"Food Drunk" Thomas A. Edison, The Man Who Thinks and Does Things, Turns Philosopher Says Satiety and Stuffed Stomachs Stupify

"I know men and women," said Thomas A. Edison, the food drunk the other day, "who are good inventors but who are not good thinkers."

And how much worse such symptoms appear to us in womanhood, just as the liquor habit, but enough in man, is doubly, triple offensive to decency in the daughter of Eve. When the "fair" ones become fat, one sees coarse complexions, discolored features and portly figures from the stuffing of food, the element of romance is lost, and the greed for the good things supplants the higher and nobler elements that make for the things we love in woman.

A New Song Hit.

We are in receipt of a copy of the latest song hit "I Thought I Loved You" written by the well known composer, Ivan L. Davis. The song is now being sung with great success by America's leading tenor, W. C. Wood, with the Hanlon Superba Co., and is pronounced by the press and public as the greatest hit of the season. The song is simply beautiful, easy to play, melodious and a perfect adaptation of exquisite words to a beautiful melody. The music will be sent to any address postpaid for 25 cents. Address all orders to the Brankhorst Publishing Co., Alhambra Theatre, Milwaukee, Wis.

Taint no use to sit down and whine,
When no fish get tangled in your line;
Bate your hook with a bumble-bee,
And keep on taking Rocky Mountain Tea.
Miller & Son.

Loss of Flesh

When you can't eat breakfast, take Scott's Emulsion. When you can't eat bread and butter, take Scott's Emulsion. When you have been living on a milk diet and want something a little more nourishing, take Scott's Emulsion. To get fat you must eat fat. Scott's Emulsion is a great fattener, a great strength giver. Those who have lost flesh want to increase all body tissues, not only fat. Scott's Emulsion increases all bone, blood and nerve. For nervousness, for convalescence, for consumptive, for weak children, for all who need flesh, Scott's Emulsion is a rich and comfortable food and a natural tonic. Scott's Emulsion for bone, flesh, blood and nerve.

We will send you a free sample. Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

Pastour's Interesting Experiments and Discoveries With Microbes.

It was natural that Pastour should desire to know how the microbes which he showed to be the essential causes of the various fermentations took their origin. It was at that period a prevalent notion, even among many eminent naturalists, that such humble and minute beings originated de novo in decomposing organic substances, the doctrine of spontaneous generation, which has been chased successively from various positions which it once occupied among creatures visible to the naked eye, having taken its last refuge where the objects of study were of such minuteness that their habits and history were correspondingly difficult to trace. Here again Pastour at once saw as if by instinct on which side the truth lay, and perceiving its immense importance he threw himself with ardor into its demonstration.

I may describe briefly one class of experiments which he performed with this object. He charged a series of narrow necked glass flasks with a decoction of yeast, a liquid peculiarly liable to alteration on exposure to air. Having boiled the liquid in each flask to kill any living germs it might contain he sealed its neck with a blowpipe during ebullition, after which, the flask being allowed to cool, the steam within condensed, leaving a vacuum above the liquid. If, then, the neck of the flask were broken in any locality, the air at that particular place would rush in to fill the vacuum, carrying with it any living microbes that might be floating in it.

The neck of the flask having been again sealed, any germs so introduced would in due time manifest their presence by developing in the clear liquid. When any of such a series of flasks were opened and resealed in an uninhabited room, or under the trees of a forest, multitudes of minute living forms made their appearance in them, but if this was done in a cellar, long unused, where the suspended organisms, like other dust, might be expected to have fallen to the ground, the decoction remained perfectly clear and unaltered. The oxygen and other gaseous constituents of the atmosphere were thus shown to be incapable of inducing any organic development in yeast water.

