With the exception of four, all those arrested were following Forepaugh & Sells Brothers' circus.

Sam Brownlitz, Harry Cohen and John Abeaver, who were among the catches, are considered by Chief Nolan as the smoothest crooks that ever visited Fond du Lac. Quite a number of pockets were picked during the circus parade and on the show grounds. Not a single man was caught in the act.

A. B. Hall, a traveling salesman of A. B. Haft, a traveling salesman of Galesburg, Ill., lost a wallet containing $30, from an inside pocket, at the North-Western station while three strangers brushed against him in the "drunk game." It is thought Brownlitz, Cohen and Abeaver had something to do with the job, however, not a cent was discovered on their persons. They were given fifteen days each in the workhouse, pending further investigation.

An attempt was made to burglarize Fire Marshal Coffman's house and also that of Fred Chapeleau. Officer Ecke happened to be in the vicinity at the time and saw four men leave the latter time and saw four men leave the latter premises. They took to their heels as soon as they saw him, but he gave chase and caught three. Ton Sweeney, James Wallace and John King. They were given live days in jail.

Washington, D. C., May 30 .- Togo's victory is one of the most stupendous, Rojestvensky approached the narrow passage, through which he hoped to make the Sea of Japan and then Vadivo-stok, with every ship in the best possible condition to repel the expected assault from his enemy.

It was a brave thing to do, but it proved a foothardy one.

There was no sign of the Japanese when he passed Goto islands, and he took a north-northeastward course straight for the Oki islands.

Admiral Togo, the silent one, had him under observation with some of his fast scouts and they kept him advised of Rojestvensky's course.

This is the explanation of why the Japanese fleet, with every vessel ready for action, eager to strike when the commander in chief gave the order, lay in a position to dispute the passage of the Straits of Korea.

The first engagement, therefore, ended in his favor.

After 'the sun had set he ordered his torpedo craft to close in upon the Russian ships, which had continued on their way, though slowly, Rojestvensky or his successor (for it is reported he was killed at the commencement of the action) apparently being determined to protect his undamaged vessels as much as possible. When Sunday morning dawned, as a result of the night's operations of Togo's torpedo boats, the Russian fleet had been reduced by two battleships, one coast defense vessel, three cruisers, and three torpedo boat destroyers.

It must have been a ghastly sight for the eye of its commander. Not only had he lost tremendously, but every ship he had was more or less injured.

But the fight had gone out of them and they surrendered.

It must have been a glorious sight to the Japanese, when the Russian colors were hauled down and their own flag, with the Rising Sun in its center, was hoisted at the main.

The crippled Russian ships continued their flight northward, but they made poor speed. The Japanese battleships and armored cruisers, fresh out of the dock, kept after them, giving them no rest and making them exhaust their every bit of ammunition in fruitless efforts to answer the terrific hail of fire to which they were subjected.

London, May 31.—The Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Telegraph says the completeness of the Russian defeat was largely due to a mistaken battle formation. The armored ships were on the starboard side with cruisers and gunboats on the port side. The Japanese main force coming from the northwest attacked the port line first and promptly threw it into disorder. This disorganized the starboard line.

Thus the real action was of very short duration, but the siming of so many ironclads and the surrender of others without fighting, the correspondent says.

tional assembly is anticipated as the only means of averting the popular storm which is threatening to break.

The war party is dying hard. It is the unanimous opinion in diplomatic circles that the logic of events points to no other issue except peace, but the diplomats also admit that the decision rests with the Emperor. But, even when all the ministers except War Minister Sakharoff and Minister of Marine Avellan are solidly arrayed against attempting to continue the hopeless struggle, the Emperor has gefused thus far to say a word.

To a visitor on Tuesday his majesty is reported to have declared that he would rather die than sign an ignominious peace.

Had Been Sailing On It.

A burly skipper and his mate entered a restaurant in Liverpool and demanded a "table dotty" dinner. In a few minutes a waiter approached and with a great flourish placed two plates of thin, watery-looking fluid before the pair. "Hi! me lad, what's this stuff?" demanded the mariner, gazing in amaze ment at the decoction in front of him. "Soup, sir," replied the waiter. "Soup." shouled the old sea dog. "Soup. By gum. Bill" (turning to his mate), "jest think o' that! 'Ere's you and me been sailin on soup all our lives and never knowed it till now."—Exchange.

The late Senator Quay, among his other varied pursuits, was somewhat of an agriculturist. One day there was a discussion between several of his colleagues regarding the definition of a gentleman farmer. Some contended that a farmer was a farmer, and the matter of his wealth could make no difference in the name. Presently one of the speakers appealed to Quay, and asked him if he would define the difference between an ordinary farmer and gentleman farmers. The Senator thought for a minute, and self-in the would define the difference between the two: One eats what he cannot self, and the other sells what he cannot self, and the other sells what he cannot eat."—Harpers Weekly.

for Treasurer's Bond Until New Law Is Tested.

