scribed by the Christian preacher as an enemy, but the Apostle John gave a very good definition of real sin. "Sin is the transgression of the law."

Natural laws enforced themselves, and no one could violate the laws of God without suffering at once the penalty. In that sense there was no forgiveness for sins anywhere, but there were no sins to be purged.

Just the instant you began to conform again to the law of the universe the universe would take you up and apply its remedial power. The whole power of God is constantly at work to see there is no pain and no evil in the world, and when the organism got to that point that it could not live any longer except in great pain, then the great angel Death came along and remedied the whole thing. What came then he would leave for the future to tell.

GERMANS FACE WAR IN AFRICA.

Jakob Morengo Escapes from British and Gathers Natives for Battle-Joins Another Big Chief.

CAPE TOWN, Aug. 15. - The Germans are threatened with a revival of the insurrection in their South African territory. Jakob Morengo, the chief who bas aused them more trouble than all the others combined, and who has been in others combined, and who has been in the custody of the British since he sought refuge in Cape Colony after the last hostilities, escaped yesterday, formed a junction with another chief from the German colony, and with 400 followers returned swiftly to German Southwest

The Cape police followed, but the difficulties of the country prevented them from intercepting the fugitive chief. Morengo has repeatedly ambused German parties, killing twenty to thirty in each affair, and the German authorities have five times joyfully though mistaken-ly announced his death.

Last night Worschnek took Mettlestadt's charming sister-in-law, Ella Schmidt, for a stroll, and didn't tell her all the things he wanted to tell before he reached home. So they sat on the porch and talked it over—but the judge held they did not have to tell what they held they did not have to tell what they talked over. August Mettlestadt was awakened from his dreams by their talk, so he called to the suitor to begone. Worschnek did not hear. Then Met-tlestadt swore at the suitor, and still he did not hear. As a last resort, Met-tlestadt told the court, he rushed out on the porch, clad in his pink pajamas, grabbed Worschnek by the neck, and tossed him gently but firmly down a flight of steps. MUSCODA. Wis., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—The children of James Lewis, playing near the bridge over the Wisconsin river, found ten sticks of dynamite under the pier. Not knowing what it was, they put it in their pockets and brought it home to their father. It is supposed that the dynamite was left there by someone who intended to kill per $5 and costs.

August 1 there was a big masquerade ball, and Mr. Rekhein was very much there, togged up as "the dandy copper of the Broadway squad." Returning from the ball, filled with spirits and ambition, the young man decided he would like to be a real officer, with a real club, and a real swing to his shoulders. So he walked up and down the beat that the real shiner draws a salary for patrolling. And then the happy thought came that a real peeler must make an arrest. Five a drunk on the new boddy's beat. When the patrol arrived there was no drunk, to the great disappointment of the wagon men. A short time later some one telephoned a complaint that the patrolman on the beat was intoxicated. This lead to an investigation. The water wagon gang again went out, and after running up and down the beat for two hours, they found Rekhein asleep on a doorstep, faithfully performing his duty as an officer of the law. He paid his fine and says it was worth the money.

Woman in Siam. Next to King Chulalongkorn, the most powerful personality in Siam is undoubtedly the Queen, says the London Chronicle, a capable and energetic woman, and altogether a remarkable personage. The position of women in Siam contrasts favorably with that among other Oriental peoples. The ordinary woman possesses and a valuet observed as a contrast of the property of the prop peoples. The ordinary woman possesses such a robust physique and erect bearing that a stranger easily mistakes her for a man, especially as her hair is short cropped and the dress of both sexes very similar. In the general business of life the average Siamese woman is often superior to the man; she understands thoroughly convenience well as domestic. perior to the man; she understands thor-oughly economic as well as domestic household affairs, and enjoys a consider-able share of freedom. Polygamy is fast dying out in the lower classes, and grad-ually decreasing among the rich. What is peculiraly hopeful is the attitude of both government and society toward fe-male education.

PRONOUNCING INDIAN NAMES. Easy According to This Rule-Meaning of Words.

