Weekly Crop Bulletin.
[For the week ending Monday, Sept. 7.]
Light to killing frosts occurred in northern localities in the central and northern counties on last week Friday and Saturday mornings, doing considerable damage to corn, potatoes, buckwheat and gardens on low land. Although the temperature was dangerously near the frost point in the southern portions of the state, no damage is reported from that section. The week as a whole was mainly favorable for farm work, and considerable threshing was done, especially during the early part. Considerable fall plowing was done on upland, with the soil in good condition.
The weather was quite favorable for corn until toward the end of the week, when the cool wave passed over the state. The damage by frosts on Friday and Saturday was confined principally to low land in the northern and central counties. In a few localities the crop is a total failure; in others it was only partially destroyed. In the southern counties and elsewhere where not injured by frost, corn made substantial progress during the week, and with favorable weather a small percentage of the crop will be safe from frost by the end of the present week. The bulk of the crop requires from two to three weeks of good weather to bring it to maturity.
Reports indicate that there was no improvement in the condition of the potato crop during the week. The blight has become general throughout the potato sections, although there are a few localities which have thus far escaped. Reports of rotting continue, and the outlook for this crop is not encouraging, especially as the ground is thoroughly saturated with moisture. Two weeks of dry weather might check the rotting, but if the rains continue the damage will be increased.
Buckwheat is injured in some localities in northern and central localities by frost. Elsewhere the crop has about reached maturity, and is being cut. Pastures continue to furnish abundant feed and large quantities of butter and cheese are being manufactured. Second growth clover is reported as not seeding well and very little has been cut, owing to continued weather. Sugar beets are an excellent crop.

Notice.
Notice is hereby given to the members of the Germantown Farmer's Mutual Insurance Company of Germantown, Washington County, Wisconsin, pursuant to a resolution adopted by the Board of Directors of said Company, that it is the intention of said Company to reorganize as and become a stock corporation under the laws of this state, pursuant to the laws of this state, including Chapter 229 of the laws of this state for the year 1903, and that a special meeting of said Company will be held at the home office of said Company at Germantown, Washington County, Wisconsin, on the 28th day of September, 1903, from eleven o'clock a. m. until sundown of said day, to determine whether said Company will so reorganize.
J. F. SCHWALBACH, Secretary.
Dated Aug. 24, 1903.

A Purgative Pleasure.
If you ever took DeWitt's Little Early Risers for biliousness or constipation you know what a purgative pleasure it is. These famous little pills cleanse the liver and rid the system of all bile without producing unpleasant effects. They do not gripe, sicken or weaken, but give tone and strength to the tissues and organs involved. W. H. Howell, of Houston, Tex., says: "No better pill can be used than Little Early Risers for constipation, sick headache, etc." Sold by all druggists.

Consumption
The only kind of consumption to fear is "neglected consumption."
People are learning that consumption is a curable disease. It is neglected consumption that is so often incurable.
At the faintest suspicion of consumption get a bottle of Scott's Emulsion and begin regular doses.
The use of Scott's Emulsion at once, has, in thousands of cases, turned the balance in favor of health.
Neglected consumption does not exist where Scott's Emulsion is.
Prompt use of Scott's Emulsion checks the disease while it can be checked.

The Genuine vs. Counterfeits.
The genuine is always better than a counterfeit, but the truth of this statement is never more forcibly realized or more thoroughly appreciated than when you compare the genuine. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve with the many counterfeits and worthless substitutes that are on the market. W. W. Webster, of Shreveport, La., says: "After using numerous other remedies without benefit, one box of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured me." For blind, bleeding, itching and protruding piles no remedy is equal to DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Sold by all druggists.

TRUSTS HER NIMBLE WIT.

Woman Relies on Innate Tact to Help Her Out.

According to the book of Genesis, Adam, the man (though that is claimed to be the sheep), made the first speech on record, but it is very safe to say that woman will have the last word. Upon the threshold of this progressive twentieth century, we find that woman is not only a fully filling nearly half of a temple and a mother for a shrine, but also a fully filling nearly half of the vocations and high callings in life, nor does it detract one iota from her feminine charms and graces. Ever since Adam set his teeth on edge with the famous Ben Davis apple and Eve found herself on the wrong side of the gate of Paradise woman trusts to her intuition, nimble wit and feminine tact to help her through the maze of difficulty, and this leads to woman in literature, who by her cleverness, faithfulness and energy now stands abreast with those who have acquired literary fame, finding through the school of experience that there is "no royal road to success in journalism except through work."

Stepping backward to the first woman who attempted journalism, Jennie June Croly, at the age of 22 years, was the first to appear in the ranks of the staff of a daily newspaper in New York city. When this bright, plucky little woman first applied to the Daily News, they were amazed at the idea of a woman in such a capacity, and she worked on the staff of the Daily News a long time without compensation.

