APPROVED BY THE CZAR. Favors General Conditions of Russo-Japanese Agreement.

REPORTS PESSIMISTIC. Mikado Tells the Members of the Diet That Efforts Are Being Made to Avoid War.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 10.—The dispatch from Tokyo yesterday announcing that a Russian steamer had been captured by Russia's opposition to the proposed opening of Yung Han Pho, on the Yalu river, to the commerce of the world and that the Russians threatened to land 30,000 men and march on Seoul should be disregarded here, it is utterly discredited here. The foreign office has no confirmation of the report and is anxious to close the matter by dismissing rumors from the far east which later have proved to be baseless.

Czar Has Signed. Paris, Dec. 10.—Definite information has been received here to the effect that the czar has signed his approval of the general conditions preliminary to a Russo-Japanese agreement. The information received shows them to be on the same general line of the peace negotiations as outlined in the dispatches of the Associated Press.

It now develops that the overtures were formulated after the conference between Admiral Alexieff, the Russian viceroy in the far east, and the Japanese authorities, the latter being entrusted to Admiral Alexieff to forward to St. Petersburg.

The approval of them will be communicated to Japan, which is expected to conclude the negotiations with reports from Tokyo are believed by the officials here to reflect the feeling among the Japanese regarding the czar's approval of a Russo-Japanese agreement. The czar's approval is believed to be a favorable omen for the Russo-Japanese negotiations.

It is confidently expected that Japan's early receipt of official information regarding Russia's pacific course will result in a similar improvement in the Japanese aspect.

Germany Should Use Moral Influence. Berlin, Dec. 10.—During the debate today in the Reichstag on the budget estimates Herr Bethmann-Hollweg declared that Germany should use moral influence to prevent difficulties in the far east and to prevent a general war.

The speaker predicted that there would be a large increase in the military estimates.

Fierce Attack on Russia. Herr Reibel in the course of a ferocious attack on Russia, which caused the supporters of the ministry to shake their heads in dismay because such language has never before been heard in the German Reichstag.

Russia is essentially a barbarous state, against whose bestialities all the European governments have made no protest.

Privy to Serbian Assassination. The speaker then alluded to Kishineff, where, he said, the authorities stood by and watched murders. He asserted that a Russian general had driven hundreds of Chinese into the Amur river and had resulted in flooding among his papers.

Opening of Japanese Diet. Tokyo, Japan, Dec. 10.—The Emperor opened the Japanese diet today referring to the situation with regard to Russia. He only said that his ministers are now conducting negotiations with circumspection, important international negotiations for the preservation of peace in the far east and of Japan's rights and interests.

New Russian Railway Submerged. New York, Dec. 10.—The new Overland Trans-Siberian railway, which was completed, would shorten the distance and lessen the difficulties in transporting troops to the front in Manchuria.

Davis on Main street in Memphis. The murder grew out of litigation against King by Davis for Mrs. Gibson, widow of the famous Confederate officer.

Meoimie, Mich., Dec. 10.—[Special.] Sheriff Stiles is endeavoring to solve the mystery of the discovery of the murderer of Gus Adams, who was killed in his saloon at Nashville, Tenn., on October 30, 1903. Adams was found and it is said that this is a valuable clue.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 10.—Judge Kohlsaat in the United States district court today refused to change the order made recently by which John Alexander Dowie agreed to pay the costs of the receivership of Zion industries.

FOOTBALL PLAYERS BADLY HURT. Three Players Injured in College Game at Portland, Ore.

Portland, Ore., Dec. 10.—Three dental students were severely hurt during a football game between the local medical and dental colleges. One of the players, Gill, suffered a broken collar bone and dislocated his shoulder, and Remington, the left half, fractured three ribs.

TRY TO INSET SMOOT. Contest After Utah Senator's Place Will Rival Roberts Fight.

Investigate Mormonism. It Is Probable That Polygamy Charge Can't Be Proven, but Opposition Has Other Charges.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—Congressional callers at the white house are manifesting increasing interest in the case involving the seat of Senator Smoot of Utah, and the indications now are that the contest, which, it is asserted, is certain to result from the present action, will rival in importance and in earnestness the case of Brigham H. Roberts before the House of Representatives a few years ago.

While the President is familiar with the developments in this case, the Smoot case, no effort is being made by either side to draw him into the controversy, the realization being general that it involves a question which the Senate must determine for itself.

Investigate Mormon Church. That a thorough investigation of the subject will be made by the Senate committee on privileges and elections appears to be beyond doubt.

It is believed by some at least of those who are opposing Senator Smoot that any effort made to prove the charge would result in failure.

WEEDS

Consumption is a human weed flourishing best in weak lungs. Like other weeds it's easily destroyed while young; when old, sometimes impossible.

Strengthen the lungs as you would weak land and the weeds will disappear.

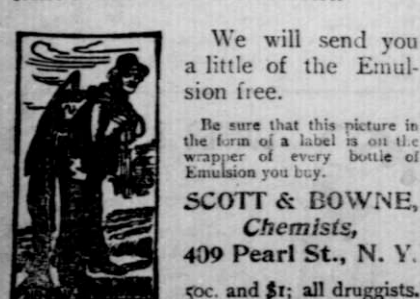

The best lung fertilizer is Scott's Emulsion. Salt pork is good too, but it is very hard to digest.

The time to treat consumption is when you begin trying to hide it from yourself. Others see it, you won't.

Don't wait until you can't deceive yourself any longer. Begin with the first thought to take Scott's Emulsion. If it isn't really consumption so much the better; you will soon forget it and be better for the treatment. If it is consumption you can't expect to be cured at once, but if you will begin in time and will be rigidly regular in your treatment you will win.

Scott's Emulsion, fresh air, rest all you can, eat all you can, that's the treatment and that's the best treatment.

We will send you a little of the Emulsion free. Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy. SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, 409 Pearl St., N. Y. 50c. and $1; all druggists.

A Weak Stomach. Indigestion is often caused by over-eating. An eminent authority says the harm done thus exceeds that from the excessive use of alcohol. Eat all the good food you want but don't overload the stomach. A weak stomach refuses to digest what you eat. Then you need a good digestant like Kodol, which digests your food without the stomach's aid. This rest and the wholesome tones Kodol contains soon restore health. Dieting unnecessary. Kodol quickly relieves the feeling of fullness and bloating from which some people suffer after meals. Absolutely cures indigestion. Kodol Nature's Tonic. Prepared only by E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago. The 5c. bottle contains 2 1/2 times the 50c. size. ALL DRUGGISTS.

FEMALE WEAKNESS. 543 1-2 Congress St. PORTLAND, ME., Oct. 17, 1902. I consider Wine of Cardui superior to any doctor's medicine I ever used and I know what I speak. I suffered for nine months with suppressed menstruation which completely prostrated me. Pains would shoot through my back and sides and I would have blinding headaches. My limbs would swell up and I would feel so weak I could not stand up. I naturally felt discouraged for I seemed to be beyond the help of medicine, but Wine of Cardui came as a God-send to me. I felt a change for the better within a week. After nineteen days treatment I menstruated without suffering the agonies I usually did and soon became regular. I am usually well and I wish that all suffering women knew of its good. Wilhelmina Smau, Treasurer, Portland Economic League.

MILLION A WEEK.

Money Order System Increase Is Greater Than Any Other Business in World.

There is no business in the world that grows half so fast as our postoffice money order system. Last year its total business increased at the rate of $1,000,000 a week. To make it plainer, the money order department will handle next week $1,000,000 more than it handled this week. It is the only business in the world that grows half so fast as our postoffice money order system.

LONG TRIP OF A TOY BALLOON.

It Was Released at Bloomsburg, Pa., and Picked Up in Maine.

What was probably the greatest journey ever made by a toy balloon has just been recorded. A little balloon was sent up at the fair at Bloomsburg, thirty miles from Wilkesbarre, Pa., last September. On its way it was addressed to H. C. Gier. A few days ago he received a letter from Biddeford, Me., saying that the balloon on Wood Island, near there, Alaska could not be found. He wrote to ask about it.

Bright's Disease Cured.

Whitehall, Ill., Dec. 7.—A case has been recorded in this place recently, which upsets the theory of many physicians that Bright's Disease is incurable. It is the case of Mr. Lon Manley, whom the doctors told that he could never recover. Mr. Manley tells the story of his case and how he was cured in this way:

"I began using Dodd's Kidney Pills after the doctors had given me up. For four or five years I had Kidney, Stomach and Liver Troubles; I was a general wreck and at times I would get down with my back so bad that I could not turn myself in bed for three or four days at a time. I remember that I had several doctors and at last they told me I had Bright's Disease, and that I could never get well. I commenced to use Dodd's Kidney Pills in my case. They saved my work and am all right. I most heartily recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills and am very thankful for the cure they worked in my case. They saved my work and after the doctors had given me up."

The Coldest Known Liquid.

Liquid hydrogen is by far the coldest liquid known at the present time. At ordinary atmospheric pressure it boils at -422 degrees Fahrenheit, and reduction of the pressure by an air pump brings the temperature down to -452 degrees, at which the liquid becomes a solid, resembling frozen dew. According to Prof. Dewar, to whom the credit is due of having liquefied hydrogen in 1898, the liquid is a colorless, transparent body, and is the lightest liquid known to exist, its density being only one-fourteenth that of water. The lightest solid known to exist is diamond, which is only one-fifth as heavy as water. The only solid which has so small density as to float upon its surface is a piece of pith wood—Cassier's Mazarine.

