Over 3,300 Students Enrolled at 'Varsity

Registration at the University of Wisconsin for the first week showed a total of 3,369 students enrolled, an increase of over 10 per cent over last year's enrollment of 2,998 at the same time, which indicates that the whole number of students for the year will approximate 5,000.

Gains were largest in the college of letters and science, in which there are 2,092 students, an increase of 37 or over 15 per cent; in the college of agriculture, where a gain of 103 students in the two and four year courses makes a total of 308 against 205 last year, 50 per cent increase; and in the school of medicine, which has 43 students, nearly three times the number enrolled at the time of the organization of the school last year. In the reorganized department of home economics 41 students are enrolled; in the college of engineering 685; in the law school 121; and in the course in pharmacy 32.

Spur Track at Eden

The railroad commission of Wisconsin has made an order, directed to the Chicago & North-Western Railway company, requiring that it build a suitable spur track for the accommodation of the Eden Independent Lime and Stone company at its limestone quarries in the town of Eden, Fond du Lac county. The order is conditional, however, upon a further requirement that the Eden company deposit with the railroad company the sum of $1,660, the estimated cost of building the extension, and in addition a sufficient sum to cover the cost of right of way.

Sixty days is given the parties within which to comply with the provisions of the order.

New Inquest Law

There is a new inquest law now in vogue which will bring condemnation on account of the expense and delay incurred when it becomes generally known. Under an act signed by the governor on May 26 the coroner is no longer authorized to impanel a jury for an inquest. Under the present law the clerk of the court must draw 12 names from the jury box and hand them to the sheriff, who in turn is obliged to subpoena 6 of them.

Mrs. Selma Bach, of Fredonia, widow of the late Gustave Bach, who was run down by a C. M. & St. P. passenger train and killed on July 2nd, 1908, has received a check of $2,250 from the company as indemnity, after a hard legal fight.

Emeron Bachhuber, aged 72, a pioneer of Mayville, died Oct. 8th, after an attack of heart trouble. He is survived by ten children. He emigrated from Germany, arriving in Milwaukee in 1845 and for fifty years he has lived at Mayville. Mr. Bachhuber has held numerous offices and was well known. The funeral took place last Monday.

An unfortunate accident happened yesterday to George Buerger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Buerger, who reside near Huilsburg. He landed on his feet and with such force as to cause a pulmonary fracture of both ankles.—Hartford Times.

Fire at Lomira

The Bietz machine shop at Lomira was destroyed by fire during last week Thursday night. The fire was first noticed at 12 o'clock in the night by Joseph Knarr, who occupied rooms over the machine shop with his family. When Mr. Knarr first noticed the fire it had gained such headway that he and his family had to make their escape through a window. The alarm was at once given, but before the fire department arrived the fire had gained such headway, that attention was only given to the adjoining property, which was saved by hard work.

The building destroyed is the property of Mr. Hastings of Fond du Lac. The lower story of the building was occupied by William Beitz as a machine shop, and the upper part by Joseph Knarr as a dwelling. The building is insured for $700. Mr. Beitz carried $3,200, and Mr. Knarr had no insurance, consequently is the heaviest loser.

A subscription list was started at Lomira to replenish a part of Mr. Knarr's loss, who is in poor circumstances with a large family to support.

Injured While Hunting

Peter Kreutz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Kreutz of this city, was quite badly injured last Sunday, while out hunting in the vicinity of Arnold Daniel's farm in the town of Erin. Peter, in company with Harry Daniels had gone out rabbit hunting. They tracked a rabbit to a stone pile and had put down their guns to hunt for it, Harry succeeding in getting hold of the animal with his hands. A young boy named Gurke, about thirteen years old, came along at that time and picked up Kreutz's gun. Kreutz seeing him working at it told him to let it alone, and started to take it away from him when the charge went off and struck Kreutz in the legs, going through the calf of one and taking a piece out of the other. He was taken back to Daniels' and Dr. Donelly of Monches was called to dress the injuries. They were very painful and the boy was forced to remain at Mr. Daniels' until today. Friday, before he could be removed to his home here. He was brought up this forenoon in Wm. Kissel's auto.—Hartford Press.

Ginseng Beds in West Bend

A. E. Detuncq and sons, who have successfully grown ginseng for a number of years, had a very good season this year. They gathered eighty-five pounds of green roots from their four beds, got one and one-half bushels of seed, and also sold 15,000 tops. The tops were until this season considered worthless, but a concern at Milwaukee has gone into the manufacture of ginseng syrup and is now buying all the tops it can get. Mr. Detuncq and sons have been making big money in growing ginseng and are now getting ready to put down quite a number of new beds.—The West Bend Pilot.

Richfield Case Decided

Judge Martin L. Lueck has handed down his decision in the case of J. Adam Bruessel vs. Mary Laubheimer tried before him at West Bend last April. The decision is in favor of Mrs. Laubheimer. The parties reside at Richfield, and the plaintiff was represented by Atty. J. H. Schnorenberg, of this city, and W. H. Bennett, of Milwaukee. The case for defendant was tried by Atty. Sawyer & Sawyer, of this city.

Mr. Bruessel is a lumber dealer at Richfield, and sued to recover $1,095.66 as a balance he claimed due for lumber and building material sold and delivered to William Laubheimer, on June 22, 1904, and Dec. 20, 1905, who died intestate on Jan. 12, 1906. Plaintiff failed to file his claim in probate court during the time the estate was being probated, but alleges that he failed to do so by reason of Mrs. Laubheimer, wife of deceased, pleading with him not to do so and agreeing to pay the said claim in small installments without interest.

The case occupied the time of the court about four days and was hotly contested on both sides. The decision is a complete victory for Mrs. Laubheimer.—Hartford Times.

The Weather for October

Rev. Irl R. Hicks predicts weather for the last half of October as follows:

A regular storm period is central on the 14th, covering the 12th to 17th. About the 12th decided storm conditions will begin forming in the west. By the 13th and 14th the temperature will be high, and the barometer will be low and falling in western sections and from Wednesday the 13th to Sunday the 17th, heavy autumnal storms, with lightning and thunder on and touching the 13th, will pass from west to east across the country. Change to much colder, with high barometer and violent gales will wind up this period.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 19th, 20th and 21st. Early snow and sleet may appear, and then fair weather, frosty nights and low temperature generally will spread over the country for several days.

A regular storm period is central on the 26th, extending from the 24th to the 29th. Look for falling barometer, high temperature and electrical storms on and next to the 26th and 27th.

Seasons First Blizzard

This section was visited by the first snow storm of the season last Monday evening. Snow began to fall in little flurries about six o'clock, but increased with the velocity of the wind later in the evening, and developed into a small blizzard, which lasted all day Tuesday and by night the ground was covered with snow, with a heavy gale blowing all night. The temperature dropped to about fifteen degrees above zero. A thin coating of ice formed on the river.