Such is a sample of the many well devised experiments by which he carried to most minds the conviction that, as he expressed it, "the generation spontaneous est une chimere," and that the humblest and most minute living organisms can only originate by parentage from beings like themselves. Pastour pointed out the enormous importance of these humble organisms in the economy of nature. It is by their agency that the dead bodies of plants and animals are resolved into simpler compounds fitted for assimilation by new living forms. Without their aid the world would be, as Pasteur expressed it, encombe de cadavres. They are essential not only to our well being, but to our very existence. Similar microbes must have discharged the same necessary function by removing refuse and providing food for generations of plants and animals during the past periods of the world's history, and it is interesting to think that organisms as simple as can well be conceived to have existed when life first appeared upon our globe have in all probability propagated the same lowly but most useful offspring during the ages of geological time.—Sir Joseph Lister.

THE GLOVE MAKER.

The wearing of gloves is a more ancient custom than it is generally thought to be. Homer speaks of gloves and tells of one who wore them to protect his hands while working in his garden. The use of some coverings for the hands was known to the ancient Persians, and Old Testament writers also mention them. They were in such common use among the Romans that they were worn even in the wild country by the Britons. St. Anne, the mother of the Virgin Mary, it has been said, a knitter of gloves, has been chosen to show upon our globe have in all probability propagated the same lowly but most useful offspring during the ages of geological time.—Sir Joseph Lister.

Insurance Co. Starts Suit.

Suit has been brought in the Washington county circuit court by Ulrich Huber, a stockholder of the Germantown Mutual Insurance company, against Andrew Martin, Arthur Braun, George Klippel, Jacob Merton, Charles Herman, Andrew Schwaibach, H. W. Sawyer, J. W. Schwalbe, Stephen F. Mayer, the Germantown Farmers' Mutual Insurance company and the Germantown Insurance company.

It is alleged that the defendants converted or attempted to convert to the use of the Germantown Insurance company the entire assets of the Germantown Farmers' Mutual Insurance company, to the value of about $250,000.

An order is asked for restraining the Germantown Insurance company from using or disposing of any of the assets of the mutual company and from appropriating and using the good will of the mutual company. A receiver is also asked for to whom the property in question may be transferred.

About 7,000 policy holders in the mutual company are said to be interested in the suit.

Young women may avoid much sickness and pain, says Miss Alma Pratt, if they will only have faith in the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel it my duty to tell all young women how much Lydia E. Pinkham's wonderful Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was completely run down, unable to attend school, and did not care for any kind of society, but now I feel like a new person, and have gained seven pounds of flesh in three months."

"I recommend it to all young women who suffer from female weakness."—Miss Alma Pratt, Holly, Mich.

FREE MEDICAL ADVICE TO YOUNG GIRLS.
All young girls at this period of life are earnestly invited to write Mrs. Pinkham for advice; she has granted in a motherly way to hundreds of young women; her advice is freely and cheerfully given, and her address is Lynn, Mass.

Judging from the letters she is receiving from so many young girls Mrs. Pinkham believes that our girls are often pushed altogether too near the limit of their endurance nowadays in our public schools and seminaries.

Nothing is allowed to interfere with studies, the girl must be pushed to the front and graduated with honor; often physical collapse follows, and it takes years to recover the lost vitality,—often it is never recovered.

A Young Chicago Girl Saved from Despair.
"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wish to thank you for the help and benefit I have received through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills. When I was about seventeen months old I suddenly seemed to lose my usual good health and vitality. Father said I studied too hard, but the doctor thought different and prescribed tonics, which I took by the quart without relief. Reading one day in the paper of Mrs. Pinkham's great cures, and finding the symptoms described answered mine, I decided I would give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. I did not say a word to the doctor; I bought it myself, and took it according to directions regularly for two months, and I found that I gradually improved, and that all pains left me, and I was my old self once more."—LILLIE E. SINGLARS, 17 E. 23d St., Chicago, Ill.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the one sure remedy to be relied upon at this important period in a young girl's life; with it she can go through with courage and safety the work of her school, and fortify her physical well-being so that her future life may be insured against sickness and suffering.

$5000 FOREFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Skunk Farms in Connecticut.
Readers of the Day will remember that the raising and tanning of skunks was an industry established in the northern part of the town of Stonington, last year. Two farmers residing in that section engaged in the business at two different points, and the additional fact is that Mr. Calvin Wilcox is the most extensively engaged in the business of any person hereabouts this year, as he breeds skunks and fed mainly on beef scraps, upon which they thrive rapidly. The skunks and their oil is where the profit on the transaction comes from and this amounts to no inconsiderable sum.—New London Day.