The Love of the Violet.

"My dear Letty, it was a bet. And you would not understand anything about it if I told you," he answered, with a shrug of his shoulders. "It was sprung upon me, and I had no chance of getting out of it; besides, I am sure to win, and I am too poor a man to throw a couple of hundred away. Swallow that, and I will rid of him. Uptonbury will find himself deadlier borsal after a bit, and till then you may trust to me to keep him as much as possible out of your way."

So Letty was in some degree consoled, and when the last ball of the season was struck with a mind almost as rest as to the near future.

There is perhaps not a prettier spot in Switzerland than Theuis, situated at the point where the great road over the Spinglen, the Julian and the Albula divide.

The windows of Lady Eversmore's rooms looked over the garden, the street, the Via Mala, that wondrous gorge through which the baby Rhine has cut its way.

After the heat of London and the whirl of excitement, that cool green garden, with its shady walks and splashing fountains, was a very paradise to Letty.

Neither Lord Uptonbury nor Mr. Sterndford had arrived, and her aunt and such of the other travelers who did not hurry through on their way to Italy or the Engadine generally preferred the terraces and balconies, where the air was as invigorating and the view much better.

She was very pleasantly sitting there with a book, listening to the music of the fountain, and the rush of the more distant torrents. She tried to banish all unpleasant thoughts and quite enjoy the present.

Meanwhile, Lord Uptonbury and Cyril Fortescue had gone as far as Zurich, a comfortable day's journey from Theuis. They had a pleasant sitting room, looking over the lake, and after discussing a dinner and called for cards and were busy at cards.

The luck ran pretty evenly for a long time. The moon rose higher and higher in the sky, lighting the broad waters of the lake in its silvery beams. The traffic in the streets ceased, and no noise came in through the open windows but the rippling of the water and the creak of a distant car.

Midnight had long sounded before Lord Uptonbury rose, yawning, stretched himself, and declared that he had had enough of water, the lightest liquid known to exist, its density being only one-fourteenth that of water.

"I have dropped forty to you," he said; "and if I do that every night I shall win, but you are not to lose to me anything. You are backing your peacocks and fortune."

"So, Charlie," replied the other, as he filled up his glass. "And I shall win, I tell you; but there is one point you must bear in mind, you are not to propose till she has refused to bolt with me."

"That's so; but you are only to have a week, remember, and though I am not actually proposing to her, I may make myself as agreeable as I like. A week is as good as a nod to a blind horse, and she will understand that she stands in for a good thing."

"My dear fellow, make yourself agreeable to the young lady, by all means," and there was more of a sneer than a smile on the guardman's lips. "Only you are not to lose my game. I only ask a fair chance for a week, and then, if I fail, it's your turn."

"Hanged if sometimes I don't hope you will pull off the odds in the garden, wife, that I know of. I got on very well without one. Still, she is a little ripper, and no mistake, and I've been on the point of proposing to her for a good many times. Suppose it will have to come of this time, though."

He poured the last drop of wine into his glass, nodded to his friend, and shuffled off to bed.

Cyril, left to himself, went to the window for a breath of fresh air. Another streak of scarlet, and the two hundred pounds will give me enough ready money for a very pleasant little trip with Letty," he said to himself, as he looked over the driveway lake. There will be a row, of course, but I shall live it down, as I have others, and marrying is simply out of the question. The Jews only let me live because they think I am worth to make money one of these days. Her people will take her back, or if they won't, there are always good foreign families who want an English lady to teach their children. What a duffer Uptonbury is, talking about making himself agreeable! Why, it's just that I count upon. The poor child will be in such a state of terror at his proposing that she will fly to me for protection—jump at any chance that will save her from him. The idiot! and all the time he will be paying the expenses of my honeymoon!"

And with a soft laugh, the captain closed the window, turned off the light, and went to bed in triumph.

Letty leaned to be with her aunt on the terrace when Lord Uptonbury and Cyril Fortescue called, and she was delighted to find that her lordship did not attempt to monopolize her—least, he divided his society very fairly between her and her aunt.

She had quite a long private chat with Cyril, leaving over to the illustrious, white-haired Lord Uptonbury made himself agreeable to Lady Agnes.

"What was more, her ladyship seemed satisfied. "He was full of your praises, my dear," she said, after the young man had taken his leave. "Asked how long we thought of staying here, and where were we going next. I can't imagine why he has brought that Capt. Fortescue with him, but anyway, it can't be helped now. I wish I had no fiction, Letty, to be a member. There is a time for all things, and your future is just now at stake."

