Favor Regulation of Saloons. Fond du Lac, Wis., Feb. 10.—The two Episcopal bishops of Wisconsin, Bishop C. C. Grafton of Fond du Lac, as well as Bishop W. W. Webb of Milwaukee are strongly in favor of the regulation of the saloons, and the elimination of the dives and disorderly resorts, but opposed to the radical attitude of the prohibitionists.

Bishop Grafton said in speaking of the great activity of the believers in constitutional prohibition in many of the states in the union that he doubted very strongly the efficacy of the movement under present conditions, and that no law can be enforced with a large proportion of the people in opposition to it. His remedy for the evils of drinking is along license lines, a high license for the sale of liquors and heavy wines and a low license for the sale of beer, ale and light wines. On this question the bishop said: "I can understand why there is such a demand for prohibition in the states of the south, for there they have to deal with different conditions from those in the north. The people there are surrounded by a race who members are prone to drink. Drink is positively ruinous to the negroes, and therefore one can see a reason for the increase of the prohibition sentiment in that section. Liquor must be kept away from the negroes for the protection of the whites and their families and for the development of the industries of the south. "With us in the north it is different. Prohibition here, to my mind, is not practical. No law can be enforced against the wishes of a large minority of the people. It is more dangerous, morally speaking, that the law should be systematically violated than it is to have a certain number of people getting drunk occasionally. Under present conditions I do not believe that prohibition could be effectually enforced. Everyone acknowledges the danger connected with the excessive taking of intoxicating beverages. "I should like, however, to see the number of saloons greatly decreased. I would also plead for a distinction in the character of licenses given. There should be a low license for the sale of beer, ale and light wines and a very heavy license for the sale of spirituous liquors and heavy wines. "I cannot agree with those who think that the taking of wine, ale or beer in moderation is wrong, because the process of fermentation is one of God's creative acts, and the Divine Master of the Christian religion turned the contents of six water pots, holding one hundred and twenty gallons, into wine. "My great sympathy is with the temperance movement, but men are not made good by law, but by the resistance of temptation through the aid of grace. "The Episcopal church and its ministers favor same saloon regulation but are otherwise liberal in their views concerning the saloon question, said Bishop W. W. Webb, of the Milwaukee diocese. "I do not think that the Episcopal church," said Bishop Webb will ever take an active part in any campaign that may be made against the saloon. I do not think that its clergy will ever take a decisive stand on the question. But I do believe that the clergy will take a liberal view of the matter and will never come out with any pronounced opposition to the saloon. "Personally I do not think that Milwaukee will ever become a prohibition town. I do not think that prohibition would be the best interests of the city. I am naturally opposed to the saloon that is degenerating in its very influence and to the low dive. Otherwise I have nothing to say on the matter. The saloon question is one which has never been thoroughly discussed among the clergy of the Episcopal church to my knowledge. I do not think that the ministry of that church has formed any definite opinion on the subject one way or another. I repeat, however, that such an opinion, when formed, will not be one narrow in its conception. The Episcopal ministers are inclined to take a broad and liberal view of the question. They are inclined to regard with leniency the saloon in all its phases so long as that saloon is not detrimental on its face to public interest and morals. I believe that the general tendency of the Episcopal clergy is to favor rather than oppose the well regulated saloon. The saloon when at its best certainly has many things in its favor. It is a gathering place of people and in many instances of good people. "I repeat, if the church should take a decisive stand in the near future, it will be a liberal one."

Will Do It Good.

A Wise Little Milliner.

"If I had insisted," said the milliner, "I could have sold her a hat that cost $10 more, but I was afraid that if she took it I should lose her trade. I knew her husband wouldn't like it. It isn't the expense he would object to, but the hat. She is a countrywoman, and he is a countryman. Countrymen do not like New York hats—that is, hats of the exaggerated type. I never yet sold an extreme style to an out of town woman without losing her custom. The men at home always said, 'Well, if that's the best you can do in New York—come back with a scarecrow thing like that—you'd better buy your hats nearer home.' And thereafter that is just what the women do. That is why I now sell nothing but modest looking hats to country customers. I can't afford to antagonize their husbands."—New York Times.