A Peculiar Breach of Promise Suit

The following dispatch from Fond du Lac to the Milwaukee Sentinel will be of interest to many of our readers:

"A joke was pulled off on Cupid when one June day some two years ago Miss Anna H. Peters, a prominent society woman of Hustisford and Leroy G. Curtis, principal of the Oakfield High school, entered into an agreement to wed, with the provision that either party might declare the event off by serving notice on the other. Mr. Curtis, it seems, took advantage of that clause in the contract, and now Miss Peters has brought suit in the court of Dodge county in which she asks damage in the sum of $2,000 for an alleged broken heart.

Mr. Curtis in his answer admits the promise but sets up alleged proviso as a defense. He further denies that any unconditional promise of marriage was made on June 24, 1907, Dec. 31, 1908, or on June 21, 1907, as averred by the plaintiff. Mr. Curtis was formerly a resident of Waupun and his father was for many years a teacher in the schools of that city.

The case will be heard in Fond du Lac having been brought there on a change of venue.

Notice

Some months ago there appeared a notice in this paper telling all patrons to keep a supply of stamps on hand. The notice has had some effect but far from the effect it should and must have. If the patrons who so thoughtfully put into a smooth box a penny or pennies, as the case may be, would try on a cold morning, after driving 20 or more miles, to remove them with gloved or ungloved hands I am of the opinion the practice would cease. Why not place a cup into this box or better yet buy a dollars worth of stamps and lick your own stamps doing away with one of the hardships of your carrier? The notice gives a definite expression and your carrier will in the future practice what said order allows him. I hope that all patrons of the Rural Free Delivery will read this notice, take it to mind and make it a practice to please their carrier whoever he may be and buy a dollar's worth of stamps at a time giving them a supply on hand and not bother the poor carrier when he is almost frozen to death.

CRANE IS ASKED TO RESIGN POST

STATEMENT ISSUED FROM HEAD OF DEPARTMENT TELLS WHY
RECALL WAS MADE.

WHOLE AFFAIR IS EXPLAINED.

Taft Left Delicate Situation in Diplomatic Game to His Chief in That Department.

END OF CRISIS WAS EXPECTED.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 12.—Secretary of State Knox early this afternoon informed Charles R. Crane, minister designate to China that he would accept his resignation. Mr. Crane had already advised the secretary that he was prepared to resign if the recent developments had made his further service in that position embarrassing to the department. Mr. Knox has advised President Taft of his action.

Knox Makes Statement.

In announcing his action, Mr. Knox gave out the following statement, adding that he would have nothing to do with it:

"The department of state has been engaged for some time in making the usual study of the recent agreements between China and Japan in relation to Manchuria from such data bearing upon the situation as it was able to secure with a view of determining whether there is anything in the agreements adversely affecting American interests or in conflict with the principle of equal opportunities to which the powers are pledged; a study not yet concluded and in respect to which no decision has been reached. While this investigation was proceeding, Mr. Crane, the minister to China, came to the department and while there was informed by one of the clerks that such an examination was being made.

Without consultation with the acting secretary or any other responsible officer of the department and without the knowledge or authority of any one connected with the department, Mr. Crane gave out a newspaper story to the effect that this government was preparing to protest against some features of the agreements and that the return of an official who was to formulate it. The story appeared in a western paper and at the same time in a newspaper in the Japanese press and subsequently was generally published.

Minister Is Recalled.

Such were the representations made to me October 1 by the responsible officers of the department of state, accompanied by their statement that they had sufficient reason to believe them to be true. Whereupon I sent Mr. Crane at San Francisco the following telegram, dated October 3, 1906:

"You have been charged with the responsibility for the canards recently appearing in the Japanese and American press to the effect that the United States was preparing to protest against the Chinese-Japanese agreement. The evidence that you are responsible for this is not a matter of indifference to me in directing you to come to Washington at once and meet it. If you are not responsible, as I hope you are not, matters relating to Oriental affairs have developed since you left Washington to make it advisable for me to communicate with you personally and in the utmost confidence in relation thereto.

At a conference with Mr. Crane Sunday evening, he admitted having no recollection with a reporter which resulted in the publications referred to, and, assuming responsibility, stated that he was preparing to resign. I have reluctantly reached the conclusion that the god of the service demands that I should inform Mr. Crane that his resignation will be accepted, and I have done so.

Crane's Friends Talk.

Crane's friends talk. Friends of Mr. Crane have made the statement here during the progress of the developments since he arrived here on Sunday afternoon that he had felt justified in his public utterances by remarks which had been made to him personally by President Taft himself. Having reference to these statements, it was said this afternoon in an authoritative quarter, that the department felt assured that nothing Mr. Taft might ever have said to Mr. Crane could be claimed to justify the disclosures for which the present action was taken. And the same authority declared that undoubtedly Mr. Crane had greatly embarrassed the situation by denying, several times, while en route from San Francisco, that he knew why he had been recalled.

There was absolutely no doubt, it was declared, that Mr. Crane had the entire approval of the President in the action. Mr. Crane after receiving Secretary Knox's letter calling for his resignation was shown a copy of Mr. Knox's statement and read it attentively. Returning the paper to the reporter who brought it, he remarked that the matter was too serious to be discussed offhand but promised an interview later in the day.

KEY WEST NOW IN CHARGE OF THE MILITARY

BLOCKS OF FRAME STRUCTURES
RAZED AND DAMAGE WILL REACH $2,000,000.

BLIZZARD RAGES IN WEST.

Heavy Snowfall Reported in Wisconsin and Michigan, Delaying All Trains in North.

SUPERIOR GALE IS UNABATED.

KEY WEST, Fla., Oct. 12.—With the city in the hands of the military authorities who were called on by the mayor for assistance, efforts were made today to concentrate on ascertaining the damage done by the hurricane which swept the gulf yesterday. It was estimated the damage to property in the city and harbor would reach $2,000,000. No loss of life was reported in the city, but the death toll may be heavy along the eastern coast of the peninsula.

Many of the vessels which had been swept from their moorings during the blow yesterday afternoon managed to ride out the storm during the night and limped back to their piers this morning, but between sixty and seventy-five boats of all descriptions were wrecked. It is feared a number of lives were lost on these vessels.

In the city whole blocks of frame structures were razed, brick houses also fell before the gale, while the greater tobacco factories and warehouses suffered considerable damage.

Jail Filled with Vandals.

Storm windings were overflowing with vandals captured by the militia and police during the night. Thieves began operations as soon as the fury of the gale had abated, the wrecking of the electric light plant having plunged the city into darkness.

Hundreds of homeless today were being cared for in churches, schools, and other roomy structures which escaped the fury of the storm.

West Coast Escapes.

TAMPA, Fla., Oct. 12.—News received here today indicates that the west coast of the Florida peninsula escaped the full force of the hurricane which yesterday swept up from the gulf, but anxiety over shipping which is known to have been in the path of the storm. Every effort was made to reach all vessels by wireless, but without success in many instances.

