HONOR JUDGE'S MEMORY. NEW NORMAL HALTED HOUSER HELD FOR TRIAL

ROOMS OF SUPREME COURT AT MADISON.

PRAISE FOR JUDGE DYER,

Memory of Judge Willard E. Carter Is Mentioned by Addresses Given by Lawyers and Justices.

-The supreme court yesterday held memorial exercises for Judge James E.

C. F. Winkler presented the memorial for the court. Former Attorney General C. E. Estabrook presented the memorial of the Milwaukee Bar association, with personal remarks, on the death of Judge Carter, and Chief Justice J. B. Cassoday responded for the court. The memorials and remarks were ordered spread upon the records of the court.

Memorial to Dver.

The memorial to Judge Dyer was in part as follows:

The Hon. Charles E. Dyer has borne a distinguished part in the life of this state. Born in Onondaga county, New York, on the 5th day of October, 1834, his early boyhood days were spent in Racine county in this state. Here he received the rudiments of education, partly in the crude schools of that early days, more largely under the wise guidance of his father, an accomplished physician. At the age of 15 he left home to learn the printer's trade in Chicago. For nearly two years he served as printer's devil, compositor, paper carrier and newswriter. He returned home control of the control of the control of the country of the control of the con nearly two years he served as printer's devil, compositor, paper carrier and newswriter. He returned home and in the fall of 1851 removed to Sandusky, O., entering the office of a family friend, who was clerk of the court of common pleas. In this city he studied his profession and was admitted to the bar in 1857. He had long since formed a habit of persistent self-culture, of extensive reading as well as close study, so that without the advantage of systematic or collegiate instruction his mind became enriched with useful knowledge and he acquired a strong taste for the choicest literature. This held him through life. He was always a great reader, discriminating in his selections and greatly enjoying what he read.

in his selections and greatly enjoying what he read.

The late Matthew H. Carpenter, then United States senator, who always appreciated a good lawyer, was an admirer and affectionate friend of "Charley Dyer," and when a vacancy occurred in the United States district judgeship for the eastern district of Wisconsin, strongly desired to recommend him for the place. The position was as ill paid as it was important and honorable. Judge Dyer rielded to the importantity of his friend and was commissioned judge of that court February 10, 1875.

He devoted himself with all his industry, fidelity and rare ability to his judicial duties. That court has not had a more important era in its history than the thirteen years during which Judge Dyer was its chief. The bankrupt law of 1867 was in force. The whisky fraud prosecutions broke out. Litigation was heavy in every branch of jurisdiction. There was no appellant tribunal except the supreme court of the United States.

Patient and Courteous. Judge Dyer brought to his new duties thorough and accurate learning in the law, a clear discriminating judgment, and a marked judicial temperament. He was patient and courteous, but never allowed the business of the court to drag. When he took a case under advisement he did it for the purpose of study and gave it that study promptly. He pursued his duties with intense solicitude for right and justice. To him no pains were too great, no investiga-tense solicitude for right and justice. To him no pains were too great, no investiga-tion was too tedious, to arrive at the cor-rect solution of every case whether large or small. With inexhaustible patience he would examine and re-examine so long as there remained any room for doubt. His court won for him golden opinions from bench and bar. In May, 1888, Judge Dyer was tendered the position of counsel of the Northwestern Muthal Life Insurance company and he resigned from the bench to accept that position.

Judge Dyer is entitled to high rank in the legal profession. He was rooted in the principles and kept fully abreast with the decisions which make up our jurisprudence. He was an able advocate, a safe adviser, a sound and upright judge. He loved his profession and always took the deepest interest in all that concerned its well being, its ethics, and the good conduct of its members. He was remarkably happy in addresses which any occasion might call for. Many and many a time when lawyers have gathered together have they been delighted and thrilled by the pathos, the wit, and the exalted sentiment of his speech.

He was a man of warm heart, strong in his friendships, and few men have been held in as deep, affectionate regard by their professional brethren as Charles E. Dyer.

Honor Carter's Memory.

The committee appointed to prepare a memorial and resolutions upon the death of William E. Carter for the Milwaukee County Bar association, said in part It is difficult within the limits of this memorial to present an adequate view of Mr. Carter's professional career. We find him before the supreme court as early as the case of Jones vs. Grant county, decided at the June term, 1861, and reported in 14 Wis. 562; from that time until the present term of the court the reports attest his industry, his skill and ability as a lawyer. The memorial was prepared by C. E. Estabrook, George D. Van Dyke and

TAFT AGAINST BRYAN.

