LIGHT DRAUGHT POTATO HARVESTER

Machines which will imitate the action of the human hand are recognized to be the best substitutes of hand work, and hundreds of the best agricultural machines now in successful operation are based on the idea of a mechanical imitation of the human body. Have you ever seen a machine which imitates the action of human hands in digging potatoes? No; because none of the potato diggers now in use and handled by the trade are constructed along the lines of this idea. Our Light Draught Potato Harvester works like the old style forks under the guidance of human hands, and is therefore the best and only substitute for hand work in digging potatoes under any and all conditions. During the discussion it appeared that one of the measures which it was desired to have taken up was an omnibus bridge bill, which was being pressed by Senator Frye. Senator Nelson isked whether, if Mr. Bailey's request thould be granted, the bill known as the South Carolina dam bill would be included. Mr. Frye replied: "It is very important that that dam bill should be passed." The remark of the senator from Maine came so enexpectedly that the Senate was convulsed with laughter. Several senators insisted that the conference report be read in full Monday to avoid undue haste, and the Senate dragged through a seven-hour session. Senator Daniel opened the debate on the report, charging that the Democratic members of the finance committee had been dealt with unfairly in that they had not been permitted to vote in committee on the adoption of the report. He claimed that an agreement entered into for that purpose with Mr. Aldrich had been violated. Intentional violation was disavowed by Mr. Aldrich, who could not agree with Mr. Daniel as to what had occurred between them. Senator Bristow said the bill did not keep party pledges and he would not vote for it. The Senate adjourned at 4:16 o'clock till 10 o'clock Tuesday.

The Republicans showed up in the House on the 29th in great numbers, having been notified to be present in anticipation of the reception of the conference report on the tariff. Three hundred and fifty of the 390 members were in their seats when Chairman Payne passed up to the speaker's desk the bulky document which has occupied the attention of Congress for four and half months, and then the Republicans broke out into loud applause. Origin of Windfall. What precisely is the origin of the expression "a windfall," which Mr. Asquith, Lord Avebury and others use, each with an application of his own, in speaking of budget matters? An old encyclopaedia explains that some families of the English nobility held their land on a tenure which forbade them to cet down trees, these being reserved as the property of the Royal navy. But any tree which fell down without human asistance they might keep, so that a hurri-ane causing a great "windfall" was teartily welcome. It seems probable, owever, that the expression was simpler in origin. Even an apple that fell to the ground without the trouble of picking it, and which a passerby might often annex without feeling that he was a thief, would be a lucky "windfall."— London Chronicle.

STRIKE IN SWEDEN TIES UP BUSINESS

TROOPS ARE CALLED OUT IN STOCKHOLM AND PEOPLE ARE ARMING THEMSELVES.

FOOD SUPPLY IN DANGER

Ferries Stop Running and Labor Leaders Claim Railroads and Telephones Will Soon Be Cut Off.

TOURISTS LEAVE THE CAPITAL.

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 4. - The labor conflict in Sweden shows signs of becoming more acute. While the ranks of the strikers are considerably swelled, the general strike called for today has not small arms. All tourists have left Stock-holm, and the number of visitors now in the city are smaller than at this season for many years past. Although the railroad men have de-cided not to strike, the government is taking the precaution to guard the tracks with troops, fearing attempts to blow up bridges or injure the permanent way. Quantities of dynamite are reported to have mysteriously disappeared recently from the government stores.

The leaders of the strikers claim that the end of the week will see a notable spread of the movement; that the railroad, postal, telegraph and telephone employes and the printers will by that time have joined in the strike.

Milk Supplies Cut Off.

This afternoon guards were posted in the market places and the railroad stations. All milk supplies have been cut off, and thousands of babies are suffering from lack of nourishment and the change from cow's milk to canned milk. All the ferries have stopped running, and there is little communication be-tween Stockholm and the suburbs reached by water routes. This fact will result in a further diminution of food supplies.

The labor conflict that is at the bottom of this trouble originated in a dispute over wages in the woolen and cotton in-dustries. In the beginning 13,000 men were locked out, and other industries since have become involved.

NO ELEVATED STRIKE.

Car Men Above Ground in Chicago Will Not Go Out in Sympathy with Surface Lines.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 4.-If the threatened strike on the surface street car lines of Chicago takes place, the public may still depend on the four elevated lines. The heads of the elevated lines declared that their employes are working under a perfectly satisfactory agreement which has a year more to run. "The effect of a strike on the surface lines," said Mason B. Starring, president of the Northwestern elevated, "would be merely to increase the traffic on the elevated lines. There is not the slightest chance of our men going out in sympathy with the surface men."

There are nearly 1000 miles of surface lines in Chicago, however, and a tie-up, despite all that the elevated roads could do, would entail great inconvenience, particularly in many sections not reached by the overhead system. In addition the strike would cost the city millions of dollars in loss of business. Hope of averting the strike is still held out.

the general, "it will be time enough for sake, not for what you could get out me to think of doing so. I have had one letter from her. She seems quite cheerful and happy."

Ianthe's letter ran as follows-

"My Dear Grandfather: We arrived quite safely and found this place all right. I was surprised to find that my father had married again. However, Mrs. Macqueen is very friendly and kind. My father is not so well off as I thought, so our house is not very big. I have some duties to do, both in the house and out of it, for which I am very glad, as the time would pass very slowly in the town otherwise. I hope you are well, and that everybody else is the same. I miss the hills and the fresh air, but when the weather improves I shall get out more. With love .- Your affectionate granddaughter.

"IANTHE PATRICIA MACQUEEN."

This letter had been penned three days after her arrival. The three days had semed like as many years. From a life of ease and luxury, lanthe found herself suddenly transplanted to one of constant drudgery. In the early morning she had to assist with the work of the house, for Mrs. Macqueen kept no servant, relying upon herself and a woman who occasionally came in for the day. These duties performed, she had been introduced to the studio, and Mrs. Macqueen had initiated her into the mysteries of her work there. This consisted mainly of interviewing customers, making appointments, advising as to the style of picture, etc. Later she would be expected to keep the books, but in the meanwhile her duties in the studio were fairly light.

For the first few days Ianthe lived as one in a dream. She was utterly dazed at this extraordinary mode of life, too dazed to experience anything but sheer physical exhaustion after the day's work was over and she had exchanged the confinement of the studio for the greater confinement of the house. She had spent most of her days in the free air of heaven, surrounded by lovely scenery. Now she was pent here in durance vile along with people with whom she had not a taste nor an idea in common. She had not been a day there without realizing that there was no real kinship between her and her father. She felt more sympathy with her step-mother, who, whatever she lacked in breeding and education, had a kind heart and was inclined to make things easy for the your duties," said her father the first "Of course I'll take your work with morning at drones in this hive, Ianthe. Your mother has more than enough to do already, and there will be more by-and-by. I know you have not been accustomed to any wholesome employment, but here things are different. You're with your father now, as you ought to be. By the way, your grandfather said nothing about giving you an allowance, I sup-an uneasy laugh. "Anthy will cost nothing but her keep," interposed Mrs. Macqueen with her usual good nature. "Indeed it is just the other way round, for it's not only a young lady in the studio, but a servant girl as well that she saves us. You know we discussed all that before we asked her to come." She beamed at Ianthe, feeling that she had set matters straight with every one. Ianthe's young face set in graver lines than before. A dull feeling of despair was creeping gradually over her heart. She remembered how her father's letter had seemed to her the call of affection; she remembered how her heart had stirred eagerly in response. And this had been his motive-to save a young lady in the studio and a servant girl. The letter to her grandfather was written with pain and care. Not for worlds would the proud girl reveal one atom of the stifling despair that overwhelmed her. She had made her choice in a blind ignorance and faith that astonished her now, and by it she must abide. As she sat late at night in the tiny, ill-furnished den she called her room, writing this letter, her heart went back with a sick longing to the home she had left. Only a week ago she had thought rerself miserable, she had thought herself a prisoner, ill-used and neglected. If she had been a prisoner there, in the wild, free me?"

"Oh, if I had only known a little!" she mused. "If I had not been so dense- temptation seized her to go with him, ly, darkly ignorant of life and all its ways! I did not know that people lived like this. I knew nothing, nothing!" The first tears she had shed since her

Mr. Macqueen made no objection to Ianthe going out for a while. The arrival of Sir Denis Ingraham created quite a stir in the household. When lanthe went in to put on her hat, Mrs. Macqueen got into a great flutter of ex-

The words, the manner, the atrocious grammar, grated on the girl as never Denis with a radiant face. The thought to insult and humiliate. He stormed before. Nevertheless she returned to of a holiday, a breath of air, an outing with a congenial companion, was sufficient to banish all thoughts save those of pleasure from her mind.

"Take me right into the country," she said, "and tell me all the news of home." Denis did as he was bid. It was a bright March day, and in the air was a touch of coming spring. It seemed to Ianthe that heaven was on earth that afternoon. She listened eagerly to all the news Denis had to bring, asked a thousand questions about her former home, and heard with interest the account of what Denis was doing on his estate, which he had inherited on the death of his father two or three months before. Denis, too, felt very happy. It was delightful to see the color returning to Ianthe's cheeks and the sparkle to her eves. He noticed with a strange mingling of amusement and pain how her mind had matured during those few months. It seemed impossible that she was the same girl as the imprisoned princess who cried to be released from at her eager face with a smile. "Oh, long ago!" she said. "Fairy princes don't grow in Glasgow, I am

"Yes," said the girl, her cheeks crimson. "He did."

"Oh, Anthy, my dear!" cried Mrs. Macqueen. "To think you kept that to yourself! My dear, I'm just as glad as can be, for this sort of life doesn't suit you. All the same, I can hardly fancy you as 'my lady.' Just think, John, Anthy being 'my lady,'" and the enthusiastic creature put her arms round Ianthe and gave her a boisterous kiss.

TO BE CONTINUED. WEALTH IN POTATOES.

In Aroostook County, Me., Shipments Were Fifteen Million Bushels

Aroostook county, Me., produces more potatoes than any other territory of its size in the United States and probably in the world, says the Utica Press. Shipments from the county for 1908 were 15,000,000 bushels, for which the farmers received 80 cents to $1 per bushel. The aggregate receipts for the crop will reach very near $12,000,000. In former years 40 cents a bushel has been regarded as a high price, as it is double the cost of production. The prosperity brought by the 1908 crop has aroused the wildest enthusiasm. Men, women and children are talking potatoes in their waking hours and dreaming about them when they sleep.

The acreage of the county will be doubled this season and it is believed that Christmas will find a piano in every farm house and an automobile in barn. There will be a good market for Aroostook potatoes, but it is hardly probable that a dollar a bushel will be paid. Every producing section of the country is preparing for an increased acreage, and with an average crop there will be no shortage. At half a dollar or less a bushel the potato will be the leading vegetable on the American table. Above that figure for and length of time will materially reduce consumption.

CARUSO IS BACK "O. K."

Tenor's Voice Even Clearer Than Before Operation-Given Splendid Reception.

OSTEND, Aug. 2.—After a long absence from the stage and concert rooms, Caruso reappeared last night before at least 10,000 people of Ostend and Kursaal, whose curiosity had been on tenterhooks to know the effect the recent operation had on the voice of the great tenor. When he entered the balcony to sing the opening aria of the "Paradise" from "La Fricane" a sudden hush fell over the great audience. It was an immense relief to realize immediately that his voice, though perhaps not quite as pure and fresh as when first heard in America six years ago, was still beautiful, more lovely by far in quality than it seemed last spring and admirably under control. Caruso's voice has lost much of the rough, dark, barytonic quality which marred it latterly. It was more nearly what it used to be, a genuine tenor, lyrical yet uneffeminate. WASHINGTON, D. C., August 2.-Two new Taft stories were put in circulation today. One involves Senator Borah of Idaho, and the other Senator Bourne of Oregon.

The secret of the friendship of Senator Bourne and the President is out. Senator Bourne was the most rabid of Roosevelt shouters, and he made a serious effort to defeat Mr. Taft at the Chicago convention. Nowadays the two men are chums on the golf links.