Storm warnings were ordered down along the west coast at 10 o'clock last night, indicating that the storm had changed its course. It is now believed that the damage from the storm will be comparatively light in the interior.

Weather Bureau Reports.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 12.—The exact location of the center of the tropical disturbance this morning, as indicated by the reports to the weather bureau, was between 200 and 300 miles off Jacksonville, Fla. The usual path of the west Indian hurricanes which come up from the gulf and sweep the Atlantic coast is to pass to sea anywhere between Key West and Norfolk, then to veer northwesterly and continue into the north Atlantic. Storms of previous years have been known to continue their destructive paths all the way across the Atlantic, leaving in their wake many a wrecked vessel.

Key West this morning the storm was blowing and rain was falling. The thermometer registered 82 at 8 o'clock. Reports from Tampa, Fla., indicated that the storm was little felt there, the disturbance having passed somewhat to the south of that place. There being no observer of the weather bureau at Miami no reports of the effect of the hurricane in that city have been received here.

Storm Warnings Down.

All storm warnings on the Atlantic and gulf coasts have been ordered discontinued, but the weather bureau advises shipping interests that the hurricane is continuing over the Atlantic and caution should be exercised in the movement of vessels about to proceed across the Atlantic.

It is fully expected that incoming reports will disclose severe damage to shipping and much destruction to property, perhaps some loss of life among the Florida keys, but undoubtedly the destruction would have been very much greater except for the prompt action of the weather bureau in spreading broadcast through every available agency warnings of the approaching hurricane.

Evidently the question of food for the sufferers is not a very serious one, as the commanding officer at Key West says that he has 15,000 rations, though he is short of vegetables and fresh meats. Nor is any fear felt here that this question will come up as regards the population of the city, which is only five or six hours from Tampa from which supplies could be rushed promptly in the event such a step was necessary.

Considerable damage to the army property at Key West resulted from the hurricane. Two barrack buildings are unsafe and not considered repairable. The hospital was partially roofed and the supplies for that institution badly wrecked. The condensing plant was wrecked and all the buildings belonging to the army were flooded from the rains. The hurricane was at the rate of eighty miles an hour and continued six hours.

Twelve Lives Are Lost.

HAVANA, Oct. 12.—Communication between this city and interior today, which was interrupted yesterday by a storm tore down the telegraph and telephone wires, had not been renewed to date. Reports from nearby places indicate that the property loss, especially to the westward, has been heavy, but that there were few fatalities. Four bodies have been discovered amid the ruins of fallen homes here, and it is now believed that twelve lives were lost in this city. At least half of the lighters that were in the harbor when the storm broke were sunk or stranded, and the work of loading and discharging cargoes has been interfered with in a way to seriously affect the shipping interests.

Superior Storm Unabated.

DULUTH, Minn., Oct. 12.—A continuance of yesterday's blizzard was maintained today at the head of the lakes. A cutting wind, driving in from Lake Superior, with constant flurries of snow, ice-clad pavements and a preponderance of heavy furs rendered the streets disagreeable, contributed to the December appearance of the present storm which struck this locality twenty-four hours ago.

Each delay is being experienced by shipping on the lake. Big freighters have not attempted to pass inside to the bay, fearing collision with the concrete piers at the government channel. No accidents, however, have been reported.

On the range, the blizzard has been general with reports of a foot and more of snow at various places. The sudden fall in temperature is causing suffering there to those caught without coal. Live stock is also suffering from the cold. School attendance has been cut to half.

Practically every train arriving in Duluth and Superior today was an hour or more late. Duluth is in the thickest of the storm. It is most severe at the western end of Lake Superior and does not extend as far to the upper bay. Duluth, Michigan, although it is working in that direction. Low temperatures prevail throughout the northwest. The mercury registered about 24 degrees above zero this morning.

Detroit Sees the Snow.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 12.—Lower Michigan received its first installment of real winter today. With the temperature hovering between 30 and 40 degrees, snow fell intermittently over almost all of the lower part of the state. A thirty-mile an hour wind prevailed at Traverse City six inches of snow has fallen and it is still snowing. Heavy damage has been done to fruit and potatoes in that vicinity. Merchants are using sleighs today instead of wagons.

Benton Harbor also reported heavy loss to fruit growers in the southwestern part of the state. Thousands of baskets of grapes are still on the vines. A terrific storm is blowing on Lake Michigan.

Chicago Feels Winter.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 12.—Chicago was visited by a slight snowstorm today, the first of the season. Evidences of heavier snows in the north and northwest were borne on the reefs and sides of railway cars entering the city. Temperature close to the freezing point added to the discomfort of travel on the streets.

Snow Falls Three Hours.

NEENAH, Wis., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—The first real snowstorm hit Neenah and the Lake Winnebago region head-on Monday night. The snow fell in large flakes for three hours. The temperature took a very sudden drop Monday morning. Heavy frosts are reported.

Lightning Strikes Barn.

EAU CLAIRE, Wis., Oct. 12.—When a lightning bolt struck the barn of Max Bandoli the owner was rendered unconscious, four of his men were killed and everything on the premises except the residence was destroyed, including the season's stock of grain, hay and straw. Bandoli was rescued from the burning structure by his wife.

Six Suffer from Exposure.

NEENAH, Wis., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—The first of six Neenah men had a harrowing experience on Lake Winnebago Monday, when they attempted to cross the lake. A sudden wind came up, piling the waves up high. The party was in a small gasoline launch, which partly filled with water. The party finally reached shore after three hours of battling with wind and waves. The party suffered much from exposure. It was composed of Richard Reidhauser, T. Schmidt, Charles Hart, Herman Fetter, Julius Miller and August Siegert.

Gale Sweeps Lake Superior.

HOUGHTON, Mich., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—The storm which set in here Sunday is still raging. Snow is falling and the temperature continues to drop. A thirty-mile gale swept Lake Superior Monday night, but it is believed no vessels were out, having been given sufficient warning.

Train Service Injured.

GREEN BAY, Wis., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—Green Bay was visited Monday night and today by one of the severest storms ever experienced here at this time of the year. Several inches of snow have already fallen and the storm is still raging. Trains, telephone and telegraph service have been interfered with.

Blizzard Still Rages.

MANITOWOC, Wis., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—The most blizzards in the history of Manitowoc at a date today raged throughout today. The temperature took a decided drop at noon Monday night. The snow fell until it was below freezing. High winds accompanied the storm with a snow fall of more than two inches.

Three Inch Snowfall.

LA CROSSE, Wis., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—A heavy snow of three inches fell here during the night.

BLOW ON ADAM'S APPLE KILLS MAN INSTANTLY.

Green Bay (Wis.) Paper Mill Owner Is Slain by Bare Fist During Saloon Scuffle.

