Sir Henry Doulton.

Sir Henry Doulton, who was born in Vauxhall Walk in 1820, practically spent his life in Lambeth, where his father established his pottery in the year of Waterloo, and he took an active part in the business from the old days of "chimney pots, drain pipes, ink and blacking bottles" until the firm became world famous for its art productions, in which, above all else, may be mentioned its admirable ware based upon the old Gris de Flandres and other types of old Flemish and German stoneware, whose soft, tender colorings are so restful and refined. It was always a pleasure to Sir Henry to chat with any one who was interested in old London—the London when Vauxhall was virtually the country; when Vauxhall gardens, with their "10,000 extra lights," were the resort of the Joe Sedleys and the buxks of a generation later; when the now densely populated suburb of Battersea was given up to market gardens and meadows and was considered remote enough from London to be the scene of a duel between the Duke of Wellington and the Earl of Winchelsea in 1829.

The letters of Miss Merkle, whose picture is printed above, and Miss Claussen, prove beyond question that thousands of cases of inflammation of the ovaries and womb are annually cured by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Gradual loss of strength and nerve force told me something was radically wrong with me. I had severe shooting pains through the pelvic organs, cramps and extreme irritation compelled me to seek medical advice. The doctor said that I had ovarian trouble and ulceration, and advised an operation. I strongly objected to this and decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I soon found that my judgment was correct, and that all the good things said about this medicine were true, and day by day I felt less pain and increased appetite. The ulceration soon healed, and the other complications disappeared and in eleven weeks I was once more strong and vigorous and perfectly well.

"My heartiest thanks are sent to you for the great good you have done me."—Sincerely yours, Miss MARGARET MERKLEY, 275 Third St., Milwaukee, Wis.

Miss Claussen Saved from a Surgical Operation.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—It seems to me that all the endorsements that I have read of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound do not express one-half of the virtues of this great medicine really possesses. I know that it saved my life and I want to give the credit where it belongs. I suffered with ovarian trouble for five years, had three operations and spent hundreds of dollars on doctors and medicines but this did not cure me after all.

"However, what doctors and medicines failed to do, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did. Twenty bottles restored me to perfect health and I feel sure that had I known of its value before, had the doctors along, I would have been spared all the pain and expense that fruitless operations cost me. If the women who are suffering, and the doctors do not help them, will try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, they will not be disappointed with the results."—Miss CLARA M. CLAUSSEN, 1307 Penn St., Kansas City, Mo.

FLOCKING INTO CANADA. Immigration from Dakota and Adjoining States—Major Edwards, United States Consul-General at Montreal, describes the movement as due to scarcity of food.

Montreal, Dec. 15.—Major Allison Edwards, United States consul general, who returned to-day from a visit to his home at Fargo, North Dakota, said in an interview: "The proper way to describe the manner in which the people of North Dakota are coming over into Western Canada is not that they are coming over in droves. Among the people there did not seem to be any thought of there being a boundary line at all. It is simply a question, added the major, 'of there not being any more land in North Dakota and the surrounding States, and the people are flocking to Canada to get good farms. Naturally the number that will come over will increase all the time, and I may say the people you are getting are the best people in the West. They are well supplied with money and are well acquainted with the conditions under which they will have to work. The agents of the Canadian government are prepared to give the fullest information regarding homestead and other laws."

Why Not Say "Yes"?

"Although he's tall, I don't think he weighs quite as much as you do, dad," she said, "and it's only for the road, Westbury. He has his own machine there—a foreign make, which he says we shall laugh at. But it can't be very bad, for he has carried him hundreds of miles on the Continent."

"Well, he can have my wheel, and welcome," said her father. "Tell Annie to bring me in a little lunch, and I'll be down to see you for dinner. My Temple coming?"

"I can't say, I'm sure," said the girl, with a rush of color. "I don't know whether he means returning or not."

"Ah! Mrs. Temple's not last long," said her father. "I expect he'll have something of importance to tell him."

CHAPTER II.—DROPPING THE MASK.

When Lillian and her new cavalier had departed, and Annie had brought in the lunch, Sir Gervase opened the mysterious letter again and read it once more.