Madison, Wis., June 1 .- [Special.]-State Treasurer Kempf formally de-manded of Secretary of State Walter Houser this morning a warrant for $1500 to pay for the treasurer's bond in accordance with a bill recently passed and signed. The governor, in signing it, how-ever, said that his only purpose in so doing was to allow the law to be tested. Mr. Houser declined Mr. Kempt's request, stating that he wanted first to get an opinion from the attorney general. Mr. Kempf withdrew, saying that he supposed he would now be put to still further expense in maintaining his office.

EROSION OF THE TEETH. Its Cause Not Very Clearly Understood

Even Now. The reasons for the decay of teeth and the erosion of cement fillings are not altogether clear. The action of acids in this process is well known, and the value of leaving the mouth in an alkaline condition on retiring is quite generally recognized. The mouth, moistened by saliva with its faintly alkaline reaction, is normally in the proper condition for preserving the teeth.

normally in the proper condition for preserving the teeth.

It has been known for some years that the bacteria in the mouth produces acids by their action on food residues; these acids have been supposed to be the cause of erosion. The results of certain experiments tried with saliva are given in a recent number of the American Chemical Journal. The evidence brought forward goes to show that there is present in the saliva a substance belonging to the group of enzymes, the group of which ptyalin, which changes the starch of the food to sugar, is a member. This newly discovered substance is capable of setting free acids from certain compounds. The acids formed in this way were shown to have a marked solvent effect on Harvard cement, either powdered or in the form of pellets. The saliva collected from persons who have marked erosion of the teeth is found to have a much greater power of setting free neids than the normal saliva. These serving the teeth. have a much greater power of setting free acids than the normal saliva. These facts furnish some foundation for the belief that the bacteria of the mouth are not the only factors, perhaps not the chief factors, in causing erosion of the

Just Discrimination in Railway Rates. All railroad men qualified to speak on the subject in a responsible way are likely to agree with President Samuel Spencer of the Southern Railway when he says: "There is no division of opinion as to the desirability of stopping all secret or unjustly discriminatory devices and practices of whatsoever character." Mr. Spencer, in speaking of "unjustly discriminatory" rates and devices, makes a distinction which is at once apparent to common sense. There may be discrimination in freight rates which is just, reasonable and imperatively required by the complex commercial and geographical conditions with which expert rate makers have to deal. To abolish such open and honest discrimination might paralyze the industries of cities, States and whole sections of our national terri-This distinction between just and unjust discrimination is clearly recognized in the conclusions of the International Railway Congress, published

DRIVING SEASON

June Weather Predictions. The first storm period of June is cen tral on the 3rd, 4th and 5th, writes Rev. Hicks in predicting the weather for June. On and touching the 3rd look for change to much warmer, falling barometer and rain and thunder storms beginning in the west and passing eastward across the country on the 3rd, 4th and 5th. Rising barometer and cooler weather will follow the storm.

The second storm period covers the 8th to 12th, being central on the 9th Ordinarily and normally, we should look for many and heavy thunder storms, say on the 9th, 10th and 11th. But having now entered well into the Mars disturbance, it remains to be seen what modifying or aggravating effects will result from the same. We perdict that many electrical storms and heavy rainfalls will appear at this time, but that they will cover comparatively narrow localities, leaving wide areas of the country with only moderate results. Tornadoes are entirely probable at this and other June periods. It is proper to say here that the prevailing storm and other weather conditions during this period, in any section of the country, will indicate, in a general wav, the character of storms and weather that may be expected until after the middle

The third storm period is central or the 14th to 17th. The electrical strain on Earth's summer solstice will be felt in frequent and general displays of lightning, all through this part of June A crisis of such phenomena will fall about Thursday the 15th to Saturday the 17th. Black, ominous clouds, drenching downpours of rain and violent thunder and wind will visit many places at this time. Reaction to high er barometer and cooler, clearer weather will follow those storms. The next, fourth, storm period is central on the 21st. We will put this perimer storms. If the barometer falls to very low readings-a thing to be apprehended at this time-violent, tornadic storms are quite probable in central and western states. It should be known to all that the greater part of the vived and general lightning, at such times in June, is absolutely harmless and indicates no approaching danger, except in cases where the barometer is very low, and a compact, well-defined storm-cloud s moving up from western to south western directions. On and about June 24th will culminate a series of characteristic June thunder storms. Change to rising barometer and cooler will fol-The last storm period in June will come on the 26th, 27th and 28th. Sections which have been visited by rain and thunder storms bring the two on three periods preceding this, may look similiar results at this time, and those which have been warm and dry will continue the same, for the most part There will be thunder and rain storms on and touching the 26th, 27th and 28th, but wide districts of comparative, if not severe dryness will lie in many parts of the county, notably in northern, southern and western extremes. Reflections of a Bachelor. The more favors you ask the fewer

Another Speedy Cure of an Itching Humor with Loss of Hair by the Cuti-

"For two years my neck was covered with sores, the humor spreading to my hair, which fell out, leaving an unsightly bald spot, and the soreness, inflammation, and merciless itching made me wild. Friends advised Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, and after a few applications the torment subsided, to my great joy. The sores soon disappeared, and my hair grew again, as thick and healthy as ever. I shall always recommend the Cuticura Remedies. (Signed) Harry J. Spalding, 104 West 104th street, New York City."

