Young Plants

Every farmer knows that some plants grow better than others. Soil may be the same and seed may seem the same but some plants are weak and others strong.

And that's the way with children. They are like young plants. Same food, same home, same care but some grow big and strong while others stay small and weak.

Scott's Emulsion offers an easy way out of the difficulty. Child weakness often means starvation, not because of lack of food, but because the food does not feed.

Scott's Emulsion really feeds and gives the child growing strength.

Whatever the cause of weakness and failure to grow—Scott's Emulsion seems to find it and set the matter right.

Weekly Crop Bulletin.
(For the week ending Monday, Aug. 31.)

The past week has been very discouraging to farmers generally, and especially so in the central and southern counties, where the continuous, and in many localities excessive, rains have retarded work and damaged crops. In the northern portion of the state, while cloudy, threatening and cold weather prevailed throughout the week, the rains were generally lighter than elsewhere. There is considerable grain still in the shock, most of which is in a more or less damaged condition. In many localities the shocks have been beaten down by the wind and rain and the grain thoroughly soaked. Very little threshing was done during the week.

A few warm days during the early part of the week gave corn a good start, so that notwithstanding the cold, wet weather the crop shows some improvement. It is much behind the average condition at this date. A few fields in the southern counties will mature by September 10th, but the major portion of the crop, even with the most favorable weather, will not be safe from frost until the last week of September.

The week has been a very disastrous one to the potato crop. The wet, cold weather has caused the development of blight quite generally throughout the potato counties, and the condition of the crop has declined rapidly. Much rotting is reported, and the present outlook for a good crop is not encouraging.

Pastures continue exceptionally good. Hops are about ready for picking, and are reported a good crop. Buckwheat is maturing rapidly.

Apples will be a light crop, but of fair quality. The recent rains have furnished an abundant water supply for the protection of cranberries against frost, but increase the danger of scalding should warm weather prevail. Picking will begin this week, with indications that a good crop of excellent quality will be secured.

Distress After Eating Green.
Judge W. T. Holland, of Greensburg, La., who is well and favorably known, says: "Two years ago I suffered greatly from indigestion. After eating great quantities of green peas, I was distressed and invariably resulted in lasting for an hour or so and my nights were restless. I concluded to try Kodol Dyspepsia Cure and it cured me entirely. Now my sleep is refreshing and digestion perfect." Sold by all druggists.