Washington Gossip Has It That President Said Secretary of War "Could Beat Nebraskan."

CHICAGO, Ill, June 21.-The Record-Herald's Washington correspondent says:
According to reports printed at Washington President Roosevelt is of the opinion that the regular Democratic nominee for the presidency will be William J. Bryan. He believes Mr. Bryan will be a strong candidate. The President is reported to have said, "Taft could beat him."

Whether this is to be taken as a president all prophecy is not clear. The President id not say that "Taft would beat him." Nor did he say that any other candidate "could beat him." His remark, however, is understood to mean that he is no longer so insistent that the secretary of war shall go on the supreme court bench.

All -the other presidential candidates—Fairbanks, Shaw, La Follette, Cannon, Root and Foraker—seem to be of the opinion that the President is strongly inclined toward casting his influence for Taft. Herald's Washington correspondent says:

KIDNAPER GETS TWENTY YEARS. Muth Boy's Captor at Philadelphia Is

Quickly Rushed Through Law Process. PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 19 .-John Joseph Kean, the abductor of Freddie Muth, the 7-year-old son of Charles Muth, the Columbia avenue jeweler, who with his captive was discovered yesterday after a six-days' search in a vacant house in West Philadelphia, was today sentenced to twenty years in prison. Quick work was made of the case.

Mothers' Verdict His Dues. "Had I the disposition of the case I would summon a large number of mothers here and turn you over to their mercies, but as the law fixes the penalty for crimes like yours, I can do nothing but commit you without bail for the action of the grand jury on the charge of bidnaping." These words were addressed but commit you without bail for the action of the grand jury on the charge of kidnaping." These words were addressed by Magistrate Eisenbrown to Kean at the preliminary hearing. Immediately after the hearing, Captain of Detectives Donaghy went before the grand jury with his witnesses and asked for an indictment. District Attorney Bell says he will do everything in his power to facilitate the trial of Kean.

Muttered threats could be heard when the prisoner was placed in the dock, from the many women spectators. Freddie Muth was brought to the courtroom by his father. He was a different boy from the child who was found dirty and hungry in the unoccupied house after a week's enforced absence from home. In strong contrast was the appearance of the abductor. After a sleepless night in the cell the latter was haggard and wan. His eyes shifted nervously and his whole frame trembled visibly. He still seemed to fear bodily injury. The police say he paced the cell all night sobbing and moaning, his wife and children being uppermost in his mind.

When he was placed in the dock Kean nodded to Freddie Muth, who sat beside his father and the boy smiled. Pointing to Kean the little fellow said: "There he is, papa, see?"

Kean appeared to exert a strange influence over the child, who showed a feeling akin to friendship for the man. The hearing was brief. Special Policemen Clare and Vale told of the arrest. James Lenahan, the messenger boy who delivered the note at the schoolhouse by which Freddie was inveigled from his classroom, related the circumstances of his meeting with Kean. Joseph Sager, the baker, testified to seeing the man and boy in Elmer Rhoades' cafe, and the latter verified Sager's testimony.

CHAPTER IV.

Sir Richard Bradford was a member of Parliament, and, in his own estimation, a ineligible. He has youth, and wealth, and rank; everything that is needed to most important personage. No one, however, took him quite seriously, and he was generally regarded, by members on both sides of the house, as a somewhat mpous old windbag. The only persons who did not share this opinion were Sir Richard himself, his wife, and his only daughter, Winifred. His home in Lowndes square, where he reigned despotically and ruled with a rod of iron, was famous as a meeting place for diplomats, ambas-sadors and cabinet ministers, while royalty even occasionally condescended to grace his table. A bon vivant himself, the dinners which he gave were invariably as dull and as formal as state banquets, but people went because there was always sure to be someone there worth meeting. How so stupid a person as Sir Richard succeeded in getting about him such a brilliant company was a mystery to everyone, but the mere fact that he did succeed was sufficient to make society covet the honor of his acquaintance. In the bosom of his family, Sir Richard, unconscious of the contempt which he excited among his equals and associates, was self-willed and selfish. His wife and daughter feared him, the very servants hated him. With his superiors he was servile and crawling; only his inferiors and dependents were made to feel the weight of his petty tyranny. Withal he was more of a rogue than a great relief that followed has been per- fool, but not enough of either to merit

In Two Summers Cleared a Hillside of

GOATS DID THE MOWING.

