KINGSTON SLOWLY SLIPS INTO SEA

SHORES OF CITY DISAPPEARING AND A NEW TERROR RAGES AFTER FIRE AND QUAKE. DEATH LIST GROWING. Property Loss Is Now Estimated at as High as $25,000,000—Fear for "Bob" Evans' War Vessels.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—(5 p. m.)—A conservative estimate of the casualties made by the police of Kingston, places the number of bodies at 1200, judging from the number of bodies already discovered in the few buildings which have been examined.

An unofficial estimate places the loss at $25,000,000. The worst news of the day was that the stricken city is slowly but surely sinking into the sea.

A number of fissures in the earth have appeared. Sir Alfred Jones cables that every house has been destroyed in Kingston; that city is a smouldering pile of ashes.

CITY SEEMED TO SHRIVEL. A newspaper man cables that when the quake started the city seemed to shrivel. Business streets were filled with tourists and many were buried in the ruins.

Fire broke out and continued until Tuesday morning. Not a single house was left standing. Ships in the harbor are not safe, as the water line is sinking.

Government buildings are in a heap. Thousands of people fled and are camping in the open.

The Roman Catholic cathedral, the Paris church, and the Scotch, Wesleyan and Baptist chapels had disappeared and the tower was destroyed.

The statue of the late Queen Victoria, in the center of the city was reversed by the earthquake, but it is otherwise intact.

KING EDWARD GIVES $5000. King Edward headed the mansion fund for the relief of the sufferers.

On instructions from Washington the American legation in Kingston has telegraphed to King Edward and to the foreign office.

It is stated in insurance circles that American companies will probably do nothing as the result of the disaster.

German Fire Insurance Men Fight Frisco Losses. HAMBURG, Jan. 17.—The North German Fire Insurance company has decided to appeal against the decision of the court.

FOND DU LAC, Wis., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Is a local fire insurance company justifying the violation of the city ordinance on the way to the cemetery?

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—The shores of the harbor of Kingston are sinking and the city is being slowly but surely submerged.

The bed of the harbor is said to be sinking. The water level is rising and the city is being slowly but surely submerged.

Kingston was founded after a terrible earthquake which destroyed the city.

"Bob" Evans Is Warned. The secretary of the Kingston Harbor and Navigation company has advised him that the city is sinking.

Exorbitant Premiums.

"What would you think of a 99 cent premium?" said an insurance agent. "A premium of $99,000 on a $100,000 policy. Hardly worth taking out, eh?" Such a policy was once taken out, though, on a ship thought to be lost. It is a common thing on overdue ships to take out policies at 80 or 90 per cent. On the Bulgaria and the Croft in 1899 policies at 90 per cent were taken out, and on the Adelaide Mary, on the 11th of her life, a policy of $250,000 was taken out, and on the Adelaide Mary, on the 11th of her life, a policy of $250,000 was taken out, and on the Adelaide Mary, on the 11th of her life, a policy of $250,000 was taken out.

One Evil Chase the Other.

Visitor to the West Indies (who has been warned against leaving in the river because of alligators, but has been told by the boatmen that there are none at the river's mouth)—By Jove, this is ripping! But, I say, how do you know there are no alligators here? Boatman—Well, you see, sah, de alligator am so turble feared ob de shark—Punch.

English Men and Women.

Englishmen are inherently shy, and half the bad manners with which we are credited as a nation is the result of this shyness. Englishmen suffer from it to the same extent, only in the case shyness is merely self-consciousness and part and parcel of an immense conceit.—London Ladies' Field.

Saw Her Chance.

Wife—Mrs. Plump threw a flatiron at her husband last night because he accidentally sat down on her new bonnet. Now, I couldn't do a thing like that. Husband—You couldn't? Wife—Of course not. I haven't any new bonnet.

Took Her Part.

Mamma—You must always remember to be your little sister's part. Tommy, small Tommy—I do. I took her part of the cake not five minutes ago.—Chicago News.