BIG BEE FARM.
Texas Man's Project to Establish It in Indian Territory.
South McAlester, Indian Territory, is soon to have an entirely new industry in the way of a bee farm. The land is planted in white clover and other plants and flowers, suitable for bees. The proprietor, Col. Wiley Brock of Weatherford, Texas, will import his best strain of bees from the queen bee raisers of Canada, and will keep them in the most modern apiaries in the United States within five miles of the city. The colonies are out.

"I propose to establish just southeast of this city, on a tract of land, on which I have acquired, and will use only the very highest grade of honey bees. My queen will all be imported from Italy. Some of my present stock come from Ottawa, Canada, and have cost me more than their weight in gold. I have the highest strain of bees cost me $25 to $300 each. These queens are the best and gentle, but when they get mad one must look out."

When asked about the climate and other conditions here for bee raising Col. Brock replied: "I have made a careful study of the country, and I am pleased with what I have seen. Wild flowers abound here during the greater part of the year, but I have seen nothing on white and red clover, alfalfa, and alfalfa sunflower. My purpose is to have bees here for my own use, and to feed them as they do in Europe and Canada. This is a great bee country. In fact, I see no one who is not a great country for almost anything."—Kansas City (Mo.) Journal.

One Way to Kill Lice.
United States Consul Jackson, in La Reunion, reports that lice are becoming a pest in that region. The pest destroys these people formerly known for their cleanliness. The lice are carried by smoke, or to drowning by pouring water into them, or to soiling person about the face. The lice are of proved dangerous to domesticated animals.

At the present day another method is used,—infection by a microbe which is deadly to rats and mice only. In 1883 Dr. Dausse, while studying the habits of field mice, observed that large numbers of mice died from disease. He collected the culture and found that it was himself that these cultures produced the disease in healthy rats and mice. This disease is now being used to exterminate rats and mice. This method of destruction has been used in various parts of the world, and has been carried out systematically on a surface of 2800 acres.

The French Parliament appropriated 250,000 francs ($50,000) to be used for the destruction of the mice by virus.

Good News for All.
Bradford, Tenn., Nov. 21.—(Special.)—Scientific research shows Kidney Trouble to be the factor in many diseases that news of a discovery of a cure for it cannot fail to be welcomed all over the country. And according to Dr. J. C. Dodd's Kidney Pills, a cure is found in Dodd's Kidney Pills. Mr. Davis says: "Dodd's Kidney Pills are all that I claimed them to be. I have never more good than anything I have ever taken. I had Kidney Trouble cured and after taking a few boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, I was completely cured. I cannot praise them too much."

For the Cuckoo.
The aggressive man finished his story and regarded us with a superior air that we trotted out the little anecdote about the cuckoo clock.

"Yes, sir," he concluded, "just as he stood upstairs that was 12 o'clock, the cuckoo clock struck twelve, and the man didn't do a thing but stand there on the stairs and cuckoo nine more to make up for the one he had. We laughed uproariously and congratulated ourselves that the traveler was effectively snuffed."

"Well, go on," said he, with some impatience.
"Oh where?" we asked.
"On with the story," he replied, "that is the story. Just as he stood upstairs—"

"Oh, rats," said the man. "Next morning, when the man went down to his wife said: 'Tom, don't forget to bring home a seditious powder.'"

"Yes, Thomas," he replied, "I brought his wife. I noticed that he had the highcuffs last night when he struck twelve."—Short Story.

Making Artificial Butterflies.
The preparation of artificial butterflies mainly consists in grinding with a cane's hair brush very thin mulge of paste over the wings, and then spreading them and sprinkling over this certain delicate materials of various colors. By this means a very common butterfly can be transformed into one that is extremely rare. The fraud came to light when a certain member of a rear admiral, the dyer widely noted for his brilliant red and white hues.—Liverpool Post.

Milton, Mrs. Jane Barnhart died at the age of 94 years. Kenosha—Anna Irving, formerly of this city, died at Oak Park, Ill.

Sawdust No Longer Given Away.
Twenty years ago the mill owners were asking people to come and mill the sawdust away from their mills. It was given away for nothing. Now it is sold for $1 a cord, and must be used to load the cars. Still, it must be conceded that sawdust of any kind has a real value of at least $1 a cord. It is rich in carbon for the making of heat. Experience with sawdust on the farm shows that it has no value as a fertilizer.—Portland (Me.) Express.

Valuable Queen Bees.
Just as there are valuable strains in horses, cattle and other stock, so there are varieties of queen bees which are worth many hundred times their weight in gold. The most valuable strain is the Italian and many Italian bee farmers demand and receive without question prices ranging from $50 to $200 for a single queen bee of a certain kind. Such bees are sent all over the world. The owner of a bee farm annually and brings back with him bees of an aggregate value of thousands of dollars. He is enabled through the agency of an Italian firm to effect an insurance upon his most valuable of his queens.—Boston Transcript.

GIRLS RUN A RANCH.
Father Dies and His Daughters Don Trousers and Pay Off the Debt.
This is harvest time in Colorado, and the Denver Daily News prints a story of how the daughters of an old French ranchman near Gunnison went to work and paid off the mortgage on their father's land.

This is the story: The ranchman, died in 1901, leaving his property in bad shape and heavily mortgaged. One son, the eighth and youngest, died, and the father was made administrator of the estate. Together they set out to liquidate the property, and so faithfully have they labored that in another three years their work was smoothly done. In the past, they will have accomplished their object.

She is the oldest girl in the family. She is also the only blonde. She is of very striking appearance, and, indeed, she is the belle of the town. She is French, and the conversation among themselves is carried on altogether in French. She is very intelligent, and when having time comes they put on overalls and run the mares, the calves, and the chickens. They are the only girls in the county who have a horse. When it comes time to hale the hay, brother Bob is their only help.

All are sweet, modest girls and physically well. They are all of the French type. They think their work as good as play, and not one has ever been ill a day from the winter since they came to the ranch. They have a host of friends. They are all of the French type, and Annetta, attend the Gunnison schools.

Request for Lock of Clergyman's Hair.
An aged clergyman with silvery hair was the recipient of several simultaneous requests from young ladies for a lock of his hair.

The requests were complied with, the clergyman being pleased to fulfill wishes which seemed founded on a sentiment of respect; and all went well until his wife, who had been asked to lend a lock, had a little talk with her husband. She said she would rather see him make a lock of his hair than to see her own hair cut.

"I would rather see you get a lock of my hair than to see your own hair cut," she said. "I would rather see you get a lock of my hair than to see your own hair cut."

"WHACKS"
And What They Mean.
When Old Mother Nature gives you a "whack" remember "there's a reason," so try and say "thank you," then set about finding what you have done to demand the rebuke, and try and get back into line, for that's the happy place after all.

Curious how many highly organized people fail to appreciate and heed the first little, gentle "whacks" of the good Old Dame, but go right along with the habit, whatever it may be, that causes the "whacks," until they reach a point of disapproval. Whiskey, tobacco, and other bad habits, are the natural treatment of the body, until serious trouble sets in or some chronic disease.

Some people seem to get on very well with those things for a while, and Mother Nature apparently cares but little what they do.

Perhaps she has no particular plans for them and thinks it little use to waste time in their training.

There are people, however, who seem to be selected by Nature to "do things." The old Mother Nature has a great work. A portion of these selected one off and again seek to stimulate and then deaden the tool (the body) by some one or more of the drugs—Whiskey, Tobacco, Coffee, Tea, Morphine, etc.

You know all of these throw down the same class of alkaloids in chemical analysis. They stimulate and then depress. They take from man or woman the power to do his or her best work.

