The funeral took place Thursday at St. Michael's church with interment in the adjoining cemetery. The relatives and friends of the deceased have our heartfelt sympathy.

INTERNATIONAL LIVE STOCK EXPOSITION, CHICAGO, 1903. The entire west is interested in the occasion of the Live Stock Exposition from the fact that such an enterprise is in the nature of a fitting recognition of the importance of the work done by the breeder and feeder of live stock and gives well deserved encouragement to their efforts.

The International Exposition has become a permanent feature in the progress of live stock exhibits and is, in the language of Prof. Liggitt, Dean of the Minnesota Agricultural Experiment Station, "The great tribunal where the leading herds and flocks are brought for final judgment. It is the annual round-up for breed improvement, where the interested breeder can mark the progress and the changes made in the public standard of such breeds. It is of more than passing interest and more importance than other shows for the reason that it is the only place where all prominent breeders meet in the show ring."

The attendance from the west has in the past been excellent, but the management anticipates for 1903 an outpour of stock men and others interested in the improvement of western herds such as has never been equalled in the history of the exposition.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Strobel returned Tuesday from Hartford where they attended the christening of their grandchild, Roman Philip Geller, who was born to Mr. and Mrs. John Geller last week Thursday. We congratulate.

Joseph Wahlen and wife celebrated their 7th wedding last Saturday with a large number of relatives, friends and neighbors in attendance. The Misses Katie and Julia Melzer, sisters of the hostess, and a gentleman from Milwaukee were also present. All had a good time. The young people of this vicinity gave them a charivari of a very lively kind which was liberally rewarded.

There are some things that ought not to be said about how people sometimes get home from a party, but as this case is very comical, and another point is, which is commonly known, that a person may fall asleep while driving home, and then unfortunately arrive where he is not expected to call at such a late hour, then to be aroused by several gun shots which makes our good fellow believe he had got into a battle field. So it may be known, no matter how good the fellow is, that such things can happen to anybody.

Mrs. Frick, of Wrightstown, and Mrs. Smirt, of De Pere, Wis., were guests of Charles Petermann and wife from last week Friday to last Tuesday.

We are pained to note the death of Thomas Lindsav, of Parnell, who died at his parent's home Monday morning after a lingering illness. The funeral took place Thursday at St. Michael's church with interment in the adjoining cemetery. The relatives and friends of the deceased have our heartfelt sympathy.

INTERNATIONAL LIVE STOCK EXPOSITION, CHICAGO, 1903. The entire west is interested in the occasion of the Live Stock Exposition from the fact that such an enterprise is in the nature of a fitting recognition of the importance of the work done by the breeder and feeder of live stock and gives well deserved encouragement to their efforts.

The International Exposition has become a permanent feature in the progress of live stock exhibits and is, in the language of Prof. Liggitt, Dean of the Minnesota Agricultural Experiment Station, "The great tribunal where the leading herds and flocks are brought for final judgment. It is the annual round-up for breed improvement, where the interested breeder can mark the progress and the changes made in the public standard of such breeds. It is of more than passing interest and more importance than other shows for the reason that it is the only place where all prominent breeders meet in the show ring."

The attendance from the west has in the past been excellent, but the management anticipates for 1903 an outpour of stock men and others interested in the improvement of western herds such as has never been equalled in the history of the exposition.

Consumption. Salt pork is a famous old-fashioned remedy for consumption. "Eat plenty of pork," was the advice to the consumptive 50 and 100 years ago. Salt pork is good if a man can stomach it. The idea behind it is that fat is the food the consumptive needs most. Scott's Emulsion is the modern method of feeding fat to the consumptive. Pork is too rough for sensitive stomachs. Scott's Emulsion is the most refined of fats, especially prepared for easy digestion. Feeding him fat in this way, which is often the only way, is half the battle, but Scott's Emulsion does more than that. There is something about the combination of cod liver oil and hypophosphites in Scott's Emulsion that puts new life into the weak parts and has a special action on the diseased lungs. A sample will be sent free upon request. Be sure that this picture in the form of a label on the wrapper of every bottle of Scott's Emulsion is there. SCOTT & BOWNE, CHEMISTS, 409 Pearl St., N. Y. Killed by Dynamite. August Esselmann, of Trenton, while engaged in blasting stumps on the farm of Mat. Hausmann, 3 1/2 miles east of West Bend, last week Friday, shortly before noon, was instantly killed by an explosion of dynamite.

