of fever and ague. It is a certain preventive of cholera and Bright's disease of the kidneys. With kidneys reinforced by Thedford's Black Draught thousands of persons have dwelt immune in the midst of yellow fever. "I had terrible pains along my spinal cord for two years and suffered dreadfully. I was given different medicines, wore plasters; none of these things helped me. Reading of the cures that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought about, I somehow felt that it was what I needed and bought a bottle to take. How glad I am that I did so; bottles brought me immense relief, and after using three bottles more I felt new life and blood surging through my veins. It seemed as though there had been a regular house cleaning through my system, that all the sickness and poison had been taken out and new life given me instead. Sight of Toys in Stage Scene Recalled Harrigan's Own Grief. Ned Harrigan, who resumed his stage reer in Boston recently, told an interesting anecdote the other night, just be-fore he left New York for the "Hub." Friends had assembled to wish him luck, and the conversation naturally turned to and the conversation naturally the profession.

"I'll tell you about the only time I ever broke down," said the veteran actor. "It was in a little play where the bad son had gone away and his mother had to go and look at his toys and little shoes before finally giving him up in her heart.

"I had lost my own son just before, but in rehearsal this little scene had never touched me. The opening night, though, when that bit of realism came on, I went all to pieces, and actually had to ring down the curtain. The looking over the toys brought my own loss so keenly to me that I never played that scene again."—New York News.

Christmas morning broke bright and sunny—a very ideal winter's day. A happy-looking party assembled round the breakfast table at Scar Foot, the young folk chattering excitedly over the Christmas presents heaped beside each plate. The Musgraves had only three children-John, the heir, now in India with his regiment; Edith and Dick; but Scar Foot served as a home to several orphan nephews and nieces. Consequently the old place was generally crowded to overflow-ing at Christmas. The Musgraves were possessed with the true spirit of hospiality, and never dreamed of objecting to their party being so much increased. Their maxim was, "The more, the mer-

It was interesting, and rather touching to the young Amercan to see the hearty friendliness between the Squire's family and the villagers as the Musgraves bassed through on their way to the little weather-beaten old church. Outside the church, friends and neighoors greeted each other with the dear old "Merry Christmas to you!" which the English ear so sorely misses in foreign "You have a very ecstatic look about

The short winter's day was drawing to a close, when he came back, and turning aside from the sound of music in the drawing room, entered his aunt's boadoir. It was almost in darkness, and it was not until he approached the fireplace that he noticed Miss Wilkinson's little figure nearly buried in a big velvet chair.

"I beg your pardon!" he said. "I am afraid I have disturbed you; but I had no idea there was anyone here."

"It doesn't in the least matter. I came in here because I have rather a headache. They are singing carols in the drawing room. Hark!"

Clear and sweet came the sound of a boy's voice. "Peace on earth, good_will the men."

"That is little Jack Singleton's treble," said Ralph. "He looks like a cherub, and behaves like a fiend!"

Then they both relapsed into silence, and Ralph stood with his elbow on the chimney-piece, looking down into the fire. His face seemed thin and worn in the light of the dancing flames.

THE FEELINGS OF PLANTS.

They Have Electric Thrills and Sentient Impulses Almost Human.

Long ago Sir J. Gordon Sanders showed that electrical manifestation showed that electrical manifestations were capable of being demonstrated in the case of the movements of the flycatching plant of North Carolina, known as the Dionaea, or "Venus' fly trap." He deduced from his experiments a close analogy between the electrical reactions of the plant and those of muscles in animals. This observation naturally leads toward the recognition of a common mais. This observation naturally leads toward the recognition of a common basis for the movements of animal and plant life. More recently experiments seem to indicate that such electrical responses are possibly universal throughout the plant world. Bose has shown, for expendent that in the case of the leaf for example, that in the case of the lead the carrot or radish, a current was note in the stalk from a part which had been injured to the uninjured portion. This corresponds with what is known to occur in experiments on animal tissues. When the stimulation ceased and the tissue rethe stimulation ceased and the tissue regained its normal state, "a current of rest" was observed to be established, such as may be presumed to exist in the natural condition of the plant.

All such experimentation bears very directly on the question of plant sensitiveness. Most of us regard the plant as a purely vegetable thing, living, but incapable of responding, as does the animal, to stimuli which affect a nervous system. This view is founded on a misconception of life's constitution at large. onception of life's constitution at large Maimie skated, danced and rehearsed indefatigably, wore all her prettiest and daintiest dresses, and did not appear to have a care in the world. Yet she would two great groups of living nature. The have given all she possessed to know if Ralph still loved her. But he was as was regarded as being confined within neighbors. Now we know that delicate threads of living matter run from cell to cell. Hence it may be presumed that when an impression is made on the protoplasm of one part of the plant it may be transmitted to distant parts of the protoplasm. gan to think that his affection for her had only been a passing fancy, which her bitter words had destroyed.

may be transmitted to distant parts of the organism. Some plants—sensitive in their nature—show the results of stimulation by the drooping of leaves and like lation by the drooping of leaves and like actions. But even in plants which do not exhibit such obvious results of stimulation we may postulate sensitiveness (accompanied by electrical reactions), although no outward sign of irritation is manifested. It is because plants have immovable tissues, so to speak, that they do not exhibit movements as a rule. Yet where a dairy elegose its petals under the when a daisy closes its petals under the influence of a cold wave on a summer's day we are surely in the region of senti-day we are surely in the region of sentient life, manifested by actions not far removed from those of the animal and specially from those of lower animal life.

Wordsworth's idea that "every flower enjoys the air it breathes" may, after all, be founded upon a scientific basis.—London Chronicle. Steering by a Star Compass.

One of the most important and fareaching inventions to the maritime world ever recorded has been patented by Capt. Robert T. Lawless of the steam-ship Australia of the Oceanic Steamship Company. The Lawless invention is called a "stellar compass" and "great circle course projector." By this inven-tion Capt. Lawless asserts it is possible to steer a ship after dusk by fixing the compass on a particular star, thereby in suring the straight course of the vessel throughout the night. When once fixed on a certain star the new invention will hold to it until shifted to another point. Great things are expected by the maritime world from the Lawless machine. The captain says: "In my compass simplicity and usefulness are the strongest recommendations to the seafaring community. Men who follow the sea to whom I have shown it pronounce it a valuable aid to navigation. It is a calculating machine, and needs no computation of any kind. It can be used with the sun, moon or planets, as well as the fixed stars."—San Francisco Chronicle.

The Dutch physician was so impressed with this primitive method of rendering the patient at least par-tially insensible to pain that he made a careful study of it. He discovered that this method of anaesthesia, although un-known to modern surgery, was in all probability in vogue among the ancients.