After these people have drugged for a time they get a hint or mid "whack" to remind them that they have work to do, a mission to perform, and should be about the business, but are loathing along the way and become satisfied for the time being and fortune that waits for them if they stick to the course and keep the body clear of obstructions so it can carry out the behests of the mind.

Sickness is a call to "come up higher." The body is in a low condition. It may be stomach trouble or bowels, heart, eyes, kidneys or general nervous prostration. You may depend upon it when a "whack" comes it's a warning to quit some abuse and do the right and fair thing with the body.

Perhaps it is coffee drinking that offends. That is one of the greatest causes of human disorder among Americans.

Now then if Mother Nature is gentle with you and only gives you a little "whack" at first to attract attention, don't abuse her consideration, or she will soon hit you harder, sure.

And you may also be sure she will hit you very, very hard if you insist on following the way you have been doing.

It seems hard work to give up a habit, and we try all sorts of plans to charge our ill feelings to some other cause than the real one.

Coffee drinkers when ill will attribute the trouble to bad food, malaria, overwork and so on, and they keep on being sick and gradually getting worse until they are finally forced to quit entirely, even the "only one cup a day." Then they begin to get better, and unless they have gone long enough to set up some fixed organic disease, they generally get entirely well.

It is easy to quit coffee at once and for all, by having well made Postum, with its rich, deep, seal-brown color which comes to the beautiful golden brown when good milk is added, and the crisp snap of good, milk Java is there if the Postum has been boiled long enough to bring it out.

It pays to be well and happy for good Old Mother Nature then sends us her blessings many and various kinds and helps us to gain fame and fortune.

Strip off the handicaps, leave out the deadening habits, heed Mother Nature's hints, quit being a loser and become a winner. She will help you up sure if you cut out the things that keep you back.

"There's a reason" and a profound one. Look in each package for a copy of the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville."

BIG FIRE IN TWO RIVERS.
City Visited by Fierce Conflagration and Aid is Summoned.
TWO FIREMEN INJURED
Flames Are Fanned by a Severe Gale—Loss Approximately $50,000.

Two Rivers, Wis., Nov. 24.—(Special.)—A spectacular conflagration which for a time threatened the whole city and the breach—all agree that the fire started in or near the nail factory of the Two Rivers Manufacturing company late yesterday afternoon, and before it was under control, caused a loss of approximately $50,000.

Fanned by a Gale.
A fierce gale was blowing from the west, and the flames gained such headway that it was believed that the wind was doing much to fan the burning firebrands in all parts of the city, and the people were thrown into a state of panic.

Jumped Eight Blocks.
From the nail factory the flames jumped a distance of eight blocks to the railroad mill, which was used as a warehouse, and, as the attention of the fire fighters was directed elsewhere, it was completely destroyed. Sparks and burning embers were also carried by the wind to the big factory belonging to the company and it was ignited. The residence of Mr. Winkelmiller was also set on fire, as well as the Haetz Wagon works, and the people were in a state of alarm. There were at least ten fires in different parts of the city at the same time.

Aid from Manitowoc.
Aid was telephoned for from Sheboygan and Manitowoc, and an engine was loaded onto a special train at Manitowoc and sent to the assistance of the Two Rivers fire department, which consists of the engine, the Sheboygan engine, the Pearl and Sophie fire engine, and the engine from Manitowoc. The engine from Manitowoc was ready to start.

The woodwork of the steel bridge caught fire, and the bridge was rendered unusable. The engine from Manitowoc was also on fire, but no serious damage was done. The wood and the engine from Manitowoc were on fire several times but the vigorous work of the firemen prevented the flames from gaining headway.

Everything Dry as Tinder.
The fact that there was no rain for six weeks rendered everything as dry as tinder, and made the work of the firemen almost hopeless, and had not the wind partially died the result would have been different. There is no doubt that the fire was caused by a spark from the engine, which is the main building of the manufacturing company, was saved, and the principal loss was the old engine used as a warehouse. The value of the building and contents is placed at $50,000, partially covered by insurance. All the other losses were insignificant.

The fire started at 4:45 in the afternoon and was under control by 8 o'clock in the evening.