"How does it come that you and Bourne are so thick?" asked one of the President's visitors. "He certainly was against you for the presidency and tried to upset your ambitions with his second ective term theory."

'You can't expect me to quarrel with Bourne because he believes in a second elective term, can you?" asked the Presi-dent. "I am somewhat of a believer in that doctrine myself."

WAGNER IS GUILTY; GETS THREE YEARS FOR PERJURING

"AN AGGRAVATED OFFENSE,"

These Are Words Used by Judge Donovan When Defendant Appears Before Him.

YOCKEY PLEADS FOR LENIENCY.

MADISON, Wis., July 31 .- [Special. ]-Found guilty of perjury last Friday afternoon, Frank T. Wagner of ing. Milwaukee was this morning sentenced to serve three years in state's prison at Waupun. Judge Donovan, in speak-ing sentence, referred to the case as an "aggravated offense," and the district attorney asked that the extreme penalty be imposed.

When asked by the court if he had anything to say why sentence should not be pronounced, Wagner arose from his seat and standing before the judge made reply. He read from a written statement which he said he had prepared as to his meaning. He said: "I have no apology to offer to this court, to the senatorial investigation committee, or to anybody connected with this case for what I have said or done. Were I offered immunity or freedom to repudiate that testimony I would refuse it. I would rather be at peace with my God and Maker and be in prison, and I am not desirous of going there either."

Yockey's Motions Denied. When court opened, Attorney Yockey offered two motions, one that the finding of the jury be set aside as contrary to the law and evidence, and the other for a stay of sentence because certain points of law were involved which the supreme court has never passed upon.

Both were denied.

Mr. Yockey made a short plea for leniency. He said other men had committed perjury before the investigation committee, but Wagner was the only one who was unfortunate enough to be arrested for it.

"I still believe the story of this de-

"I still believe the story of this de-fendant is true in its main points," he said. "Senator Marsh told me Friday night that Wagner's story was still true in its main points."

An Aggravated Case.

The district attorney replied that he did not believe Senator Marsh had been correctly quoted by counsel and that he did not believe that a story like Wagner's could stand up. Mr. Mason added, "It is a most aggravated case. In addition to the palpable misstatement of facts, there was a further offense in Darkest San Franspeaking falsely against the good name of five reputable men."

Here Wagner said in reply to the statement of the district attorney in re-gard to the character of these other men, "I wish to state that my character is as good as theirs." Wagner was taken to Waupun at 1 o'clock today. By good conduct he will be released after serving two years and six months.

Going to his shanty, he is said to have loaded the hsotgun and then paddled across a short cut in the river, meeting the excursion boat as it came around the bend. The child, whimpering with terror, clung to the dress of her Chinese foster mother, and regarding her rescuers as enemies refused to be fed and cared for by them.

Miss S. Donaldina Cameron of the Presbyterian Rescue mission, who, with a policeman, rescued the child, first heard of her through anonymous letters, stat-ing that a white baby, named Mah Ho, was imprisoned in a notorious opium and gambling den.

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE AND LABOR HAS EVIDENCE THAT BUSINESS IS RECOVERING.

NEED MEN TO SAVE CROPS.

Situation in North Dakota Is Acute and 12,000 Harvest Hands Are Needed at Once.

GOOD SCALE OF WAGES OFFERED.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 4.-Indisputable evidence that the country is rapidly recovering from the effects of the recent financial depression and that it now is on the crest of a great prosperity wave, is furnished by appeals received by the division of information of the department of commerce and labor, particularly from the west. The greatest cry for labor comes from Lincoln, Neb. The commercial bodies of that city made a similar appeal before the panic, but following the "slump" countermanded the request for labor.

In a letter received from W. S. Whitten, secretary of the Commercial club a great need of labor, both skilled and common, throughout the state, particularly in Lincoln and Omaha, and the smaller cities where more or less manufacturing is done. The development of manufacturing in Nebraska has been retarded in a large measure through the lack of labor, both male and female."

Good Wages Are Paid. A scale of wages is submitted, showing that "good money" is paid laborers.