Then she visited the mammoth staff of the New York Tribune, where she was fast going in demand and popularity and was syndicated, bringing her $3 per letter, and for 1890 she was syndicated and syndicated and syndicated on the staff of a daily newspaper—Richard, No. 10.

Railways of the World. According to a German statistician the railway mileage of the world is now 600,000 miles, of which 16,947 miles were added in 1901. The mileage increase has for some years past been at an average rate of 1.5 per cent. The most notable fact of recent years has been the amount of railroad construction in Asia. The mileage there opened as yet on those continents is trifling in comparison with their area and population, but it is a beginning, and especially in Asia seems likely to be continued at an increased rate. Asia at the end of 1897 had but 2,000 miles of rail road, so that in six years it has had an increase of 50 per cent.

British India had 25,373 miles at the end of 1901; Russia in Asia, including the Chinese Eastern, 10,723; 0.5 European countries, 1,000; Germany, 31,945; and the latter will double soon the lead, for it has 30,000 inhabitants and 0.8 square miles of area per mile of railroad, while the German empire has but 64 square miles of area and 112 inhabitants per square mile.—Brandon (Manitoba) Sun.

A Young New York Lady Tells of a Wonderful Cure: "My trouble was with the ovaries; I am tall, and the doctor said I grew too fast for my strength. Often I suffered from inflammation and doctored continually, but got no help. I suffered from terrible dragging sensations, and I suppose standing on my feet all day made me worse. At the suggestion of a friend of my mother's I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it is simply wonderful. It felt better after the first two or three doses; it seemed as though a weight was taken off my shoulders. I continued its use until now I can truthfully say I am entirely cured. Young girls who are always complaining of bills without getting any help as I did, ought to take your medicine. It costs so much less, and it is sure to cure them—Yours truly, A. W. CHAPTER I. THE DEBUTANTE.

Bear a fly in my hand; I was a handsome man of about 30 years of age, and always attracted attention wherever he went. "Your pretty cousin, I did not catch her name," he said languidly, "seems unusually interested in the woes of Marquise; why so positively lost to her surroundings?"

It was the opening night at the opera, and the presence of royalty in a crowded house promised well for the coming season. From time to time glances were directed towards a box on the first tier, in which a tall fair man was lounging on the back of one lady's chair, while the other occupants gave all their attention to the stage.

FOND DU LAC NEWS.

Canaries at Work.

Fond du Lac, Wis., Sept. 10.—[Special.]—Loads of corn are being hauled away from the canning factory, where preparations are in order for preserving the season's product. Big bags of what might be termed second grade corn are being sold, but the crop on the whole is not so good as the output will be complete.

Edgerton D. Cow, manager of the canning factory as been in the country to ascertain the outlook, and he has found that the growers are gloomy over the results of the crop. Too much damp weather, accompanied by dimal days, has had its telling effect and there has been little sunshine since the corn was planted. Another difficulty confronted some of the farmers whose crops are in the corn "in the hollow." Where the ground is low the heavy rains saturated the soil for so many days that it did not dry out, and the leaves of the hardy corn shriveled so that it was impossible.

The ground was damp, the corn was left until it was too old for canning purposes. The factory owners are of corn which is in first grade condition, and they are not so much as to be disappointed. ODD GUARDIANS.

Birds as Sheep Herders and Jelly Fish Protect Face Mackerel.

The natives of Venezuela and adjoining countries on the north side of the five Amazon often avail themselves of the services of a native carter to care for their poultry, and also in the place of collies or shepherd dogs to guard and herd their domestic animals. This remarkable bird, the Indians call yakamuk, and the ornithologists people creptans, is found in a wild state in the great forests which lie between the northern coast of South America and the Amazon river, particularly in Venezuela and British Guiana. The birds never leave the forests unless shot or captured. They may be trusted with the care of a flock of sheep or domestic fowls, and every morning will drive the ducks and poultry to their feeding places, and carefully collecting any stragglers, bring them safely home at night. A yakamuk soon learns to know and obey the voice of his master, follows him when he calls, and is very tame and appears delighted at receiving his caresses.

During his absence and welcomes his return and is extremely jealous of any rival. Should any dog or cat approach him he will growl and bark, and attacking it with wings and beak drives it away. It presents itself regularly to its master, and when it is asked for a share of the estates after it has driven away all who might aspire to favor, it is very much pleased. A singular case of guardianship has just been made known by M. Gadeau de Kerville, who writes from the marine fishes called false mackerel, which are almost always found in company with the large jelly fish known as rhizostomes. These young fishes swim parallel with the long axis of the jelly-larva, and in the same direction as the latter. They remain above, beneath and behind the animal, but rarely advance beyond it. It frequently happens that the jelly fish is driven into the caves of the jellyfish and are then visible from the exterior, owing to the transparency of the latter. Some times the school of fishes wanders a few yards away from the medusa, but at once returns to its former position. It is evident that the jellyfish is not a parasite, but that it is a great rapidity to occupy its former position.