A Mighty Rare Autograph.

There are an unlimited number and variety of the genus autograph collector. Some have the greivousome habit of collecting all autographic matter relating to the assassins of our presidents. To be successful even in this limited range requires much careful research and great patience. The more inconspicuous and unknown the subjects chosen the more difficult the task of collecting. It may be said that it is an easier task to secure an authentic autograph of Napoleon Bonaparte or of Cromwell than one of the practically unknown murderer of President McKinley. The very obscurity from which the perpetrator temporarily emerged is hard to penetrate and therefore makes the securing of his autograph a difficult task.—Collector.

Tobacco as a Drug.

I know that many are of the opinion our northern simples are weak, inferior, not so well concocted, of such force, as those in southern parts, not so fit to be used in physic, and will therefore fetch their drugs afar off—senna, cassia out of Egypt, rhubarb from Barbary, aloes from Socotra, turbit, agaric, mirbolanes, hermodactile from the East Indies; tobacco from the west.—Barton's "Anatomy of Melancholy."

"Try One of My Betels."

In Siam they don't offer you a cigar or a cigarette, but a betel nut. There every one carries a supply of them in a neat little ivory box, not unlike the snuffboxes of our ancestors. The betel nut is a narcotic. In its effects not unlike tobacco, but it is much more harmful. Those who chew it suffer from inflamed gums, and they generally lose their teeth. The betel is a species of climbing plant, with a leaf not unlike ivy. It yields a crop of nuts, which are ground to a powder. This is mixed with a similar powder derived from the green nut and made into a paste, which is wrapped in pieces of betel leaf.

HELPFUL ADVICE

You won't tell your family doctor the whole story about your private illness—you are too modest. You need not be afraid to tell Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., the things you cannot explain to your doctor. Your letter will be held in the strictest confidence. From her vast correspondence with sick women during the past thirty years she may have gained the very knowledge that will help your case. Such letters as the following, from grateful women, establish beyond a doubt the power of

to conquer all female diseases. Mrs. Norman R. Barndt, of Allentown, Pa., writes:

"Ever since I was sixteen years of age I had suffered from an organic derangement and female weakness; in consequence I had dreadful headaches and was extremely nervous. My physician said I must go through an operation to get well. A friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I took it and wrote you for advice, following your directions carefully, and thanks to you I am today a well woman, and I am telling all my friends of my experience."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backaches, that keep the system down, feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, nervous prostration.

A WILD VENGEANCE.

By the Author of "The Surrender of Mary," Etc.

CHAPTER V.—(Continued.)

"May I make so bold as to ask, my dear sir, I mean—do you think of staying here? I beg pardon, I didn't ought to take such a liberty."

"I can only say that I don't know, Simmons. If I am wanted perhaps I shall stay. I cannot tell."

"Well, sir, I'll venture to take a further liberty and trust you will excuse it. If you go—which is likely to my mind—will you be so good as to let me come along with you? You'd find a steady man nor more faithful, look where you will. And as for wages, I'd be grateful if you'd let 'em accumulate, so that you can pay me twelve years' time I might have a tidy sum to count on."

He stopped short, clearing his throat energetically, and John stepped forward and wrung his hand.

"You're a good fellow, Simmons," he said huskily. "I wish I could say my prayers for you, but I'm never likely to have a man of my own. Get that into your head, and you'll see how I appreciate your most thoughtful and generous kindness."

"No, no, my old—hang it, sir! Nothing of the sort. It's in my own interests I'm speaking. If you'd just think—"

John shook his head decidedly.

"Out of the question; but I mustn't lose sight of you. I'll let you know where I go, if I do, my dear sir."

"Thank you, my dear sir. I waver it won't be long till you'll go, will it?"

"What do you mean?" cried John again.

And Simmons, who was speaking to the door in a low tone, and in low confidential tones—

"Isn't that all known yet, sir, and that I'll take my oath on. There's more to be found out. Such letters as the following, from grateful women, establish beyond a doubt the power of

HOW CAMPORH IS MADE.

Simple Method by Which the Oil is Extracted from the Wood.