Did you ever try to pronounce an Indian name and then wonder whether you had come anywhere near the correct pronunciation? Try this rule. Place a dash after each vowel in the word and then pronounce each vowel in the word and then pronounce each syllable slowly. Note the smooth flowing sound produced and then gradually pronounce the syllables faster until you get the entire word grouped. You will be surprised both at the ease with which you get the word and the effect in pronunciation. The most diffect in pronunciation. The most diffect in pronunciation. The most dif-icult Indian name is readily pronounced this manner. Nearly all Indian names of towns and rivers have some particular significance. The names of towns in Indian territory will perpetuate Indian history for centuries. Only yesterday a new town was named Neha. This is a Creek word, and means oil town. It was given to a siding put in on the railroad a few miles south of Muskogee in the new oil field. "We" in Creek means water. It is found in many names in the territory and the significance attaches to the re-mainder of the word. For instance, here ter, the Wetumka means bounding water, and Wetumhka means bounding water. Both are towns on the Frisco railroad. Wealaka, the home of the Creek chief, means falling water. Wecharta neans red water.

Okmulgee, which is the Creek national capital, means in Creek head of power, and the name was given the town of Ok-mulgee because it was the national capil. Tallahassee conveys to the Creek ind the same impression that deserted lage does to the English. It was the name of a town in the eastern home of the Creeks and also a town of that name, or what was a town, is located in Indian territory. There is an Indian school there.

To the Creeks the Ark nsas river was Wecharta, because the water is red, and Deep Fork was Hutchety Soofkey because it is deep. The Verdigris was Wascre Hutchety because the Osages came down that river and the Creeks called it "Osage Stream." The North Canadian was called Oklahutchey because it was full of sand. The village of Choska was so called because Choska means post oak, and around Croska post oaks grow in great profusion.—Kansas City Star.

A Surprise. A Surprise.

Gen. Wheeler's body was brought to Washington draped in the Confederate flag as well as the Stars and Stripes, under both of which he had served so efficiently. While the body lay in state, an old Confederate soldier who had fought under Gen. Wheeler in Gen. Early's division, having heard of the Confederate flag and wishing to see his dear old leader in the light of long ago, made strenuous effort and at last stood beside strenuous effort and at last stood beside the coffin. But on reaching Washington the Stars and Bars had been removed by order of the President, and the vet-eran looked in vain for his old flag. Then he looked at the body clad in the blue uniform, and, solemnly shaking his head

"Wall, by gee, gen'ul, when you git on t'other side and Jubal Early catches you in them togs, I'm bettin' you'll git the puttiest cussin' that ever cum your way!"

The following day was Saturday-a whole holiday at the high school at Ninchester which the twins attended. Gatty had developed a cold, and Mrs. Masters insisted upon her remaining indoors, his lips, but all the good-natured amuse but Bab's restless spirit chafed against confinement, and, though it was tacitly understood that she was not to go home, she made her escape after lunch and took | a depressing walk in the muddy lanes. She felt cross and out of spirits, and inclined to fall foul of everything and every one, so, when she came suddenly across three or four big, loutish lads, who were preparing to drown a puppy in a pool, she stood still and spoke her mind with considerable vigor. "Boys! What are you doing?" she

The lads looked round and grinned They were just old enough to consider themselves "boys" no longer, and, as it happened, they all came from a hamlet a mile or two away across the fields, where the people were popularly sup-posed to be "a rough lot." The young adies at the cottage had been advised to avoic its vicinity, so though the youths saw at once that Bab was a lady they

"You cruel-torturing brute!" she said, very slowly and distinctly. "Drown it at once, if it must be drowned, or-Harken to her ladyship!" cried one of the smaller boys, and they all set up a shout of mocking laughter, above which the puppy's shrill yelp rose despairingly as his tormentor treated him to a semi-immersion. Bab had a quick temper, and rarely paused to think of the consequences of her actions. She made a sudden rush through the group of mocking lads, and, seizing the rope out of the ringleader's astonished hands, she drew the puppy up and clasped the wet, shivering little creature in her arms. Then she stood at bay, and looked around defiantly.

Sage' must be playing a little game of her own. Well, by all accounts, there's "You'll have to drown me too if you try to touch it again!" she panted.

"Was he bullying you?" the man began, and then the sight of the dog seemed to give him a key to the proceedings, and he administered a slight shaking. "You young scoundrel!" he ejaculated.

"He was torturing it! He—he wouldn't drown it. Oh, the poor little thing!" cried Bab.

There was a yell of protest from the culprit, followed by the sound of a struggle and a splash. The puppy's executioner was floundering in the mud at the bottom of the pool, and the young man who had administered justice turned to Bab with a smile.

"Now let me see the dog," he said.

