The hallways of the buildings were filled with flame and smoke and every occupant of the building was asleep when the flames were discovered by William Tease and James Nugent, fireman, who were off duty. They found a ladder in the back yard and, climbing up the fire escapes, awoke the tenants by breaking into their apartments. At the top floor the fire had spread rapidly.

The two rescuers were compelled to carry Mrs. Joseph Hanlein, one of the tenants of that floor, down the fire escapes. In doing so the ladder at the bottom broke and the woman fell on Tease, injuring him seriously.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Donnelly, who occupied the other part of the upper floor, were found lying unconscious on the floor of their rooms where they had tried to reach window were filled. The hallways of the buildings were

They were brought out, but the firemen did not know that their three children were asleep in their beds until their burned bodies were found later.

Other occupants of the building were swung from the windows across to those of an adjoining building, or were dropped into the arms of men below and when the fire department arrived the building was afire from top to bottom.

Fireman Christopher Leavy was knocked from a ladder by a stream of water and suffered concussion of the brain.

While hurrying to the fire, Chief Croker's automobile was upset and the chief thrown out and badly shaken up. He Larrowly escaped serious injury.

BREACH OF PROMISE.

Singer Given $500 in Her Suit Against Ardent Swain Who Married Another Girl.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 5.—A jury today gave Miss May Mendenwald a verdict for $500 against Theodore Keve Kordes, a recorder of Vandenburgh county, Indiana. Miss Mendenwald, a singer known on the stage as May Melbana, had asked for $20,000, alleging breach of promise to marry. The plaintiff first met Keve Kordes in 1903, she said, while she was playing in Indianapolis. When she left the city she said Keve Kordes, aided by an automobile, followed her through the state and then proposed. She accepted and August 16, 1903, was set as the day for the wedding. She went to Evansville, Ind., Keve Kordes' home, on that day, but when Keve Kordes was found Miss Mendenwald said he declared "it was all off." When a few days later she heard of his marriage to another woman the suit was begun.

Well informed people, while appreciating the wisdom of putting a stop to the war, are indignant at the half measure policy of the government as exhibited, for instance, in the partition of the island of Sakhalin.

The public is keenly intent, awaiting an explanation from the government, but the promise to convene a special session of the Diet immediately after the conclusion of peace, not having been ful-the promise to convene a special session of the Diet immediately after the conclusion of peace, not having been fulfilled, it is growing impatient.

M. Yanaza, director of political affairs of the Japanese foreign office, and H. W. Denison, the adviser of the Japanese foreign office, arrived at Yokohama today on board the steamer Dakota, from Seattle, September 20, bringing the peace treaty signed at Portsmouth September 5 and left immediately for Tokio. They arrived here this evening, but found few people to meet them at the railroad station owing to the strict examination made of all persons by the military and police who guarded the station.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 5.—A strong sentiment against Count Witte developed at a caucus of the St. Petersburg municipality yesterday evening called to discuss civic action in recognition of his services at Portsmouth. Suggestions that a banquet be given in his honor and that he be presented with the freedom of the city or an address were rejected and a resolution adopted declaring that he is not worthy of any special honor because his services at Portsmouth "were only a redeeming sacrifice for the political mistakes in which he has acquiesced and which were responsible for the war."

New Homes to Be Built Quick.

The work of rebuilding the cottages for the mill hands who were burned out will be begun at once, but the care of the homeless until new houses can be built will remain a serious problem.

The yard equipment of both the Brown Brothers' and the Robbins' yards was burned, including kilns, sheds and tramways. Representatives of both firms declined this morning to make estimates on their individual losses, but they said that the losses on the lumber and yard equipment would be in the neighborhood of $400,000. The loss to the city on the McCord school is $12,000.

QUEER PROBLEMS OF LAW. Cases with Which English Judges and Lawyers Have Struggled.

Hundreds of years of test cases have not yet elucidated all the possible points of difficulty in the English law.

