256 KILLED ON MIKASA, BOLT KILLS FOUR

Official Report Shows That 343 Were Badly Injured.

ADMIRAL TOGO ESCAPES

Cause of the Fire on Board the Battleship Is Still a Deep Mystery.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 13 .--The bureau of naval intelligence today received advices by cable from the effect that the loss in killed and missing on the battleship Mikasa was 256. The wounded numbered 343. The cause of the accident cannot be Admiral Togo was not on board at the time of the disaster Admiral Togo Safe. SASEBO, Sept. 13.—Admiral Togo was not on the battleship Mikasa when the awful fire and explosion occurred on oard. Several of the warships that had taken part in the annihilation of the Russian fleet, arrived here last week and were lying in the harbor here.

Shakes the Town. Shakes the Town.

'Early Monday morning the town was violently disturbed by a terrific explosion accompanied by a severe shock.

An eager crowd assembled on the coast only to discover that a terrible disaster had overtaken the beloved Mikasa, the flagship of the great Togo, who led his men to victory in the life and death struggle in which the nation had just been engaged. Words are powerless to describe the profound disappointment and sorrow attending this great catastrophe.

Can Save Vessel. The hope that the vessel can be repaired and Admiral Togo's escape are the only redeeming features of the unprecedented calamity.

The fire on the battleship was first discovered at the base of the mainmast and spread with great rapidity. Within an hour the flames had reached the after magazine, which blew up with a tremendous explosion, tearing huge rents in the side of the ship and scattering death everywhere.

Rescuers Are Killed. When the fire was first discovered rescuing parties were sent from other warships lying near, and these were directly in the path of the explosion, the casualties among them adding greatly to the list of dead and injured on the Mikasa herself. The battleship at once went to the bottom, but the wreck lies in shallow water, and it is ved that it can be raised An investigation is being held to determine the cause of the fire, regarding which there is considerable mystery. Some persons attribute it to defective operation of the electrical equipment, believing that too heavy a load was put on the wires.

IAPANESE TRANSPORT SUNK. Details of the Accident Which Cost 126

Lives.

VICTORIA, B. C., Sept. 13.—Particulars regarding the disaster to the transport Kinjo on August 23, in the inland sea of Japan, involving the drowning of Maj. Kohori and 12t soldiers returning from Formosa, are received from passengers on the Empress of India.

The British steamer Baralong, under charter to the Nippon Kusee Kaisha, collided with the transport, which displayed no lights. When the captains eighted each other's vessels they signalled and both shifted courses to starboard, but the speed of the transport was less than that of the Baralong, which crashed into the stern of the transport on the port side.

The Baralong at once put out four boats and 38 persons, including 17 of the crew, were picked up, but 126 were drowned when the transport went down. The Baralong was damaged about the bows and was taken to Kawasaki yards for repairs. The Kinjo was formerly the British steamer Northumberia. She was insured at Tokio for $50,000.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13. - Thomas French, 17 years old and a student at the high school at East Orange, N. J., has been arrested by postoffice inspectors, an officer of an insurance company, and with mailing to Mr. Riker three infernal machines. These contrivances are said to resemble the ones received recently at the offices of Jacob H. Schiff and M. Guggenheim's sons in this city.

In the garret of his mother's house he had a workshop and there, according to admissions he is said to have made to the officers, he constructed the three in-fernal machines which he had mailed to Mr. Riker.

COST OF LIVING IN GERMANY.

The Last Ten Years Have Seen a Great Increase in the Price of Foodstuffs. Germany is no longer the paradise of American and English families with incomes just large enough to starve on genteelly at home. Ten years have brought great changes in the standards of life in Germany, not only in Berlin but in the smaller cities. Roughly speaking, the cost of living has increased by a third to a half. that a new building will be constructed

In the matter of rent and servants' wages Berlin is still better than New York. Comparatively few families in Berlin boast the luxury of an entire Berlin boast the luxury of an entire house, even fewer, perhaps, than in New York. The rest live in wohnungen, or flats, like their American compeers. The yearly rent for an apartment of four rooms in a desirable locality in Berlin varies from $375 to $400. Ten years ago the prices in Berlin were a fourth less.

There are complaints in Germany of the degeneration of domestic servants, but at least a fair knowledge of cookery is a general possession, and in the second mate of the cost of a three or four-story The talk of the new building became current some weeks ago, but when W. F. Cole, who is agent for the property, was seen, he said there was nothing to give out. Today he did not deny that the architect is visiting Fond du Lac, or that a building will be put up. He said all depends on the lease and a deal is now on with well-known markants. is a general possession, and in the second place, strict oversight on the part of the place, strict oversight on the part of the police prevents absolute disregard of the sacredness of contracts. The minimum monthly pay for domestic service is $5. Even this is an increase of at least $2 within the last decennium.

