Against Saloon Laws.

A great debate took place in the assembly at Madison Wednesday upon the bill which provides that saloons should be limited to one for every 250 inhabitants in cities and villages. Assemblyman Potter speaks on the Gothenberg bill as follows:

MR. SPEAKER:

It is an old saying that politics makes strange bed fellows, and when I look over this Assembly and see some of the old members that I have served with the Assembly for four years, (favoring this bill, I am reminded of the old Indian that got lost, when he said, Indian no lost—wig-wam lost.

Mr. Speaker, for the past six years you and I, in our Assembly districts and upon the floor of this Assembly, have been damping the trusts and roasting the corporations to beat the band, and it seems strange to me that after you and I have fought, bled and died together, damping the trusts and roasting the corporations, that you should favor a bill to create trusts and monopolies. There is not a member of this Assembly that will deny but what this bill creates a trust and the worst kind of a trust—a saloon trust!

Mr. Speaker, if this bill should pass and become a law, it will build up the biggest trust that was ever created in Wisconsin.

The claim is made by the friends of this bill that it is optional with the cities, villages and towns in this state, to adopt it, or not. Don't be afraid, there will not be a city, village or town in this state, but what will adopt it; there will be too much money in it, to let an opportunity of that kind pass.

Gentlemen of this Assembly—is there any crying demand in Wisconsin for a law of this kind? I think not. Then why should we pass such a law in this state, just because they passed one in Norway forty-five years ago? The conditions in Wisconsin are entirely different from that which were in Norway, when this law was adopted in that country. If I am correctly informed, when this law was adopted in Norway there was no tax imposed upon the people for manufacturing intoxicating liquor; every person could make all he pleased, and the most of them were trying to drink all they could make. I do not know if it is true or not, but it has been said that that country at that time was the most drunken nation on the face of the earth. If that was true, drastic measures had to be used. I cannot believe we in Wisconsin are drifting into such a condition; some of the temperance people claim it will be a step toward temperance. How ridiculous! Do you suppose for one moment that the temperance people in this state are going to subscribe for stock in a saloon trust, and run saloons?

How some of the old long-haired temperance cranks would look, marching up to the city councils or the village or town boards, subscribing for stock in a saloon trust? Why, they would be the laughing stock of the world!

If a law of this kind was on our Statute books, let us see how it would work. For instance, in a city where there are now twenty saloons that are owned by the present proprietors, they would be wiped out of existence and their property confiscated, and twenty other saloons opened up, and run by a saloon trust. Do you think for one moment that we would have any better saloons? Far from it, and I hope that this bill will be defeated by such an overwhelming majority that no such scheme will come before a legislature in Wisconsin for the next fifty years.

If my old reform friends in this Assembly want to go back on the principles we have been advocating for the past six years, you can do so and take your old wigwag with you. But the old Democrat from Washington county will go on fighting the trusts if he has got to fight them single-handed and alone.

A Freshman.

A freshman who had entered one of the large universities and was not much accustomed to the ways either of institutions of learning or of cities was returning late one evening from a lecture. When near his lodgings he was halted by two masked men, who "held him up" in true metropolitan style. One of the men leveled the conventional revolver at the young man, while the other relieved him of his watch, pocketbook and other valuables. He made no mention of the matter to anybody at the time, but a few days later he reported it to the president of the university.

"It wasn't a great deal," he said, "but it was more than I like to lose, and I think it's an outrage to treat a boy that way."

"Why didn't you tell me of this sooner?" asked the president.

"I supposed they would bring the things back to me next morning," he answered, "it was a couple of sophomores hazing me, wasn't it?"—Youth's Companion.

Wear Watches.

"I suppose," said the watchmaker, "you do not know that watches, like human beings, sometimes don't go for the very good reason that they are tired. Sometimes a watch is brought to me which is all right. Nothing about it is out of order, and it is fairly clean. When it becomes sulky and refuses to go except by fits and starts the best thing to do is to lay it aside and give it a rest. The mechanism in a 'tired' watch seems to be in perfect condition, but it won't work. The fact is that the works slowly to readjust themselves, and at the end of that time after careful oiling the watch will go as cheerfully as ever."—Washington Star.