GREEN BAY, Wis., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—During a fracas at Geyer's Brothers' saloon, Henry Hoberg of the John Hoberg Paper Mills company, was instantly killed by Frank Kramer, aged 25 years. Kramer struck Hoberg with his fist on the Adam's apple and, it is believed, broke the jugular vein.

AFTER RECORD IN AIR.

Forbes and Fleischmann Will Ascend in St. Louis in Contest for Lahm Cup.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 12.—A. Holland Forbes, New York, and Max Fleischmann, Cincinnati, were busy today preparing the balloon New York for a flight by which they hope to capture the Lahm cup, now held by Capt. C. D. Chandler, U. S. The start is scheduled for late this afternoon and it is the intention of the aeronauts to voyage as nearly as possible to the northeast in the hope of flying far into Canada.

of a solitary man's northward trip. Nevertheless, I rose from bed and called to a man who was standing a short distance from my house: "Are you suffering from vermin?" I asked. Dr. Cook modestly replied: "No, sir." Then you can come in," I said. Dr. Cook entered the house and for every reason I can think of he is the best man in the world. Dr. Cook obeyed in silence, and after the bathing Kraut reports: "We talked together for more than half an hour before Cook, after having shown me his chart of the map, in reply to my inquiry, 'then you have been at the north pole?' quietly said: 'Yes, I have.'"

Mrs. Harriman, the World's Richest Woman.

Mrs. Edward H. Harriman, widow of the railroad magnate, to whom he left nearly all of his estate, valued at $267,000,000, is now the richest woman in the world. Mrs. Harriman has determined to complete the construction of the vast mountain palace at Arden, N. Y., where her husband died and make it her chief abiding place. By the completion of Arden house and of the elaborately planned improvements of the 42,000-acre stretch of mountain and meadow land which the palace overlooks, Mrs. Harriman will become the mistress of one of the world's most costly country homes. Its total cost, it is estimated, will reach $10,000,000.

KEY WEST WANTS AID

MAYOR APPEALS TO COUNTRY TO AID STRICKEN CITY.

Starvation Faces Victims of Hurricane
Which Damaged or Destroyed
Every Residence.

KEY WEST, Fla., Oct. 13.—Hundreds of laborers, aided by refugees, are clearing the streets and the water front of the debris and wreckage resulting from the hurricane which practically destroyed all of this city Monday. It will be many days before normal business conditions can be resumed.

Great rejoicing is felt over the reports from points near Key West, showing that the loss of life from the "big blow" will be the smallest ever recorded along the Florida coast. Property damage, however, is the heaviest in the history of the peninsula.

Acting on a resolution of the city council last night, Mayor Mogarty issued an appeal for help from the people of the United States as follows:

"Scarcely a house in this city of 20,000 people but has been either entirely demolished or partially damaged. Many are homeless, and those who have homes are scarcely able to house and care for their own families and are hardly in a position to help the other sufferers.

"Starvation and distress face our people who have always heretofore borne their need of natural affliction without complaint and without appeal to others for aid and who have always themselves responded generously to the call of other cities afflicted as they are now. Cash contributions for the poor will be gladly received by the mayor and applied by him to the aid of those who most sorely need it."

FEAR FIREBUG'S WORK.

Marinette Citizens Are Alarmed at Possibility Suggested by Two Incendiary Blazes.

MARINETTE, Wis., Oct. 13.—Special.—Four fires within two hours kept the fire department busy Tuesday evening. All were of incendiary origin. One barn and a horse were destroyed. The chief of the department offers $50 reward for the apprehension of the firebug. He is operating just as the firebug did two years ago when the entire city was terrorized and for several weeks fire were started in all parts of the city. He never was captured. The city fears a recurrence of the scare.

HASKELL TRIAL BEGINS

Oklahoma Governor and Five Others Answer Charge of Getting Land by Fraud.

ARDMORE, Ok., Oct. 13.—Gov. Charles N. Haskell and five co-defendants, indicted on charges of obtaining titles to certain town lots in Muskogee by illegal methods, appeared before Judge A. Marshall today for trial in the United States district court here. It is alleged that the defendants obtained possession of the lots in question by "dummy" registrations or had bought the lots from persons who had not registered in good faith.

BALLOON TRAVELS FAST

A. Holland Forbes' Gasbag Makes 500 Miles During Night in Attempt to Lift Cup.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 13.—It was said today at the weather bureau that the balloon New York in which A. Holland Forbes and Max Fleischmann sailed Tuesday in an attempt to lift the Lahm cup had traveled probably 500 miles during the night because of the steadiness of the gale in which the aeronauts started.

Uncovered a Jade Bridge.

Recently the water works company in Pekin, when digging the ground in front of Prince King's establishment to lay down service pipes, discovered a jade bridge measuring over thirty Chinese feet. It is reported that as it was a piece of antiquity the company decided not to disturb it without authority and the valuable bridge was again covered up.—North China Daily News.

Doctors and Their Dues.

Few communities ever realize how much they owe the doctors—and few people ever do realize how much they owe their doctors. If every doctor could collect his full fee for all the work he does each could have his own automobile and town and country houses. But the doctor goes along his way and unconsciously bears the sorrows, burdens and distresses of a large part of the population. He knows that he is "a very present help in time of trouble." He knows that he is performing a very real and practical service to humanity, and that is one of the greatest rewards of a profession that receives more honor and appreciation than it does material compensation.—Baltimore Sun.

LIBEL CASE DISMISSED

INDIANAPOLIS EDITORS FREED IN PANAMA CANAL CASE.

Jurist Making Decision Says He Himself Would Like to Know Truth About the Purchase.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 13.—After arguments for two days in which the government attempted to show that the Indianapolis News had libeled President Roosevelt, C. P. Taft and others in certain publications respecting the purchase of the Panama canal, Judge A. B. Anderson of the federal court, decided late Monday afternoon that Charles R. Williams and Delavan Smith, proprietors of The News, could not be taken to Washington to answer an indictment found against them there for libel.

The court discussed the duty of a newspaper in its ruling and said that he himself would like to know the truth about the Panama canal purchase. He said everyone was interested in it, and it was the duty of newspaper to print the news and tell the truth about it; that is, make deductions from the facts contained in the news. He declared he would hesitate a long time before sending the defendants to Washington for trial if the editorials complained of were to be depended on to prove malice in the publications.

This, however, he said, was not the question in the case before him, but the question was whether the publication of the alleged libelous articles took place in Washington. He said the defendants published The News in this city, but mailed and sent to Washington fifty copies.

With reference to whether this constituted a publication in Washington, the court illustrated by assuming that an article was sent into every county in the state, and asked where the offense, assuming it was libelous, was committed, and could the writer be indicted and tried in every county, or was he guilty and subject to indictment and trial in one county only. He believed the latter to be the case and that that one place would be where the articles were published, or where they were first printed, to honor the Washington indictment and ordered the defendants discharged.

