MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 12, 1908.—With attendance figures, and receipts smaller than one year ago, the 1908 Wisconsin state fair closed Friday after a successful week. The days of intense heat held the crowds below the regular breaking point, when every indication pointed to a new attendance figure being placed to the credit of the 1908 management.

Milwaukee Given Praise. To the people of Milwaukee the fair managers have given their thanks for the loyalty shown on Milwaukee day. It was evident each day that the outpouring of Milwaukee people helped to fill the grounds, while the entire state responded in kind. Secretary John M. True on Friday evening.

Must Enlarge Grounds. The question of still further extending and enlarging the grounds and buildings will be one for careful consideration by the board at an early date. The officials fully realize that many improvements are necessary before another fair is held. Several of the suggestions that have been made are inadequate for the purpose intended, and it will be the aim of the board to enlarge and increase the grounds and buildings.

Cars Handled 100,000. The street car factories were better than ever and the 125,000 visitors, of which it is stated by officials of the Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light Company, about 100,000 were in cars. The cars were transported to and from the grounds promptly and with little inconvenience.

French Economy. "A man doesn't have to go to Paris to learn something about the economy of French cooks," said a janitor.

"All he has to do is to get a job like mine in a house occupied mostly by French families, and he'll learn some astonishing lessons in the art of saving. Up to two months ago I was working in a building of that kind. So far as attending to the garbage was concerned, I had the easiest time of my life. There was practically no garbage. The people lived very clean, I guess. Anyhow they received packages from the butcher and grocer, but they never seemed to throw anything away. About the only thing they didn't eat was coffee grounds and potato skins and tomato cans, and there was precious little waste of even that.

"Where I am working now the families are all American. That is where the food goes to waste. The people in that house throw away enough provisions every day to feed all those French families a week. —San Francisco Chronicle.

Made the Judge Perspire. Sir John Charles Day, an English judge who earned the title of the "boiligan's terror," died at the age of eighty-two. In the nineteen years Sir John was a judge of the high court—from 1852 to 1901—he was noted for his gift of solemn humor and for his drastic flogging sentences. In fourteen years he sentenced 137 criminals to 3,795 strokes of the cat. Once he said to a gang of Liverpool ruffians: "I am not going to give you men long terms of imprisonment, but you will go to the gallows if you get twenty lashes of the cat; when you have been in nine months you get twenty lashes of the cat; before you come out you get twenty lashes of the cat. And then you can show what you have got to your friends. He was perhaps the only English judge who ever did "hard labor." While on a visit to a prison he tried the treadmill, but when he asked to be set free the guard pretended not to hear his request. The judge was perspiring freely by the time he was permitted to abandon his experiment.

Eggs Barred. One evening a solid looking citizen, carrying a basket, bought a ticket and started to enter the opera house in a Long Island town. Just as he was going in the cover of the basket unaccountably slipped off, revealing two dozen eggs.

"Hey!" said the ticket taker. "This isn't Easter. Where you going with them eggs?"

"None of y'r business! Here's my ticket, all paid for an' reg'lar," declared the citizen.

"Well, there don't any eggs go inside while I'm here," said the ticket taker, and then the other saw the reason his burden was suspected and roared with laughter.

He left the eggs in charge of the man at the box office and entered, and he enjoyed every moment of the show. When it was over, the manager returned the eggs to him and said:

"I was afraid you might put your foot into the basket while you were applauding."

The Bite of a Dog. "I want to say a few words about hydrophobia," said a physician. "When an animal bites through clothing there is little or no danger of infection. The virus is on the teeth of the animal and when the person bitten has received the wound through a layer of clothing there is little danger.

"The virus on the teeth is left in the clothing and is not communicated to the person bitten. Rabid dogs or other animals are not like reptiles. They have no hollow teeth through which poison may be communicated. It must be introduced directly into the system of the victim.

Rather Hard on the Dog. We have broken our dog of a firmly fixed habit of sleeping upon the beds when the family were away by the following simple method: We spread an old sheet over the entire bed and lightly sprinkle it with cayenne pepper. The sheet was left on but one day, and the dog has never attempted to get on a bed since.—Good Housekeeping.

Repentance. "There is one case of death-bed repentance recorded—the penitent thief—who no one should despise; and only one that no one should presume."—St. Augustine.

"Going Out to See a Man."

"Going out to see a man" was the invention of Artemus Ward. One night in the winter of 1865, when the humorist was about half through his lecture, he paralyzed his audience with the announcement that they would have to take a recess of fifteen minutes so as to enable him to go across the street to "see a man." H. R. Trasey, the editor of the Washington Republican, was in the audience and, seeing an opportunity to improve upon the joke, pencilled these lines and sent them to the platform:

"Dear Artemus—If you will place yourself under my guidance, I'll take you to 'see a man' without crossing the street."

Artemus accepted the invitation, and while the great audience impatiently but with much amusement awaited the reappearance of the humorist the latter was making the acquaintance of Aman, a well known restaurant keeper at that time, and luxuriating at a well laden refreshment board. Of course everybody "caught on to" the phrase, and men became fond of getting up between the acts and "going out to see Aman." The restaurateur's business from that time forward boomed. Men who would ordinarily sit quietly through an entertainment and behave themselves allowed themselves to be influenced by the contagion.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

He Was Careful of His Voice. Brignoll, the famous tenor, was very susceptible to flattery, and it is said that once in New York when the orchestra vigorously applauded one of his favorite songs, he was so touched that he came down to the footlights and invited them all to a champagne supper at the Everett House. The supper cost him $500.

Brignoll was very careful of his voice and was terribly afraid of drafts. It was once stated that during the winter he always took him three-quarters of an hour to get from his room to the street. First he would on leaving his room pace the hall for ten minutes to get acclimated. He then descended to the lobby, where the temperature was a little lower, and spent twenty minutes there. He then ventured to the vestibule, from which the door opened into the street. He would parade the vestibule for fifteen minutes, gradually opening the door to let in a little cold air. Being now accustomed to a cool temperature, he would button up his coat and sally forth.

A Fast Record. At a political convention held in Illinois the importance of nominating a popular man for a certain close district was thoroughly recognized. A speaker had just recommended a person for nomination in an elaborate eulogy had presented in glowing terms his manifold merits, especially emphasizing his great services on the field of battle as well as in the pursuits of peace.

After he had finished a voice was heard in the rear of the room, "What we want is the man that will run the best."

In an instant the orator was again on his feet. "If you think," he yelled, "that this convention can find anybody that can run better than the gentleman I have nominated, I point once more to his well known war record."—Lippincott's.

Mysterious Green. To those who believe in the influence of color the shades of green afford an interesting study, not only because of the large number of green things found in nature, but the scale of greens is so varied.

Green is, or was, the chosen color of Venus or the Scandinavian goddess Freya and should be worn upon Friday, her name day.

The color has always been considered mysterious in its influence. All green creatures, such as snakes of birds, are weird, and people with what are known as green hazel eyes need to be carefully considered, and among clairvoyants green stands for intellectual power, just as they speak of the "blue of peace, rose of love and scarlet of anger."

His Honor Vindicated. A couple of good natured Frenchmen got into a quarrel and challenged each other to fight. On the morning of the duel they were both strapped through the woods to the fatal spot, when one of the duellists, the challenging party, tripped and fell. His second helped him to his feet.

"I hope you are not much hurt," said the other, "but I only bumped my nose on the ground."

"Does it bleed?" "Yes, a little."

"Heaven be praised! Blood flows, and my honor is vindicated. Give me your hand, old boy."

Betting in the Nursery. "Mamma," said her boy, "I just made a bet."

"What was it?" she asked. "I bet Billy my cap against two shoe buttons that you'd give me a penny to get some apples with. You don't want me to lose my cap, do you?"

He got the penny.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

A Vegetarian. First Deacon—Our new pastor must be a vegetarian. Second Deacon—Why do you think so?

"When a man wants an excuse," said Charles Kingsley, "the devil will soon fit him with a good one."

Slaughtered for Fashion. At auctions in London during the last half of 1907 there were catalogued or sold 19,742 skins and plumes of many other birds of beautiful plumage including about 100,000 quills and tails of the lre-birds. In the state of New York is a law forbidding the sale or possession of any bird or part of the plumage of a bird, with the exception of certain named species, unless under the license of a special certificate.

The Miser's Carpet.

"Dr. Quain, the eminent physician, full of Hibernian wit, would sometimes tell unnumbered anecdotes of his professional experiences," says Sir Algernon West in "One City and Many Men." "Once he was attending a well known man of miserly habits in Mayfair, who when very ill asked him to honestly tell him if he would ever again rise from his bed of sickness."

"The doctor thought he never would. 'Please ring the bell,' said the patient, and when he had secured the attendance of his housekeeper he said: 'Have the strip of carpet by my bedside, which is a good one, wrapped up and put away. I shall not want it again, and if it is left here those undertaker's men will be sure to spoil it with their dirty boots!'"

A Man's Tact. Nobody but Mr. Henley would have asked such a question in the first place. "Miss Fairley," he said, "if you could make yourself over what kind of hair and eyes would you have?"

"If I could make myself over," said Miss Fairley, "I would look just exactly as I do now."

"You would?" exclaimed Henley in honest surprise, and to this day he can't understand why Miss Fairley thinks him a man of little taste and less tact.

A Real Dilemma. "Say, Mike," queried Piddling Pete, who was looking at the piece of a Sunday school paper that had come with a handout, "wot does it mean 'bout beln' between de devil an' de deep sea?'"

"It's de same as beln' told 't take yer choice between golin' 't workin' 'takin' a bath," explained Meandering Mike.—Chicago News.

A Friend in Need. "Loan me a dollar, 'till I can," said the actor. "I'm hungry."

"I'm broke myself," responded the stage manager, "but I'll put you on in the bill tonight. We have an eating scene."

"Mar, I'll starve before night." "But that case I'll call a rehearsal."—St. Louis Republic.

Music. All music is more or less dramatic, and so the march of music is toward the theater. The times of mere enjoyment of tone combinations are past.—Herr Nilisch.