Esesselmann was alone and no one can say how the accident happened. People living in the vicinity were startled by a terrific explosion, a report which fairly caused the whole surrounding country to tremble.

The unfortunate young man was found he lay on the ground almost nude and horribly mangled. Both his eyes were blown out and his left knee torn away. His clothes had caught fire and burned off his body, nearly roasting the same. The body was found about forty feet from where the explosion occurred, and parts of the body and clothes were found a hundred feet away.

Esesselmann was twenty-six years of age. The funeral took place last Monday from his home in Trenton.

Great Herds of Cattle. An unusual large shipment of live stock has been made through Milwaukee this week from cattle-raising points in Montana and North Dakota. These are shipments of Texas cattle, which were shipped to the north-west two years ago for fattening.

Twenty-nine special trains carrying these cattle passed through Milwaukee during Sunday and Monday all enroute to Chicago.

This is stated by railway officials to be the most extensive shipment of western cattle ever made within a period of a few days. These trains averaged thirty cars each, and the average carload of steers is fifty. According to these figures, the trains passing through Milwaukee Sunday, hauled 770 cars in 29 special trains, and on these were 38,500 head of cattle.

All the stock trains were run from St. Paul to Chicago on special fast time, making about the same runs as the best passenger trains.

Suicide Beheaded by Train. The North-Western north bound passenger train going through here at 3:36 p. m., killed an unknown man this side of Fond du Lac Thursday afternoon. Try for Health 222 South Peoria St., CHICAGO, ILL., Oct. 7, 1902. Eight months ago I was so ill that I was compelled to lie or sit down nearly all the time. My stomach was so weak and upset that I could keep nothing on it and I vomited frequently. I could not urinate without great pain and I coughed so much that my throat and lungs were raw and sore. The doctors pronounced it Bright's disease and others said it was consumption. It mattered little to me what they called it and I had no desire to live. A sister visited me from St. Louis and asked me if I had ever tried Wine of Cardui. I told her I had not and she bought a bottle. I believe that it saved my life. I believe many women could save much suffering if they but knew of its value. Sargis Pander. Don't you want freedom from pain? Take Wine of Cardui and make one supreme effort to be well. You do not need to be a weak, helpless sufferer. You can have a woman's health and do a woman's work in life. Why not secure a bottle of Wine of Cardui from your druggist today?

RENTING SILVERWARE.

Woman Discovers a New Method of Making Comfortable Living.

A woman who was suddenly deprived of all means of support through an unwise speculation, followed almost immediately by the death of her husband, was induced by the chance remark of a friend who called while she was packing her silver and cut glass for storage, to offer both for service at a nominal figure.

The friend happened to know a woman who was planning to make a great occasion of her daughter's coming out and, acting on the impulse of the hour, she wrote to this person, telling her that she could provide her with everything handsome in the way of table service for a small consideration. The woman accepted the offer at once, naming the sum which she was willing to pay, and guaranteeing to return everything unharmed.

She hired the cut glass and silver, which was of unusual beauty, five times that season, and in the meantime the owner secured another patron, who was so well pleased with the service that she followed her example. Ten dollars a night was charged for the loan, with the understanding that when the article was to be replaced, that winter she realized an amount sufficient to cover the owner's expenses in a modern flat.—New York Times.

The wife of Admiral Bruce, captured by Lord Nelson and given by him to Lady Hamilton, was recently sold in a London auction room. The flag engraved on one side, "Nelson to Emma, in commemoration of the victory of the Nile," August, September 23, 1798, is forty-third birthday.

The new British Blue Book gives the average weekly wages of fifteen skilled trades at $10.50 in London and $18.75 in New York.