There was a large crowd in the court room when the decision was announced, and every word that the court uttered was listened to with interest. From questions which the judge had asked during the arguments his decision had been foreshadowed, but this did not lessen the interest. In the crowd were numerous lawyers, who appeared quite as interested as Smith and Williams themselves.

The decision met with many approving comments outside of the immediate friends or partisans of the defendants, for it was felt that a great principle had been established and that it was not a matter entirely personal to Smith and Williams.

Stuart McNamara, leading counsel for the government, refused to say what steps, or whether any further steps, would be taken by the government in the case would be taken by the government. He said he would return to Washington at once.

FEARER IS EXECUTED

SPANISH EDUCATOR SHOT IN BARCELONA FORTRESS.

Doomed Man Faces Firing Squad Without Flinching and Falls at First Volley.

BARCELONA, Oct. 13.—Prof. Francisco Ferrer, the Spanish educator and convicted revolutionist, was shot today. The execution was done at the fortress of Montjuich where the prisoner had been confined since his condemnation by court martial. The doomed man faced the firing squad without flinching and fell dead at the first volley.

Ferrer, except for a momentary expression of emotion immediately preceding his death, retained to the very end the last. His attorney, M. Galceran, who had defended the prisoner so loyally as to bring about his own arrest for improperly addressing the court, had secured permission for a brief talk with the revolutionist before the latter was led to his death.

To his attorney Ferrer spoke feelingly of the work for which he had sacrificed his life and of the future of his daughter, whose brave attempt to save his life touched the father more deeply, apparently, than any other incident of his trial and conviction.

On Ferrer's arrest his family was left dependent upon this daughter, who at once secured employment in a biscuit factory. When it was known that her father had been sentenced to death the daughter made a personal appeal to King Alfonso, calling upon him in the name of his own generosity and chivalry to spare her father's life. When these facts were related by Galceran, Ferrer broke down. It was but a passing emotion and presently the undaunted revolutionist was himself again.

Ferrer declined to receive the last sacraments and turned away from the two priests of the Order of Peace and Charity, who had been sent by the prison authorities to offer him the final consolation of the church.

When the hour of his execution arrived he walked bravely through the prison yard and the ditch in the shadow of the encircling wall. Without a quiver he faced the twelve infantry men who, at the word of command, fired simultaneously. When the report of the volley had died away Ferrer lay dead upon the ground.

TOTAL LOSS OF HAIR

Seemed Imminent—Scalp Was Very Sore and Hair Came Out by Handfuls—Scalp Now Clear and New Hair Grown by Cuticura.

"About two years ago I was troubled with my head being scaly. Shortly after that I had an attack of typhoid fever and I was out of the hospital possibly two months when I first noticed the loss of hair, my scalp being still scaly. I started to use dandruff cures to no effect whatever. I had actually lost hope of saving any hair at all. I could brush it off my coat by the handful. I was afraid to comb it. But after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and nearly a box of Cuticura Ointment, the change was surprising. My scalp is now clear and healthy as could be and my hair thicker than ever, whereas I had my mind made up to be bald. W. F. Steese, 5812 Broad St., Pittsburg, Pa., May 7 and 21, 1908."

WHY THEY SEE DOUBLE.

Muscles of the Eyeballs of Drunkards Are Temporarily Paralyzed.

A scientific writer has given his opinion why drunken men see double. In the first place, it is essential that the "elevated" party must have two good eyes. No amount of liquor would make a one-eyed man see two half dollars when only one exists, says the Philadelphia Inquirer.

When we wish to see distinctly we adjust the eyes by converging them more or less so that the image falls upon the sensitive point of the retina. If the object is too far off to enable us to get a distinct image in either eye the eyes are so constructed that they can bring the object nearer, or we can, by contracting the eye muscles, bring the retina nearer the lens, thus getting a clear sight of the object.

Both eyes may be moved either upward or downward or to the right or to the left, but it is impossible to direct one of them upward and the other downward. If we converge the eyes so that the two images fall on the sensitive point of the retina, corresponding retinas we get in the brain a sharp image. If, however, from any cause we are not able to move the eyeballs so as to have this image fall squarely on the retina, we see double. This seeing double can be caused by temporary or permanent paralysis of the muscles of the eyeballs. For permanent paralysis there may be any one of several causes. Excessive use of alcohol or tobacco will produce temporary paralysis. Under the influence of strong drink the controlling muscles of the eye, like others of the body, are not under command, hence some drunken men stammer in their speech, others stagger in their walk and others see double.

FOOD QUESTION

Settled with Perfect Satisfaction by a Dyspeptic.

It's not an easy matter to satisfy all the members of the family at meal time as every housewife knows.

And when the husband has dyspepsia and can't eat the simplest ordinary food without causing trouble, the food question becomes doubly annoying.

An Illinois woman writes: "My husband's health was poor, he had no appetite for anything I could get for him, it seemed.

"He was hardly able to work, was taking medicine continually, and as soon as he would feel better would go to work again only to give up in a few weeks. He suffered severely with stomach trouble.

"Tired of everything I had been able to get for him to eat, one day seeing an advertisement about Grape-Nuts, I got some and he tried it for breakfast the next morning.

"We all thought it was pretty good, although we had no idea of using it regularly. But when my husband came home at night he asked for Grape-Nuts.

"It was the same next day and I had to get it right along, because when we would get to the table the question, 'Have you any Grape-Nuts?' was a regular thing. So I began to buy it by the dozen pkgs.

"My husband's health began to improve right along. I sometimes felt offended when I'd make something I thought he would like for a change, and still hear the same old question, 'Have you any Grape-Nuts?'

"He got so well that for the last two years he has hardly lost a day from his work, and we are

Love's Entanglement.

BY A NEW AUTHOR.

CHAPTER IX.

The night had been one of furious storm, but the morning broke fresh and radiant. The wind was still rather high; but what did that matter when it brushed away such rolling, shimmering clouds from a sky so gloriously blue?

It was early for the countess to be out of doors, for she did not, as a rule, keep early hours. But she came now alone along the slippery banks of the river, and moved with now and then a furtive glance round towards a place where the river ran between steep rocks, from the clefts of which grew young mountain ashes, hazel, and wild briar, gemmed with tufts of budding leaves. Here the river broke into a white cataract, which thundered down into a deep pool—the largest and deepest pool in the Massie. And above the pool, making a bridge between two great boulders, was the rustic summer house which was the scene of Gartmore's meetings with Emily Keverne. Norton, that faithful servant, had informed Lady Delisle yesterday that the lovers had arranged a meeting here for today.

The countess took a path which led round one of the great rocks, close to its face, and passing under one side of the summer house. It was a dangerous path for any one, and specially dangerous, it would have been supposed, to an elderly lady. But the countess traversed it with deliberate sureness and lightness of foot. Presently her way was barred by a great moss-covered beam—one of the felled tree trunks, which, secured with iron, formed the support of the frail little arbor above.