Here is a remarkable problem with which the Blackburn lawyers have just been confronted: An English gentleman had twin sons who were born within a few minutes of each other. He made a will that his property in Australia should go to whichever of the two sons arrived at the age of 21 first.

The younger of the two emigrated to at the age of 21 first.

The younger of the two emigrated to Australia, while the other one remained in England, and the former was still in the Antipodes at the time of his coming of age. Now, Australian time is some hours in advance of Greenwich, and, therefore, the young man out there was 21 before his elder brother at home. Which of these two brothers is legally entitled to the property? The question has not yet been decided, and in the meantime readers may exercise their own acumen upon it.

Are eggs eggs, or are only hens' eggs eggs? This may seem a ridiculous question, but nice shades of meaning are involved, and a case which turned upon it went through two or three courts of law.

A lady sont an order for a dozen eggs to a diryman and he sent her ducks' eggs. She sent them back as not being what she, in turn, declined to keep them, and some time elapsing between their journeys from the house to the shop, the eggs went bad, and eventually the shop-keeper sued the lady for 1s. 6d., their value.

The county court judge ordered her to pay, declaring that ducks' eggs were as much eggs as any others; but the lady appealed, and King's bench reversed the decision on the ground that when a party ordered eggs hens' eggs were meant, and if any other contention were admitted any kind of eggs might be sent, such as pigeons', canaries' or even rattlesnakes'. Ducks' eggs, it was decided, were not eggs in the ordinary meaning of the term.

Are the grandchildren of a man also his children? In the legal sense this question is not so absurd as it looks, and some time ago it was most seriously and laboriously contended in the courts that according to act of Parliament they were The particular act in question, passed in the reign of the late Queen Victoria, laid it down that "the father and the grandfather, the mother and the grandmother, and the children of any poor person, being of sufficient ability, shall relieve and maintain any such poor person.

relieve and maintain any such poor per The argument was that, according to the context, grandchildren were to be reckoned as children for this purpose, just as grand parents were reckoned as parents. On the other side it was argued that if grandchildren were children then great-grandchildren were children also, and that a man might in this way be called upon to support his father and mother, his four grandparents, his eight great-grandparents and as many grandchildren and great-grandchildren as he might be lucky or unlucky enough to possess.

Is skimmed milk milk? A man asked for a glass of milk to drink and was given skimmed milk and the purveyor was fined for it; but in a higher court the decision was reversed, it being contended at the time that skimmed milk was really much more milk than milk that was not skimmed, since the latter contained something that was not milk at all—that is, cream.—Tit-Bits. At the Wellington hotel the Beau Brummels of Chicago will have the opportunity to inspect 'creations' of the fine Art (with a capital A) of tailoring, which have been gathered from all parts of the country for the convention of the Merchant Tailors' Protective association. Full dress waistcoats, with buttons made of dress waistcoats, with buttons made of precious stones, corseted overcoats and braided trousers are a few of the styles which will go to make up the "proper" man for next winter. It is more than probable that Master Fashion will send forth an edict from the convention that Man adopt the corset as part of his apparel. Since the dressmakers took it upon themselves recently to decide that man should wear corsets, discussion of the subject has been going on among the man should wear corsets, discussion of the subject has been going on among the molders of the male figure. Mrs. Howland Wiltse, mother of the late Hartford Wiltse of Momence, Ill., his two sisters, Mrs. Hattie Monroe of Chicago and Miss Nellie Wiltse, who lives at Kankakee, were censured by a coroner's jury which held an inquest over Wiltse's body. The verdict declared that the man came to his death from typhoid fever and that the evidence showed lack of proper attention. Wiltse was about 55 years old and a well-to-do bachelor. The members of his family named are Christian Scientists, but he did not believe in it. During an illness of three weeks his relatives are sald to have induced him to discharge the attending physician three times, the last time being Friday morning, when he is said to have been delirious and to have had a fever of 104. He died soon after and the body was embalmed before a citizen of Momence notified the coroner. The death and verdict have caused a sensation in the town.