Turning to the cost of foodstuffs, the outlook is less encouraging. Almost without exception, articles of daily consumption have increased in price from a third to a half in ten years. As an example, mutton, which previously cost 12½ cents a pound, now costs 25 cents. Butter has risen from 20 to 33 cents a pound, and eggs from 15 to 22 cents a dozen. This increase has been partly the result of deliberate legislative effort to improve the condition of the peasantry to improve the condition of the peasantry by the imposition of protective duties on the products of the soil.

In general, Berlin holds the same rela-tion to other German cities as New York to American centers of population, but the cost of living in Hamburg and but the cost of living in Hamburg and Frankfort is more nearly on a par with that of Berlin than the cost of living in Philadelphia or St. Louis with that of New York. An exception in this connec-tion must be made in favor of the cities of south Germany.—New York Sun.

This case again points out how much the general health depends on the kidneys. Cure the kidneys with Dodd's Kidney Pills and nine-tenths of the suffering the human family is heir to will disappear.

WOOD FOR RAILROAD TIES. Supply in Minnesota and Wisconsin Not

The investigation into the supply of woods for railroad ties in Minnesota and Wisconsin, which the forest service is Wisconsin, which the forest service is making in co-operation with the Northern Pacific railroad, is bringing out the fact that the supplies in those states are by no means unlimited. Oak is, of course, largely used. Tamarack, which on account of its strength and weight, has become the standard for railroads using their own supply, has suddenly sprung into demand for sawn lumber, for which use its market price has shot up far above the price paid by railroads for ties. White cedar, valued because, though durable, it is so light as to save freight charges, may hold out for some time longer in the more accessible regions if it is not diverted, like the tamarack, to other uses.

VACATION WITH TOP BUGGY. Driving Through the Country from Day

to Day.

There are various ways of spending the summer vacation season—at the fashionable summer resort hotel, at the ountry farmhouse, in a tent, going to he mountains, the seashore, on a house loat, etc. Another which has not yet boat, etc. Another which has not yet perhaps become common, is with a horse and bugy, driving each day through the country. The equipment should consist of a roomy vehicle—a covered phaeton would perhaps be nearer the idea than any other for one or two persons. There should be room under the seat for a good-sized box in which can be carried all that will be needed, which will be but little, as nights will be spent at hospitable farm houses, or inns found in all settled portions of the country. A hammock that may be hung in a shady place by the road side for hours of rest when inclined would be found advantageous. The horse should be one which can rough it, nibble a lunch at the roadside if required; strong enough to stand the driving, and will not suffer for want of regular grooming and care.

The route need not be laid out with

and care.

The route need not be laid out with precision, and the plan should not be to cover so many miles a day, but rather at a "go-as-you-please" gait and may well be off the traveled highways and automobile roads. Go into the byways and hedges, when possible, choosing a route which you know nothing of, among the mountains, on the river sides, and in the woods, and take your time. When you come to a point of interest, enjoy it. Nothing should hasten you from it. These will come daily and sometimes hourly, and remember, this is what you are out for. Some may have a fear that all this will become monotonous, but it cannot be for a lover of nature. You must, of course, love the fields, the trees, the birds, etc. And every hour brings to you a change-something different. You can of course walk when you are tired riding or waiting, and as much as you want to.

If the days are warm, plan to travel in the cool hours. You may never have experienced the joys of being astir before break of day, and hearing the first twitter of the birds, the crowing of the cock, the lowing of the cattle, etc., seeing the stars fade away, and the light come. Try it, and also get moonlight evening drives. There is one essential on this more than upon any other. You and your companion must be agreed, must think and feel alike on these matters, must be patient, be willing to wait for each other for "a year and a day," if need be, and be ready to do the thing which will seem best. This is to be a rest cure, and you must rest as much as possible. Fool your time away, Never feel that the day or hour has been lost because so little has been done. After the first few days you will be ready for any effort needed to secure the greatest amount of enjoyment. Your nerves will be forgotten except when keyed up to the tense of enjoyment.

In the matter of expense, this may be made much or little. Those who go without ostentation and show will find their boarding and meals will be light, but naturally, if you demand much, you must expect to pay for it. To those who can follow this out in the right spirit this plan offers a very attractive method of spending a vacation, and gaining the rest and recuperation that vacations should bring.—Health Culture.

Philip's indignation at the restaurant keeper's sarcasm yielded to his wish to see him annihilated later in the day. Moreover, the sausages really smelt ex cellently, and he was now ravenous. He entered the shop, and gave his orders with a quiet dignity that astounded the proprietor and hugely delighted the green-grocer, who, in the intervals of business, kept peeping at him through the window Philip ate steadily, and the bill amounted to ninepence, which his ally paid cheer-

The boy held out his hand. "Thank you, Mr. Judd," he said, frank-"I will return without fail. I will not insult you by offering more than the amount you have advanced for me, but some day I may be able to render you good service in repayment."