Women Avoid Operations

When a woman suffering from female trouble is told that an operation is necessary, it is of course, frightful to her.

The very thought of the hospital, the operating table and the knife strikes terror to her heart.

It is quite true that these troubles may reach a stage where an operation is the only recourse, but a great many women have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after an operation has been decided upon as the only cure.

The strongest and most gratifying statements possible to make come from women, who by taking made from native roots and herbs, have escaped serious operations, as evidenced by Miss Rose Moore's case, of 307 W. 26th St., N. Y. She writes: "Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I have been cured of the very worst form of female trouble and I wish to express to you my deepest gratitude. I suffered intensely for two years so that I was unable to attend to my duties and was a burden to my family. I doctored and doctored with only temporary relief, and finally decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; it cured me of the terrible trouble and I am now in better health than I have been for many years."

This and other such statements should encourage every woman to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before she submits to an operation.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. From the symptoms given, she will be able to locate and indicate the quickest and surest way of recovery available.

"Oh, no, assuredly; but they also are friendliness and companionship. I am not very clever, but I could teach quite a little children. That indeed is what I should love best to do; or I could attend some invalid lady, write her letters for her, and darn her stockings, or walk beside her chair—come."

She pointed, as she spoke, to one of the thousand and one bath chairs, filled by an elderly valetudinarian and pushed by a bored looking companion, which permeated the Kensington Gardens from one end to the other.

"I would try at any rate not to look so triste as that demoiselle," she said, smiling. Garnier did not smile however.

"Whether for governess or companion, you would want references of course. Where would you get them?"

"I never thought of that," she said. "Not from the pastor, after—after what has passed, but the Mother Superior—she is very just. She knows that I did well in class, and that I had the 'Enfant Dieu' medal for being docile with the sisters, and amiable in helping the little ones with their lessons. If she knew it was to help me to learn my living honorably, she would say these things for me."

"My poor child! The recommendations of an abbess wouldn't be of the slightest use to you over here, being in a Roman Catholic family; and, you being a Protestant, they wouldn't want you. You can't get anything to do in England, unless you have good references; and in your case, thanks to me."

"Cadet Rouselle, you must not talk in that way. The pastor did not ever approve of me, and after all must not every one who seeks employment find it difficult to meet the same difficulty? Besides, I shall not be ambitious. I shall only ask for a little place, and perhaps no pay."

"I have been asked regarding this year's work on my farm, and I hereby with willingly submit the following statement:

Three years ago I purchased an improved farm of 186 acres on Section 9, Township 36, Range 27, west of the First Meridian, two (2) miles from the town of Swan River.

"CADET ROUSSELLE"

By THEO GIFT

"Oh, no, assuredly; but they also are friendliness and companionship. I am not very clever, but I could teach quite a little children. That indeed is what I should love best to do; or I could attend some invalid lady, write her letters for her, and darn her stockings, or walk beside her chair—come."

She pointed, as she spoke, to one of the thousand and one bath chairs, filled by an elderly valetudinarian and pushed by a bored looking companion, which permeated the Kensington Gardens from one end to the other.

"I would try at any rate not to look so triste as that demoiselle," she said, smiling. Garnier did not smile however.

"Whether for governess or companion, you would want references of course. Where would you get them?"

"I never thought of that," she said. "Not from the pastor, after—after what has passed, but the Mother Superior—she is very just. She knows that I did well in class, and that I had the 'Enfant Dieu' medal for being docile with the sisters, and amiable in helping the little ones with their lessons. If she knew it was to help me to learn my living honorably, she would say these things for me."

"My poor child! The recommendations of an abbess wouldn't be of the slightest use to you over here, being in a Roman Catholic family; and, you being a Protestant, they wouldn't want you. You can't get anything to do in England, unless you have good references; and in your case, thanks to me."

"Cadet Rouselle, you must not talk in that way. The pastor did not ever approve of me, and after all must not every one who seeks employment find it difficult to meet the same difficulty? Besides, I shall not be ambitious. I shall only ask for a little place, and perhaps no pay."

"I have been asked regarding this year's work on my farm, and I hereby with willingly submit the following statement:
