Weak Hearts

are caused by indigestion. If you eat a little too much, or if you are subject to attacks of indigestion, the stomach expands—swells, and puts up against the heart. This crowds the heart and shortens the breath. Rapid heart beats and heart disease is the final result. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat, takes the strain off the heart, cures indigestion, dyspepsia, sour stomach and contributes nourishment, strength and health to every organ of the body. Sold by L. Rosenheimer.

Women the Best Conversers.

Of one thing there can be very little doubt, and that is the greater readiness in conversation of women than men. A woman can create conversation, which is a very useful thing and is frequently found a great social difficulty. If we give a man a subject on which he knows anything at all, unless he be a fool or morbidly reticent, he can talk about it so as to make himself fairly intelligent, and perhaps interesting to those for whom the subject has any interest at all. Men, when their feeling of enthusiasm is excited, throw off the slowness and hesitation which frequently cramp their power in society, just as they throw off the physical infirmity of stuttering under the influence of some awakening theme or some strong sympathy.

But the power of conversation in some women, and not always those of remarkable ability, is the very art of making bricks without straw. They will talk to one by the hour about nothing—that is, on no particular subject and with no particular object—talk coherently and not foolishly and without very pleasantly all the time. It would, we are free to confess, be rather difficult for the listener to carry away with him any mental notes of what has been said. He may not be conscious of having gained any new ideas or of having had his old ones much enlarged, but he will rise and go his way, as one does after a light and wholesome meal, sensibly cheered and refreshed, but retaining no troublesome memories of the ingredients which have composed it—New York Ledger.

—A new game has cropped out. It is called "Tickle the Editor." and is as follows: Take a sheet of ordinary writing paper, fold it nicely, enclose a bank note sufficiently large to pay all arrearages and one year in advance and hand it to the editor. Keep an eye on him and if a smile adorns his face, the trick works fine and dandy. Now is the time to play the joke. It beats Finch and Pit all hollow.

Try for Health

222 South Peoria St., CHICAGO, ILL., Oct. 7, 1902.

Eight months ago I was so ill that I was compelled to lie or sit down nearly all the time. My stomach was so weak and upset that I could keep nothing on it and I vomited frequently. I could not urinate without great pain and I coughed so much that my throat and lungs were raw and sore. The doctors pronounced it Bright's disease and others said it was consumption. It mattered little to me what they called it and I had no desire to live. A sister visited me from St. Louis and asked me if I had ever tried Wine of Cardui. I told her I had not and she bought a bottle. I believe that it saved my life. I believe many women could save much suffering if they but knew of its value.

Don't you want freedom from pain? Take Wine of Cardui and make one supreme effort to be well. You do not need to be a weak, helpless sufferer. You can have a woman's health and do a woman's work in life. Why not secure a bottle of Wine of Cardui from your druggist today?

WINE OF CARDUI

Indigestion Causes Catarrh of the Stomach.

For many years it has been supposed that Catarrh of the Stomach caused indigestion and dyspepsia, but the truth is exactly the opposite. Indigestion causes catarrh. Repeated attacks of indigestion inflames the mucous membranes lining the stomach and exposes the nerves of the stomach, thus causing the glands to secrete mucus instead of the juices of natural digestion. This is called Catarrh of the Stomach.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure
relieves all inflammation of the mucous membranes lining the stomach, protects the nerves, and cures bad breath, sour risings, a sense of fullness after eating, indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach troubles.

—Few butterflies are to be found in the state this year. In past years myriads of the insects were noticeable about the streets and fields at this time. —New regulations are now in effect governing the rural mail carriers, dating from July 1. In addition to the increase in salary made to Uncle Sam's employes it also forbids the carrier from soliciting and allowing people to ride. From now on no person except certain people in the employ of the government can be given a lift by the carrier. Those who have been in the habit of obtaining rides from the carriers should not take offense when refused in the future, as by violating this clause of the regulation a carrier holds himself liable to dismissal from the service.

Death of Alfred Miritz.
The remains of Alfred Miritz, who died in Utah on July 14th, arrived here last Saturday on the 3:36 p. m. train and were buried the same day with services in the Good Templars' Hall and interment in the St. Lucas cemetery; Rev. Wagner officiating. In our last issue we made only a short mention of his sad death as no particulars were received up to that time. The full particulars have been received since by the family through the kindness of E. F. Bratz, son of William Bratz, of West Bend, who resides at Ogden. There were peculiar attendant circumstances in the manner the deceased was identified at Ogden. Mr. Bratz, who is on the staff of the State Journal at Ogden, heard of the sudden demise of a man on the train and went to the undertaker's establishment where to his surprise he recognized the corpse as one of his boyhood friends from Wisconsin. He at once telegraphed to Kewaskum and notified the relatives of the sad demise and upon a reply made the necessary arrangements to have the body shipped here. The Miritz family also received a letter from Mr. Bratz last Monday giving full particulars and an interview he had with the conductor who brought the remains to Ogden. The conductor states that Alfred got on his train at San Francisco with a ticket to Cheyenne, Wyo. They had just left Terrace, Utah, a little station about 100 miles from Ogden and Alfred was sitting in the chair car and when the conductor came to get his fare he jokingly asked where he could get some fruit to eat. After the conductor had passed him, the length of two seats, he sighed and with a moan dropped back in his seat, the conductor and several others in the car ran to his assistance but life had already been extinct. The conductor stated that Alfred was in good health by all appearances up to his death. Ogden is the only large city after Terrace and the terminus of the Southern Pacific, so the body was taken there and turned over to the company's undertaker. Mr. Bratz further says that the altitude where Alfred died is probably the highest on the continent and cases of death by heart failure are frequent there. The deceased left from Milwaukee for California on June 29th and when he arrived there was not feeling well and at once returned East. The news of Alfred's sudden death was a great shock to his folks and many friends here as he was in the best of health and spirits when he left. Alfred Miritz, son of Mr. Carl Miritz, of this village, was born here in the town of Kewaskum on February 16, 1880, and was married to Miss Ida Hoeng on September 3, 1902, his wife preceding him in death five months ago. He leaves his parents, two brothers, four sisters and a 9-months-old daughter who is now being cared for by Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Foote, of Fond du Lac. Alfred was a young man of many good qualities, he was kind hearted and enjoyed a large circle of friends who all deeply mourn his early demise. He carried a $6000 life insurance policy in the New York Mutual company. The relatives have the sympathy of the entire community.