The next three days passed over without any event of importance occurring. Lady Agnes was so completely satisfied that Lord Uptonbury had at last made up his mind to propose that she did not object, and he sometimes left Letty to do as she pleased.

Letty lived in a state of dread which Cyril Fortescue took pains to encourage. They had met twice since the day when Letty had been elected to the committee, and only his presence which prevented Uptonbury from speaking out.

On the fourth day something happened which very nearly decided Letty's fate. After dinner she had slipped away into the garden, expecting Cyril to follow her, but to her horror it was Lord Uptonbury who made his appearance.

She had herself selected a quiet nook where people rarely strayed to. His lordship, who had taken a fair quantity of champagne at dinner, at once seated himself by her side, and by so doing forced her to resent herself.

"I have hardly had a kiss with you since I got here, Miss Monkston," he said, leaning over her.

"Function of the City Church. The city church has first of all a function to fulfill to the family life of the city. In so doing it not only gives what homes have a right to expect from it, but gets from the family that which it is its own perpetual progress and growth. It is the primary social cell which divides and develops the other structures of society. In religion it is the central sphere which unites to itself and to one another all the members of human life within which the relations of religion are to be realized. The family is therefore, to be called by the church in two ways—to set the earthly type, standard and example of religious relationships Godward and manward, and to realize these relationships throughout the world by the use of home life, household equipment and the co-operation of family groups.

The church has no higher social function than to co-operate with the family in fulfilling its function. If upon the family society depends for the reproduction of human life, the family has a right to look to the church for the sanctity of the marriage bond and the protection of infants in life. If sex life can be legitimate only within the family, the church may be expected to teach and conserve the sacredness of marriage. In the family place for the nurture of children, the right of the child to play, education, freedom from too early and excessive labor, guardianship and equality of opportunity is the church's own most sacred cause.—Chautauquan.

A Youthful B. A. Pierre Alba, a lad of 14, has just received the degree of bachelor of arts from the faculty of literature of the Paris university. Owing to a brilliant Latin essay, which he carried off with a first prize, he is now a candidate for the B. A. degree was dispensed with, as the Alba family is a well-known one, and having the name "Very good." His father is a lieutenant colonel in the French army.

Lord Uptonbury's voice made her start. "I'll double the bet she does not come," said his lordship. "There goes the money. And you have hundred Miss Letty does not turn up."

"Done! And now be off," came the answer in Cyril's voice. "Dash it, man, you have no business here, and I know she always liked me best!"

At the first word the girl had stopped, but as she realized the meaning of the words she overheard, a dead stillness came over her and she sank to the ground.

She was, then, the subject of a bet made by the man to whom she had been betrothed to confide her future life, her very honor!

Never before, but Paris is quite good enough for me, and all the women are wild to get there. Say they can't get a dress to fit in London. All nonsense, you know, if the matter gets into coats in London a long way, and if coats, why not dresses?"

"Paris dresses are lovely," Letty said inadvertently, but she was not to be added, "but they make copies in London, so that one can hardly tell one from the other. But really, Lord Uptonbury, I must be going back to my aunt; she will be anxious, not seeing me, and I am not if she knows you are with me. Why, bless you, the old lady and I understand one another. It just rests with you, don't you?"

"Remember, my dear fellow, that you are monopolizing Miss Monkston," broke in the voice of Cyril Fortescue, who was very pleasantly sitting there with a book, listening to the music of the fountain, and the rush of the more distant torrents.

Monster Reptile from Philippines Sent to Gen. Summers.

Gen. Summers of Portland, Ore., was alarmed one morning when he opened a new package sent him by a friend in the Philippines, but examination proved that the big 2-foot lizard was a monster compared with our species. They are fully a foot long in the body and can put up such a fight that it is not to be trusted. Big snakes are depended upon to rid a house of rats, and it is no uncommon sight to see one of these reptiles, fifteen or eighteen feet in length, crawling up the inside wall of a dwelling in search of their prey. They are very voracious and the natives pay no attention to them unless they appear in the house. Gen. Summers strenuously denies that he partook of any of the delicacies of the Philippines with the Second Oregon.

Mrs. L. C. Glover, Vice-President Milwaukee, Wis., Business Woman's Association, is another one of the million women who have been restored to health by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I was married for several years and no children blessed my home. The doctor said I had a complication of female troubles and I could not have any children unless I could be cured. He tried to cure me, but after experimenting for several months, my husband became disgusted, and one night when we noticed the testimonial of a woman who had been cured of similar trouble through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, we went out and bought a bottle for me. I used your medicine for three and one-half months, improving steadily in health, and in twenty-two months a child came. I cannot express the joy and thankfulness that is in my heart. Our home is a different place now, and we have something to live for, and all the credit is due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Yours very sincerely, Mrs. L. C. GLOVER, 614 Grove St., Milwaukee, Wis."
