LIGHT DRAUGHT POTATO HARVESTER

Machines which will imitate the action of the human hand are recognized to be the best substitutes of hand work, and hundreds of the best agricultural machines now in successful operation are based on the idea of a mechanical imitation of the human body. Have you ever seen a machine which imitates the action of human hands in digging potatoes? No; because none of the potato diggers now in use and handled by the trade are constructed along the lines of this idea. Our Light Draught Potato Harvester works like the old style forks under the guidance of human hands, and is therefore the best and only substitute for hand work in digging potatoes under any and all conditions. You are invited to see this machine on exhibition at

Kewaskum-Loses to West Bend

In a Very Sensational Game the Locals Lose on Account of Crossing the Signals by a Score of 2 to 3

The local ball team, with fully 100 rooters journeyed to West Bend Sunday for an afternoon's entertainment, with the team of that city, which would have resulted in a victory for our boys, if signals would not have been crossed in the 6th inning, when Wasieck got a 3 base hit and was caught napping on third, Backus failing to cover the bag on Doyle's throw.

Although the locals lost, it is considered a great victory, as they were taken for a "Big Bunch of Dubs," but showed the semi-professionals that they were in their class. The locals with Doyle and Schaefer as their battery, played a remarkable game, and out-batted their opponents 2 to 1. Sievers and Reinke done the stunts for the Benders. Taylor the cast off, of the West Bend ball team played the star game of the day, accepting every chance in center garden, several times bringing the crowd to cheers on his wonderful catching, thereby cutting off a number of hits for the Benders.

The locals ever since the first game of the season played at the county seat, which was arranged as a practice game, were anxious to arrange another game with the classy bunch of players, but were told to first get a "Reputation," so it is now a pleasure to state that they have one.

This no doubt, and West Bend admits, was the hardest fought game they played this year. Just to show what they thought of the locals, a letter was received signed by the manager (whom everybody knows) telling our boys to first go and get a "reputation" that Kewaskum would not be a drawing card and that the locals ought to pay even then for playing, as it would be merely a favor if they gave them a game. If this is not swiftness of the upper part of a human being, wonder what is, and do hope the same has come down to its normal size, if not, this very same person is very badly in need of a porous plaster to cover it.

The treatment accorded the locals while at West Bend was good outside of this very same Manager who called the team a "Bunch of Dubs," with a "Farmer Boy" as their pitcher, wonder if he still thinks that our boys are still a "Bunch of Dubs," with a "Farmer Boy" as their pitcher.

Schmidt, of the locals, was laid out of the game in the third inning, when the West Bend second base man struck him above the pit of the stomach with his elbow.

West Bend were the first to score, and which came in the first inning, Meyer was hit by a pitched ball, was sacrificed on Regner's bunt of a foul ball, but called a fair hit and crossed the rubber on Bruhy's bunt between third and shortstop. In the third the locals took the lead, scoring two runs on a pretty single by Backus, scoring on Martin's 2-base hit, J. Schaefer singled, Martin advanced to third and scored on Schmidt's bunt along the third base line, Schaefer was napped trying to steal home, this ended the run getting for the locals, although they had several chances. West Bend tied the score in their half of the third, Meyer being an easy out, Regner drew a pass, stole second and scored on Wasieck's two base hit. The sixth was the fatal inning, Wasieck, the first man up got a three base hit and scored on signals being crossed, Doyle throwing the ball over third base, with no one covering the base, which won the game for West Bend.

Score by innings
West Bend 1 0 1 0 0 1 0 0 x-3
Summary: Stolen bases—West Bend, 5, Kewaskum 2, Earned runs West Bend 1, Kewaskum 2, Two-base hit—Kewaskum 1, Three-base hit—West Bend 1. Bases on balls—by Sievers 3, by Doyle 3. Struck out—by Sievers 3, by Doyle 5. Left on bases—West Bend 3, Kewaskum 4. Hit by pitcher—by Doyle 1.

NOTES:
Get a "Reputation," Farmer Doyle was there. Oh! Kewaskum, the "Big Bunch of Dubs."

West Bend was caught at their own game. Nothing but Baby balls did Kewaskum play.

Manager Regner was very quite after the game.

Oh, we love your team, but oh, you Foxy Grand Pa.
Wasieck for West Bend carried off the batting honors.

Bruhy robbed Martin of a sure home run in the seventh, by making a great running catch, running with the ball.

Teachers' Institutes for Washington County

To be held at West Bend, August 23-27.

The regular summer institute for the teachers of Washington County will be held at the high school building in the city of West Bend during the week beginning Aug. 23. Plans have been completed for making this the best institute ever held in the county, and as it may possibly be the last summer institute for some time to come, everyone who intends to teach should attend the full time—5 days. All who have taught are urgently requested to bring with them their Manuals and circulars entitled How To Have A Good School.

The work will be in charge of L. S. Keeley of Mayville, J. F. Riordan of Milwaukee, and I. C. Coates of Hillsboro. Mr. Keeley will be leading conductor.

The fall examinations will be held Saturday, Aug. 28, and Monday, Aug. 30.

HOLD FAMILY REUNION.

The first reunion of the Kapelle family held in thirty years took place Sunday at the home of Herman Kapelle, near Cascade. The brothers and sisters who were present are Jacob Kapelle, of Northfield, Minn.; Mrs. William Sauter, Sheboygan; Fred Kapelle of Plymouth; Gus Kapelle, owner of the saw mill at Batavia; Herman Kapelle of Cascade; Henry Kapelle of Marshfield; Mrs. R. Winkler of Plymouth and Mrs. August Weinholt, residing near Cascade.

In all 100 or more persons, including children and grand-children were present at the reunion. The day was devoted to informal visiting and exchanging experiences. Some of the brothers and sisters have not met in thirty years. The big barn on the Kapelle farm, was pressed into service to accommodate the large number of guests.

Retires After Making $25,000, 000 in Seventeen Years.

Richard W. Sears of the big mail order house in Chicago retired last week from active business at the age of 45 years, worth $25,000,000.

His practical interest in the business he founded, Sears, Roebuck & Co., ceased with the sale of the last half of his stock holdings in the big mail order house to a New York syndicate.

Richard W. Sears, seventeen years ago was a telegraph operator at Redwood Falls, Minn., when he conceived the idea of the mail order business. Mr. Sears intends to devote himself to his family and to his model farm at Grays Lake, Ill.

HURT IN DIVING FOR BOY.

Fred Sprotte, aged twenty, employed in a butcher shop at Mayville, has been in a very serious condition as the result of an injury received in diving for the body of the little son of Rev. Herbener of Mayville, who was drowned last week. Sprotte injured one of his toes in diving and the wound became infected with blood poisoning, a bad case developing. It was feared that amputation would have to be resorted to but the danger passed without an operation being necessary.—Hartford Times.

Pea Canning Factories Closing Down.

The Cedarburg Pea Canning Co. completed their season's output at their plant. The late crop has been entirely destroyed by the pea-louse thus cutting short the seasons run.

The pea-louse was also discovered at Hartford, and it may result in not canning any more peas there this season. The late crop was looking fine but it does not take long for a pea-louse to destroy hundreds of acres.

Campbellsport to Have a High School.

At a special election held at Campbellsport, by the voters of the school district it was decided almost by a unanimous vote to have a high school. The election was held in the school house, the polls being open from 7 to 8 o'clock. Seventy-two votes were cast, 71 being cast in the affirmative and one in the negative.

Young Farm Hand a Burglar

While Mr. and Mrs. Henry Miller of the town of Farmington were in this city on business last Wednesday their farm hand, Fred Young, aged 21 years, forced an entrance to the Miller home and taking Mrs. Miller's gold watch and chain left for parts unknown. When Mr. and Mrs. Miller arrived at their home they discovered the theft and soon thereafter notified the sheriff's office. Sheriff Schoenbeck being out of the city, Mr. Miller and Wm. Dunkel of Barton engaged Art. Wiskirchen and his brother's auto and set out to capture the burglar. Young was seen on the road at a number of places and after following these clues for some time he was finally captured near Newburg. He is now in jail awaiting trial at the next term of the circuit court.—West Bend Pilot.

BUMPER WHEAT CROP

Winter Yield Increased 35,000,000 Bushels Over Last Month—Corn Condition Declines.

The report of the department of agriculture at Washington shows a crop yield of winter wheat of 432,000,000 for Aug. 1, which is an increase of 35,000,000 bushels, compared to a month ago and reflects a wonderful improvement in the winter wheat outlook. The final yield last year was 437,000,000 bushels. The average condition of winter wheat is 90.3 per cent, against 90.1 per cent a year ago.

Spring wheat condition is 91.6 per cent, compared to 80.7 per cent last year. The yield suggested is 286,000,000 bushels, compared to 296,000,000 bushels last month and 227,000,000 bushels a year ago. The crop is almost as good as last month and much better than last year.

The total yield of wheat suggested for the crop of 1909 is 718,000,000 bushels, compared to 693,000,000 bushels a month ago and 665,000,000 bushels last year.

The condition of corn is 84.4 per cent, against 89.3 per cent a month ago and 82.5 per cent a year ago, which suggests a crop of 2,948,000,000 bushels, compared to 3,117,000,000 bushels a month ago and 2,669,000,000 bushels a year ago. The yield is still nearly 300,000,000 bushels better than last year.

The condition of oats is 85.5 per cent against 76.8 per cent a year ago. This looks like a crop of 998,000,000 bushels, compared to 1,036,000,000 bushels last month and 807,000,000 bushels a year ago.

WORK OF CONGRESS.

Senate.
The progressive senators occupied most of the time in the Senate on Wednesday, a night session being necessary to allow them to express their views on the tariff bill. There was a very small attendance, interest centering on the vote to be taken at 2 o'clock Thursday. Mr. Beveridge attacked the wording of the maximum and minimum clause and Mr. Hale defended it. Mr. Aldrich reported a concurrent resolution which is expected to remedy the haphazard scheduling of the views of the range senators.

The Senate convened at 10 o'clock and, after four hours' debate, passed the Payne tariff bill by a vote of 47 to 31. The conference report on the urgent deficiency bill was agreed to early in the day. A concurrent resolution to correct the leather schedule was passed. The House passed the concurrent resolution providing for more drawbacks on agricultural products and putting cotton bagging on the free list. On receiving word that President Taft had signed the tariff bill the Senate adjourned sine die at 6 o'clock.

House.
The House Wednesday passed the urgent deficiency bill as reported by the conference. It carries $1,000,000, or an increase of $600,000. The provisions for automobiles for the speaker and the vice president and the customs court were retained. The speaker's position. The House makes no provision for salaries of the judges of the court. Adjournment was taken till noon Thursday.

OLD GARDENS.
Often at a Distance from the House and Endowed by Walls.
In rural communities there was in the early days of this country an odd custom of isolating the garden from the house and surrounding it with a high stone wall. Why it was so is not apparent for the small inclosure was difficult for the farmer to work with a team, and besides was not easy of access for the women of the household.

At my old home, says a writer in the Rosary Magazine, the "garden" so-called, was at a considerable distance from the house, with a wide lawn or "yard" and one field to cross. No one seemed to know its origin, save that it could be traced back a hundred years or more to a great-grandfather.

It had not been worked even in the memory of the oldest member of the family, a more convenient garden having been made directly behind the house. But to us children a few square rods of neglected enclosure were enclosed, and land, whereon we had never seen a flower or vegetable grown, was always the "garden."

At more pretentious places there was often a rose garden, that isolated, and perhaps surrounded by a hedge in addition to the wall. Even now half wild descendants of some of the rose roots may be found in old neglected gardens.

Joining these enclosures and separated from them by hedges were usually the flower garden proper, made up mostly of hardy shrubs and herbaceous plants, and the kitchen garden, wherein may still be found the evidence of the ancient ribwort and "sparrgrass" beds.

HE COLLECTS PASSPORTS.

One Man Whose Fancy Lies in Gathering Seals of the State Department.

There is one man in this city who has an odd job, which is apparently the collecting of seals of the department of state. He does not often go abroad, in fact he has been on the other side probably no more than once in his life, and he now is around 50. But for about twenty years he has been in the habit of applying annually for a passport. He writes to the department of state, gets an application blank and has it filled out. He goes to the same notary every time and pays the fee. Then he sends his application and the passport fee to the department and gets his passport back in due course.

Passports are valid for two years without renewal, yet he never misses a year and he fills out a new application every time. Thus he has a collection of papers and seals running back over these years. He never had occasion to use a passport when abroad, but he says it has been a help to him when traveling in this country as a means of identification when that has become necessary in some city in which he was a stranger.

The chief idea he has is that some time it might be imperative for him to leave for a foreign country on some business or other and having the passport he would not have to delay for it.—New York Sun.

Are You a Polite Mother?

If your children are not polite the fault without a doubt lies at your own door. Do you raise your voice when excited? Do you interrupt? Do you walk into a room without knocking? Do you make your requests courteously? Do you put your own things away? Do you lose your own temper? Do you nag your husband or any other member of the household? Do you have good table manners? Do you contradict? Ask yourself all these things, and then if you discover you are a failure along these lines don't blame the child. You may lecture and punish all you want, your child will watch you, and if she finds out mother is not taking the trouble to be a lady she won't make the attempt herself.

Children are far shrewder than we believe them to be. They treat us much in the same way that we treat them.

Rare Exception.

CRIPPLE CREEK'S FINDER IS DEAD

"BOB" WOMACK, MODERN ALADDIN, GOES ON LAST PROSPECT ACROSS DIVIDE.

TURNED PASTURE INTO MINT.

Sold the Famous El Paso Mine for $300 and Spent His Last Days Practically Penniless.

HOW MINING CAMP WAS NAMED

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Aug. 11.—Robert M. Womack, familiarly known as "Bob" Womack, the discoverer of Cripple Creek, is dead. The range rider who rubbed with the finger of faith the lamp of Aladdin and flooded the world with gold, has gone on the last prospect tour, into the sunset.

The man who turned a cow pasture into a mint when he sunk the first shaft in the great gold camp and thus sent $250,000,000 into the markets of the world, who gave the secret of his find to others, died dependent on the charity of those he had enriched, and the world with gold, has gone on the last prospect tour, into the sunset.

Womack died of a broken heart. The death of his niece, Dorsey Womack, two weeks ago hastened the end. He had been feeble for four years and gave up the struggle when the 4-year-old relative, passed out of life.

Bob Womack was born sixty-six years ago. He began riding the Regua (Guilch) range for a cattle company late in the '80s. The hold fever burned in his veins as he traversed the ground which the owners believe almost worthless.

Honeycombed Country.
In 1891 Womack did his first prospecting. Finally the foreman of the range sent complaints to the Denver mortgagee that Womack was wasting his time honeycombing the country with prospect holes into which the cattle fell and crippled themselves.

An investigation was made. Womack the gold hunter's look blazing in his eyes, the gold digger's stoop bending his shoulders, listened patiently to the order to stop digging. But the spirit was upon him. He gave a sack to W. R. Myers to take to Denver to have assayed. By some mischance the test was never made but the ranger kept on neglecting his cattle for the shaft until one day going into Colorado Springs with a load of rock, he came back thrilled because he had struck pay dirt.

"We'll give you $300 for the claim," said one of the millionaires of the future. Womack's eyes popped out. He had never had so much money as that before and he closed the deal. That piece of land turned out to be the famous El Paso mine, one of the richest in the district.

Sold All for a Song.
He prospected thirty other claims and every one of them he gave away or sold for a song before half their richness had been revealed. His was the craving of discovery, not of possession.

Winfield Scott Stratton was one of his companions and wanted him to follow him when the mysterious call came from another part of the camp. Womack hesitated, but Stratton went on and discovered the Independence, which he sold for $100,000,000.

The story of the returns from assay on Womack's claims started a rush to the district later called Cripple Creek from the cattle crippled in Womack's prospect holes.

As other fortunes increased, Womack's faded. Then he heard what was doing up on the hills as he split kindling for the fires of his sister's boarding house washed dishes or did chores about the place, but his only comment was, "I don't know whether or not I could make it plain to other people," he said to one friend, "but I will say this that I never suffered any aberration of memory. I could not tell you now just how it all happened."

LOSS $1,000,000 IN FIRE

Thirty-six Buildings Swept from Main Street in Summer Resort Town of Monticello, N. Y.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Aug. 11.—A loss estimated at $1,000,000 was caused by the fire which swept thirty-six buildings from the main street of the summer resort town of Monticello, N. Y., Tuesday night. The buildings burned included hotels, stores and residences. The fire was under control this morning after three hotels filled with summer guests mailed from New York city were destroyed. They were the Rockwell house the largest hotel in Sullivan county; the Palatine hotel, and the Bolsum house. All the guests escaped with most of their personal effects. The Monticello house was not burned. The Union National bank, both newspaper offices, and every store but one in the town was destroyed.

The further spread of the fire was prevented by the use of dynamite. When the fire started in the electric lighting plant back of the Palatine hotel there was a high wind blowing.

SNUB CASTRO; RICHES LOOTED.

Venezuelan Congress Ignores Ex-President's Appeal.

CARACAS, Aug. 11.—The much heralded appeal for Cipriano Castro to the Venezuelan Congress, which, after being read in joint session, was referred by Castro's friends in that body to a special committee for report, has died a natural death in the committee room and instead of the desired report, the curious ex-presidential message has been archived.

The systematic spoliation of the fortune which Castro left behind him in Venezuela has proceeded with such gigantic strides that after the first six months his $5,000,000 of known assets have been almost totally wiped out.

As one instance, Castro owned $1,000,000 worth of shares in the cigarette trust. A few weeks ago the director of the company sold the $5,000,000 concern to a private individual, Senor Garcia Guerra, for $250,000, and Castro's remaining interest of $50,000 was immediately seized by creditors.

G. A. R. VETERANS IN LONG PARADE

PROCESSION OF OLD SOLDIERS IN LINE BEFORE BRIGHAM YOUNG STATUE.

REGULARS MARCH IN LEAD.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Aug. 11.

—Banishing thoughts of new commanders and meeting places, the national encampment of the G. A. R. devoted itself today to the annual parade, which wheeled into line in front of the Brigham Young statue at the head of Main street.

The column was strictly military in its composition. The Fifteenth infantry, U. S. A., from Fort Douglas, took the lead, and was followed by the Utah National guard and the carriages conveying the commander-in-chief his official family and distinguished guests.

Illinois Leads States.
Illinois led the states. Then came Wisconsin, Pennsylvania and Ohio—down the list to Oklahoma. The union ex-prisoners of war marched after Oklahoma and the Utah colonels modestly brought up the rear.

Seven blocks, one mile in Salt Lake City, brought the head of the procession to Seventh South street, where 1200 children in red, white and blue robes and caps, formed a human flag that undulated in the semblance of wind-tossed waves.

Flag Joins Parade.

The living flag joined the parade in marching order and followed the veterans back to the starting point, where the historic ranks passed in view of Henry M. Nevius, the commander-in-chief.

Then the commander-in-chief reviewed the living flag, the crowds dispersed, and the forty-third march of the Grand Army of the Republic was over.

ROADS MAKING MONEY

F. D. Underwood Declares Railway Business Is Good, but Not What It Ought to Be.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 11.—Frederic D. Underwood, president of the Erie railroad, arrived in Chicago Tuesday morning to preside at the annual round up to the traffic department of the road at the Congress hotel, the purpose of which was to boom Chicago and the Erie railroad. He has been spending vacation at his farm near Milwaukee.

"Business is good," said Mr. Underwood to newspaper men. "It is getting better. It isn't as good as it ought to be, but we ought to be pretty well satisfied."

Mr. Underwood said that the Erie had earned $5,000,000 more during the year just closed than in the preceding year, and that it would be put back into the hands of improvements. "I don't think there will be many new railroads built in the near future," he said; "there is no crying need for more roads now. What we need is to improve the roads we have, and to increase their efficiency as much as possible."

As the 140 men whose business it is to get business for the Erie in all sections of the country filed by to greet the president of the system, he took time to ask each a question or two regarding his district, showing an intimate knowledge of conditions in each office.

PULP MILL WANTS LOGS

Soo Line May Make Extensions to Handle Hemlock from Ashland and Bayfield Counties.

NEW RICHMOND, Wis., Aug. 11.—[Special.]—Negotiations are now pending between the pulp mill interest operating plants in Ashland, Eau Claire and other northern Wisconsin points on the Willow River Lumber company to a portion of the hemlock logs of the cut by the company along the line of its railroad, the Superior & South-Easter in Bayfield and Ashland counties.

The Soo line is taking an active interest in the deal, and if consummated some extensions will be made along their Ashland branch to handle the traffic. The hemlock is wanted particularly for the pulp mills at Ashland and Eau Claire. The Willow River Lumber company will not in any event sell but a portion of its cut each year and will deliver the logs on board cars.

The deal will not interfere in any way with the operation of the Willow River mill which is expected to be enlarged and can be handled to better advantage over the Soo line, while the local mill secures its supply of logs by rail over the Omaha.

MAY ERECT MONUMENT.

Federation of Catholic Societies Would Honor Memory of Civil War Chaplain of Irish Brigade.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 11.—The most important business before the American Federation of Catholic societies today was election of officers.

Great impetus has been given a movement to erect a bronze monument on the battlefield of Gettysburg to Rev. William Corby, who was the chaplain of the Irish brigade through the Civil war. He at one time was president of Notre Dame university, and was afterwards provisionally general of the order of the Holy Cross in the United States and later first assistant general for the order in all parts of the world.

The following officers were elected: President, Edward G. Feeney, Brooklyn vice president, J. B. Colkers, Newark, N. J. Thomas P. Flynn, Chicago. G. W. Stronger, St. Paul; Henry Wessling, Boston; J. J. Hyatt, Buffalo; Jos. W. Conroy, Cincinnati; national secretary, Anthony Matre, St. Louis; national treasurer, Mrs. Elizabeth Rodgers, Chicago.

After spirited voting, New Orleans was decided upon as the place of meeting in 1910.

NEENAH, Wis., Aug. 11.—[Special.]—The case of Arthur Keller, an alleged clairvoyant, who was charged with swindling Henry Schimpf, a retired merchant, out of $300, which was to have been tried today, was settled Tuesday night. Keller paid all the costs of the case and also returned to Schimpf the $300 which Schimpf says he let Keller take as a part of a process to tell the former where he could find an old sweetheart in Germany, and which Keller failed to return as agreed. Mr. and Mrs. Keller left immediately for Chicago after the settlement was made.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 11.—Archbishop John J. Keane, who is visiting Archbishop Ireland here, says the statement from St. Louis that he contemplated retiring from active duty is misleading. SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Aug. 11.—Banishing thoughts of new commanders and meeting places, the national encampment of the G. A. R. devoted itself today to the annual parade, which wheeled into line in front of the Brigham Young statue at the head of Main street.

The column was strictly military in its composition. The Fifteenth infantry, U. S. A., from Fort Douglas, took the lead, and was followed by the Utah National guard and the carriages conveying the commander-in-chief his official family and distinguished guests.

Illinois Leads States.
Illinois led the states. Then came Wisconsin, Pennsylvania and Ohio—down the list to Oklahoma. The union ex-prisoners of war marched after Oklahoma and the Utah colonels modestly brought up the rear.

Seven blocks, one mile in Salt Lake City, brought the head of the procession to Seventh South street, where 1200 children in red, white and blue robes and caps, formed a human flag that undulated in the semblance of wind-tossed waves.

Flag Joins Parade.

The living flag joined the parade in marching order and followed the veterans back to the starting point, where the historic ranks passed in view of Henry M. Nevius, the commander-in-chief.

Then the commander-in-chief reviewed the living flag, the crowds dispersed, and the forty-third march of the Grand Army of the Republic was over.

F. D. Underwood Declares Railway Business Is Good, but Not What It Ought to Be.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 11.—Frederic D. Underwood, president of the Erie railroad, arrived in Chicago Tuesday morning to preside at the annual round up to the traffic department of the road at the Congress hotel, the purpose of which was to boom Chicago and the Erie railroad. He has been spending vacation at his farm near Milwaukee.

"Business is good," said Mr. Underwood to newspaper men. "It is getting better. It isn't as good as it ought to be, but we ought to be pretty well satisfied."

Mr. Underwood said that the Erie had earned $5,000,000 more during the year just closed than in the preceding year, and that it would be put back into the hands of improvements. "I don't think there will be many new railroads built in the near future," he said; "there is no crying need for more roads now. What we need is to improve the roads we have, and to increase their efficiency as much as possible."

As the 140 men whose business it is to get business for the Erie in all sections of the country filed by to greet the president of the system, he took time to ask each a question or two regarding his district, showing an intimate knowledge of conditions in each office.

PULP MILL WANTS LOGS

Soo Line May Make Extensions to Handle Hemlock from Ashland and Bayfield Counties.

NEW RICHMOND, Wis., Aug. 11.—[Special.]—Negotiations are now pending between the pulp mill interest operating plants in Ashland, Eau Claire and other northern Wisconsin points on the Willow River Lumber company to a portion of the hemlock logs of the cut by the company along the line of its railroad, the Superior & South-Easter in Bayfield and Ashland counties.

The Soo line is taking an active interest in the deal, and if consummated some extensions will be made along their Ashland branch to handle the traffic. The hemlock is wanted particularly for the pulp mills at Ashland and Eau Claire. The Willow River Lumber company will not in any event sell but a portion of its cut each year and will deliver the logs on board cars.

The deal will not interfere in any way with the operation of the Willow River mill which is expected to be enlarged and can be handled to better advantage over the Soo line, while the local mill secures its supply of logs by rail over the Omaha.

Ianthe's Fairy Prince.

By the Author of "A Secret and a Soldier," "Jealousy's Captive," "Standing Sentinel," etc.

Perhaps it was her proud immovable manner in contrast to his own uncontrolled excitement that enraged her father beyond endurance. In any case his anger leapt up uncontrollably. He shook Ianthe with all his force, and then with one last outburst of anger he raised his hand and struck her violently across the cheek.

"That will show you who is master," he said, his rage spent now that it had found an outlet. "In the evening, when you have had time to come to your senses, we will talk of this again."

He left the room as he spoke and the two women were alone. "Dear me, dear me!" cried Mrs. Macqueen. "Such a do! Has he hurt you, my dear? Many a time have I seen him angry, but never as he has been this morning. But don't mind, there's a good girl. It's all past and over, and by dinner time he will be ready to forgive and forget, if you'll only be a little reasonable, Anthony, and give in about the letter. Of course I understand you were a little afraid of becoming 'my lady.' You're young yet for that; but you cannot refuse such an opportunity, Anthony. Why, most young ladies would be out of their minds with pride."

Ianthe sat still in her chair, her little hands tightly clenched, quivering all over with a sense of outrage. The red angry mark showed up startlingly against the pallor of her cheek. Her teeth had nearly bitten through her lip, but Ianthe would not let her tears flow. Not a word of her step-mother's kindly-meant speech did she hear. The girl's heart was almost bursting. What frightful new world was this that had opened before her?

She went through her household duties mechanically and in silence, and 9 o'clock found her in her accustomed place at her desk. All day long her brain worked furiously, and by evening her plans were made. She would not stay a day longer in this place; no daughter, she felt sure, could be compelled to stay in circumstances like these.

When tea was over Ianthe rose and said that she would go out for a breath of air. It was her usual custom and there was nothing in her manner to excite suspicion. She had spoken to her father all day upon business matters with her ordinary quiet manner.

"Don't be late," he said as she went out. "I want to have a quiet talk with you before supper."

"I shall not be late," answered Ianthe, and she shut the door of her father's house for the last time.

Six months had taught her a great deal. Going straight to a stationer's, she bought a time table, found that she had plenty of time to catch the next train to Edinburgh if she went by car from the station, and finally arrived there, she telegraphed to Miss Dawson to be kind enough to meet her at the station in Edinburgh.

Once safely in the train the girl thought over her plans. She had still nearly five months in her possession, the remains of the ten pounds that her grandfather had given her on parting. Miss Dawson would be willing to board her for a short time for that sum, and in the meantime she could look about for some means of earning more.

Ianthe possessed all the sanguine spirits of youth, but she was still very ignorant of the ways of the world. Therefore it was a very bright face that Miss Dawson saw looking out of the carriage as the train came up.

"Child, what has brought you here?" she exclaimed in agitation.

"Can you take me in?" asked Ianthe, and the answer came at once in the affirmative.

"How good you are!" she said gratefully. "When we get home I will tell you all about it and you can advise me what to do."

Nevertheless there were certain things that Ianthe did not tell. Miss Dawson perhaps came to the right conclusion as to what had caused the red weal on her cheek, but neither made any mention of its existence. Miss Dawson and her mother were very kind to the girl. The former had always been fond of her pupil, though never very effusive, and Ianthe's changed appearance made her feel very tenderly disposed towards her. Perhaps for the first time in her life Ianthe understood the meaning of disinterested affection that evening.

The question of her future gave rise to a great deal of discussion. Miss Dawson wished to write quite simply to Gen. Colquhoun, telling him that Ianthe had found life with her father impossible, and leave him the choice of what course to pursue. But Ianthe would not hear of this. Her one desire was to be independent, to learn some occupation by which she could earn her own bread. Never, she told herself, could she go back to her grandfather like a beggar. She had gone of her own free will from under his roof; he now could not now creep back again and own that she had been beaten?

"I am sure I could teach little children," she pleaded with Miss Dawson, "or I could learn to be a secretary or something like that. I can work for my living as well as other girls."

Miss Dawson was very doubtful. Ianthe was really too young even for a nursery governess, for she was not 18 yet. To become a secretary meant years of hard training and a good deal of expense. The upshot of the matter was that Ianthe wrote to her grandfather to ask his opinion of what she ought to do.

She dropped the letter into the box with a light heart, unconscious of the charges it was destined to produce in her career.

CHAPTER VIII.

Gen. Colquhoun might have been at a loss to explain why he was disappointed that Ianthe had not at once applied to him to help her out of the difficulties into which she had blindly walked. He had distinctly told her that he would have no more responsibility as far as she was concerned, and that, as she had chosen her father, she could remain with him to the bitter end. Nevertheless he had looked daily for the letter that would bring Ianthe's appeal for his help.

He was glad to know that Ianthe understood that she had made a mistake; he would have been still better pleased if she had owned it directly to himself; best pleased of all if she had implored him to reconsider his decision and to take her back to the life she had despised. But Ianthe, as we know, had done none of those things. When her final letter came it had the effect of rousing the disappointed old man to an access of fury.

Denis, looking in in the afternoon, as he had done very often of late, found his old friend in a state bordering on distraction.

"Just read that letter," he cried, throwing across Ianthe's carefully penned epistle, "and tell me what you think of it."

"It seems fairly reasonable," said Denis, after he had read it. "As she despises all offers of help, it is only right that she should help herself."

In spite of himself there was a slight accent of bitterness in his tone. The general looked up sharply.

"Offers of help?" he repeated. "Have you been making her offers of help? There's only one way I know of in which you could help her, and you refused to do that six months ago."

He eyed Denis searchingly.

"And if I thought," he continued slowly, "that you had thought better of it and she had given you the cold shoulder, I would—"

He paused, leaving the threat unfinished.

"Is that the case?" he asked sharply.

"Wally, sir, your questions are rather more searching than you have any warrant for," answered Denis angrily.

"So it is true then?"

The old man sat still for a moment, and the wave of anger that had been rising in his heart against Ianthe suddenly broke.

"The truth is," he said, "that you and I have made a mistake about this Ianthe. We thought of her always as my granddaughter, but it's been a mistake. She is John Macqueen's daughter, a creature of low tastes and instincts that no amount of education will raise above her natural sphere. She was miserable here because she was out of her element; she would have been miserable with you from the same cause. Well, let her stick to her own; let her be John Macqueen's daughter to the end."

There was an extraordinary subdued bitterness about his tones. Denis felt that it was leading up to something else. It seemed like the calm before the storm. After a moment's pause the general took from his inner pocket a legal document.

"Do you see this?" he asked. "This is my will. In it I have left all my estate, real and personal, to that same Ianthe Macqueen—under certain conditions. But now—"

The general paused for a moment and a swift flush swept up to his forehead. Denis recognized this sign. Before he had time to think or move the outburst came.

"There and there and there!" cried the general, and with every fierce word he tore the paper through and finally flung the fragments into the fire.

"You should not have done that, sir," said Denis, who had looked on in mute amazement up till now.

"Should I not—and why not?" demanded the angry old man, pacing up and down the floor. "Under certain conditions everything was left to that girl. It was my hope, as you know, that she would marry her. If she did not fulfill the conditions, then the bulk of the property went to you—everything, in fact, but enough to keep her out of the workhouse."

"Then I am glad you have destroyed it," answered Denis angrily. "I have no wish to grow rich at Ianthe's expense. The mere thought is horrible. Fortunately one is not forced to accept such heritages."

"You show a nice grateful spirit!" sneered the general. "I wouldn't be too sure, if I were you, that it is quite so easy to refuse such heritages. I have an absolute right to leave my property to whom I will. The question has exercised me a good deal of late. You are not aware, I presume, that I am practically under sentence of death?"

The words were uttered so calmly that Denis hardly took in their import. He was aware that the doctor had been a frequent visitor lately, but no rumor of anything seriously wrong had reached him. His exclamation of horror and concern seemed to touch the general.

"Don't look like that, my boy," he said, laying a hand on the young man's shoulder; "I'm not worth it. After all, it is only right that old people should make way for the young. What am I but a cumberer of the ground? Not even a very happy cumberer, Denis. I've seen most of my hopes and ambitions come to grief. Here I am—deserted in my old age by the last living relative I have. You would have thought perhaps that common gratitude would have brought her back to remain with me to the end. But apparently the price was too high to pay."

"Ianthe is such a child she would never think of it in that way," answered Denis eagerly. "Oh, I am sure that if she were put to us she would return as soon as she possibly could! If you gave her the slightest idea that her presence would be welcome—"

"Thank you!" interrupted Gen. Colquhoun. "No, I have not yet come to the point of begging favors from John Macqueen and his tribe. Besides, when I come to think of it, her presence would not be likely to afford me the slightest satisfaction—probably the reverse. It's only a sentimental idea that of being surrounded by one's own at the end. I've never had any satisfaction out of my own in life. It's not the least likely I would have any in my death."

"Let me do anything I can for you," Denis said in a low tone. "I need hardly tell you how willingly it will be done."

"No doubt, no doubt! You mean well, my boy, but after all you are just like the rest—willing to do anything for me but the one thing I particularly want you to do. Not that that matters now. Ianthe's future has ceased to interest us. Let her go her own way. You go yours, and I'll go mine. But before I go I'll make my will; yes, I'll make my will."

Denis left a little later, determining in his own mind to return next day and every day, if he could, to bring some pleasure into that lonely life. The thought of the old man's will still disturbed him. He was quite capable, Denis knew, of cutting Ianthe off with a bare sufficient-cy. The thought that he might himself profit filled Denis with a helpless fury. Meanwhile Gen. Colquhoun had roused himself from his seat by the fire. Only on the previous day he had sent for his lawyer and his will in which he had intended making some slight alteration.

"What a mercy I thought of leaving it for a day or two!" he thought. "There will be an alteration now that will astonish the old lawyer."

He rose to ring the bell and to order a messenger to ride and fetch the lawyer out. At the moment a strange feeling came over him. Everything swam around him, and he turned faint and giddy.

"No time to be lost," he said to himself grimly when he came back to his normal state again. The bell was pulled and the message was given. Gen. Colquhoun sat quietly for a few moments and then a horrible dread assailed him. It would be two hours at the very least before Mr. Stewart could arrive. Much might happen in two hours. Suppose that strange faint feeling again assailed him and that this time it did not pass away?

He crossed to his desk and drew out a sheet of paper.

"I may as well put it down in black and white," he said to himself. "I'll write myself I can draw up a will as well as a lawyer."

The thought excited him strangely. He took his pen and wrote the formal commencement.

"Everything to Denis," he said, "except the servants' legacies and the sum I leave to Ianthe. How much shall I give her? Two or three hundred. I suppose. Better make it a pound a day, and she'll have no cause to complain."

"I give my estate to my granddaughter Ianthe Patricia—"

"Patricia!" He uttered the name with scathing emphasis. All through the years it had been his special gibe that John Macqueen's daughter should be called Patricia. "Patricia" had been his own bitter suggestion. The undying animosity he bore the man suddenly seemed to arise and choke him.

"Why should I leave his daughter anything?" he asked himself bitterly. "Has he not made my life miserable?"

A wave of recollection came over him. He seemed to see Patricia before him in all the joyous loveliness of her youth. How proud he had been of her; how he had loved her! No future had seemed too fair for her, his only child his heiress, his hope and joy.

The old man leaned his head in his hands. The grief of past years overwhelmed him. A choking sound came from his throat.

"Patricia!" he cried as his head sank down, and then there was silence.

It was in this attitude that the old lawyer found him, the crumpled paper beneath his forehead.

Gen. Colquhoun was dead, but there seemed little doubt as to his final intentions. Even if the unfinished sentence had not seemed to proclaim Ianthe his heiress, the girl was his one remaining relative, his next-of-kin.

CHAPTER IX.

Nearly three years and a half had passed away. They had been most eventful years for Ianthe, and it was hard to recognize the shy, ignorant girl in the finished young woman of the world who had arrived home to celebrate her coming of age. A year at a good Parisian boarding school, another year of foreign travel under the chaperonage of a rather young widow, a very distant cousin of her own—so distant, in fact, that the relationship was somewhat hard to explain—and finally a London season had effected a complete transformation in the girl's bearing.

Equally changed was the quiet Highland home. Most of the house had been redecorated in accordance with modern taste. Ianthe and her chaperon, Mrs. Fitzgerald, had spent anxious months in the choice of hangings and furnishings, but now everything was finished, and their labors had met with their due reward.

"I really think everything is absolute perfection," said Ianthe contentedly, as she made a final inspection of the mansion. "Oh, Violet, you cannot think how glad I am to be my own mistress at last!"

"I should think you would find it rather a nuisance," answered Mrs. Fitzgerald, who had no affairs of her own to manage, except the very meager pittance left her by her husband and the handsome salary she received as Ianthe's chaperon.

"So perhaps I shall. Meantime it is satisfactory to be able to make a final settlement with regard to my father, and to know that I am out of his hands for good and for all."

"I must say he has not shown the very best taste," assented Mrs. Fitzgerald indifferently. "Anyway, you are free from him now."

22,000 Lives Could Be Saved Each Year if Processes Were Changed.

"Dust produced in manufacturing processes," says a recent labor bulletin, "is the most serious and most dangerous of all. It is removed from the atmosphere of the workshop, whether dangerous or not. In many cases the best way of dealing with dust is to prevent its formation altogether, says the Boston Herald. This can be effected by substituting wet for dry processes, and, fortunately, much of the most dangerous dust can be dealt with in this way—in particular the dust from disintegration of hard stone or steel. When dust formation cannot be avoided, its escape can sometimes be prevented by entirely boxing in the dusty process. Where the dust is itself the product of the process, as in the grinding or breaking up of material, efficient boxing in is an advantage to the process itself as well as to the persons employed in it. In most cases it is unfortunately not possible either to prevent the formation of dust or to box in the dusty process completely, and the only method available is to draw the dust by means of an air current. About twenty-two thousand lives would be saved annually in the United States alone if metallic, vegetable and other dust could be eliminated from factories."

Pretty Customs in Brittany.

Plougastel is one of the most interesting places in Brittany, for here the peasants have preserved their strange customs and costumes better than anywhere else in the country. Several "pardons" are held here, the principal one on Midsummer Eve. This is a very picturesque ceremony, accompanied by bonfires and other festivities. The children's feet is a charming sight. Little Bretons, in their gay old-world costumes, go out bird-hunting in the woods on Midsummer day. The birds are put into cages and brought home, to be carefully kept and tended until the following day, when they are set round again.

Judge Lamoreux Is Dead at Beaver Dam.

BEAVER DAM, Aug. 6.—Judge S. W. Lamoreux died at 7 o'clock Thursday night. He was president of the German National bank of this city. His funeral will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, under the auspices of the Masonic fraternity, and will be private.

Silas W. Lamoreux was born in Lenox, Madison county, N. Y., March 8, 1843, and came to Plover, Wis., with his parents when 9 years of age, and a year later the family moved to Mayville, Wis., where he received his early school education. He studied law with Hanchett & Raymond at Plover, Wis., and was admitted to the bar when 21 years of age. He practiced law until 1864, when he enlisted in the reorganized Fifth Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry. He was with the Army of the Potomac at Hatcher's Run, Manassas and the battles in front of Petersburg. He was in charge of the distributing office at City Point, Va., for some time and was discharged July 2, 1865, at his parents' request.

He was a member of the Wisconsin Legislature in 1872 and was elected judge of Dodge county in 1877, which office he held until his appointment to the office of United States land commissioner during Grover Cleveland's second administration. Mr. Lamoreux has since resided in Beaver Dam, where he has been an extensive farmer, manufacturer, owning, at the time of his death, the controlling interest in the Beaver Dam Malleable Iron plant which employs upwards of 750 men. He married Miss Hattie A. Cobb of Summit, Wis., November 22, 1868, who with four children, C. W. Lamoreux of Mayville, D. P. and H. S. Lamoreux of Beaver Dam, and Mrs. W. J. Murphy of Milwaukee, survive him. He was a prominent member of the Masonic lodge.

STRANGE DISEASES TAKES OFF TWO.

Racine Girl and Brother Die of Paralysis of Spinal Column—Disease Hits Feet First.

RACINE, Wis., Aug. 6.—[Special.]—A sad double death occurred here last night of acute ascending paralysis of the spinal column, said by physicians to be the first case of its kind that has ever occurred here. Delia Ostenson, aged 21 and William Irwin Ostenson, her brother, aged 18, the daughter and son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Ostenson were the victims. Miss Ostenson was taken sick on Sunday last and her brother on Tuesday. The disease appears to have struck both of them in the feet and worked its way up to the brain. The deaths occurred within an hour of each other. Miss Ostenson had just been graduated from the Oshkosh normal school and had a position as first assistant principal in the Stockbridge high school. Her brother was a graduate of the Winslow school and was to have entered high school this year.

TRIAL IS SENSATIONAL.

Awful Story of Cruelty to Sparta (Wis.) Man Is Told by Deputy Sheriff at Trial of Eight.

SPARTA, Wis., Aug. 6.—[Special.]—Sensational testimony marked the morning session of court at the trial of eight Sparta men charged with inflicting cruelties upon Frank Allen. Deputy Sheriff Goodman repeated the story which Frank Young, one of the defendants is said to have told him. In this, Young alleged to have informed the deputy that Allen was taken into a barn where he was hung up to one of the rafters. One of the defendants, it is charged, held his pulse and a watch to see that he did not hang long enough to cause death. Later, it is said, Allen was taken to the river where he was "ducked" and told that he would be drowned. Goodman's story was to the effect that Allen, the day following, was taken before a justice and fined for grand larceny. He was unable to pay the fine and was then ordered out of town. The justice is one of the defendants. Allen then gave up his watch, and bought a ticket for Rockport, Minn., where he spent a week in regaining strength enough to walk.

TAGGART'S MAN LOSES.

Charles B. Clarke, Endorsed by Former Democratic Chairman, Defeated for Mayoralty Nomination.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 6.—To the surprise of the community generally, the counting of the ballots cast yesterday in the primary election for municipal officers showed today that Charles B. Clarke, who had the open endorsement and active support of Thomas Taggart, former chairman of the Democratic national committee, was defeated by the Democratic nomination for mayor. The victor was Charles A. Gauss, who had not been previously prominent in politics. His majority is 2384. Sam Lewis Shank, an auctioneer and storage house keeper, was nominated for mayor by the Republicans by a majority of 9038.

The New Baby.

Like most minister's families, they were not extensively blessed with this world's goods. She, however, was the youngest of ten children until her father told her of a baby sister who had come to the world.

"Well," she said, after due thought, "I suppose it's all right, papa, but there's lots of things we wanted more."—London Opinion.

Millions from Hunters.

A deer in the bush is worth more than a deer in hand, for the live deer attracts the tourists and the sportsman, who leave money behind, money found because it cost the state nothing. This is borne out by Germany, where 900,000 people yearly pay for hunting in the forests. The returns from hunting licenses and rentals amount to $32,500,000 yearly for Germany. Germany is ahead of the United States in this respect. Only one state approaches Germany in revenues from hunting and tourists. Maine's 250,000 tourists yearly leave $25,000,000 behind them. Alabama collects yearly $25,000 in hunters' fees.—Outing.

SUTTON SLAIN, NOT A SUICIDE, SAYS WITNESS

CORPORAL OF GUARD ON THE NIGHT OFFICER WAS SHOT TELLS GRAPHIC STORY.

WILL SO TESTIFY, IF CALLED.

Lieuts. Adams and Osterman Recognized as Victim's Companions in Quarrel Preceding Crime.

LIEUT. ROELKER IS EXONERATED.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 10.—In a statement attributed to Sgt. Arthur Todd of the United States marine corps, and made public today in the Boston Post, it is said that if he should be called to testify in the investigation of the death of Lieut. James Sutton, the sergeant's testimony would be exactly opposite to that given by Sutton's fellow officers. Sgt. Todd, who has been on range duty at Vicksburg, left for Annapolis, in describing the shooting Sgt. Todd says:

"I was corporal of the guard on the night that Lieut. Sutton was shot, and from the place where I was standing I saw a figure about 250 feet away."

Saw Adams and Osterman.

"I saw Lieuts. Adams and Osterman and recognized them. They were nearest me. The man who was in shirt sleeves started to run, and I heard a voice cry: 'Stop running! You're under arrest.'"

"The man ran on, and once more I heard the same voice cry out loudly: 'Stop running or I'll shoot!'"

"The man paid no attention and ran on. The next moment I saw a flash, and heard a revolver report. There were three other shots, and the man who was running dropped."

"I ran over to him and bent over. It was Lieut. Sutton. I saw a hole in his forehead, and a hole back of the left ear, where the bullet came out clean."

"Lieut. Roelker, who has been so often mentioned in the case, came into the guard room where I then was, a short time before the shooting. He was with a private named Richardson and they had a drink together. At the time of the shooting he was not anywhere in sight."

Not a Service Revolver.

"The next morning an enlisted man found a revolver on the ball field, which was not the regular service revolver, but a 32-caliber affair."

Todd said at one time in conversation that he had the bullet himself that killed Sutton, but later stated that someone else had taken it. He refused to state finally whether he knew where the bullet was.

"Just after the shooting, when I had returned to the guardroom, Roelker came in all out of breath and greatly excited. He said: 'My God, Archie, I think I've been shot.'"

"I laughed at him at first, but he was so earnest about it that I felt in his left hand outside pocket just over his heart. There was a drill regulation book there and a bullet had become mushroomed in the pages."

Bullet Strikes Near Heart.

"Roelker was very excited when I pulled out the book and showed him the bullet and the way in which his life had been saved. He stripped down to the skin and there was a perceptible reddish tinge over his heart, showing just where the bullet would have gone had the book not interposed."

"Roelker and I talked the matter over, and we agreed that he must have run into the fire of the bullets, one of which had killed Sutton. There were few shots that I heard in all and one of them, I am convinced, struck Roelker."

"I have wondered more than once why I have not been called to go before the court of inquiry and tell what I know."

VICTIM'S MOTHER TAKES STAND.

Mrs. Sutton Recalled at Inquiry to Identify More Letters.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 10.—When the naval court of inquiry investigating the death of Lieut. James N. Sutton resumed proceedings today there were fewer people present than on any recent day, notwithstanding that it was understood that Mrs. Rose Sutton Parker, Lieut. Sutton's sister, would be placed on the witness stand.

Mrs. Sutton, mother of the dead officer, was recalled to the stand at the request of her counsel, Mr. Davis, who presented two letters, which were read by members of the court and the court. Attorney Birney, representing Lieut. Adams, objected to the introduction of the letters, but the judge advocated that the letters be admitted and the court so ruled. The letters were identified by Mrs. Sutton as having been written by Lieut. Sutton, one to her and one to her brother. They were chatty, intimate and hopeful in character. That Mrs. Sutton was mailed the day before Lieut. Sutton was shot, and contained no hint that he meditated suicide, but spoke of his plans for the future.

Sister Is Called.

When Mrs. Rose Sutton Parker, sister of Lieut. Sutton, was called to the witness stand, she said she started for Annapolis on the day following her brother's death, previously making preliminary arrangements for his burial at Arlington, because, as a suicide he could not be buried in the cemetery lot of the family in Portland, Ore., and they being members of the Roman Catholic church.

Mrs. Parker told of interviews in her room at Carvel hall, with several of the young lieutenants. She asked that Lieut. Adams see her alone because Lieut. Adams seemed ill at ease when she met him, and because she believed he had information which he would probably not give her in the presence of others. The interview began at 4 and ended at 10 p. m. Relating what passed, she said she asked Adams to tell her everything about her brother's death and not spare her feelings, and that Adams told her of Lieut. Sutton's unpopularity with brother officers.

Adams, she said, stated that Lieut. Utley hated Sutton and had declared some one ought to "take it out of him."

FOND DU LAC NEWS.

CALLS BLEWETT A BOY.

FOND DU LAC, Wis., Aug. 7.—[Special.]—A Greek who refused to give his name and is thought to be insane caused considerable excitement in police court this morning. He was arraigned on the charge of disorderly conduct. He refused to talk to Justice Blewett, saying that he wanted to be brought before a man and not a boy.

To all of the questions put by the court, he replied: "None of your business," and when informed that he had been given a ten days' jail sentence, he said to the justice: "It will take fifteen men like you to send me to jail." It took two policemen, a constable and a former University of Wisconsin football player to get him out of the courtroom. On the way to jail, the Greek knocked one policeman into the ditch, but did not cause any trouble after that. Last night, when arrested, it took six men to overpower the man after he had started the trouble in the Greek settlement.

RACES WILL BE GOOD.

That the races at the county fair this year will surpass all previous ones is the prediction of officers of the fair association. The entries will close on August 25 and it is expected that some of the best horses in the country will appear in the final list. An effort will be made to beat the state half-mile record of 2:06½, which is now held by Manitowoc. The horse breaking the record will get a special purse of $300. The total amount of the purses for the other races will be $3600. The free-for-all will be held on September 3, the last day of the fair.

TO LAY CORNER STONE.

Owing to the progress that has been made on the new Home for the Friendless plans are now being discussed for laying the corner stone of the new structure. The stone is being prepared by J. Roesser. On its exterior will be the date it was set in place, together with a suitable inscription. Inside the stone will be placed copies of all the daily newspapers, a list of the persons who donated funds for the erection of the home and several old coins and documents of various kinds.

ERRAND ESTATE $15,000.

C. E. Errard, a pioneer grocer of this city, died on July 15, left an estate valued at $15,000. He bequeathed the entire estate to his wife and upon her death, it will be divided among her nine children.

COURTESY COSTS CUTS.

FOND DU LAC, Wis., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—Stabbed through the back and both arms, Emil Newberg lies in the local hospital too weak to give an adequate description of two men who attacked him Sunday night, but the police suspect a couple of men. Newberg was walking along West Division street and when near Union street he was accosted by two men, who asked for a match. While Newberg was reaching into his pockets, the men sprang upon him, but Newberg successfully repelled them, knocking one man down. Then the strangers drew knives or stilettes and stabbed Newberg several times before other pedestrians heard his cries and ran to his aid. No arrests have been made as yet. Newberg's injuries are not fatal.

OLD SETTLERS' PICNIC.

The annual meeting of the Old Settlers' club will be held at the county fair grounds on August 25. It is planned to make the affair a reunion of old residents of the county and also a home coming. Owing to the fact that the county fair will be held the following week it is expected that many persons from other places who intend to go to the fair will arrive here earlier and attend the picnic. The programme for the picnic will consist of the usual addresses by old settlers and musical numbers.

TWO ARE PROSTRATED.

As the result of the heat, which has held this city in its grasp for the last three days, two persons were prostrated and several others seriously injured by the heat. Mr. Ludwig Thiede, who resides on Forest avenue, was found unconscious on a couch in her home. She is expected to recover. William Zettleman, Boyd street, was overcome while feeding some chickens and was found lying in the yard at the rear of his residence. His condition is considered serious.

REMAINS A DRUNKARD.

FOND DU LAC, Wis., Aug. 10.—Despite his mother's frantic and touching appeals, James Sweeney's picture will remain in the "boozie gallery." The council has decided not to rescind its action whereby Sweeney was labeled as a habitual drunkard.

HARVEY DURAND HURT.

Harvey Durand is in a critical condition at his home on Fourth street as the result of injuries he sustained yesterday by falling in the road near his home. The left side of his face and body is badly cut and it is feared that his skull is fractured. Owing to his age and the fact that he was recovering from an attack of locomotor ataxia caused by his being overcome by the heat, his recovery is doubtful.

MANY FOREIGN EXHIBITS.

There will be more outside exhibitors at the county fair this year than ever before. In addition to the large displays of machinery, farm products and other things to be sent by the foreign exhibitors there will be many entries in the livestock department from breeders throughout the country. Secretary E. W. Phelps says that the livestock exhibits this year will surpass any ever seen here and it has been necessary to secure additional stalls in order to accommodate all the entries. All details for the fair are gradually being perfected as the fair will open on the last day of this month.

MOVES INTO OFFICE.

Thomas Lloyd Jones, the new city superintendent of schools, has taken possession of his new office, which was formerly used by the engineering department. The office has been refurnished and a partition placed in it so as to form a private office for Mr. Jones. The furnishings were installed yesterday,

GOVERNMENT'S REPORT SHOWS ONLY FAIR CROP.

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT SHOWS CORN AND WHEAT IS ABOVE AVERAGE.

BARLEY AND OATS ARE LOWER.

Acres of Buckwheat and Wheat Is Not Up to That Reported Annually for Ten Years.

WALL STREET IS DISAPPOINTED.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 9.—An indicated winter wheat total yield of 432,920,000 bushels, compared with 437,908,000 bushels, finally estimated last year; an average condition of winter wheat 90.3 against 90.1 a year ago, corn 84.4 against 82.5, spring wheat 91.6, against 89.7 and oats 85.5 against 76.8. This summarizes today's crop report of the department of agriculture.

The comparative figures for corn include 80.3 last month, and 82.6 as the average on August 1 for the past ten years. The preliminary returns for the winter wheat yield indicate about 15.5 bushels per acre. Compared with 14.4 as finally estimated last year. The condition of spring wheat is compared with 92.7 last month, and 81.1, the ten-year average on August 1. For comparison, the oat crop averaged 88.3 last month and 83.1 for ten years on August 1.

The proportion of last year's crop on the farm lands on August 1 was about 33.6 per cent, or 26,323,000 bushels, as compared with 5 per cent, or 38,000,000 bushels of the 1907 crop on hand August 1, 1908, and 6.3 per cent, or 53,000,000, the average proportion on hand for the past ten years on August 1.

Report in Detail.

The average condition of other crops on August 1, as compared with a year ago, and the ten year average respectively, follow: Barley, 85.4 and 83.1 and 86.1; rye, 89.1, and 88.8 and 87.9; buckwheat, 86.3, and 89.4 and 91.7; white potatoes, 85.6, and 82.9 and 83.7; tobacco, 85.4, and 85.5 and 82.3; condition on August 1, in important tobacco states was: Kentucky 84; North Carolina 75; Virginia 86; Tennessee 85; South Carolina 85; Ohio 91; Wisconsin 77; Pennsylvania 83; Connecticut 90; Florida 87.

Flax 92.7, and 86.1 and 87.7 for six years; hay 86.8, and 92.1 and 87.

The acreage of buckwheat is estimated as about 0.1 less than that of last year, or about 200 acres less than last year.

The preliminary estimate of the acreage of hay is 45,681,000 acres. This is 1.9 per cent, or 905,000 acres less than last year.

Report Is Disappointing.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Speculators in stocks expressed their disappointment over the government crop by selling their holdings quite freely after its appearance.

The sharp decline in condition of corn was of especial effect, as hopes had been raised high of a brilliant showing for that crop. Some preparation in many instances was made also to sell stocks to realize profits even in event of expectations being realized regarding the crop report. The reaction from top prices in stocks ran from 1 to 2 points in many instances, and converted the earlier gains into general losses which reached as much as a point in some cases.

IN MEMORY OF NICOLET.

Students of Wisconsin History Will Unveil Tablet at Spot Where Frenchman Landed.

GREEN BAY, Wis., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—Jean Nicolet's discovery of Wisconsin 275 years ago will be commemorated at the joint convention of the Wisconsin Historical society and the Green Bay Historical society on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. A tablet marking the spot where the Frenchman landed at Red Banks will be unveiled on Tuesday on Wednesday afternoon. A historic collection will be one of the interesting features of the convention.

Another tablet marking the site of old Fort Howard near the North-Western station will be unveiled on Wednesday and James H. Elmore will give the chief address. E. M. Hyzer, general counsel of the North-Western road, will talk, also A. C. Neville.

The historic Tank cottage, believed to be the oldest building in Wisconsin, will be formally dedicated in its new location in Union park on Wednesday afternoon. A historic collection will be one of the interesting features of the convention.

LAND DRAWING BEGINS

Distribution of Reservation Farms Opens at Spokane, Wash., After Three Weeks Registration.

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 9.—Although the crowds of land seekers were not so large as they had been daily during the last three weeks, when filing applications for registration on the Coeur d'Alene, Spokane and Flathead reservations, several thousand people eagerly awaited this morning the hour of 10 o'clock when the drawing for the Coeur d'Alene land began. Many had remained after mailing their applications and others who went on to visit the exposition at Seattle had returned in the hope that they might be announced as among the fortunate few to draw prizes.

Each of the 105,000 persons applying for Coeur d'Alene lands has one chance in 333; each of the 100,000 applicants for Spokane lands one in 400; and of the 87,000 for Flathead land one in fifteen.

Polar Expeditions.

With painful regularity each Polar exploring expedition is followed in due course of time by a relief expedition, sent out to discover the explorer and minister to his needs, which are frequently pretty grave by the time he is found. In such cases, however, it is necessary that he leave some clue to the line of adventure that he purposes to follow. This Perry did, and a relief expedition is now on its trail, but it has been announced that it does not propose to make any special effort to find Dr. Cook, the Brooklyn explorer, who plunged into the unknown without sharing the details of his purpose with anyone. But Dr. Cook is a scientist of value. He has done geographical work in Alaska, and even though he has had the temerity to start out on a still hunt for the pole that should not put him outside the pale of human success, if that is possible. He has been in the Arctic for about two years, and when last heard from his situation was far from enviable. By the way, what has become of the rescue party that Admiral Schley was endeavoring to organize in his behalf last March?—Boston Transcript.

VAN SANT FOR G. A. R.

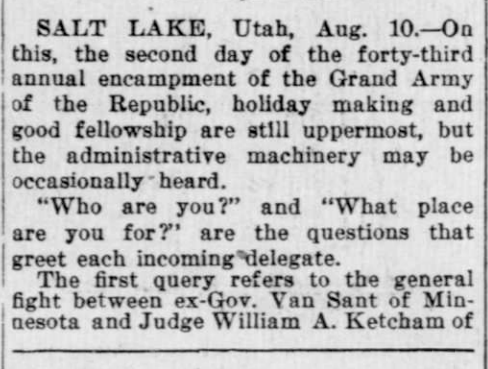

MINNESOTA MAN AHEAD IN POLL FOR COMMANDER.

Contest Lies Between Ex-Governor of Gopher State and Judge W. A. Ketchum of Indiana.

SALT LAKE, Utah, Aug. 10.—On this, the second day of the forty-third annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, holiday making and good fellowship are still uppermost, but the administrative machinery may be occasionally heard.

"Who are you?" and "What place are you for?" are the questions that greet each incoming delegate.

The first query refers to the general fight between ex-Gov. Van Sant of Minnesota and Judge William A. Ketchum of Indiana.

EX-GOV. J. R. VAN SANT.

Indiana for the chief command, while the second has to do with the spirited contest between Atlantic City and St. Louis for the forty-fourth encampment. A partial poll taken Monday night is said to have shown 160 Van Sant votes out of a total of about 400. The Ketchum manager concedes 100 votes, claims 100 and calls the remaining 200 doubtful.

As between Atlantic City and St. Louis the issue is even more uncertain. The retiring commander, Henry M. Nevius, is exercising his influence in favor of the seaboard city and the ambition of Denver to secure the site of the meeting may also count against St. Louis.

There is a triple contest for the national presidency of the Women's Relief corps, with Mrs. Jennie L. Berry of Iowa, Mrs. Belle Harris of Kansas and Mrs. Melissa Caylor of Indiana as the candidates.

AERONAUTS SUCCEED IN CROSSING ALPS.

Balloon Sirius with Three Passengers Flies from France, Reaching Altitude of 18,373 Feet.

CHAMONIX, France, Aug. 10.—The balloon Sirius has succeeded in flying over the Alps. The airship left here last Sunday under the pilotage of M. Spelterine, who had with him three passengers. Fears were entertained for the safety of the voyagers, but they have been dispelled by the receipt of a report that they have landed safely at a point near Locarno at an altitude of 5400 feet. The four men, however, still have a dangerous path to cover on foot from the place where they landed into Locarno.

The Sirius traversed Mt. Blanc and soared over the Aiguille du Dr. and the Aiguille Verte. The highest altitude attained on the voyage was 5000 meters, equal to 18,373 feet.

A successful balloon trip over Mt. Blanc and the Alps was made in November of 1906 by two Italian aeronauts in the balloon Milano. The greatest altitude reached was 20,500 feet and the rarified atmosphere made it necessary for the men to resort to their supply of oxygen to keep alive. The Milano, which went up from Milan, came down at Aix-les-Bains after having covered 175 miles in three hours.

The record for height in a balloon would appear to belong to two Englishmen, Messrs. Coxwell and Gishner, who in 1862 ascended to a height of 37,000 feet, or about seven miles. In 1875 M. Tissandier, a Frenchman, rose more than five miles into the air. He was accompanied by a friend who died on the way. A self-registering balloon sent up with out a passenger from Paris in 1893 reached an altitude of 52,490 feet.

ZEPPELIN IS NOT DEAD.

Inventor of Dirigible Balloon Quickly Recovering from the Effects of Minor Operation.

BERLIN, Aug. 10.—The rumor emanating from London that Count Zeppelin, the inventor of the dirigible balloon which bears his name, had died, is without foundation. He is not only living but he is quickly recovering from the effects of the minor operation for an abscess on his neck. The daring aeronaut had so far recovered, that he was out walking Monday.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Orville Wright, the aviator, who sailed from New York today with his sister, Miss Katherine Wright, on the Kron Princess Cecilie, submitted to a brief interview here today. He said that he had been held in effect that either he or his brother Wilbur, barring mishaps, could fly 1000 miles. While he did not say this directly, he hinted as much by saying that their perfected machine could carry fuel enough to last twenty-four hours, which would enable it to travel 1000 miles if a 40-mile speed was maintained.

WISCONSIN TO BUY LAND FOR A STATE PARK

TRACT OF 4000 ACRES IS ACQUIRED AT COST OF FIFTY THOUSAND DOLLARS.

RIVALS MACKINAC'S BEAUTY.

Includes Eagle Island and Other Picturesque Spots of Great Natural Charm.

DEAL READY FOR CONSUMMATION.

MARINETTE, Wis., Aug. 11.—[Special.]—The first Wisconsin state park is practically a reality. The deal for the purchase by the state of 4000 acres in Door county will be consummated this week in Sturgeon Bay.

Gov. Davidson has given his written approval of the project and the park commissioners, after spending two weeks investigating, have given instructions to Attorney General Gilbert to close the purchase for the state. F. S. Messerschmidt, assistant attorney general, was in Marinette this morning on his way to Sturgeon Bay to take the deeds for the purchase of the land.

The state has options on most of the property desired and has started condemnation proceedings to acquire three portions of land that it cannot buy in the ordinary way. Two of the latter are on the main land and the third is Eagle island, off Ephraim. The park commissioners desire to add this pretty island, which has a perfect natural harbor, horseshoe in shape, the state park.

Will Cost $50,000.

The new park will consist of 4000 acres, about $50,000. It includes practically all of the shore between Fish Creek and Ephraim. Most of this shore is high and rugged, with the exception of the portion near Fish Creek, where there is a fine beach. Included in the state park will be the slightly Eagle bluff, which rises sheer from the water nearly 200 feet. In the face of the bluff is a cave which has been a rendezvous for sightseers for years.

Shanty bay is also part of the park. As soon as the purchase is concluded, the improvement of the new park will begin. Men who ought to know believe that Wisconsin will in time have a state park equaling and surpassing in some features, Mackinac island, the famous Michigan state park.

Has Promising Future.

Starting with the bluff at Fish Creek, nearly 300 feet high, it swings northward irregularly until it reaches Ephraim. Limestone bluffs, covered with shaggy evergreens, constitute most of the shore line. From Green Bay, the park is very imposing and slightly, and the many surrounding islands and pretty inlets make it an ideal place for a park.

Back of the shore are some very fine drives, and it is predicted that it will be a great rendezvous for motor cars in time. The Door county region is at present a very popular summer resort for people from southern Illinois, Missouri, Indiana and Kentucky, and there are numerous summer hotels at different points along the shore.

LEGGS OFF; KICKS COPS.

Crippled Shoe String Peddler Causes Havoc Among Mellen Police When They Nab Him.

MELLEN, Wis., Aug. 11.—[Special.]—Legless and drunk, a crippled shoe-string vendor put Mellen's police force out of business for a time Monday when the department tried to arrest him. When the cops sought to make the pinch the cripple landed one of his stumps so hard on the solar plexus of the nearest policeman that he took the count.

His brother officer threw the cripple down and sat on him, but only for a minute, for the legless merchant sank his teeth into the fleshiest part of the cop's anatomy. The policeman broke away with a howl and retired from the scene of battle to hunt some court plaster, and now takes his meals off the mantelpiece.

In municipal court the peddler gave his name as Alfred Ober and was sentenced to fifteen days in the lockup. He said he got lost while deer hunting and had both legs frozen off above the knees.

JACK JOHNSON SIGNS.

Colored Heavy Weight Agrees to Meet James J. Jeffries in Ring Encounter for Championship.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 11.—Articles of agreement for a fight between Jack Johnson and James J. Jeffries for the heavy weight championship of the world were signed here today. The fight is to take place within eight months before the club offering the best inducements. All bids for the fight are to be in inside of sixty days. Sam Berger, manager for James J. Jeffries, George Little, Johnson's manager, and Jack Johnson were present at the meeting when the articles were signed.

KING MAY CHALLENGE.

Alfonso Thought to Be Considering Chances of Winning the America Cup in Yacht Race.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Reports are current in yachting circles here that King Alfonso of Spain is a possible challenger for the America's cup. The reports are signed here today. The fight is to take place within eight months before the club offering the best inducements. All bids for the fight are to be in inside of sixty days. Sam Berger, manager for James J. Jeffries, George Little, Johnson's manager, and Jack Johnson were present at the meeting when the articles were signed.

Rounded End of Table Knife.

Until the Seventeenth century knif blades had pointed ends, as can readily be understood when the knife of those days was used for hunting and table purposes indiscriminately. The rounded edge was introduced from France in a curious way. It happened that Cardinal Richelieu was compelled to entertain a vulgar and unamannerly man, who at the close of the meal proceeded to use his knife as a toothpick. This vulgar act so upset the cardinal that he ordered the end of every knife in his possession to be rounded, and so great was Richelieu's influence that the fashion was soon adopted all over the country. This is the vulgar, but nevertheless interesting origin of the rounded knife of today.—Tit-Bits.

MOTHER STEALS CHILD

DIVORCEE IS CAPTURED AFTER VISIT TO MILWAUKEE.

Father Reclaims Son, but Does Not Prosecute Woman Who Once Was His Wife.

RACINE, Wis., Aug. 10.—[Special.]—This afternoon Sheriff Beverly of Green Bay arrived here with William Gzagar in search of the son of the latter, who was kidnapped from Green Bay on Saturday last by his mother.

The parties were divorced several months ago and the custody of the 4-year old child was given to the father by the judge at Green Bay. The wife appeared there last Saturday and found the boy playing on the streets. She took him and fled to Milwaukee, going to Milwaukee, from whence she came to Racine.

She was found here with the boy, occupying rooms on Washington avenue. The two were taken into custody by the officers, but is likely that the new woman will be taken to Green Bay as the father says all he wants is the child.

WILL BOOM CUMMINS.

Fellow Townsmen Hail Iowa Senator as Next Logical Leader for Presidency in 1912.

DES MOINES, Ia., Aug. 10.—Five thousand of his fellow townsmen, cheering and waving flags, greeted Senator Albert B. Cummins as he stepped from a Rock Island train upon his arrival home from Washington Monday evening.

Every mention of Senator Cummins' brilliant fight for lower duties brought cheers from the throng which crowded about the speaker's stand. A picture of the senator bearing the inscription, "Cummins for President in 1912," was carried through the crowd and caused much enthusiasm. Mayor A. J. Mathis created another burst of enthusiasm when he expressed the hope that Des Moines might some day be able to welcome Cummins home as President instead of senator.

In response to speeches of welcome Senator Cummins made a short address in which he stated briefly his reason for voting against the Payne tariff bill.

"We all know that the protective tariff is the fundamental doctrine of the Republican party," he said. "I do not believe that fundamental doctrine was wisely applied in the law just passed, and therefore I voted against it. I have no apology to make."

SATISFIES BOTH SIDES.

Proposition Advanced by Chicago Railway Officials for Gradual Increase in Wages Will Avert Strike.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 10.—Union officials and the heads of the Chicago street railway companies conferred today over the differences on the wage scale of the employees.

In the opinion of the leaders on both sides, the tentative propositions offered by the railway officials looking to a gradual advance in the wage scale will be a working basis for the drawing of an agreement satisfactory to both the men and the employers.

Through the medium of Walter L. Fisher, special traction attorney, the city is taking an active part in the negotiations, being a recipient of 55 per cent of the net profits of the street railways under the franchise ordinances recently adopted. The negotiations whether successful or not will probably continue for several days, before definite results are reached.

EVERLYN ASKS $500,000.

Thaw's Wife Demands Settlement, but Husband's Lawyer Says He Is Not Worried.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Aug. 10.—That Evelyn Nesbit Thaw is seeking to drive her husband's family into setting upon her a large sum of money, said to be $500,000, is the statement made Monday by Charles Morschauer, attorney for Harry K. Thaw.

"Since Mrs. Thaw ascertained she could not force Harry into acceding to her wishes by threats of divorce she has resorted to an actual demand for the settlement of a large sum upon herself."

"Is it as much as $500,000?" Mr. Morschauer was asked.

"Yes, it's somewhat around that figure. We are not excited by her offer. She is making a divorce threat, for we know what she has been doing. She has been negotiating with District Attorney Jerome and his alienists and aiding them, in their case, therefore she can look to them to take care of her."

RETELLS TANK TALES

HJALMAR HOLLAND ADDRESSES HISTORICAL CONVENTION.

Tablet Marking Site of Old Fort Howard Is Dedicated and Oldest Wisconsin Dwelling Is Opened.

GREEN BAY, Wis., Aug. 11.—The joint convention of the State Historical society of Wisconsin and the Green Bay Historical society opened Tuesday evening in the public library building.

An address was delivered by Frederick Jackson Turner, L. L. D., professor of American history in the University of Wisconsin, on "The Old Fort on Green Bay." The address "Mr. and Mrs. Nilsson Tank," by Hjalmar Rued Holland of Ephraim, Wis., proved interesting.

Mr. Holland in telling of the couple who many years ago settled in this part of the state and had a great deal to do with shaping the destiny of the country, said:

"Nilsson Tank was born in Fredricks-hald, Norway, in 1808, and was married to Catherine Vandermeulen in 1849. The couple went to Milwaukee in 1850 to aid their countrymen who preceded them here. It was estimated that 3,000,000 people were brought with them. Mr. Tank purchased a tract of 969 acres on Fox river, which is still known as Tank-town, and now a part of the city of Green Bay. The first Norwegian school ever taught in America was established here to educate children brought to America by their parents.

"Pastor Iversen, who was with a party of colonists, had charge of the church. He thought that the colony had been established by Mr. Tank was establishing an obnoxious system of serfs as in Norway in the scheme to enrich himself, as he could see no other reason for the selection of a wilderness in which to establish a colony.

"The matter was agitated by the pastor and it was finally decided to have Mr. Tank deed the land to the settlers. This he refused to do, and the colonists decided to go with Iversen to the north part of Door county, which is known as Ephraim. The colony left the Tank settlement in May, 1853. Although Tank loved his countrymen he made no effort to stop them from leaving him, as he thought they would be more benefited that he was trying to swindle them.

"Tank passed away in Tank cottage in 1864 after a sudden illness, while his widow lived until 1887. An only daughter died in 1872. The remaining property, valued at $1,000,000, was distributed to different missions, and the furnishings of the cottage, which were like the contents of a museum of rare art, were sold at public auction.

This morning a tablet marking the spot of old Fort Howard, near the site of the North-Western depot, was dedicated. Mrs. James H. Elmore, daughter of Col. William Chapman, officer at the fort in 1837, withdrawing the veil in the afternoon the formal opening of Tank cottage, the oldest dwelling in Wisconsin, took place. Thursday's programme will be taken up with a pilgrimage to Red Banks, and the unveiling of a tablet commemorating the discovery of Wisconsin by Jean Nicolet in 1634.

THOSE NEW COIFFURES

St. Louis Priest Determines They Shall Not Be Displayed in Church.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 11.—St. Paul's first epistle to the Corinthians is Rev. Father J. D. Metzler's authority for refusing to permit women to enter his church unless they wear hats. He is pastor of St. Boniface's Catholic church in Edwardsville.

Several times recently Father Metzler has seen women and girls enter the church without head-covering, and he announced that they would be denied admission thereafter.

"If they were told a reporter, 'If they were told women of the Catholic faith,' the priest told a reporter, 'the wearing of hats in regard to the ignorance of this custom cannot be excused, and hereafter I cannot have them in my church. The custom is centuries old and it cannot be too reverently observed.

"The church is the place for religious thought, not for social frivolity or the display of new coiffures. The new styles of hairdressing should be exhibited, it women must exhibit them, elsewhere than in Catholic houses of worship. Even at wedding parties the ancient custom shall not be ignored. But at weddings women may cover their heads with wreaths of flowers or with veils instead of with hats.

"The Apostle Paul explained that abundant hair is provided as a covering for women, and that for them to appear in church without a head covering is equivalent to shaving the hair from their heads."

STEERS IN STAMPEDE.

Several Persons at Port Huron, Mich., Trampled on When Animals Break from Parade.

PORT HURON, Mich., Aug. 11.—A number of persons were trampled on and otherwise injured today by a dozen steers which were part of a wild west show. The steers charged into a crowd at the entrance to the St. Clair street bridge. Several dogs ran barking at the steers as the parade reached the bridge and stampeded the steers into the street. Miss Jessie Ingley of Grayling was seriously injured internally by being trampled on. The other injured persons suffered hurts of a minor nature.

ELEPHANTS STAMPEDE A TOWN.

Herd of Eleven Runs Amuck When Dog Bites Beast's Heel.

CLAY CENTER, Kan., Aug. 11.—For two hours Friday the town was terrorized by eleven elephants which escaped from a show and stampeded through the streets. A small dog bit a heel of an elephant and the beasts, breaking from its keeper, ran away, the other ten elephants following. A showman was knocked from a horse and seriously hurt during the excitement the people of the town kept off the streets.

A Clever Turn.

An eminent lawyer was once cross-examined a very clever woman, mother of the plaintiff in a breach of promise action, and was completely worsted in the encounter of wits. At the close, however, he turned to the jury and exclaimed, "You saw, gentlemen, that even I was but a child in her hands. What must my client have been?" By this adroit stroke of advocacy he turned his failure into a success.—London Mail.

THIEVES TO CATCH THIEVES.

Many Former Bandits Now in Mexico's Mounted Police.

The rurales or mounted police have pretty nearly put a stop to brigandage. Several years ago the government recognized the wisdom of the old adage "Set a thief to catch a thief," and offered pardon and protection to all brigands who would enlist as rurales.

Most of them took advantage of the offer, writes Dillon Wallace in Outing, and with these men on the side of law and order hold-ups soon became infrequent, and the rurales developed into a wonderfully efficient mounted force to hunt down bandits. They are fearless riders, they know every mountain pass and fastness, and when they once start after a man he is pretty sure to be caught or killed—generally killed.

The rurales of Mexico compare favorably in bravery and reckless daring with that wonderful organization, the North-west Mounted Police of Canada, and are by far the best armed force in Mexico. Their calling gives them opportunity for wild adventure, and thus satisfies the craving for a life of danger, which led many of them to brigandage in the first instance. They are free and easy lot, quite in contrast to the peaceably inclined policemen of the towns and the slow moving, indolent soldiery of the regular army.

CHILD HAD SIXTY BOILS

And Suffered Annually with a Red Seal-Like Humor on Her Head—Troubles Cured by Cuticura.

"When my little Vivian was about six months old her head broke out in boils. She had about sixty in all and I used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment which cured her entirely. Some time later a humor broke out behind her ears and spread up on to her head until it was nearly half covered. The humor looked like a scald, very red with a sticky, clear fluid coming from it. This occurred every spring. I always used Cuticura Soap and Ointment which never failed to heal it up. The last time it broke out it became so bad that I was discouraged. But I continued the use of Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent until she was well and has never been troubled in the last two years. Mrs. M. A. Schwerin, 674 Spring Wells Ave., Detroit, Mich., Feb. 24, 1908."

The Cost of Sickness.

Prof. Fisher of Yale has been figuring on the cost of sickness to the nation at large. He calculates that 3,000,000 people are needlessly and continuously ill in the United States, and that this condition might well be prevented by strict attention to even the simplest hygienic measures. According to his data the cost alone is responsible for 500,000 persons being continually ill, yet it is admittedly possible that this scourge may be wiped out within one generation. Typhoid alone costs the country $550,000,000, and this is a disease that can be wholly prevented by attention to neglected details. In support of this statement, and showing what can be done in an individual instance, Prof. Fisher quotes the case of the city of Lawrence, which, by the introduction of a new water supply, reduced its typhoid mortality by over 80 per cent. It is shown by carefully gathered data that malaria costs the country $100,000,000 and is wholly preventable.

A Dainty Toilet Article.

Every lady who desires to keep up her attractive appearance, while at the Theater, attending Receptions, when shopping, while traveling and on all occasions should carry in her purse a booklet of Gouard's Oriental Beauty Leaves. This is a dainty little booklet of leaves which are easily removed and applied to the skin. It is invaluable when the face becomes moist and flushed and is far superior to a powder puff as it does not spill and soil the clothes.

It removes dirt, soot and grease from the face, imparts to the complexion a bloom to the complexion. Sent anywhere on receipt of Five Cents in stamps or coin.

F. T. Hopkins, 37 Great Jones St., New York.

Edible Flowers of India.

Many edible flowers, it appears, are to be found in India. One of the most appreciated grows on a tree about which we have very little information, but which in the country itself is named the "mowand." The individual consume an enormous number of these flowers, whose pale yellow corollae are pulpy and thick, and prepare them in various ways. When they are fresh they are put in cakes, to which they give a sweet flavor, but they are more especially used for making bread after they have been dried and reduced to flour. By allowing them to ferment an agreeable wine is produced and by distilling them a brandy is obtained of which the Hindus are very fond.—La Vulgarisation Scientifique.

Fifty years ago there were 23,000 distilleries in Sweden, but that number has now been reduced to 152.

Attendance.

We owe it to our Cut Glass display

To again bring it to your notice. Since we last spoke to you on this subject we have added to our showing some delightfully attractive goods, and we are anxious to have you see them.

It is impossible to describe their beauty—for mere words can give you no indication of the scintillating loveliness of this ware.

And we can honestly say that our today's Cut Glass display is larger, more varied and attractive than any we have ever invited you to examine.

And as you know, this is saying a good deal.
Add to all this the fact that our values are really exceptional, and you will get a fair idea of what our Cut Glass arguments are.

AT HOME
There has been a remarkable increase during the last few years in the use of Lithia bottled beer in the home. We are now supplying four families where we formerly supplid one.

At the family table, in the entertainment of friends, or for the quiet evening hours alone, in reading or study, Lithia beer finds its place.
Its great merit lies in its food foundation—barley and hops. No other character of beverage can take its place.