"My Dear Brother: When our father died, twenty-six years ago, he left the bulk of his property to me, and I have found that I am the elder brother, and in the will the fortune was left to the elder."

"Why the exchange was made is a mystery. Whether our mother had a notion of working out some belated scheme of vengeance against our father I cannot say. Certain it is that in the hands of Messrs. Elliot & Drayton of Lincoln's Inn, are all the necessary papers—my mother's confession and the testimony of the nurse and the doctor in relation to the contents of that letter. You will not be delayed long. By the way, how are the funds? Would you like a check? Your father has left me perfectly free to do as I see fit, although he asks me to do as you wish, so you must forgive me my asking such questions."

"The cyclists were met at the door of the Priors by Sir Gervase, whose face wore a strange expression as he saw them."

"It won't do for Jack Temple to sulk much," he thought. "He must be up and doing, or Lillian will slip through his hands. And I don't know that it would be any harm."

"A loud he said: 'May I ask, Mr. Linton, if you are aware of the contents of your father's letter? Did he confide in you?'"

"Not a word," answered Linton. "I sent you a note to that effect by the maid. He wrote the letter in private, and gave it to me sealed as you received it. It's just as usual," said Sir Gervase. "I have been asked to do certain things on your behalf before you are made acquainted with the contents of that letter. You will not be delayed long. By the way, how are the funds? Would you like a check? Your father has left me perfectly free to do as I see fit, although he asks me to do as you wish, so you must forgive me my asking such questions."

DEVELOPMENT OF WHITE PINE.

Illustrated by Specimen in Possession of a Grand Rapids Man.

J. D. Clark of Grand Rapids, brother of M. J. Clark, has a most interesting souvenir of what a white pine tree will become within the lifetime of a man. It is a tree which twenty years ago Mr. Clark pulled from stump and planted on the family farm in Solon township, this county. When Mr. Clark found the tree it was but a sapling no thicker than a man's thumb, but when it was cut down by the present owner and the stump was left, the tree was at the point of the stump where the board now is. Mr. Clark's possession of the tree was cut down last year and contained in the trunk of the tree one and one-quarter inches in circumference. The tree was cut down last year and contained in the trunk of the tree one and one-quarter inches in circumference. A UTOPIAN FACTORY TOWN. Garden City, England, Is Planned to Be an Ideal Spot.

An industrial town unlike any other in the world is about to rise near London. It is to be called Garden City because every house will be surrounded by a garden. Ebenezer Howard is the projector of this Utopia and he has, after many years, induced rich philanthropists to furnish the stock company necessary to begin work.

Nothing was seen of Jack Temple until the next day, when he had quit the house, although in reality he had been hanging about the place all the morning.

When her father and his guest had departed, Lillian glanced at the letter which she had made her way to her favorite seat under the May blossoms.

Her mind was in a state of bewilderment. She would not have liked to confess to herself that the advent of Geoffrey Linton had anything to do with this. But it was impossible—much as she would have liked to refrain from seeing the connection between her own feelings and Jack Temple's, and the sudden appearance of the man from Australia.

It was a far cry at present to discuss the possibility of radium, or radium salts, for illuminating or heating purposes. I do not suppose there is one-tenth of an ounce of radium in the whole of the world. It is supposed to say where the radium is, and it is supposed to say where the radium is, and it is supposed to say where the radium is.

Jack Temple's attitude had surprised and repelled her; she had suddenly come to the conclusion that she was not to be driven from her thought—how far above Temple's was the nature of the above.

It was rather a bad moment for Jack to have chosen for his comp d'homme, but he could not be blamed for his haste. To be sure, he had a long way to go, but he threw away the only chance he had, for it was to be deprecated himself.

He knew that every hour he spent in the city was a step toward the goal of his chain of admiration which was evidently being forged.

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE. A Case in Which It Would Have Told Against an Innocent Man.

"Several years ago I took a late train from Boston to Kansas City," said a man in business in Kansas City. "In the morning I was awakened earlier than usual by the sound of a door opening. I had been committed to the sleeper during the night and that all the passengers were to get up. Some one had taken six $100 bills from the clothing of a gentleman who occupied a berth directly opposite from me. I had been taken before he left Boston, and as the train had been almost constantly in motion, I was certain that the person who had committed the theft was still on the car."