Mothers Are Helped THEIR HEALTH RESTORED Happiness of Thousands of Homes Due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Com-pound and Mrs. Pinkham's Advice.

A devoted mother seems to listen to every call of duty excepting the su-preme one that tells her to guard her health, and before she realizes it some derangement of the female organs has manifested itself, and nervou irritability take the place of happiness and amiability.

Tired, nervous and irritable, the mother is unfit to care for her childeen, and her condition ruins the child's disposition and reacts upon herself.

The mother should not be blamed, as she no doubt is suffering with backache, headache, bearing-down pains or displacement, making life a burden.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the unfailing cure for this condition. It strengthens the female organs and permanently cures all displacements and irregularities. Such testimony as the following should convince women of its value:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:

"I want to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me. I suffered for eight years with ovarian troubles. I was nervous, tired and irritable, and it did not seem as though I could stand it any longer, as I had five children to care for. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended and it has entirely cured me. I cannot thank you enough for your letter of advice and for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me.—Mrs. Ph. Heffman, 100 Himrod Street, Brooklyn, N. Y."

Thus did Philip, bravely sustaining his heart in the solitude of a prison, escape the greatest danger that threatened the preservation of his secret, and all because a scheming woman was too clever to tell her solicitors the exact reason for her anxiety concerning the whereabouts of Mrs. Anson and her son.

The boy passed a dolorous Saturday night and Sunday. Nevertheless, the order, the cleanliness, the comparative comfort of a prison, were not wholly ungrateful to him. His meals, though crude, were wholesome, luxurious, even, compared with the privations he had endured during the previous fortnight. The enforced rest, too, did him good, and, being under remand, he had nothing to do but eat, take exercise, read a few May Leak much since then, progress since he first entered that office in open court. You are not aware, perhaps, that you figure largely in the earliest possible moment, and have spared you the publicity which your movements would attract were your case settled in open court. You are not aware, perhaps, that you figure largely in the eyes of the public at this moment. There are newspapers which would give a hundred pounds to get hold of you. There are thieves who would shadow your every movement, waiting for a chance to waylay and rob you—murder you, if necessary. I have taken precautions, therefore, to safeguard you, at least within the precincts of this court, but I cannot be responsible beyond its limits.

May I will make no use of this document unless the matter comes before me again officially. I wish to point out to you that I have brought you from prison at the earliest possible moment, and have suffered much since then, and suriering had strengthened him. With Monday came a remarkable change in his fare. A pint of first-rate cocoa and some excellent bread and butter for breakfast evoked no comment on his part, but a dinner of roast beef, pohis part, but a dinner of roast beef, potatoes, cabbage and rice pudding was so extremely unlike prison diet that he questioned the turnkey.

The door slammed, and at the next meal Philip received in silence a cup of tea and a nice tea cake. This went on this sally. this sally.

"You are a strange boy," he said. "I think you are a strange boy," he said. "I think you are acting wisely. But—er—think you have no money—that is, in a sense. When he rose on the Thursday morning and washed himself, no one would have recognized him as the same boy were it not for his clothes.

After dinner, he was tidying his cell and replacing the plates and the rest on a tin tray, when the door was suddenly in the sally.

"You are a strange boy," he said. "I think you are acting wisely. But—er—tyou have no money—that is, in a sense. Hatton Garden is some distance from here. Let me—er—lend you a cab fare."

"Thank you, sir," said Philip, and Mr. Abingdon, unable to account for the interest he felt in the boy, quite apart from his inexplicable story, gave him five shillings and shook hands with him.

Such cool impudence from a ragamuffin was intolerable, or nearly so. But Isaae-tim ruled his minions with a rod of iron, and they would fain wait the little man's pleasure ere they ventured their wrath on the boy. Besides, they were afraid of Philip. Like most people in terest he felt in the boy, quite apart from his inexplicable story, gave him five shillings and shook hands with him.

Philip glanced at the man, who seemed to be in a good humor.