Brush and Briars. A flock of Angora goats were put on a rocky hillside that it was desired to have cleared and gotten into grass, says a writer in Country Life in America. It was such a tangle of brush and briers that it was difficult to make a way

The goats actually ate their way The goats actually ate their way in until it was penetrated with paths in all directions. After the leaves within reach were eaten they would stand on their hind feet with their forefeet in the branches and so eat the leaves higher up, or, if the brush was not too large, would throw their weight against and bend it to the ground, where others would help strip it of its foliage.

The leaves would come out again only to be eaten off, then sprouts would come from the roots to share the same fate, from the roots to share the same fate, until at the end of the second summer everything in the shape of a bush not over six feet tall, except the pines and laurel, was completely killed, and white clover was beginning to appear.

LOST NEARLY FIFTY YEARS.

Ancient Masonic Charm Found at Orchard Lake, Mich. Last fall a Masonic charm was found buried on the east shore of Orchard lake, Michigan. It bore the date 1790 and a rude affair, being a small piece of stone with amateur carving. The charm finally came into the pos-session of Dr. E. Orton of Pontiac, who learned that the charm is the property of A. H. Washburn, to whose father it was presented by Col. Hezekiah Butter-

Col. Butterworth was wounded at the battle of Lewiston, and on his death bed gave the charm to the elder Washburn. It was carved by an American soldier on the date given, 1790. Dr. Orton will ask Washington for Col. Butterworth's record and if possible establish the identity of the charm. Th charm has been lost for forty-eight years, Washburn losing it shortly after it was given him by his father.

TONIC TREATMENT

Weak Stomach and Sick Headache Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

The symptoms of stomach trouble vary. Some victims have a ravenous appetite, others loathe the sight of food. Often there is a feeling as of weight on the chest, a full feeling in the throat. Sometimes the gas presses on the heart and leads the sufferer to think he has heart disease. Sick headache is a frequent and distressing symptom. A weak stomach needs a digestive tonic and that there is no better tonic for this purpose than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is shown by the statement of Mr. A. C. Merrill, a mining man, of Oneals, Calif., a veteran of Battalion C, Third U. S. Regular Infantry.

"I had never been well since I left the army," he says, "always having had trouble with my stomach, which was weak. I was run down and debilitated. Could keep nothing on my stomach and at times had sick headache so bad that I did not care whether I lived or died. My stomach refused to retain even liquid food and I almost despaired of getting well as I had tried so many kinds of medicine without relief. Then I was bitten by a rattlesnake and that laid me up from work entirely for a year, six months of which I spent in bed.

"One day a friend recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to me and I began taking them. They cured me when all other medicine had failed. I have recommended the pills to a great many, for during my recovery every one asked me what was helping me so and I told The British shikarri need not leave his battery idle, even if big game in Africa not speak too highly of them." Rose company on its rose farm at the foot of White avenue. Here may be seen literally acres of roses, the slips being planted a few weeks ago, covering the entire 12-acre tract, in rows about 3 feet apart.

The plants are about 6 inches in height, and here and there over the tract many of them are in bloom. It will be a beautiful sight when the rose bushes are grown to 2 or 3 feet in height, all in blossom.

The work of irrigating and tending the plants at this time of year requires about twenty-five men. From December until April, during the shipping season.

WHAT JOY THEY BRING TO EVERY HOME

as with joyous hearts and smiling faces they romp and play—when in health—and how conducive to health the games in which they indulge, the outdoor life they enjoy, the cleanly, regular habits they should be taught to form and the wholesome diet of which they should partake. How tenderly their health should be preserved, not by constant medication, but by careful avoidance of every medicine of an injurious or objectionable nature, and if at any time a remedial agent is required, to assist nature, only those of known excellence should be used; remedies which are pure and wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, like the pleasant laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. Syrup of Figs has come into general favor in many millions of well informed families, whose estimate of its quality and excellence is based upon personal knowledge and use.

Syrup of Figs has also met with the approval of physicians generally, because they know it is wholesome, simple and gentle in its action. We inform all reputable physicians as to the medicinal principles of Syrup of Figs, obtained, by an original method, from certain plants known to them to act most beneficially and presented in an agreeable syrup in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to promote the pleasant taste; therefore it is not a secret remedy and hence we are free to refer to all well informed physicians, who do not approve of patent medicines and never favor indiscriminate self-medication.

Please to remember and teach your children also that the genuine Syrup of Figs always has the full name of the Company-California Fig Syrup Co.-plainly printed on the front of every package and that it is for sale in bottles of one size only. If any dealer offers any other than the regular Fifty cent size, or having printed thereon the name of any other company, do not accept it. If you fail to get the genuine you will not get its beneficial effects. Every family should always have a bottle on hand, as it is equally beneficial for the parents and the children, whenever a laxative remedy is required.
