The undersecretary of the interior greeted the members of the expedition in behalf of the government. Prof. Drygalski, leader of the expedition, gave a short description of the work accomplished.
All the participants in the expedition returned with increased weight and declared they were ready to undertake another polar journey immediately. The ship brought back a full year's provisions. Prince Henry talked with Prof.
Drygalski and various members of the expedition and convinced himself that all were satisfied with the ship and their treatment.

Leader Talks of Results. Prof. Drygalski declared the expedition succeeded in exploring an extensive line of coast to determine the east and west course thereof. He regarded the meteorological studies as extremely important, disclosing, among other points, that easterly winds prevail. The expedition carried on deep sea studies continuously during the journers to and from the Antarctic regions, showing that shallow seas prevail generally around the south pole.

For an hour the sea lion was pear Main street bridge. Numbers of the people secured revolvers and rifles and took shots at the animal and drove it into the lake, where it remained a half hour and then returned to the river, and has been opposite the Goodrich docks, about in the middle of the river, since its return from the lake.

Dressy Overcoats.

Between the extremes of style in overcoats comes this "Regular" style; it's called that, we suppose because wearers never get tired of it. You see how Hart, Schaffner & Marx make it; very dressy, and just as stylish as the long loose-backed shapes, or the form-fitting kind. You can't make an overcoat mistake here; there isn't a wrong one in the store; and there are a good many right ones. Better pay a Hart, Schaffner & Marx price and get your full money's worth.

We have a great line of CHILDREN'S OVERCOATS in all the new and nobby styles. Our children's clothing is the kind that will please you. Send for our booklet 'Good Clothes for Boys," or better still make a trip to West Bend and call at our store. You'll be money ahead if you come, and you get the Coupons.

The Villages Round New Bedford Abound with Them.

In the country towns around about this city are many evidences of what was once New Bedford's greatest claim to fame, the whaling industry. Chief among these are Westport and Dartmouth, where nearly every aged man you meet is addressed as "Cap'n," and rightfully bears that title. White-headed and white-bearded men they are, the few that are left, and their ranks are fast thinning out. Their farms and homes attest their former calling and show the orderliness of the quarterdeck. Hicks, Crapo, Tripp, Howland, Weekes—these are names once conjured with, when hearly every Dartmouth and Westport family, from the head of the river to the harbor, sent its sturdy sons from the plow to the forecastle of the whaler, and saw them not, save for brief times between cruises of two and three years duration.

Now the young men go to the cities, and hardly one follows the sea. Then, however, the share of even the greenest seaman in a profitable whaling cruise was a sum of goodly proportions; moreover, the calling appealed to those whose journeys to the city invariably led them to the wharves where the whalers discharged their cargoes.

There are other large prizes and a great number of smaller val.

It does not often happen that the whole of a prize goes to one individual, but there have been several notable instances, as when the first prize was won by a Japanese, who sent £10 to "Tattersall" in payment for ten tickets. It then occurred to him that this was a lot of money to lose all at once, and he accordingly, as he thought, enlisted nine other shareholders to the extent of a sovereign's worth apiece. But the speculator was ultimately left with the tickets on his hands.

In the event, the Japanese drew Car-bine, and it became the melancholy duty of a bank clerk who had first agreed and of a bank clerk who had first agreed and then refused to join in the speculation to notify the Japanese that a sum of £27,000 was at his disposal.

In 1892 the drawer of Glenloth, the winner of the Melbourne cup of that year, a worker in one of the agricultural districts of New South Wales, gave to each of his two mates £1000 and yith the rest quitted Australia. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the Inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