Shortly following the panic a La Crosse, Wis., manufacturing company wrote that "we will not have any difficulty in getting all the help we want now," but through Representative Esch of that state that concern now writes. of that state that concern now writes that it wants "ten or fifteen families of five children each.

Farm Hands Needed.

The labor situation in North Dakota The labor situation in North Pakota is acute. In response to inquiries made by the agricultural college, sixty-four towns in the state report an almost uniformly heavy crop with less than two weeks of harvest, and a scarcity of men on the ground, as compared to the number usually present at this time of the ber usually present at this time of the year. Forty-three of these towns have made estimates of the number of men required to handle the crops of the contiguous territory, and on the most conservative basis these calls for labor foot up a total of 8100 men. It is a very conservative statement to say that today North Dakota stands in need of not less than 12,000 harvest hands, and probably that number can be increased to 15,000 without slackening the demand. The wages run from $2 to $3 per day together with board. Work will be plenty from now until snow flies.

Latest London Craze.

The latest craze among the ultra-fashonables of London is to have dirty faces. Some few years ago the same young men developed a fancy for perambulating the streets without hats, but the coming of the automobile has changed the mode of showing that you are not quite as other men. The idea is to carry just enough dirt to look like fast long dis-tance riders who have had no time to remove the traces of locomotion. A slight lisarray of the tie and collar is a great aid to the illusion, while the real artist will add a slight suggestion of cramp in the legs. A finishing touch is given by an oily smear on the nose. This may seem like an exaggeration, but it is not more absurd than the fashion of a century ago, when young men aspired to look like coachmen or jockeys.—Dundee

TO FLUSH FOX RIVER

Drought in Valley May Cause Epidemic of Disease Unless Winnebago Dam Gates Are Opened.

APPLETON, Wis., Aug. 3 .- [Special.1-City Physician Ellsworth has announced that unless heavy rains occur in this vicinity before Thursday he will make application to the government and to the Neenah and Menasha Water Power company to open the dam gates and flush the Fox river, fearing that unless this is done a disease epidemic might occur in Appleton and other cities of the Fox River valley. The prolonged drought has brought about a condition very similar to that of a year ago when the water in the lakes and river became so polluted that thousands of fish were killed and the stench was so offensive that people in cities along the river could scarcely stand it. The source of supply of the Appleton Water Works company is the Fox river, and the water now being pumped through the pipes of that company is so polluted that it is not safe to use it even for kitchen purposes. It is believed that if the gates on the up-river dams are opened for several hours daily the river can be flushed and much of the filth and pollution carried into Green bay. Many of the cottagers along the summer resorts on the north shore of Lake Winnebago have been obliged to return to their city homes, being unable to stand the stench.

A number of ancient relics have been found from time to time during the last few years upon the site of old Fort St. Louis, which La Salle, the noted French explorer, and his band of adventurers erected upon the east bank of the Navidad river, just above where Port Lavaca is now situated, in 1685. One of these historic reminders of the visit of the famous explorer is a cross which is made of iron. It was found several feet be-neath the surface near the bank of the river. It is now in possession of Harry Bickford of Port Lavaca.

It was from Fort St. Louis that La Salle started upon his ill-fated expedi-tion into the interior in search of the Mississippi river. He entered Pass Cavallo and explored Matagorda bay in the original belief, it is said, that it was here that the Mississippi river emptled its broad waters. He spent some time exploring the coast in this section and then went up the Navidad river ten miles and there built a little fort. The site of this first settlement is full of beauty. The timbers of the ancient fort have long since been rotted, but there are still heaps of stone and pieces of iron to be found scattered about upon the

The trip which La Salle and his band of explorers made across the country in search of the Mississippi river was full of dangers and hardships. They are said to have left a few men behind to retain possession of Fort St. Louis. What became of these men history does not say. THE PRICE OF WHALEBONE. Shrinkage in Weight and Other Causes