Original.

"My wife is a most original woman," said Brown. "Why, when I proposed to her instead of saying, 'This is so sudden,' she said, 'Well, I think it's about time.'"

A London Banquet of 1852.

A Spanish visitor to London in 1852 describes a banquet of that day. "I will tell you no lie," he begins cautiously, "I saw such quantities of meats eaten as are wont to be seen and not eaten as a horse roasts, a cat in jelly, little lizards with white broth, frogs fried and divers other sorts of meats, which I saw them eat, but I never knew what they were till they were eaten."

The "Quaking Custard" of that period.

was a huge dish in the middle of the table, into which, "at a private signal, the city folk suddenly leaped over the heads of the astonished feasters, who were instantly bespattered with this rich and savory mud." Undeterred, however, by this nasty behavior, most citizens not only ate plentifully of the custard, but even took some home to their wives. Nor were the women of those days backward in demanding expensive duties for themselves, it seems, for an essayist of 1891 sarcastically asks: "Who will not admire our nice dames of London, who must have cherries at 20 shillings a pound and peascods at 5 shillings a peck? Young rabbits of a spanne and chickens of an inch?"

Hunt For a Hangman.

The British army was once in difficulties through the lack of a hangman. Murder was committed by a soldier in the Crimea, but nobody could be found to carry out the sentence of the court martial. It was announced that £20 and a free discharge would be granted to the man undertaking the task. At last a man did volunteer. He was a newcomer to the army. On the night prior to the date fixed for the execution he locked up the hangman in a stable to keep him safe. In the morning the party at the gallows waited, but there was no hangman. He had gone mad during the night or else he was now simulating madness. The officer in command turned to one of his captives with, "Captain, you will have the goodness to hang the prisoner!" The captain changed countenance, but he pulled himself together and appealed to the sergeants with, "Which of you will hang this man?" And to spare his captain one of the men volunteered. He afterward had the satisfaction of flogging the man who had volunteered and failed.

The Way to Work.

If work has to be done the only way to escape will be to launch oneself upon the task, realizing that if it is difficult it is not likely to grow easier and that some sort of a beginning must be made. "Keep the faculty of effort alive in you by a little gratuitous exercise every day," writes a canny psychologist in his chapter on "Habits." This gratuitous exercise it is that trains the will to rule life and destiny; it is the one great secret of success. Postponing of disagreeable duties means laxness invading the will, a certain slackening of all the mental nature an invasion of a paralytic tendency. If the will failed to obey at a given moment yesterday it is vastly less likely to obey today, whereas a daily habit of forceful inhibiting or commanding makes for that most desirable of all endowments, "a completely fashioned will."—Harper's Weekly.

The First Nails.

The first nails were undoubtedly the sharp teeth of various animals. Then it is believed pointed fragments of flint followed. The first manufactured metal nails were of bronze. The nail which Jael killed Sisera was a wooden tent pin, probably pointed with iron. Bronze nails have been found in the Swiss lake dwellings, in several places in France and in the valley of the Nile. Until the nineteenth century iron nails were forged, a blacksmith being able to make only two or three dozen a day. The first cast nails were made by Jeremiah Wilkinson in Rhode Island in 1775. The first patented nail machine was by Perkins, 1795, and its product of 200,000 nails a day was considered so enormous that some persons deemed the result due to supernatural agency.

How to Grow Miniature Oaks.

Secure a good ripe acorn and suspend it by a piece of cord within half an inch or so of water contained in a glass. There let it stay, for if permitted to remain without disturbance for a few months it will burst, send a root into the water and shoot upward a straight, tapering stem covered with beautiful little green leaves. In this manner a young oak tree can be cultivated and become an interesting object for the table. As soon as the plant has made its appearance it will be found beneficial to change the water frequently.

Weather for January.