Curious Contest for a Bride in Tibet.
Among some of the wilder Tibetan tribes in the Koko-nor there is a curious marriage ceremonial function. The bride sits in a place in a tree, while her male relatives remain on the lower limbs—or else in the back part of her father's tent or in the arms of her relatives guard the entrance—in each case the latter being armed with lolo then sticks.

The Monkey and the Mirror.
There is a concealed monkey in the cage in the Druid Hill Park zoo. One day last week a small boy held a pocket mirror in front of the cage so that the monkey could catch his image. Apparently fascinated with his own beauty, the monkey gazed into the glass for several minutes, and when the boy attempted to draw the glass away reached his paw toward the monkey's face. The monkey, however, was not so easily deceived and, when the boy attempted to draw the glass away, he seized the boy's hand and bit it. Wrong Track.
Even the most careful person is apt to get on the wrong track regarding food sometimes and has to switch over. When the right food is selected, the host of all that come from improper food and drink disappear, even where the trouble has been of lifelong standing.

Had to Switch.
From a child I was never strong and had a capricious appetite and I was allowed to eat whatever I fancied—rich cake, highly seasoned food, hot biscuit, etc.—so it was not surprising that my digestion was soon out of order and at the age of twenty-three I was on the verge of nervous prostration.

EMPTIED!

By CLARENCE DANVERS.

CHAPTER I.
DUKE OF PAUPERY.
It was May. The day was brilliantly bright, the West End was dressed in all its springtime gaiety, and dense crowds were assembled in the park to watch the stream of carriages and motor cars that swept along the row. The King and Queen had just returned from a triumphal visit to foreign climes, and the monarch was on his way to welcome them back. A little way down the footpath, out of the crowd, a man stood leaning against the rails, his eyes searching each vehicle as it passed, with a queer expression that caused many of his fellow pedestrians to glance at him curiously.

He was young, tall, and slight of build. His face, clean-shaven, was most attractive, and his hair was dark, and his eyes were blue. He was striking and impressive, his hair was dark, and his eyes were blue. He was striking and impressive, his hair was dark, and his eyes were blue. He was striking and impressive, his hair was dark, and his eyes were blue.

At last it arrived, and to his joy, came to a standstill quite close to him, in order to allow a vehicle that preceded it to turn; and thus he was permitted for the first time to gaze for fully a minute at his divinities' face.

His gaze fell on the face of a young man, who was looking at him with a queer expression. The young man, who was looking at him with a queer expression, was looking at him with a queer expression.

Every day he came to watch for her, to see if she would appear. He had a queer expression on his face, and he was looking at her with a queer expression.

He had a queer expression on his face, and he was looking at her with a queer expression. He had a queer expression on his face, and he was looking at her with a queer expression.

CHAPTER II.
THE ICE LADY.
The new Duke of Estercourt was the talk of the hour. All London was discussing him and the romantic story of his life. He had a queer expression on his face, and he was looking at her with a queer expression.

He had a queer expression on his face, and he was looking at her with a queer expression. He had a queer expression on his face, and he was looking at her with a queer expression.

THE SLOW-GOING CLAM.

A Method of Locomotion Invented When Time Was No Object.

Of all the absurd forms of locomotion practiced by the creatures of the deep, the most preposterous is that of the mussel. Squids will startle you by darting backward, crabs hustle off sideways at a lively gait; but nothing save the dull brain of "some kind of clam critter" could have devised a method of locomotion so slow and cumbersome as this. You may often see mussels climb up the piles of a wharf toward the high-water mark, pushing their feet against the piles and pulling their bodies up. It has been noted that these mollusks will move a mile in less than a year, but it would be safe to back the mussel in the animals' "slow race."—Country Life in America.

The river is now within 100 feet of the buildings.

Miss Agnes Miller, of Chicago, speaks to young women about dangers of the Menstrual Period—how to avoid pain and suffering and remove the cause by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"To Young Women:—I suffered for six years with dysmenorrhea (painful periods), so much so that I dreaded every month, as I knew it meant three or four days of intense pain. The doctor said this was due to an inflamed condition of the uterine appendages caused by repeated and neglected colds.

"If young girls only realized how dangerous it is to take cold at this critical time, much suffering would be spared them. Thank God for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that was the only medicine which helped me. Within three weeks after I started to take it, I noticed a marked improvement in my general health, and at the time of my next monthly period the pain had diminished considerably. I kept up the treatment, and was cured a month later. I am like another person since. I am in perfect health, my eyes are brighter, I have added 12 pounds to my weight, my color is good, and I feel light and happy."—Miss AGNES MILLER, 25 Potomac Ave., Chicago, Ill.

READ WHAT MISS LINDBECK SAYS:
"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has greatly benefited me. I will tell you how I suffered. My trouble was painful menstruation. I felt as each month went by that I was getting worse. I had severe bearing-down pains in my back and abdomen.

"A friend advised me to try Mrs. Pinkham's medicine, and I did so, and am now free from all my troubles. My color is bright, my weight is 120 lbs., and I feel like a new woman."—Miss LINDBECK, 1201 6th Street, Rockford, Ill.
