No deer is allowed to kill or capture a deer in any stream or on any ice, nor use pit-falls or traps; nor to use artificial light; or have in his possession the skin of any deer when it is in its red coat, or of any fawn when it is spotted, nor kill more than two deer in one year.

Rabbits and squirrels may be shot from the first day of September until the first day of May.

Gray Hair

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for over thirty years. It has kept my scalp free from dandruff and has prevented my hair from turning gray."—Mrs. F. A. Soule, Billings, Mont.

There is this peculiar thing about Ayer's Hair Vigor—it is a hair food, not a dye. Your hair does not suddenly turn black, look dead and lifeless. But gradually the old color comes back,—all the rich, dark color it used to have. The hair stops falling, too. $1.00 a bottle. All druggists.

If your druggist cannot supply you, send us one dollar and we will express you a bottle. Be sure and give the name of your nearest express office. Address, J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

DeWitt is the Name.

When you go to buy Witch Hazel Salve look for the name DeWitt on every box. The pure, unadulterated Witch Hazel is used in making DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, which is the best salve in the world for cuts, burns, bruises, boils, eczema and piles. The popularity of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, due to its many cures, has caused numerous worthless counterfeits to be placed on the market. The genuine bears the name of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago. Sold by all druggists.

Marriage is a raffle instead of lottery.

One man gets the prize while the other gets the shake.

Potent Pill Pleasure.

The pills that are potent in their action and pleasant in effect are DeWitt's Little Early Risers. W. S. Philpot, of Albany, Ga., says: "During a bilious attack I took one. Small as it was it did me more good than calomel, blue-mass or any other pills I ever took and at the same time it effected me pleasantly. Little Early Risers are certainly an ideal pill." Sold by all druggists.

Save the Children.

Ninety-nine of every one hundred diseases that children have are due to disorders of the stomach, and these disorders are all caused by indigestion. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is just as good for children as it is for adults. Children thrive on it. It keeps their little stomachs sweet and encourages their growth and development. Mrs. Henry Carter, 705 Central St., Nashville, Tenn., says: "My little boy is now three years old and has been suffering from indigestion ever since he was born. I have had the best doctors in Nashville, but failed to do him any good. After using one bottle of Kodol he is a well baby. I recommend it to all sufferers." Kodol digests what you eat and makes the stomach sweet. Sold by all druggists.

Passenger train No. 15, going north here at about 2 a. m. last Monday morning, was wrecked three miles north of Eden. The entire train, excepting the engine, consisting of three sleepers, two coaches, an express and mail car, was thrown from the track and rolled down an embankment about fifteen feet high. One passenger, George Zuehlke, of Fond du Lac, was killed and many others were wounded.

The wreck was apparently caused by the heavy rain during the night, which washed out the embankment and made the roadbed insecure. The train broke in two between the tender and the baggage car and the engine remained on the track, pulling the tender after it for a distance of three-quarters of a mile, when both were brought to a stop. The express and baggage cars were turned completely over, and all the other cars turned on their sides and slid several times their length before coming to a stop. The ditch in which the cars landed was filled with water.

It is considered miraculous that more were not killed and that so many escaped with but slight injuries. The train was going at the rate of fifty miles per hour, there being a steep grade all the way from Eden to Fond du Lac. The track was torn up for about eight hundred feet. The cars were not as badly smashed up as would be expected. Traffic was delayed on this division for about eight hours.

Compulsory School Law.

As schools throughout the country will soon open, the attention of parents is respectfully called to Chapter 189, laws of 1903, relating to the attendance at school. The law provides that "any person having under his control any child between the ages of 7 and 14 years, or any child between the ages of 14 and 16 years not regularly or lawfully employed in any useful employment or service at home or elsewhere, shall cause such child to be enrolled and to attend some public, parochial or private school regularly, during such period and hours of the calendar year (religious holidays excepted), as the public, parochial or private school in which such child is enrolled may be in session; provided, that in cities such child must attend school not less than 8 calendar months, and in towns, villages and districts not less than 5 calendar months in each year."

* * * Any person who shall violate the provisions of this section shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not less than five dollars nor more than fifty dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding three months for each offense. * * * We hope parents will give heed to this law and live up to it and thereby avoid trouble.—Pilot.

IS YOUR PIPE TIRAMOLI?

If So, It Is Genuine, but It May Be Something Else.

Meerschmaum, the beautiful white earth which is used for expensive pipes, is found in exceptional quantities in the village of Brussa, in Asiatic Turkey, where 2000 small mines are being worked now.

Most of the miners are Persians and Kurds. They dig a hole into the earth and fill it with a quantity of water, which the meerschmaum in its kidney-shaped and rarely large pieces, usually about as large as a piece of sugar out of the clay it is cleaned by scraping the surface with a knife and is then ready for sale.

Every Friday the dealers gather, and the meerschmaum is sold in open market. There are four qualities—karak, bimbrik, pamuklik and tiramoli. The buyers come from Eskishehr and about a dozen of them control the market. They wrap the meerschmaum carefully in cotton and send it for high prices to about 3000 points of Eskishehr meerschmaum are obtained in a year.

The Questions Answered.
Estill Spring, Tenn., Aug. 21.—Many questions are being asked by Mr. C. D. Hart of this place in regard to his wonderful recovery. For over two years he has been down with his back. He was so very bad that he could not even face his bed and from this condition he suddenly appeared well and strong as ever.

It is no wonder therefore that his friends are asking him "How did you do it?"