Have a Bonanza in a Claim.

The story of a soap mine in Idaho is outdone by a report from Lane county, in central Oregon, to the effect that paint has been discovered in the earth and is being mined like gold. It is said to be of good quality and the owners think they have a bonanza.

Details of the methods used in paint mining are not contained in the report, but it is said that several shafts thirty or forty feet deep were sunk. They penetrated several strata and the paint was found to exist in successive layers, with a thin strip of separating sediment. The strata have a width of four to five feet, and the color of the paint in the successive strata varies from an excellent ocher to a dark hue. The owners of the mine expect to market their paint successfully, and will have an exhibit of it at the Lewis and Clark exposition, which will he held in Portland from June 1 to October 15.

The story of the paint deposit is vouched for by persons who have seen the mine. The same persons vouch for a tale to the effect that in the Willamette valley, which is one of the most fertile spots in the world, sheep grow so fat that, when they get on their backs, they lie helpless like turtles. It is said that small boys in the Willamette valley make ready money turning over sheep at so much a turn.

Miss Madelaine Sinsheimer, the last of the human wreckage of the grade crossing trolley car disaster in Newark two years ago, has been taken to a private hospital in Philadelphia. Nine of her schoolmates were killed and many others hurt when the car full of high school pupils was struck by the train. She alone has lingered on, bedridden. It was during the early days of her sickness Miss Sincheimer took to reading Mark Twain's books. About that time the humorist was in New York and her brother called on him to ask him to write his name for her in one of his books. Mark Twain heard her story and wrote both a "sentiment" and a letter. In the book he inscribed: "One of the most remarkable differences between a lie and a cat is that a cat has only nine lives." In the letter he said: "I wish I could take you, sound and whole, out of your bed and break the legs of those officials and put them in it—to stay there."

Kansas City Times, Fur from Live Rabbits.

One of the strangest of modern industries is that carried on in the Jura district in France. It consists in taking the fur from live rabbits and weaving it into a textile fabric which makes the warmest kind of clothing material known. The species of rabbits which furnish the 'raw' material for the manufacturing process is the Angora rabbit which the Taw naterial for the manufactur-ing process is the Angora rabbit, which has received the name of the silk rab-bit. Every three months the rabbit sheds its fur, and several days before this takes place nature is anticipated by female hands, which remove the long silken hairs by gentle friction. The skin is already "ripe," and the fur comes of silken hairs by gentle friction. The skin is already "ripe," and the fur comes off easily and without the rabbit suffering the slightest pain from the operation. In fact, "bunny" appears to enjoy it, lying quietly in the lap of the operator during manipulation.

If the official statements of the report are susceptible of contradiction, a good many people are now asking why the facts and figures are not furnished to contradict them. The truth seems to be that most of the charges contain unfounded sensational assertions. A flagrant example of this appeared in a recent article in an Eastern magazine, to the effect that "forty Iowa banks were forced to close their doors in 1903-4 by the Beef Trust's manipulation of cattle prices." Chief Clerk Cox, of the banking department of the Iowa State Auditor's office, has tabulated the list of banks given in the magazine article and has publicly denounced the statement as utterly untrue. the women.

On the whole, the Japanese consider that a woman should not exceed five feet in height; should have a comparatively fair skin and be well developed; should have long, thin and jet-black hair; an oval face, with a narrow, straight nose; rather large eyes, nearly black; thick eyelashes; a small mouth; hiding behind red full lips even rows of small white teeth; ears not altogether small; thick eyebrows and a medium forehead, from which the hair should grow in circular or Fujiyama shape—that shape recalling the truncated cone of the famous volcano.

An Oakland lady who has a taste for good literature tells what a happy time she had on "The Road to Wellville."

She says: "Lovely, are they not?"
"Very lovely—those you are wearing. If you are as generous as I take you to be you will give me at least one out of your abundance."
"Talk of a hint, after that! Which will you have?"
"Nay, that I leave to you."
She selected a dainty white bud, and offered it to him, smiling half-shylv as she met his eyes.
"I think that is one of the freshest.".
"Thanks." For an instant his fingers closed over hers, then he raised the bud to his lips. It is very sweet."
But he did not put it in his coat, as she had thought he would. Raising the lid of his desk he laid it inside with reverent, lingering touch, and turned the key on it. She found it there some months later, carefully wrapped in one of the rown handkerchiefs—which Frank had stolen.
"Surely we may go now?" She spoke involving in you are as generous as I take you to be you will all you need. This is Camden town. One mere kiss, be had deave to the society's laws. day I read the little book, "The Road to Wellville." It opened my eyes, and taught me a lesson I shall never for get and cannot value too highly. I immediately quit the use of the old kind of coffee and began to drink Postum Food Coffee. I noticed the beginning of an improvement in the whole tone of my system, after only two of days' use of the new drink, and in a very short time realized that I could go about like other people without the least return of the nervous dread that formerly gave me so much trouble. In fact, my nervousness disappeared entirely and has never returned, although it is now a year that I have been drinking Postum Food Coffee. And my stomach is now like iron-