"No one had been aboard but the passenger, and that none of them had left. It was proposed to search the car, but a man who had been taken before he left Boston, and as the train had been almost constantly in motion, I was certain that the person who had committed the theft was still on the car."

"The fourth jewel screw of a watch is so small that to the naked eye it will not look like anything more than a bit of wire. It is, however, a most important part of the watch, and is probably the smallest screw made. It must necessarily be perfect in every respect, and its manufacture is a most exacting one. It is illustrated by the accompanying drawing, and is made of the finest steel, and is made of the finest steel, and is made of the finest steel."

How Hunting in Palestine. The late Bishop Beckwith of Georgia was fond of his gun and spent much of his time hunting in the mountains of that state. One day the bishop was out with his dog and gun, and was hunting for a rabbit when he was informed by a hunter that he had shot a rabbit. The bishop went to see the rabbit, and found it was a very fine specimen of the species. The bishop was very pleased with the rabbit, and he was very pleased with the rabbit, and he was very pleased with the rabbit.

The Malay is allowed four wives, but he is too wise to take the limit simultaneously or to be on with the new before he has got rid of the old. He has a divorce and replace without much difficulty. The women also have privileges in the better classes, men are self-reliant, division of property and the children provided for by law. Families are small.

Breeding of Gentlewomen. In England every foot of arable ground has been turned over to the raising of a thousand years of husbandry. Every inch of land is cultivated, and the soil is improved, and the girls are educated, and the women also have privileges in the better classes, men are self-reliant, division of property and the children provided for by law. Families are small.

The Slaughtered Millions of the War. A correspondent of the Magazine of Losses in the Russo-Japanese war, and has arrived in London, and has gathered that the Russian killed and wounded amount to 4,307,000, and that the Japanese killed and wounded amount to 2,728,800 killed and wounded Japanese. This is apart from the naval battles—London Times Chronicle.

Why She Went to Church. The late Rev. Dr. Francis Parish once preached a sermon on her bravery in fighting her way to church against a terrible storm. He received a letter from a lady who had been getting so cross-grained since Mrs. Parish had to go to church—Westminster Gazette.

The Goose Step. Everyone who reviews the military review in Germany or Austria for the first time must have been impressed by the peculiar stiff-necked, shambling step adopted on parade by the German and Austrian regiments of naturalists and parades, which recently met in Berlin, this "goose-step" has been the subject of much discussion, and the adoption of it has been strongly condemned. Dr. Thalwitzer read a paper on the subject in which he showed that the march of the German regiments was a result of numerous knee and foot complaints among the troops. It will be seen that the goose-step of the men are in consequence of persistent adherence to this antiquated step. Medical Record.

Are Never Without Pe-ru-na in the Home for Catarrhal Diseases.

Remarkable Cures Effected By Pe-ru-na

Under date of January 10, 1897, Dr. Hartman received the following letter:

"My wife has been a sufferer from a complication of diseases for the past twenty-five years. Her case has baffled the skill of some of the most noted physicians. One of her worst troubles was chronic constipation of several years' standing. She was also passing through a most critical period in the life of a woman—change of life.

"About the same time I wrote you about my own case of catarrh, which I have since cured. This explains why Pe-ru-na has become so indispensable to old people. Pe-ru-na is their safeguard. Pe-ru-na is the only remedy yet devised that entirely cures these cases. Nothing but an effective systemic remedy can cure them.

A reward of $10,000 has been deposited in the Market Exchange Bank, Columbus, Ohio, as a guarantee that the Pe-ru-na is genuine, as it is the only one in our possession authentic letters certifying to the same. During many years of advertising we have never used in part or in whole, a single spurious testimonial. Every one of our testimonials are genuine and in the words of the one whose name is appended.

"I will ever continue to speak a good word for Pe-ru-na, I am still cured of the same."—Mrs. M. J. Clark, Independence, Mo., Box 272.

A Spiral Arrow Head. An Indian arrow head was recently found in the front yard of a Jackson residence. The finding of an arrow head is not remarkable, but in this instance, it is especially interesting, as the arrow head having been chipped out in spiral form, and fastened by a lock archaic in its construction, it was a most interesting find.