Lady Delisle rested both hands on the beam, and was bending her face to examine it, when a sudden cry broke from her lips. The beam shook in her grasp, and, looking along it, she saw that it was swaying loose. The storm had snapped it like a branch, old and rotten as it was. Quick as a flash Lady Delisle lifted her eyes to the floor of the summer house above the beam. It looked just as it had always done, but the slightest weight pressing upon it would send it and the beam below it hurtling down into the abyss.

Lady Delisle turned, and, clinging close to the rocky wall, made her way back. The thing she had come to begin was already done. As she released her hold of her cloak, at a dangerous turn, something fell, clinking down among the rocks.

"Kitty, I wonder why you like me?" "Who is Kitty?" asked the person addressed.

"Well, then, Emily, Emily, it's a queer thing that you should like me." "It doesn't go by reason, you know," Miss Keverne said. "Besides I don't like you, Tommy—I love you."

Her voice dropped as she said the last words, and a wave of color came into the pale sensitive face—a face not beautiful, not even pretty, but full of character.

They were walking along the banks of the Massie. Gartmore had gathered some blue and white violets, and Emily had fastened them in the bosom of the dark-green dress she wore. She had taken off her hat, and the wind ruffled the dark curling hair.

"Emily, you don't look much like the typical actress, with her big feathered hat and her boa and her little pet dog. What a neat little girl you are!" "I am not a 'typical actress,'" Emily said, lifting her dark eyes from the contemplation of the violets, and looking into his face with her frank smile. "I don't believe there's any such thing as a 'typical actress.' Anyway, I'm not when I'm at home. I'm just Emily Keverne, the old fisherman's daughter, who is trying to earn an honest bit of money to support her parents in their old age, and she broke into one of her favorite songs—

When ye were steepin' on your pillows,
Recked ye naught of our poor fellows,
Darling, as they crossed the billows
All to fill the wren's billows.
Buy me caller herrin',
They're bonnie fish and handsome farin';
Buy me caller herrin',
New drawn frae the Forth.

The glorious voice, so astonishingly powerful, rang through the rocks, mingled wildly with the wild song of the river.

"Emily," Gartmore said, "you're simply divine when you sing! When I hear you I marvel all the more that you should take up with a fellow like me. But sing your other pet song, since you're in such good form. Let them hear you if they want to; they know all about us, and a great deal more. And none of them are abroad yet," but Lord Gartmore was mistaken in this.

"My pet song," Emily said with a smile. "That is your pretty way of saying, 'The tune that the old cow died of, I suppose!'"

"No, no!" Gartmore protested. "You know I could listen to you all day and all night."

"Well, I will sing your pet song, but I will not sing so loudly as I was doing just now, for fear of your father's 'armed retainers' and 'gloomy dungeons' and 'poisoned cups.' Oh, I know a great deal more about the ways of nobility than you do yourself, Tommy! Haven't I been on the stage nearly five years?"

This is the ballad of the two who called O'er the blue and the green and the foam; And just at the dawning it chanced that they called A ship that was going home!
A happy ship! A happy ship! A happy ship that was running home!
Like a child to his mother's breast; And it sailed, and it sailed O'er the blue and the green and the foam.
And into the dark, and into the dark, and into the dark it went!
The singer's voice died away with a marvelous suggestion of mystery and sadness in the last line.

She turned towards him, a tender smile lighting up the strong, pale face, and with a gesture which playfully suggested the footlights, but which was at the same time so sweet, so pure, so womanly. She took his little bunch of violets from her bosom and pressed them to her lips. Gartmore passed his arm round her waist and drew her to him. They passed up the narrow path which led to the rustic arbor.

Gartmore's impatience had generally brought him there long before the arrival of his sweetheart; and of this fact the watchful Norton had informed Lady Delisle. But this morning Emily had come early, and they had met in the wood. As they went up the muddy, slippery path, Gartmore still held his sweetheart's waist, and she still sang snatches of the ballad, with its wild sweetness and haunting suggestions of sadness.

"Tommy," she said at the door of the arbor, "how lovely and peaceful it is here! I wish I had never to go back to town. I wish there was no such thing as a career, and I wish you had no debts and no family, and no title. I wish we two were just Tommy and Emily, and that we could feed on brambles and wild strawberries, and keep house in this dear little arbor and live and die there!"

"What nonsense you talk—a practical woman like Kitty Keefe!" Lord Gartmore said laughingly.

"Oh, I'm in a nonsensical mood today, and I am not Kitty Keefe; you're a bad boy to call me so. I'm Emily Keverne, the auld fisherbody's dochter, the daft lassie that's aye gaun about skirlin' her sangs." She said the last words with an imitable tone and accent, and then she again broke out singing—

A happy ship that was running home,
Like a child to his mother's breast.
"Ah!" Gartmore cried. "Not Kitty Keefe indeed! I would like to know who but Kitty Keefe could sing like that!"

He tried to catch her in his arms, but she eluded him, and sprang over the threshold of the summer house. In a moment, as she turned her laughing face towards him, Gartmore followed her. The last words of the verse came thrilling, full and wild and sweet from her throat—

And into the dark, and into the dark,
Into the dark! Yes! For as Gartmore seized her in his arms, and bent his lips to hers to kiss the sweet sounds into a sweeter silence, there was a sudden swaying of the floor of the summer house, a crash, and, as the beam underneath gave way, Emily Keverne and her lover, clasped in each other's arms, were flung down from the little bower of sunshine and blossom into the deathly chasm below.

CHAPTER X.

Three days later Mrs. Stephanoff reached Dalmissie. She found the blinds drawn, and the whole house in mourning.

Mrs. Stephanoff was shown into the darkened drawing room, where she was presently joined by Irma. In the interval of waiting Mrs. Stephanoff had picked up a paper from the table, and read there an account of the accident.

"Gartmore!" she said to herself, with paling cheeks. "Gartmore! How strange!" Then she raised her eyes, and encountered those of Irma, who had entered the room.

"Mrs. Stephanoff? Lord and Lady Delisle cannot see you. I am sorry, but, you understand, Lord Delisle is in great trouble. You would like to rest a little before you see Dr. Surtees? Yes, he is progressing. I will show you to your room and have some tea sent to you."

Mrs. Stephanoff followed her in silence. She was sensitive as a girl, and there was something almost repellent in Irma's haughty determination to be calm.

"I ought to have introduced myself to you," Irma said when they reached the bedroom. "Lord Delisle is my guardian; my sister and I have lived with him the greater part of our lives. I am Miss Vassie."

Mrs. Stephanoff sat down in the nearest chair. She felt the color ebb from her face till her cheeks were cold.