Raise Its Value. The assertion that an attempt is being made to corner the whalebone supply of the world and boost the price to $5 a pound is denied by William J. "There has been no attempt to raise the price of bone nor will there be such a move," said Mr. Lewis this morning.
"The sale of bone last year amounted to about 100,000 pounds and will probably be the same this year. There has been no market for bone yet, nor will there be until this fall. There is a big shrinkage in the weight of whalebone amounting to 5 to 15 per cent. from Nome here, 10 to 20 per cent. from Seattle to New Bedford and 5 to 10 per cent. from New Bedford to Paris, making a shrinkage in value of from $1 to $1.50 a pound. ### FOR WOMEN AND GIRLS

Do we ever realize how imitative children are? It is a great and solemn thing to realize, and it should make us very careful of our behavior. If children are so quick at aping words and manners, how much more must they abone's opinions and expressed thoughts!

sad fact that a great many husbands are far neater about their belongings than their wives, and many a man has decided that matrimony was a failure be-cause the house resembled a rag box rather than a home. Every neat man with orderly habits ought to be such a reproach to the opposite kind of woman that she should retire from society until she changed her ways. If we are not neat and methodical in our ways we are lacking in the chief attribute of mats on which photographs are mounted. woman. She meant to keep the world in order and to make life beautiful, while man his whole time to work. Not all the good qualities in the world can redeem the sloppy woman from being a failure as a woman. She can be a brilliant, witty and good, but she is a poor carpets. Hang the broom from creature if she is slovenly in appearance and if her home is one jumble of dust and things out of place. We cannt all and things out of place. We cannt all have rich and beautiful things around Some of us must go clad in cotton and eat from pine boards. But those boards should be scrubbed until they glisten like snow, and the cotton dress should be as fresh as the morning.
And, madam, there is no need of your wearing cheap jewelry that needs re-pairing, cheap laces that need washing and cheap feathers that won't curl, and you don't have to use in your house spotted tablecloths dust covered bric-a-brac and broken furniture. Better an empty room with four bare walls.

The right way to bring up a child is by good example. Punishing the little one will do very little good if she sees the grownups doing the same things unreproved. How about teaching selfontrol when you lose your own temper at the slightest provocation and mope over every little bad turn that happens to you? And what about self-respect and neatness when you go about the house in a soiled wrapper and gossip over subjects which belong to the yelow papers? No, indeed! Hours of ly dangerous to the health. lecturing do not count against one min-ute of bad example. Be the things yourself that you want your children to be. That is the only kind of teaching that will make any kind of impression on Outing Magazine gives this hint for women campers. The question of underclothes is very simple. No corsets of any kind should be taken and no lingerie. Men's or boys' style underwear should be worn, preferably in two pieces. Three suits will be plenty, and in general it is advisable to have two of these medium weight. This is warm enough for the average cool day in summer, and two suits may be worn at the same time if necessary. The third should be either very heavy winter weight or the lightest summer weight according to the time of year and the climate. Both will never be necessary.

A Milwaukee woman who knows, says that one of the best ways to hang a skirt to keep it from wrinkling, is to fold the skirt at the band three or four times, and thrust a strong hatpin through it. It may then be hung from the pin, over a hook in the closet or wardrobe. The pin will be found strong enough to hold the heaviest skirt, and when wanted for wear it will be found to be free from wrinkles. This woman claims that her way is better than the wire or wooden skirt holders.

A laundress gives this advice about removing grass stains: "If they are new stains, wash them with cold water and ammonia, but if they are stains of ong standing, wash them in alcohol. If the stains are on colored goods that may fade, apply molasses before wetting. To remove stains from white goods, use a paste made of soap and baking soda."

'A woman's work is in the home.' This remark whether true or false, is certainly very old, but scarcely less old is the male conviction that after all there is really no work worth mentioning to be done in the home. In southern Nigeria, however, they know better. An explorer in those parts has brought back the information that the reason given by the natives for the practice of polygamy which prevails among them is that impossible for one woman to do all the work of the house.