"To make camporh," said a returned traveler, "you put in chips of one hole, and out of another hole you draw the white resin, or camphor, as it is called."

"I don't see it," said a returned traveler, "but I'll tell you how it is made. In each building there are a dozen or so of these holes. They are filled with a mixture of boiling water, with a perforated lid. Fitted to the top of this kettle is an iron cylinder, filled with camphor chips of the size of your little finger. Fitted to the top of the cylinder is an inverted jar. The steam of the boiling water passing up through the perforated lid, rises into the inverted jar, and there it condenses. The white resin, or camphor, as it is called, is scraped from the sides of the inverted jar at the top. This resin, when the jar goes out, dries into a substance like frost, or a coarse white grain."

"White and aromatic, the frostlike substance is the crude camphor. It is scraped from the sides of the inverted jar at the top. This resin, when the jar goes out, dries into a substance like frost, or a coarse white grain."

PARADISE FOR SERVANTS.

"Every kitchen has a window with one pane only in the Brazilian town of Rio Grande do Sul," said a cook. "That is the window for the servant. 'Paradise for servants' live in their own homes there, as they should everywhere. They are not to be in the morning and they quit at 7 at night. A twelve-hour day. Quite long enough."

PURE FOOD.

No Food Commissioner of Any State Has Ever Attacked the Absolute Purity of Grape-Nuts.

Every analysis undertaken shows this food to be made strictly of Wheat and Barley, treated by our process to partially transform the starch parts into a form of Sugar, and therefore much easier to digest.

Our claim that it is a "Food for Brain and Nerve Centers" is based upon the fact that certain parts of Wheat and Barley (which we use) contain Nature's brain- and nerve-building ingredients, viz., Phosphate of Potash, and the way we prepare the food makes it easy to digest and assimilate.

TERMS OF ENDEARMENT.

Pet Names in France and Germany—Instance from Von Moltke's Letter.

The terms employed by the people of one nation as the choicest phrases in their vocabulary of endearment are often very different from the opposite purposes by other peoples.

One of the most familiar and most expressive phrases of endearment among the French is "my little pig," and "my little puppy dog" is also bandied about by a French husband addressing his wife. "My dear little pig" and "my little puppy dog" are not only a passion of resentment, as an English speaker might do under the same circumstances, but they are also a gentle caress. On the other hand, the British husband might call his wife, who would be very much offended.

OLD BOOTS AND SHOES.

What becomes of old boots and shoes has hitherto been almost as puzzling a problem as the question of the solution, however, is given in a British trade journal. Old boots and shoes are not only a nuisance, but they are also a source of profit. They are broken up into small pieces, and then are put for two days into chloride of lime solution, and then are dried. The leather is very hard and brittle. When this is fully effected the material is formed into small pieces, and then is used for making artificial rubber. The artificial rubber is also made of old leather. It is then mixed with sulphur, and then is used for making artificial rubber. The artificial rubber is also made of old leather. It is then mixed with sulphur, and then is used for making artificial rubber.

BOILED NEARLY THIRTEEN HOURS.

A game that was truly an endurance test was bowled on the Griffith alleys recently. Frank Griffith and J. E. Upton were the contestants. Griffith bowled 100 games. A few weeks ago they bowled a game and took 345 hours to do it. Mr. Griffith had a score of 270, the record for the alleys, when Mr. Upton came out with the ball and rolled up. Last week Mr. Griffith started to better that, with the result that 270 is now that score for the alleys.

RAINFALL ESTIMATE.

An acre contains 4,270,000 square inches. If it rains 100 inches, the water would be 427,000,000 cubic inches of water. A gallon contains 231 cubic inches of water, and an inch of rainfall means 22,622 gallons of water to the acre, and a gallon weighs 8.345 pounds. Therefore, 22,622 gallons of water on an acre is 226,220 pounds.

GREATEST OF HOTEL TOWNS.

Tens of Thousands of New Yorkers Give Up Home Life.

The latest edition of The Social Register contains a list of 9,000 families living in hotels in New York city. This, of course, does not include all the citizens of this great old town who have given up some of the kind of home life that is so dear to them. It is estimated that there are many more families in hotels in New York city than there are in any other city that can be named.