The fourth reactionary storm period will lie between the 21st and 24th, touching perhaps the last of the 21st and the first of the 24th, its crisis being on the 22nd and 23rd. Moon's first quarter being on the 21st, and its apogean point being on the 24th, the disturbances of this period will, extend in greater or less degree to these days. Renewed snow squalls will be general all about these days and quickened cold will follow up to about the 26th.

The fifth regular storm period covers the 27th to 31st, having its center on the 28th. This last January storm period brings us well toward the center of the Venus period. The full Moon, or Moon's opposition with Earth and Sun, is on the 29th. This full Moon is on an eclipse node, causing a direct line of Moon with Earth and Sun, and hence an eclipse of the Moon. By the 27th a decided fall of the barometer will appear in western sections, and as this condition moves eastward it will merge into cloudiness, higher temperature and storms of rain, turning into snow. The crisis of this period will center

To Ascertain Your Brain Power.

Do you possess well formed and evenly balanced features? This is the rule; judge for yourself: The height of your forehead, from your hair to the line of your brow, should be the same as the length of your nose, and both should be commensurate with the depth from the base of your nose to the extremity of your chin, so making three equal divisions. Have you an excessive deficiency of brain power? This question you may answer to your own satisfaction by contrasting the bulk of your head visible above or below a line drawn horizontally through the center of each eye and which normally divides the head into two equal parts.

Exorbitant Premiums.

"What would you think of a 99 cent premium?" said an insurance agent. "A premium of $90,000 on a $100,000 policy. Hardly worth taking out, eh?" Such a policy was once taken out, though, on a ship thought to be lost. It is a common thing on overdue ships to take out policies at 90 or 95 or 99 per cent. On the Bulgaria and the Croft in 1899 policies at 90 per cent were taken out, and on the Adelade Mary, even after two of her lifeboats had been picked up, a policy of 92 per cent was issued.

But, I say, how do you know there are no alligators here? Boatman—Well, you see, sah, de alligator am so turrible feared ob de shark—Punch.

English Men and Women.

Englishmen are inherently shy, and half the bad manners with which we are credited as a nation is the result of this shyness. Englishmen suffer from it to the same extent, only in their case shyness is merely self-consciousness and part and parcel of an immense conceit.—London Ladies' Field.

Saw Her Chance.

Wife—Mrs. Flareup threw a flatiron at her husband last night because he accidentally sat down on her new bonnet. Now, I couldn't do a thing like that. Husband—You couldn't? Wife—Of course not. I haven't any new bonnet.

Took Her Part.

Mamma—You must always remember to take your little sister's part, Tommy. She'll Tommy—I do. I took her side the other not five minutes ago.—Chicago News.

"My wife is a most original woman," said Brown. "Why, when I proposed to her instead of saying, 'This is so sudden,' she said, 'Well, I think it's about time.'"

A London Banquet of 1582. A Spanish visitor to London in 1582 describes a banquet of that day. "I will tell you no lie," he begins cautiously. "I saw such kinds of meats eaten as are wont to be seen and not eaten—In a horse roasted, a cat in gely, little lizards with violet broth, frogs fried and divers other sortes of meates, which I sawe them eate, but I never knew what they were till they were eaten." The "quaking custard" of that period was a huge dish in the middle of the table, into which, at a private signal, the city folk suddenly leaped over the heads of the astonished feasters, who were instantly bespattered with this rich and savory mud. Undeterred, however, by this nasty behavior, the citizens not only ate plentifully of the custard, but even took some home to their wives. Nor were the women of those days backward in demanding expensive dainties for themselves, it seems, for an essayist of 1901 sarcastically asks: "Who will not admire our nice dames of London, who must have cherries at 20 shillings a pound and peacocks at 5 shillings a peck? Young rabbitets of a spanne and chickens of an inch?"

Hunt For a Hangman.