The pretties bathing dresses this year are in a pricess model, with tights sep-arate, buttoned to a stiff piece of belting. which is attached to the gown at the waist line. It is a mistake to think that for swimming anything at all will do, and that the fit really does not greatly matter. On the contrary, everything depends upon whether or not the suit fits trimly and the headgear is a becoming shade and prettily adjusted. It is as impor-tant, therefore, for a bathing suit to be made to measurement as any party frock, and it is worth while to procure good material, for there are certain textures which will wear several sumwhile the poorer grades of silk and alpaca are scarcely worth the making up. Peau de cygne wears perhaps better than any other fabric, but the best mohairs will also give service. Dark blue relieved with white or a light blue collar, tie and belt is in the long run the best for the purpose, since red, attractive as it is for a bathsing suit, is almost sure to run, and black is too old and unbecoming. dium weight cotton stockings of the same shade as the suit are more attractive than black.

"I always keep a wide laundry bag in the children's room," a careful Newark woman said to a neighbor a few days ago. "I find it is an easy matter to throw soiled clothes into it when dressing the children in the morning, and there is seldom any possibility of them getting mixed up again with the clean clothes in the wardrobe. The bag is fastened to the back of the washstand which stands diagonally in a corner of the room, and the top of it is kept open, while in use, by throwing back the wide flap with which it is made."

Summer visiting requires many gowns of many kinds, and going about from one house to another leaves little time for freshening and replenishing of the wardrobe, so that the prudent woman makes every effort to have the question of her summer clothes definitely settled before the season's campaign opens. Un ined muslin frocks, lingerie gowns, linen ongee and silk coat and skirt costumes are obligatory unless it is settled without a doubt that the entire season is to be spent in some cool climate where only ight wool can be worn with comfort Even in such a latitude the thinnest of frocks form part of every really up-todate trousseau, for summer is the time to wear the summer gown and there are many clever devices which are util There is no excuse ror the untidy, distinged to make the thinnest of gowns orderly woman—she who leaves odds warm enough for comfort. A prominent member of the Women's Local Government society of London has as a motto "The Home Is Woman's Sphere." In supporting this proposal she said there was no other grand old say ing which had been so cruelly misused It had been used to support laziness, in difference and selfishness. It would be a great thing for England when men realized that it was not mere love of no toriety or desire for excitement that was sending women into public life, but growing recognition of the fact that the home was woman's sphere. But that did not mean home in the narrow sense of woman's individual home; it meant the home generally, and especially the homes of the poor. What was the use of try ing to teach the laws of health to wom en who lived in miserable, unsanitary homes or of trying to teach modesty to young girls when they lived amid condi-tions so crowded that they never knew one moment of privacy?

Science seems disposed to spoil the girl of the present day. A famous doc-tor has actually announced before the august body of the French Academy of Science that it is unwise to rise the moment one is called. Girls who have been dancing half the night will rejoice in the knowledge that they are only acting for the best when they refuse to get up in the morning as soon as they are

PEARLS FROM COCOANUTS. Mysteries That Scientists Have Never Been Able to Explain.

In the museum at Kew is a pearl scarfpin, only remarkable at a glance because that is about the last place where one would look for such an object. The diameter is not much less than half an inch, the color pure milk white, the polish excellent; if it so glossy as it should be, one often sees family pearls of renown as deficient in luster. This has been exposed to the light for many years, says The Pall Mall

In fact, one would not question that it was an ornament of considerable valueas it might be, indeed, if carried to certain Oriental markets; but here only ence feels an interest in it, for this is of nature's imitations, so like the real thing that chemical analysis can recognize no difference to be relied on.

It is the product of a cocoanut. As much was known about these very extraordinary objects two centuries and a half ago as at present, saving their chemical composition. The great Rumphius not only drew up a careful account of them, but even sent a specimen in 1683 to the Grand Duke of Tuscany, who had it mounted in a ring. Other notices have been discovered. If the reports were believed in a prescientific age, they ran no chance of acceptance when the limitations of nature were better understood. Those few who read the old tale paid no attention to such absurdity.

It seems to have been forgotten, this country at any rate, when Dr. Hickson told it over again in 1887. While exploring Celebes he had often been asked by Dutch painters and others about "cocoanut pearls," to what purpose we are not informed, but it would not be surprising to learn that these gentlemen shared the faith of the natives, who attribute all manner of virtues to these rare products. Or they may have inquired with an eye to business, for mandarins and rajahs will pay a great price for them as charms.

