The paragraph which appeared in the Brooklyn Eagle relating to the marking of every rope from "heaving line to hawser," used in the British navy, with a red thread, is inaccurate, according to "An ex-British Man-o-Warsman," who wrote to that paper. That all manufactured goods issued by the different naval dockyards for use in the navy have a distinctive mark is true. All metals are marked with the broad arrow, termed by sallors a crow's foot; that is a distinctly government mark, as it appears on the clothing worn by prisoners in the penal institutions. All grades of canvas used in the navy have a colored thread woven

All cordage, from sailmaker's twine to the largest hawser (this also includes wire ropes and hawsers), is marked with the thread running through it; but here is where your correspondent is wrong; it is not always red; the color depends on the dockyard from which it was is sued. There are four of these—Devonport, at Plymouth; Portsmouth, Sheerness and Chatham. I have almost for research the company red for Portsmouth, yellow for Sheerness and white for Chatham. The same colors wire ropes and hawsers), is marked with white for Chatham. The same colors apply to marking for canvas, with the exception of Chatham, which the mano'-warsman thinks, is brown.

Nevertheless, the Jew made an effort to preserve his tottering dignity.

"Do you think," he said, 'that you are behaving properly in treating a man of my position in such a way in his own office."

In his own office—that was the sting of it.

The head of the firm of Isaacstein & Co. of London, Amsterdam and Kimberley to be bearded in such fashion in his cwn particular shrine! Why, the thing was monstrous!

Philip looked him squarely in the eyes.

Philip looked him squarely in the eyes.

Philip looked him squarely in the eyes, "Mr. Isaacstein," he said, calmly, "have you forgotten that you caused me to be arrested as a thief and dragged, hand-cuffed, through the open streets by a policeman? I have spent five days in jail because of you. At the moment when I was praising your honesty you were conveying secret signals to your clerks in the belief that I was something worse than a pickpocket. The chair was creaking now continuously; the Jew swung from side to side during this lecture. He strove hard to restrain himself, but the feverish excitement of Saturday returned with greater intensity than ever. He jumped up, and Philip imagined for a second that robbery with violence was imminent.

"Confound it all, boy!" yelled the merchant, "what was I to do when a ragged loafer like you came in and the second in the second second second in the second se Isaacstein recovered his seat. He wiped his face vigorously, but the trading instinct conquered his fury.

"Yes," he snapped. "How much do you want for them?"

"I notice that their value steadily increases. The first time you saw this diamond"—and he held up the stone originally exhibited to the Jew—"you said it was worth six or seven hundred pounds. Today you name a thousand. However, I will take your own valuation for this was worth six or seven hundred pounds. "My God!" he gurgled, "do you know will you have it, in notes or gold?"

Not unprepared for such a retort. Philip gathered the stones together, and twisted the ends of the paper. Evidently the parcel was going back into his pocket. He glanced at a clock, too, which ticked solemnly over the office door.

"Here, what are you doing?" cried Isaacstein.

"Going to some one who will deal with me in a reasonable manner. It is not very late yet. I suppose there are plenty of firms like yours in Hatton Garden, or I can go back to Mr. Wilson—"

INSURANCE.

A Bulwark Against Want. THE EVENING WISCONSIN, MILWAU

The concensus of opinion in regard to the insurance investigation now in progress in New York is that it will eventu ate in good for insurers and insured. Even the most pessimistic opponents of the principle of life insurance must admit that better conditions will follow the purification, not only for the companies which have been sorely stricken as a result of the moral lapses of their officials, but for the companies which are suffering vicariously under the shadow of dis-trust that has been cast upon corporate management generally.

Society cannot afford to "throw down" Society cannot allord to "throw down life insurance because of the remissness of high officials in one or two companies. The principle of protection for the dependent through provision for payment to them of sufficient to keep the wolf of want from the door is so closely interwoven with the social fabric that if it were possible to eliminate it by force, the social order would suffer a severe the social order would suffer a severe strain. Public duty and private philan-thropy would together be unable to meet the appeals for assistance from women and children bereft of their breadwinand children bereft of their breadwinners. A large proportion of the 18,000,000 policyholders in the United States have by their wise provision for the future insured organized society as well as their loved ones against the trials incident to sudden dependency. Cases without number could be cited in every large city of the United States where the death payments of life insurance companies have saved wives and children from actual want, and made it dren from actual want, and made it possible for widows to rear their children in a way to make them useful members of society. It would be interesting to know how much of the total of insurance risks in the United States constitutes a bulwark against poverty. A stitutes a bulwark against poverty. Large part of the $11.179,142,711 of out on analysis, be found to be putthis vital character.