The British army was once in difficulties through the lack of a hangman. Murder was committed by a soldier in the Crimea, but nobody could be found to carry out the sentence of the court martial. It was announced that £20 and a free discharge would be granted to the man undertaking the task. At last a man did volunteer. He was a newcomer to the army. On the night prior to the date fixed for the execution they looked up the hangman in a stable to keep him safe. In the morning the party at the gallows waited, but there was no hangman. He had gone mad during the night or else he was so terrified by the execution that he fled in command turned to one of his captives with, "Captain, you will have the goodness to hang the prisoner!" The captain changed countenance, but he pulled himself together and appealed to the sergeant with, "Which of you will hang this man?" And to spare his captain one of the men volunteered. He afterward had the satisfaction of flogging the man who had volunteered and failed.

How to Grow Miniature Oaks.

Secure a good ripe acorn and suspend it by a piece of cord within half an inch or so of water contained in a glass. There let it stay, for if permitted to remain without disturbance for a few months it will burst, send a root into the water and shoot upward as a straight, tapering stem covered with beautiful little green leaves. In this manner a young oak tree can be cultivated and become an interesting object to all that behold it. As soon as the plant has attained its full size it will be found beneficial to change the water frequently.

Took Her Part.

Mamma—You must always remember to take your little sister's part, Tommy. She'll Tommy—I do. I took her side the other not five minutes ago.—Chicago News.

"My wife is a most original woman," said Brown. "Why, when I proposed to her instead of saying, 'This is so sudden,' she said, 'Well, I think it's about time.'"

A London Banquet of 1582. A Spanish visitor to London in 1582 describes a banquet of that day. "I will tell you no lie," he begins cautiously. "I saw such kinds of meats eaten as are wont to be seen and not eaten—In a horse roasted, a cat in gely, little lizards with violet broth, frogs fried and divers other sortes of meates, which I sawe them eate, but I never knew what they were till they were eaten." The "quaking custard" of that period was a huge dish in the middle of the table, into which, at a private signal, the city folk suddenly leaped over the heads of the astonished feasters, who were instantly bespattered with this rich and savory mud. Undeterred, however, by this nasty behavior, the citizens not only ate plentifully of the custard, but even took some home to their wives. Nor were the women of those days backward in demanding expensive dainties for themselves, it seems, for an essayist of 1901 sarcastically asks: "Who will not admire our nice dames of London, who must have cherries at 20 shillings a pound and peacocks at 5 shillings a peck? Young rabbitets of a spanne and chickens of an inch?"

Weather for January.

The fourth reactionary storm period will lie between the 21st and 24th, touching perhaps the last of the 21st and the first of the 24th, its crisis being on the 22nd and 23rd. Moon's first quarter being on the 21st, and its apogean point being on the 24th, the disturbances of this period will extend in greater or less degree to these days. Renewed snow squalls will be general about these days and quickened cold will follow up to about the 26th.

The fifth regular storm period vers the 27th to 31st, having its center on the 28th. This last January storm period brings us well toward the center of the Venus period. The full Moon, or Moon's opposition with Earth and Sun, is on the 29th. This full Moon is at an eclipse node, causing a direct line of Moon with Earth and Sun, and hence an eclipse of the Moon. By the 27th a decided fall of the barometer will appear in western sections, and as this condition moves eastward it will merge into cloudiness, higher temperature and storms of rain, turning into snow. The crisis of this period will center on the 29th. Within thirty-six hours of noon on the 29th, especially on and following that date, heavy rain and wind storms will cross the country to the southward, and in central and northern latitudes rains will turn to snow and sleet, with indications good for severe gales and blizzards out of the northwest. Such is our calculation, and we venture to admonish all concerned to watch against blizzards, snow blockades and a wide and dangerous cold wave, all to culminate in natural order and succession during the last five days of January. Another seismic period or time of greatest earthquake and volcanic activity, lies within this last storm period, especially on and touching the 29th and 30th.