In 1888 Dr. Harley read a paper on the composition of pearls before the Royal society, and he did not overlook these eccentric varieties. "In external appearance," he says, "they resemble the real thing at every point, having a smooth, glistening, dull white surface." Their material is the same—carbonate of lime organic matter and water. So of lime, organic matter and water. So s their microscopic structure.

In fact, the identity was so close that Dr. Harley suspected the specimens submitted to him were actually shell pearls, for he found traces of animal substances. But his report is useful all the same, for he discovered that there is no carbonate of lime in the milk of the cocoanut by which these abnormal objects must be deposited, so far as we can see.

It only remains to say that they have not been found or not reported except in the far eastern countries, where it is said one in two thousand cocoanuts may yield a specimen; one would think this estimate too liberal when they are so rarely heard of. Examples as large as a cherry are on record, always perfectly spherical or pear shaped.

OLD MUSKET IN A TREE.

Flintlock of Revolutionary Times Found in Hollow of a Log.

Lumbermen employed by the Pennsylvania Lumber company found a Revolutionary musket embedded in a tree cut down near Shohola, Pike county, Pa. A huge pine tree was cut down, but the butt was defective and in order to secure a sound end to the log the diseased part was cut off. In doing so it was found that this portion of the tree was hollow and the aperture had grown over so that it was not observable to woodchopper. In the hollow was an oldfashioned flint-lock musket, such as was in use by the pioneers of this region The spot where the musket was found Eczema Made Hands and Feet Swell, Peel and Get Raw-Arms Affected, Too-Gave Up All Hope of Cure -Quickly Cured by Cuticura.

"I suffered from eczema on my hands, arms and feet for about twelve years, my hands and feet would swell. sweat and itch, then would become callous and get very dry, then peel off and get raw. I tried most every kind of salve and ointment without success. I tried several doctors, but at last gave up thinking there was a cure for eczema. A friend of mine insisted on my trying the Cuticura Remedies, but I did not give them a trial until I got so bad that I had to do something. I secured a set and by the time they were used I could see a vast improvement and my hands and feet were healed up in no time. I have had no treable since. Charles T. Bauer, R. F. Myo'sa, of Chentung, Swaps Gifts with a White Man. When traveling through the Shan states I had the honor of being presented to the smallest King in the world, the Sawbwa, or Myo'sa of Chentung.

He stood, as nearly as I could judge, about 4 feet 9 inches in his curly Burmese slippers and was the quintessence of regal courtesy. His "palace" was a thatched hut on stilts, close to the Salween river. He had several wives, who manifested great curiosity when they saw their lord in conversation with a white man, and his retinue consisted of some four and twenty men, armed with the quaintest col-lection of old guns that ever came out of a curiosity shop, the London Standard says. The little brown King held out a small, plump hand for me to shake. It was as soft as a woman's. He bade me wel-come with a smile the most genial I ever saw and begged me to accept a cocoa-

THE NEW WOMAN.

Made Over by Quitting Coffee. Coffee probably wrecks a greater percentage of Southerners than of Northern people for Southerners use it more freely. The work it does is distressing enough in some instances; as an illustration, a woman of Richmond, Va.

"I was a coffee drinker for years and for about six years my health was completely shattered. I suffered fearfully with headaches and nervousness, also palpitation of the heart and loss of appetite.

"My sight gradually began to fail and finally I lost the sight of one eye altogether. The eye was operated upon and the sight partially restored, then I became totally blind in the other eye.

"My doctor used to urge me to give up coffee, but I was willful and continued to drink it until finally in a case of severe illness the doctor insisted that I must give up the coffee, so I began using Postum and in a month I felt like a new creature.

"I steadily gained in health and strength. About a month ago I began using Grape-Nuts food and the effect has been wonderful. I really feel like a new woman and have gained about 25 pounds.

"I am quite an elderly lady and before using Postum and Grape-Nuts I could not walk a square without exceeding fatigue, now I walk ten or twelve without feeling it. Formerly in reading I could remember but little but now my memory holds fast what