"I am tired with the journey—the excitement," she murmured, leaning back against Irma's strong arm, which had been suddenly flung round her. The girl's manner had at once completely changed. This woman loved Claude Surtees—she had been perhaps tortured by anxiety about him.

"I will bring you the tea myself—may I?" the girl said. "And if you could rest a little before you see him. No! I quite understand."

She hurried away, and soon returned with the tea. After Mrs. Stephanoff had drunk it Irma helped her to rearrange her toilette.

"You are very beautiful," Irma said gravely, as if she were in a court of justice and were being compelled reluctantly to admit the truth. "I suppose I was staring at you."

The blush in Rose Stephanoff's face deepened, and her eyes shone with pleasure.

"She is thinking of him," Irma said to herself, a great wave of bitterness sweeping over her heart; and, without further speech, she led the visitor to Claude's room. In the corridor they met Lorrin, who had been hastily summoned to Delmissie by the news of the vicount's death. He stood aside, bowing, and as Irma paused to say something he murmured to her that Kathleen had asked him to see the dressmaker was there.

"She has come with our mourning," Irma explained to Mrs. Stephanoff as they passed on. "Gartmore was just like our brother." Her proud lips trembled. "I will leave you with Dr. Surtees," she continued. "He is alone, I think." Lorrin had evidently just come from his room.

"She knocked, and, in reply to Claude's 'Come in!' Mrs. Stephanoff entered the room. Irma's pride even had not the power to prevent her from lingering a moment in the corridor. She saw the interior of the room—saw Claude on a couch, his face bright with joyous greeting, his hands extended, saw Mrs. Stephanoff bend fondly over the couch, and the silvered head and the dark one close together.

The interview with the dressmaker was soon over, though to Irma it seemed well-nigh interminable. She wondered, with a touch of something like contempt, at Kathleen's interest in the hanging of a skirt, the precise amount of fullness required by the up-to-date sleeve, the becomingness of a square yoke. Then she thought of Lorrin and understood, and the slight feeling of contempt and wonder was changed into sympathy and—

—and envy. Kathleen had some one for whom she wanted to look pretty, in spite of her illness and the family trouble.

Irma left her sister still discussing a black blouse with the dressmaker, and went up to her own room. She passed by the door of the room where Gartmore's body was lying—his funeral was to be tomorrow—and by the door of Lord Delisle's room. The earl had remained there for three days, refusing to see any one, leaving his room only to visit the apartment in which his son's body was.

Irma paused at this door. She and her sister, all their lives, had had little enough love for their guardian. But Irma's heart went out to him now, and she found herself wishing that there had been more affection between them so that she might have gone to him.

"I will go out," Irma said to herself. "I shall die or go mad if I stay in the house."

As she vanished up the corridor the figure of another woman came to the earl's door, knocked swiftly, and, without waiting for a reply, entered. It was Norton, Lady Delisle's confidential maid.

CHAPTER XI.

When Norton had entered the earl's room and carefully closed the door behind her she stood for a few moments peering about in the dimness. Presently she made out the figure of Lord Delisle, sunk in a deep chair. He did not lift his head as she approached him.

"Your lordship—"

At the sound of Norton's voice Delisle made a slight gesture of repugnance—she was closely associated with his wife's plots.

"My lord, you please, your lordship, will you give me a few minutes. I have something to say to you—I must speak."

There was a thrill of passion and terror in the woman's voice, and her face—usually of a bright complexion—was pale and drawn.

Delisle glanced at her, a faint gleam of surprise coming into his lifeless eyes.

"Say what you want to say," he remarked.

"My lord, what I'm going to tell you is true—I swear it! I couldn't speak more true under oath. I must tell it you. I've been tortured by it night and day on my conscience any longer. I'm bound to feel guilty till I speak."

The earl leaned forward, his long bony hands clutching the arm of his chair, his eyes afixe.

"What is it? Speak!"

"Your lordship, I couldn't be blamed," the woman said. "I will speak. Everybody put down Lord Gartmore's death to an accident, or to suicide, but it wasn't neither, my lord."

"Go on!"

"My lord, don't look at me then—you scare me to death. On the day—the morning of the day—of Lord Gartmore's death I saw my lady go out of the house. I followed her—I will confess, my lord, that my motive was to be in all her secrets and to have power over her—"

"Your motive does not matter to me. Tell me the rest. Be quick!"

"I followed her ladyship, and I saw her take the path that leads in below the arbor. She went round the rock and was there some time; and I saw that she was carrying an ax and a saw under her cloak. I found the saw afterwards, fallen down on a rock in the river below."

A cry broke from Lord Delisle's lips—a dreadful cry of rage and hate.

"I don't know how long she stayed exactly," Norton continued. "Some one spoke to me—a gardener or some one—and I got afraid of being noticed, and went back to the house. I never thought what my lady could be doing. I had no guess of what must be in her mind. But since then I've put this and that together—and the words that her ladyship uttered, when she was excited, when the news of Lord Gartmore's death was brought—"

"What does it matter what you thought what you guessed?" Lord Delisle cried violently. "Go now! Go! I know all I need to know!"

The woman fled from his premise. Delisle had risen, and was pacing the room wringing his hands together.

Meanwhile Claude Surtees lay in his bed, and Mrs. Stephanoff sat beside him. The young man held one of her hands in his; once or twice he lifted it to his lips. He felt a genuine happiness in her presence.

"You know you shouldn't have done it, Claude," Mrs. Stephanoff was saying. "And you ought to let your brother know." With her wonderful power of sympathy she had succeeded in listening with interest to his account of his escape and his subsequent experiences.

"Let Phil know I'm ill, you mean? Oh, I'll soon be all right; and I couldn't let him know I was ill here without explaining the whole of the circumstances to him."

"That's just what I mean," Mrs. Stephanoff replied with an amiable sternness. "He ought to know. You say your patient will soon be cured," she went on, her voice changing, "and that Mr. Lorrin is to take the girls away as soon as the funeral is over. If you will let me I will write to your brother—or can you write yourself? You are too ill, dear?"

WASTE EGGS MAKE CAVIAR.

Specialists Now Care for Salmon Roe Formerly Thrown Away.

With a Russian chef in charge who has catered to the best families in the czar's empire a big salmon canning plant in Bellingham, Wash., is manufacturing genuine Russian caviar, says the New York World. L. Ruben, who comes from Russia, is the man in charge, and the product turned out will be sold in the eastern markets. With the advent of this industry thousands of dollars' worth of salmon eggs that heretofore have been wasted are turned into dollars. One hundred thousand pounds of caviar will be made in the local place this year.

"There is a ready market for all the caviar we can make among the 1,200,000 or more foreigners living in the eastern states," Ruben says. "In Russia the caviar is made of the eggs of salmon and sturgeon. The eggs from the fish here are just as good. Go into one of the swell restaurants and ask for a caviar sandwich and they will charge you 50 cents. The foreigners living in the states cannot afford to pay these prices. It is largely to supply this trade that the industry has been established here."