He tells them that "Dodd's Kidney Pills did it," and adds that he could not get a genuine good medicine and one that I can heartily recommend to everybody.

Everyone around here knows how very ill he was, and how weak in my back that I could not do anything that needed stooping or bending over, and three boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me, as you see, as well as ever I was.

"They certainly had a wonderful effect on my case."

The End of the World.
Here are six views on the end of the world that are being held by some of the most prominent scientists during recent years.

It will be seen that in most instances the theories are much at variance with each other.

The land surface is diminishing; the human race will be finally exterminated by the result of moving objects.

The earth is gradually approaching the sun; the last man will therefore be water.

Water is slowly growing scarcer; in the ages to come all human beings and animals will perish for want of a drop of moisture to cool their parched tongues.

With the beginning of the year 3000 A. D. man will commence to retrograde and will finally come to a creature no larger than an insect.

The sun is burning up; as he roars, the earth's glacial zones will expand and will freeze in a heap.

Not in His Line.
When Will McConell was the manager for Amelia Bingham some few months ago he acquired a reputation for being a "countdown" man. He found the Lambs club a very interesting place, and he was not in the least degree ashamed of knowing Miss Bingham.

Miss Bingham noticed his absence one or twice, and she was very angry that he should be staying at the theater until the curtain was run down on the last act.

"But why should I stay around the theater?" asked Mr. McConell. "There is nothing in it for me."

"Something might happen," suggested Miss Bingham. "The theater might catch fire."

"What if it did?" asked her manager. "I'm not a fireman."—New York Times.

Sciences on "Blue Monday."
A scientist who has made a study of suicides has discovered that more women commit suicide on Monday than on any other day of the week.

Monday, "Blue Monday," as it has long been called, is one of the most trying days of the week for women who are housewives, principally because of the "washday." Breakfast is usually served earlier than on other days and more hastily prepared, and the children are often "picked up" at school.

"Blue Monday" is the one day in the week when a housewife's troubles, hard work, and annoyances seem to come all at once. Hence the significant name for the first working day of the week.—New York Times.

NAUGHTY NAN.

CHAPTER III.—(Continued).

Therefore, upon the Sunday morning after Harold's stroll with Miss Deane, she came out of the old porch of the church with Miss Rose Castellata softly rustling at his side in a pale heliotrope flowered muslin, and with big dark purple pansies in her chic Parisian headgear.

There was a sort of ecstacy in being seen with Rose, she was always so expensive and so faultlessly attired.

Mrs. Redmayne, a gray-haired, rather stately-looking dame, walked behind the party, and she was eagerly listening to the conversation.

The servants followed deferentially from the pews set apart for them.

So the household was in the habit of proceeding homeward, quietly, and with out many greetings from those around the sacred edifice, were of course upon an entirely lower level.

But today, meeting them and hurrying down the path in search of a book left behind her, came a dainty attired young figure—none other than Miss Deane, in only her simple white frock, and carrying a white cotton sunshade in her hand.

She met them face to face in the broad churchyard path—Harold and Rose first, and then the young girl, who came with a pleasant, confident smile.

If she expected recognition from the handsome owner of the castle, however, she was disappointed.

Harold, with a deeply flushed but rigid face, and a cold unseeing eye, passed her by, turning, indeed, but not to speak to her, but to speak to his lovely companion, holding that the young artist had not shown that they were acquainted in any way as she went on towards the gate.

Such a rencontre was awkward.

And Nan Deane had such simple, innocent impudent ideas, do you expect him to do it?

However, as Miss Castellata appeared quite as composed as usual, she assumed that she had not seen her.

She was not, however, quite so little interested in what first had made him so anxious and uncomfortable.

Strange that there is so often a difference of opinion as to a family!

Elvin Redmayne, at the back, was only too anxious to be seen by the charming girl artist from Clipp's farm.

He smiled, but he was not smiling, and he raised the hat from above his plain, agreeable face with marked courtesy, quite indifferent as to whether he was arousing the curiosity of the family or not.

Miss Deane returned his glance and movement very sweetly.

She really looked quite above her position as she did so, and Mrs. Redmayne supposed her a girl staying with one of the county families, whom her son had probably met somewhere at dinner or tennis.

She only murmured, "Who is that, my dear?" and did not listen for the answer.

Elvin would not have cared if he had been riddled with inquiries, for he was not in the least degree ashamed of knowing Miss Deane.

DOGS IN FICTION.

Parts They Have Played in the Great English Novels.

Although it may be conceded that among the animals of fiction the horse holds first place, the part played by dogs is especially in modern literature, is very large and important. The pages of many famous novels have presented us with members of the canine race as carefully drawn and as lovingly delineated as any of the human characters introduced. Not infrequently the role of hero or heroine is doubled with, or wholly supplanted by, a dog, and in numerous instances it is among the works of such novelists as are specially noted as dog lovers, that the finest and most frequent descriptions of their four-footed friends are to be found; and naturally Sir Walter Scott, well known for his extreme attachment to dogs, heads the list.

Big dogs are Scott's special favorites, and his noble example is Sir Kenneth's bound Rossal, who bears an all-important part in the plot of "The Talisman." Rossal is described as a large stag bound of splendid proportions and great sagacity, who shares his master's banner, and is a faithful defender of the flag, and his faithful defender wounded a party of the enemy in the defense of Rossal's honor. It is the dog's devotion to his master's banner, and his faithful defender wounded a party of the enemy in the defense of Rossal's honor.