I never tried the effects of vinegar, but I know of families where indifferent cuts of steak are treated over night to a bath of vinegar and olive oil and are said by those who eat them to be delicious.

Spiced Peaches. Peel late peaches, but do not take out the stones. To five pounds of peaches allow three pounds of granulated sugar, one quart of vinegar, one level teaspoonful each of ground cloves and allspice. Put all together in a preserving kettle; cook slowly for threequarters of an hour. Take out the peaches and put back one at a time into a jar, until it is nearly full. Then pour in the sirup to fill the jar to the brim. Seal while hot.

Frozen Strawberries Hull, wash and mash one quart of strawberries. Add one tablespoonful of lemon juice and let stand for half an hour. Boil together for three minutes, one quart of water and two cupfuls of sugar, strain and set aside until cold. Mix with the crushed berries, turn into a packed freezer and freeze until stiff. Take out the dasher, pack down the ice in the freezer, repack with ice and salt, and set aside for a couple of hours.

Cream Icing for Cake. Put two cups of granulated sugar, a tablespoonful of butter and twothirds of a cup of good, rich milk into a saucepan and boll until as thick as cream, stirring it all the time after the ingredients have become blended. Remove from the fire, add a teaspoonful of vanilla extract and beat until it is cool enough to spread.

Lancashire Pie. Take cold beef or yeal, chop and season as for hash, have ready hot mashed potatoes, season as for the table, and put in a shallow dish first a layer of meat, then a layer of potatoes, and so on until the dish is full; smooth over top of potatoes, and make little boles, in which place little bits of butter; bake until a nice brown.

Mushroom Soup One pint of mushrooms, one pint of milk, two tablespoonfuls of butter, salt and pepper to taste. Wash and scrape or peel the mushrooms, chop them fine and put on to cook with cold water. Simmer for a balf-hour, then add milk. butter, pepper and salt to taste as soon as the boll is reached. Serve with crackers. German Flour Soup. Cook together in a frying pan a tablespoonful each of shortening and flour, and when well blended add a sliced or minced onion; fry this to a golden brown, then stir in five cups of soup stock or of warm water, stir until thick, pour upon a beaten egg and add salt, pepper and nutmeg to tastq.

Coffee in Ice Cream. Beat one quart of thin cream until stiff by using an egg beater. Dissolve two cupfuls of sugar in one pint of milk and one cupful of strong black coffee: mix with the cream and it is ready to freeze. Freeze, and let stand an hour to ripen.

Lenox Potatoes. Use small potatoes of uniform size. Pare with care. Parboil ten minutes in boiling salted water; drain, put in baking pan, bake until soft, basting three times during the cooking with melted butter.

Oatmeal Wafers MIx one cup of cream with one-third cup of sugar, then add enough fine or meal to thicken and roll thin. Cut in squares and bake in a moderate oven.

tie that binds" knows the history of its homely origin.

According to the Church Eclectic, it was written by Rev. John Fawcett, who in the latter part of the Eighteenth century was the pastor of a poor little church in Lockshire, England. His family and responsibilities were large, his salary was less than $4 a week.

In 1772 he felt himself obliged to accept a call to a London church. His farewell sermon had been preached, six wagons loaded with furniture and books stood by the door. His congregation, men, women and children, were in an agony of tears.

Will You Live Long? In view of the diversified testimony of present day centenarians on the subject of longevity and its causes, it is interof longevity and its causes, it is interesting to get a little light on the subject from Queen Elizabeth's time.

short life are as true today as they ever were.

"You won't live long, Bacon pointed out, if you have soft, fine hair, a fine skin, quick growth, large head, early corpulence, short neck, small mouth, brittle and separated teeth, and fat ears.

"Your life, barring accidents, will be very lengthy if you have slow growth, coarse hair, a rough skin, deep wrinkles in the forehead, firm flesh, a large mouth, wide nostrils, strong teeth set close together, and a hard, grisly ear."

"After the Custer massacre on the Little Big Horn," said John H. Seger, who men, women and children, were in an agony of tears.

Mr. Fawcett and his wife sat down on a packing case and cried with the others. Looking up, Mrs. Fawcett said:

"Oh, John, John, I cannot bear this! I know not where to go!"

"Nor I either," said he; "nor will we go. Unload the wagons and put everything back in its old place."

His letter of acceptance to the London church was recalled and he wrote this hymn to commemorate the episode.