Bringing the subject close to home, the people of the northwest have in the history of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company of Milwaukee—a company of which every resident of the northwest has special reason to feel northwest has special reason to feel northwest has special reason to feel proud—a record which shows how much a well-conducted life insurance company a well-conducted life insurance company contributes to the support of the existing social order. The first record of losses paid is that for the year ending June 1. 1860, $3500-a goodly sum for a young company in those times of pioneering in life insurance, but a mere pittance in princely amount. comparison with the princely amount now paid out annually for death losses. Since its organization the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company has paid death claims to the aggregate of $78,685,552.96. This enormous sum of money has contributed in no small degree to the welfare of society as a whole. The prompt payment of the death claims has in thousands of instances made it possible for helpless widows to "get along" without appealing to public charity or private philanthropy.

The Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company's management has been specified in Mysterious Way.

Parisian Fashions.

Most fashions for ladies originate in Paris, but through the aggressive business methods of the large Jobbing Houses are introduced to the people of the United States almost as soon as in Europe. This is especially the case in Ladies' Headwear. The foremost Millinery Jobbing House of the Northwest is the firm of Blumenfeld, Locher & Brown Co., known to the trade as the Progressive Millinery House of Milwaukee. The Trimmed Hats produced by this firm have that stylish, natty appearance so much admired, are strictly milliner made and popular priced. You can recognize them by the B. L. B. Co. My temper was irritable and I got no pleasure out of life.

e country, their chief claim to interest ing that once some well known man Alexander Hamilton's traveling desk, made of mahogany and measuring 12 by 16 inches and 10 inches high, is an interesting object. Upon this desk was writ-ten much of his literary work, and the worn green baize with which it is lined attests to the use to which it was put. There is a drawer in one side, and several compartments for pens and ink, while upon the top is inlaid a silver plate with the name "Gen. Alexander Hamilton" engraved upon it. Within the top is a strip of parchment which says: "Given by Mrs. Gen. Schuyler to her daughter, Mrs. Gen. A. Hamilton."

No doubt the convenient size was what commended it to the general. Nathaniel Hawthorne's desk is pre-served at the custom house, Salem, Mass. A desk at which he wrote some of his inimitable romances was just a board standing out from the wall at an angle. This is still in the tower room at Wayside, his home at Concord, Mass. Victor Hugo had in his Guernsey house a study built almost entirely of glass and perched upon the roof. Like Hawthorne, he, too, stood at his writing, and his desk was a mere shelf fastened by hinges to the wall.—Delineator.

The next day, October 1, 1885, a kinsman of the girl challenged Von Bovens to a so-called "American duel," drawing lots to determine which antagonist should kill himself. Von Bovens drew black, and under the agreement was to kill himself in twelve years. He returned to Germany, married, and the twelfth anniversary of his agreement passed unregarded and each succeeding. the twelfth anniversary of his agreement passed unregarded and each succeeding one until a short time ago, when an American named Fish arrived in Berlin with a letter from Von Bovens' antagonist reminding him of the duty, which he had not fulfilled. Von Bovens had taken cyanide potassium. He was enrolled on the police records of the district as a naturalized American.

Chicago, Sept.—The Peruna Drug Manufacturing Company, manufacurers of a widely known proprietary medicine, has brought suit in the Superior Court of the city of Chicago against the Curtis Publishing Company of Philadelphia, alleging that it has been damaged to the extent of $250,000 by a recent article in the Ladies' Home Journal.

The suit is based on a statement re cently made in that journal that a testimonial as to the merit of the remedy manufactured by the plaintiff, alleged to have been given by Congressman George H. White of South Carolina was fraudulent, denial from Mr. White that he ever gave such a testimonial also being printed. The Peruna Company declares that Georgia Has Added to Her List-Texas Still a Record Breaker.

The postofile at Wilton, a village a few miles from here, was robbed last night. The safe was blown open and the robbers secured $400 in stamps and cash. There was only a small amount of money.

Dr. Riordan was awakened by the explosion and saw two men running by his house. He fired several times with a shotgun at the fellows, but none of them took effect.

The Georgia Legislature, which recently adjourned after a long session, made a further addition to the number of counties in the Cracker state, bringing up the whole number from 137 to 145.

New York with its great population is able to get along with 61 counties, while California, more than double the size of Georgia, gets along with 57.

What political necessity there can be for 145 independent counties in Georgia, each with a separate government, or-each with a separate government, or ganization and expense, is a problem but perhaps the reason is the same which has added to the number of counties in has added to the number of counties in Texas until there are now 246. In one of them at the presidential election of last year only 22 votes were cast, in another 120, in another 180 and in a fourth 60. The propensity to create counties in the south and southwest has always been marked. There are 76 counties in Mississippi, 119 in Kentucky, 75 in Arkansas, 45 in Florida and 96 in Tennessee.—New York Sun.

The yellow dog seems to be the most important factor in the group, and but for his alertness the trio might have been captured long ago. The deer seem to depend on the dog for protection. Ever on the alert for the approach of a would-be captor, the dog's keen scent detects danger at a great distance, when a single bark attracts the attention of the deer, and if this is followed by a long, low growl there is a hasty retreat to the woods.