Mrs. Hughson, of Chicago, whose letter follows, is another woman in high position who owes her health to the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered for several years with general weakness and bearing-down pains, caused by womb trouble. My appetite was poor and I would lie awake for hours, and could not sleep, until I seemed more weary in the morning than when I retired. After reading one of your advertisements I decided to try the merits of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am so glad I did. No one can describe the good it did me. I took three bottles faithfully, and besides building up my general health, it drove all disease and poison out of my body, and made me feel as spry and active as a young girl. Mrs. Pinkham's medicines are certainly all they are claimed to be."—Mrs. M. E. HUGHSON, 347 East Ohio St., Chicago, Ill.—"I feel perfectly fit and strong as ever."

More than a million women have regained health by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. If the slightest trouble appears which you do not understand, write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for her advice, and a few timely words from her will show you the right thing to do. This advice costs you nothing, but it may mean life or happiness or both.

Silk from Wood Pulp.

A plant erected near Sydovanna, Germany, is at present turning out fifty pounds of silk a day, which product can be increased in quantity to 2000 pounds. The silk is soft in texture and appears in color like that of the natural article. Each thread is made up of eighteen single strands; a single strand is hardly perceptible to the naked eye. In strength it is but one-third that of the real silk. When woven into pieces the new substitute is said to have the appearance of real silk. This new article will compare with the genuine in the matter of wear and price. It is impossible at present to state. The manufacturing process is likewise undecipherable. It is asserted, however, that the wood from which it is made undergoes a chemical process and is pressed through very fine tubes by hydraulic pressure, forming a mass of fine strands which go to make up the thread.—From Advance Sheets of Consular Reports.

Has He Found It? Polk, Ark., Nov. 9.—A remedy that will absolutely cure Rheumatism has been discovered by M. George Hiland of this place. Mr. Hiland is satisfied that the remedy he has used is a sure cure, for it cured him of a very serious case of Acute Rheumatism which had so long afflicted him that he could not move. This is what he says:

"I was troubled with what is called Acute Rheumatism in 1904. I was in such a shape that I could not move without help. I was treated by a physician, who helped me some, but I was still in great pain when my wife saw Dr. Hiland's Pills advertised in the store for Rheumatism. She insisted on my trying them, and I felt better after taking the first box. I continued, and now I am well and able to work all the time. I have found Dr. Hiland's Pills to be just what they are claimed to be, a perfect cure for Rheumatism." Mr. Hiland's very positive statement seems to do more to whet the appetite or not Rheumatism can be cured.

The French "Snow Ball" Society. The Bonke de Neige society of France is an association with 600 branches in France and the colonies, and a membership of 600,000. It is an institution for providing old age pensions. The state grants 4 1/2 per cent. interest on the society's deposits, and allows it a subsidy of 14,000 francs a year. The society guarantees a maximum pension of 300 francs a month from his twenty-first year to the age of 60. A workman who begins to pay his small minimum contribution every month from his twenty-first year is assured of a substantial pension at an age which, under healthy conditions, would be beyond the prime of life. The scheme in full working order implies contributions every month from his twenty-first year to the age of 60. Happy Woman. Mrs. Pare, wife of C. B. Pare, a prominent merchant of Glasgow, Ky., says: "I was a sufferer in my old age, and a great deal of trouble with the secretions, which were exceedingly varied, sometimes excessive and at other times scanty. The color was high, and passages were accompanied with a scalding sensation. Doan's Kidney Pills soon regulated the kidney secretions, making the color normal and banished the inflammation which was causing the scalding sensation. I can rest well, my back is strong and sound and I feel much better in every way."

Mineral Phosphates in Australia. A remarkable discovery of mineral phosphates has just been made near Perth, Australia. The government geologist pronounces it to be of such importance as to amply justify the policy of the government in offering a reward to finders of workable deposits of the mineral. These Perth Burra open at a depth of nearly thirty feet and formations from which blocks weighing twenty tons can be taken, a large proportion of the material yielding 90 per cent. of phosphate of lime. Though there is yet no reason to believe that an industry equal to that existing near Charleston in the United States, is likely to grow up, the discovery cannot fail to be of importance to the Australian agriculturist by providing him with a large supply of mineral manure.—Paris Daily Messenger's Adelaide Correspondent.