It was worth even more than his libration of the care of the care of the other six children devolved upon the father, who has Spartan ideas as to the upbringing of his sons. Philip obtained no further news. He passed through an office, a voucher was signed for him, and he emerged into the prison yard, where the huge prison van awaited him. It is difficult to surprise your true thousands of prying eyes that passed daily through the great thoroughfare of the East End, but a few yards away? Judging from the remark dropped by the warder, all London was talking about him. A puzzling feature was the abundant supply of good food sent to him in the prison. Who was his unknown friend—and what explanation was attached to the incident?

Philip's emotions were no more capable of analysis than a display of rockets. Immured in this cage, rattling over the pavements, he seemed to be advancing through a tunnel into an unknown world. At last the van stopped, and he was led forth into the yard of the police court. He followed the same route as on the previous Saturday, but when he ascended into the court itself he discovered a change. The magistrate said:

"Philip Morland—that is the only name by which I know you-the authorities have come to the conclusion that your story is right. You have unquestionably found a deposit of diamonds, and although this necessarily exists on some person's property, there is no evidence to show whose property it is. It may be your own. It may be situated beyond the confines of this kingdom. There are your own. It may be situated beyond the confines of this kingdom. There are many hypotheses, each of which may be true; but, in any event, if others lay claim to this treasure trove—and I warn you that the crown has a right in such a matter—the issue is a civil and not a criminal one. Therefore, you are discharged, and your property is now handed back to you intact."

A clerk placed before Philip his parcel of diamonds, his key, the rusty knife, the pieces of string, and the two buttons—truly a motley collection. The boy was pale, and his voice somewhat tremulous as he asked:

The bey, Philip Morland, whose possession of a collection of meteoric diamonds, whose possession of a collection of meteoric diamonds of great value has created so much sensation, was brought up on remand to day at the Clerkenwell police court, and released. Mr. Abingdon thought fit to hear the case in camera is summer and give the children of the city a chance to play games and indulge in various athletic contests for prizes. Perhaps, while I stood talking with some one, this trembling of the limbs, and profuse sweating, and a severe chill would seize me. I became alarmed at my condition and having alarmed at my condition and, having read an endorsement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, I got a box and began to use them. They helped me at once. After I had used one box the twitching of the nerves, the trouble with the stomach and the cold sweats stopped and have not reappeared, and my appetite is good. I have told all my friends that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cured me and I recommend them to everybody."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cured Mr. Browne because nothing can strengthen the nerves except good rich, red blood-and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new blood. They don't act on the bowels. A DESPAIRING WO! The Power of Speech. "I was in court," said Jimmy Shechan.
"There was an Irishman, in the prisononers' dock charged with stealing a horse. The district attorney had presented his case. I tell you it looked bad for the prisoner.

"Then began the prisoner's lawyer. He talked and talked and called more witnesses and examined them as to the prisoner's honesty. Then the jury was instructed by the judge, and after a few minutes' debate they returned with a verdict of 'not guilty.'

"How's that to prove the power of speech?" inquired Jimmy. "But that is not all.
"After the jury had been thanked the judge called the prisoner to the side rail and asked him: 'Patrick, you're acquitted and you won't be arrested again on that and you won't be arrested again on that charge, but personally I would like to know if you really did steal the horse. When he was again assured that he would not be arrested Patrick said: 'Well, your honor, before I heard my lawyer's argument I thought I did steal that horse, but now I know that it must have been some one else.' Rare Gems of Australia.

Australia has a large and rich gemproducing area, and from this country come the most magnificent opals yet found; and here also are found rare specimens of the yellow and green sapphires, and also quantities of the little-known stones, spinelle, olivine and zircons. The beach sands of New South Wales contain myriads of minute crystal zircons of fine luster. Hyacinths and jargons are well known, being pale red, crimson, brown and a fine, clear green. Opals are found in abundance in New South Wales and Queensland.

Topazes occur in very large sizes in this same Australian region, their weight running as high as two and three Rare Gems of Australia.