A case was being tried in court and the opposing lawyers became somewhat excited and personal in their remarks. Finally they began calling each other names. "You're a fool," said one. "You're a liar," was the quick retort. Then the judge in a very dignified manner, said: "Now that the counsel have identified each other kindly proceed to the disputed points."

Our Ads are our solicitors.

We send to your home to tell you about our goods, and how we can be helpful to you.

For instance—Your kitchen clock stops suddenly some night, without the least warning. You can't coax it to go. It's on a strike.

Now, it is plain that there are only two things to be done—lay the old clock aside for good and all, or let us fix it for you.

Of course, in some cases a new clock is preferable—but the right thing to do would be to let our repair department decide what is best to be done. We mean the best from your way of looking at it.

More than likely a cleaning, a renewal of a worn part, and a little general adjusting would put new life into the old timepiece. Bring it to us.

William Scheid, a well known resident of Auburn, died at his home last week Friday, January 11, 1907, at 2 o'clock after a lingering illness. Deceased was born in Eichlach Hessen, Darmstadt, in 1824, and emigrated to America when he was eighteen years of age and located at New Orleans where he resided five years and then came to Wisconsin, locating on a farm in the town of Ashford, Fond du Lac county, which is now known as the Paul Kohler farm. Mr. Scheid returned to New Orleans, remained there but a short time and returned to Wisconsin again when he married Miss Susan Strause in 1849. In 1863 he moved onto the farm in Auburn, one mile south of the village of Campbellsport, where he lived up to the time of his death. The funeral was held from the Baptist church at Campbellsport at 10 a. m. last Monday with a large concourse of relatives and friends in attendance. Members of the Odd Fellows' lodge acted as pall bearers. Mr. Scheid is survived by a widow and five children, namely: John of Ellsworth, Wis.; Mrs. M. Boecker, Campbellsport; George, Auburn; Frank, Byron; and William, at home. There are also twenty-one grand-children. Those who attended the funeral from abroad were: William Strause, Horton, Kans.; Milo Scheid, Chicago; Joseph Gabriel, Hortonville; George Schneider, Oshkosh; J. CHAPTER VII.—(Continued.) "That will do, Miss Fenwick, you have given your evidence very fully. The coroner said kindly, and Sadie, much relieved that the dreaded ordeal was over, sank back into her chair again and wondered vaguely what Geoffrey and Mrs. Fenwick would say to her.

"I'll all make it pretty hot for me, I expect, she thought. Mother would scold and the girls sneer; but I don't care—not very much, at least. I could never have looked Jim again in the face if I hadn't done it."

"I'm glad to hear that, Miss Fenwick," he said, in his lazy, contented way. "I'm glad to hear that, Miss Fenwick," he said, in his lazy, contented way. "I'm glad to hear that, Miss Fenwick," he said, in his lazy, contented way.

WHALEBONE AT $750 A TON. It Might Pay Now to Look Up Those Old Whalebone Ribbed Umbrellas.

"I see by the papers," said Mr. Griffin, "that the last quotation for whalebone in England was $1700 or, say, about $3750 a ton, making whalebone worth now somewhere in the neighborhood of $450 a pound—a pretty costly commodity.

"No. They were of the bulge out sort of gingham umbrellas that you see now in the streets of London. These umbrellas on the comic stage but which are now never actually used by anybody, though once they were used by everybody's umbrellas with whalebone ribs. And what I was going to say was this:

"People are out all the time looking through the country for old furniture, quaint old colonial, and that sort of thing. Why couldn't we hunt up these umbrellas—there must be millions of them lying around in country garrets which could be looked up these old whalebone ribbed gingham umbrellas, for the whalebone there is in them? Don't you think there may be an idea here for making money?"

"I'm glad to hear that, Miss Fenwick," he said, in his lazy, contented way. "I'm glad to hear that, Miss Fenwick," he said, in his lazy, contented way. "I'm glad to hear that, Miss Fenwick," he said, in his lazy, contented way.