Origin of the Grain Weight. By an English law passed in 1296, it was provided that a silver penny, called a sterling, should equal in weight 32 wheat grains, when dried and taken from the center of the ear. This is the origin of our grain weight.

Some Uses of Olive Oil. A tablespoonful of olive oil a day, taken internally, will help liver trouble and indigestion. It is also healing for throat or stomach catarrh. Serve it frequently in salad dressings, where it will be both appetizing and medicine. For severe internal disorders or emaciated and run-down condition of the body, rub the patient every morning for twenty minutes with the oil, then with a bath towel, and in two months you will see great improvement. Mixed with quinine, rubbed on the chest and back, it prevents colds; mixed with camphor, then applied to the throat, it cures sore throat.

DECEASED. There is no need to say any more, Herr Probst—I quite understand you.

"And you forgive me, liebe frau!" "Forgive me? I hardly think so; I thank you, Herr Probst," she said, and swept out of the room.

But her woman's pride was sore and angry, and though reason told her she should be grateful to her guardian for saving her from the clutches of the fortune hunter, by a feminine perversion of justice she included him in her sweeping condemnation of mankind in general. She gave a curt refusal when her aunt rather doubtfully suggested that if Hiland already began to fall, with hands clasped in her lap, and a dreamy look on her face, listening whilst he held forth with words of enthusiasm on the beauties of his profession.

"Al, is it not beautiful and grand, the dramatic life?" he cried, with a wide and melodramatic gesture. "You are young, mein frau; you are yet a novice in the art of life. But I will lead you to it; my guiding hand shall open for you the gate that but for me would forever have been closed to you."

The guiding hand was held out as if anxious to perform its office there and then but Hiland did not see it, and the professor went on to deliver his glowing terms on the pure delights in store for her in that earthly paradise of the blessed few, that she at last caught a glimpse of his enthusiasm and sat gazing silently out of the window with eyes that saw only the vague caustic visions his words had conjured up.

"It is right! it is a glorious life—surely the best that possibly could be!" "Then you consent?—you will be mine! Ah, liebe frau, how happy you have made me!" Hiland had spoken low, and dreamily, in answer to her own thoughts more than to his speech, but she looked up, startled now, to find him leaning over her, his lips pressed to her fingers.

Then she gradually awoke to the fact that he was making love to her—that he had actually proposed to her—and was unaccustomed to the impression that she had accepted him.

At first it was sheer amazement that kept her silent, whilst she poured forth her diatribes of love and devotion, and then because she was 18, and a woman, and had never had a lover, his words ended by touching some chord within her, whose throbbings were novel and delightful.

When Miss Elbehek came into the room a little later, thinking that he had gone long before, and wondering why Hiland stayed up there so late, she went to meet her, pressed her hand gushingly, and told her in exultant tones that he was engaged to her niece, Hiland!

"Ye-es, auntie, I suppose so," Hiland said. "With your permission, of course," put in the professor, softly. "Your good wishes are all that is wanting to our happiness."

"You are mistaken, Herr Professor. My consent is not all that is needed. Hiland's guardian must decide this matter."

"A guardian!" Herr Probst repeated, looking from one to the other a little blankly. "He is not my guardian, madame! You will give me his address, that I may go to at once and beg from him my trasung."

"I think you had better write," said Miss Freda, drily, but with a little inward qualm of uneasiness at this new complication. "He may possibly be away," she added. "In any case, you had better write to him at once," and she gave the professor the address of Griffith Mundy, at Mundy's Croft.

"What are we to do about it?" she asked anxiously of Griff, when she had him alone that evening, and had told him what had happened. "It is a most awkward position, for, of course, we cannot take him into our confidence; he would tell her at once and spoil everything."

"True; but what am I to say to the fellow?" "Simply refuse your consent to the marriage," said Miss Freda, promptly. "And the opposition will make her more determined than ever," he said, gloomily.