Then he walked off toward the viaduc steps, and Mr. Judd looked after him. "Talks like a little gentleman, 'e does. If my little Jimmie 'ad lived 'e would ha' bin just about .. is age. Lord lumme, I 'ope the lad turns up again, an' not for the sake of the bloomin' ninepence neither. Tomatoes, mum? Yes'm. Fresh in this mornin'."

After crossing Holborn viaduct, Philip stood for a little while gazing into the showroom of a motor agency. It was not that he was interested in Panhard or De Dion cars—then but little known to the general public in England—but rather that he wished to rehearse carefully the programme to be followed with Mr. Isaacstein. With a sagacity un-looked for in one of his years, he decided that the meteor should not be mentioned at all. Of course, the diamond merchant would instantly recognize the stone as a meteoric diamond, and would demand its earthly pedigree. Philip resolved to ad-here to the simple statement that it was his own property, and that any reasonable inquiry might be made in all quarters where meteoric diamonds were obtainable as to whether or not such a stone was missing. Meanwhile he would obtain from Mr. Isaacstein a receipt acknowledging its custody and a small advance of money, far below its real worth, leaving the completion of the transaction until a later date. The question of giv-ing or withholding his address if it were asked for was a difficult one to settle asked for was a difficult one to settle offhand. Perhaps the course of events would permit him to keep Johnson's Mews altogether out of the record, and a more reputable habitation would be provided once he had the requisite funds.

Thinking he had recognitive techled Thinking he had successfully tackled all the problems that would demand solution, Philip wasted no more time. He entered Hatton Garden, and had not gone past many of its dingy houses until he saw a large, brass plate, bearing the legend: "Isaacstein & Co., Diamond Merwith me with me chants, Kimberley, Amsterdam and Lon-He entered the office and was instantly confronted by a big-nosed youth, who

"He sent me to you on a matter of business. It is of a private nature. Can you like a lone?"

Isaacstein was a big-headed, big-shouldered man, tapering to a small point at his feet. He looked absurdly like a top, and surprise or emotion of any sort caused him to sway gently. He swayed now, and every clerk looked up, expecting him to fall bodily onto the urchin with the refined utterance who had dared to penetrate into the potentate's office with such a request.

Kimberley, Amsterdam and London combined to lend effect to Isaacstein's "Is this a joke?"

The De Beers company alone could use such a figure of speech, and even then only at isolated dates in its history.

The boy, with his eyes steadfastly fixed on the Jew's face and yet with a distant expression in them that paid slight heed to the waves of emotion exhibited by the heavy cheeks and pursed up mouth, awaited some final utterance on the part of his questioner. Surely he had said sufficient to make this man keenly alive to the commercial value of the "business" he offered. Under the conditions, Isaacstein vas in a good hus mediate wants.

Gen. Shelby's Sword Found.

A broken cavalry saber that was probably carried by one of Gen. Joe Shelby's gallant troopers who fell in the battle of Westport, Mo., was found in a field on John Videman's farm south of Westport. The weapon was picked up by Harold Barthelson, the 7-year-old son of Karl Barthelson. Harold found it in some high grass in a field that was plowed last spring, and it was probably turned out of its long resting place at that time. Its blade was thick with rust that had caten deep into the steel and the hilt was caked with earth. The saber showed evidence of hard usage. Several inches of the blade had been

"I merely wish to put my hand in my pocket. Are you afraid of me, that you hold me so fast?" The policeman, like the rest, did not fail to notice Philip's diction. The scornful superiority of his words, the chal-lenge of the final question, took him aback. He relaxed his grip and grinned confusedly.

Philip instantly produced his paper of diamonds and opened it widely, so that all the stones could be seen. He handed he parcel to the policeman. "Take good care of them, constable," ne said. "Judging from results, they would not be safe in that man's hands."

Y., the visitor-sees a curious oval stone resting upon a grass plot. A century ago Oneida county was the reservation of the powerful tribe of Oneida Indians, the second nation in the confederation of the Iroquois.

The first settlement of the Oneidas, so their history runs, was near the lake which bears their name, a century before Columbus steered his ships into western seas. It was there that they found the stone and adopted it as their sacrificial altar. "Onia" is the dialect word for stone and from it comes "Oneida," the tribal name, "children of the stone."

As the tribe increased in numbers, veneration of the monolith grew until it became the indispensable shrine of the Oneidas. When the nation removed from the region of the lake to their encampment where now is the town of Stockbridge, the rock, according to their legend, went before them without the assistance of human hands, and deposited itself in the center of a butternut grove overlooking a wide and fertile valley.

Late Millinery Fashions.

How times have changed in the last ten years can best be noted by the stylish headwear now handled by up-to-date dealers in even towns of small size. This has been brought about partly by the ladies' magazines now extensively read, by the fashion notes of the news-papers, and by the aggressive business methods of the large jobbing and manufacturing firms of the country. Recognized as the foremost and known as the Progressive Millinery House of Milwaukee, is the firm of Blumenfeld.