But Miss Elbehek shook her head, smiling. "It is not only a question of her wishes," she reminded him. "He, too, must be reckoned with, and his objections are correct; you will find that when he hears that Hiland loses her fortune by marrying against your wish, he will very prudently withdraw his consent."

"You think that?" Griff asked eagerly, and she nodded emphatically. "He is badly off, I know, but how will you manage about the money?" "Tell him to meet me at some hotel at Leipzig, a week later. I will take a night train from here, when I shall come to get a carriage to myself, and leave Dresden as usual, and reach Leipzig and arrive at Leipzig as old Griffith Mundy. It is a horrible trick to play; but I dare not give him the chance of telling her of our perfidy, as you say it would spoil everything."

Five days later a letter came from Herr Probst from Mundy's Croft, acknowledging his proposed marriage, and saying that, as the writer's only wish was for her happiness, he had decided to come and see the suitor himself to discuss the matter with him mouth to mouth. "That gentleman would be good enough to meet him at the Hotel Kron-Prinz, on the following Thursday."

MODERN EDUCATIONAL METHODS.

Subject Is Large and Vague and Definition Impossible.

All the schools and all the colleges are started again in their year's work. The private schools hereabouts open from two to four weeks later than the public schools, the boarding schools in the country starting, as a rule, about a fortnight earlier than the private schools in the cities, which hold off necessarily until a fair proportion of their pupils get back from the country to town.

Most of the college professors long since found it to their advantage to have as much as possible of the year's vacation come in the summer months. Three months clear in the summer is a slice of time that in a scientific important use and a source of most of the college professors get it.

What are the young people learning, and by what methods is it being taught to them? That is a hard question if one attempts to answer it in detail. Education seems to be still an experiment; new theories are constantly being put on trial; old methods are constantly being abandoned, and almost as constantly the new methods stir misgivings in the minds of some of the observers.

Even the kindergarten is not yet above criticism. Able and amusing writers have poked a good deal of rather penetrating fun at the kindergartens, and though an institution it is well founded and sure to last and to do good, it is not yet above criticism. The aspiration to make education so easy and so simple that it will be no trouble to any one is not universally applauded just now, and when critics and commentators declare that there is a great educational value, and that children ought to learn to overcome difficulties, the advocates of the kindergarten have to do a good deal of explaining. We know in a general way that small children are being taught to read and write, and that some of them are learning to spell, that they learn arithmetic, geography, and abstinence of liquor on physiological grounds, and other things, but we do not know just what they are to read a whole word at a time, or why they should not know it. We hope it doesn't matter, for whatever method prevails just now seems likely to decline before the year after next.

It is rather a vague business, this directing of the young. The little ships have a pretty well channelled way, with deep water from shore to shore, and the sailing is not so difficult. The course of that with buoys as the only safe one may be taking more pains than the fact that the parent customer complains that he talks indefinitely, and that they know no more after hearing him than before. Whether they are taught to read and write, and that some of them are learning to spell, that they learn arithmetic, geography, and abstinence of liquor on physiological grounds, and other things, but we do not know just what they are to read a whole word at a time, or why they should not know it. We hope it doesn't matter, for whatever method prevails just now seems likely to decline before the year after next.

It is a matter of fact that Hiland had actually proposed to her—and was unaccustomed to the impression that she had accepted him.

Cured of Catarrh of Kidneys by Pe-ru-na.

HON. JOHN T. SHEAHAN, OF CHICAGO.

Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio. Gentlemen—Last summer I caught a cold which seemed to settle in my kidneys and affected them badly. I tried a couple of kidney remedies largely advertised, but they did not help me any. One of my foremen told me the great help he had received in using Peruna in a similar case, and I at once procured some.

"It was indeed a blessing to me, as I am on my feet a large part of the day, and trouble such as I had affected me seriously, but four bottles of Peruna cured me entirely and I would not be without it for three months' salary."—JOHN T. SHEAHAN.

Mr. Jacob Fleig writes from 44 Sumner avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.: "I am now a new man at the age of seventy-five years, thanks to your wonderful remedy Peruna."—Jacob Fleig.