In the past the eggs of the salmon canned on the sound have been thrown into the fertilizer cans. Now they are carefully sorted and put through a preparation precisely the same as that used in Russia. The eggs are cooked, dried and then canned. At present Ruben has more than one hundred trays of the cooked eggs drying in one end of the big salmon packing plant.

TRIES TO POISON HER OWN FAMILY BUT KILLS SELF

HORTONVILLE (WIS.) YOUNG WOMAN COMMITS SUICIDE AFTER ATTEMPTING MURDER.

PUTS ARSENIC IN COFFEE POT.

Brother's Suspicions Are Aroused by Sister's Peculiar Actions and He Discovers Deadly Drug.

FATHER'S BODY BARELY BURIED.

APPLETON, Wis., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—What the authorities believe was a plot to murder the entire family and which ended in suicide occurred at the home of Wenzel Dietz of Hortonville, Lucy Dietz being the victim.

Miss Dietz, aged 26 years, was one of five children at the Dietz home to attend the funeral of her father, which occurred Tuesday. This morning she was the first to arise and insisted on preparing breakfast for the family without any help.

Note Peculiar Actions. Observing the peculiar actions of their sister, several of her brothers became suspicious and insisted upon being in the kitchen while the breakfast was being prepared. One of the brothers covertly looked into the coffee pot and smelled what he thought to be strychnine.

Upon investigation it was found that the coffee to which had been put into the coffee to kill every member of the family.

It is believed that as soon as Miss Dietz learned that the poison in the coffee pot had been discovered, she took a dose of it herself and a few minutes later was found in her room in convulsions and before Dr. John Reineking arrived she was dead.

Wants Entire Estate. The Dietz estate is valued at about $20,000 and it is believed that the dead woman had planned to kill her five brothers and sisters so that she would come in for the entire estate.

Dr. Reineking declared this morning he had not the slightest doubt that the attempted murder was planned by the woman who later committed suicide.

The district attorney was notified and he, the sheriff and the coroner have gone to the scene of the tragedy, which is four miles from Appleton.

Among those in the Dietz home who might have been killed had they partaken of the coffee was C. A. Sauter, a brother-in-law of the dead girl, and her brothers, Frank and Charles, and one sister.

ASKS PRESIDENT FOR PARDON FOR MORSE.

Petition Requesting Executive for Clemency in Case of Banker Now Being Prepared.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—A petition asking President Taft for clemency toward Charles W. Morse, the former banker, is being prepared for circulation among prominent business men and financiers of the east.

Morse's attorneys are striving to have the United States supreme court grant him a new trial; but in case of defeat, an executive pardon will be his only means of escape from the sentence of fifteen years' imprisonment recently affirmed by the federal circuit court of appeals.

The petition is now in the hands of Charles S. Carver of Boston, who is one of Morse's counsel and is associated with many of Morse's business ventures.

Morse showed improvement today after his attack of illness in the Tombs Tuesday. His physician said that he was suffering from influenza, but would probably recover in a short time.

In a letter the secretary of the union declares that the organization is disgusted with the paper because of its representation of the labor movement, it is the personal political organ of its editor, ex-Ald. ### FOND DU LAC NEWS.

HE WAS UNFROCKED.

FOND DU LAC, Wis., October 9.—Bishop C. C. Grafton says that Rev. James M. Baker, who recently was admitted to the Roman church, was unfrocked and deposed from the priesthood. "In every place Rev. J. M. Baker was put, he failed," said the bishop. "I presume he was a very much disappointed man. It is true that he has fallen away to Rome. His priestly endeavors in the Fond du Lac diocese were utter failures and at no place or post did he succeed. I have deposed him from the priesthood and he has gone over to the Roman communion."

PROMISED TO SWEAR OFF.

Although James La Belle solemnly raised his right hand and swore that he would never drink liquor again, he was given a ten days' jail sentence when arraigned in police court for being drunk and disorderly. Although the various towns of the county have only four weeks more in which to comply with the law, guide boards are still as scarce in this county as they were before the passage of the law. The statute provides that every town board shall cause sign boards to be erected on all main traveled highways in the town, with the names and directions of neighboring towns and distances of such towns upon them. We try to become familiar with names and faces if possible, and if your name or your visitors name does not appear in The Statesman, don't blame us. Now is the Time to Paint Your House for the Following Reasons:

Your house will be much dryer after the summer's heat than after the winter's dampness. The paint will dry better and harder than in the spring, thereby keeping out dampness and decay, which really causes more loss than fire. There is not much rain to impede the progress of the painting. There are few gnats and flies to spoil the job.

GROWING EUCALYPTUS TREE.

Millions in the Timber, Which Attains Height of Nearly 100 Feet.

About the most profitable industry recently developed in the growing of the eucalyptus tree, says Van Norden's World Mirror. The bureau of forestry reports that 500 trees to the acre is the proper planting and that at the end of ten years these trees should have an average height of 92 feet and be 11 inches each in diameter, according to estimates made in California.

This acre would contain 100,000 feet of hardwood, the average market price of which at present is $25 per thousand. Therefore, if you have the price of 100 acres of land in the eucalyptus belt, plus the price of 50,000 trees (mature stock), and enough spare cash to defray the cost of cultivation, etc., and you are sure you will not need any of this currency for a decade, there is a quarter of a million dollars waiting for you.

The eucalyptus thrives best in southern California, where there is no danger of frost. Plantings have been made in the hottest parts of Arizona, in southwestern Texas, in New Mexico and Florida, but California wears the blue ribbon to date.

The red gum eucalyptus was supposed to be the best resistant of the whole eucalyptus family, and yet it was killed back almost to the roots by frost in the northern part of Cameron county, Texas, though the thermometer registered only 26 degrees above freezing. The big gum variety was first introduced in California in 1856, and for many years it was regarded as good only for firewood. Recently, however, the forestry society of that state has caused a series of investigations to be made, and the conclusion has been reached that the eucalyptus has a tremendous future, and is to bring untold wealth to southern California and those who undertake its growth.

Introducing Them.

Kirsty McDougall, who lived in a remote Highland parish, had a visit from her Edinburgh niece, who was to spend a week or two with the old lady. She determined to show them off on Sunday at the ancient village kirk of Lochaber. The young ladies wore costumes of the purest snowy hue. At the point of his sermon the minister, in speaking of the angels of heaven, was heard to say: "And who are those in the white array?" To the consternation of the congregation Kirsty heard him exclaim: "It's me, two nice, sir, frae Edinburgh."—Tit-Bits.

"Oh, it wasn't the loss of the hand itself that I was thinking of," sighed the victim; "but on the forefinger was a string that my wife tied around it to remind me to get something for her this morning, and now I'll never be able to remember what it was."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

RECEIVER TAKES CHARGE OF BANK WHICH SUSPENDS

FEDERAL COMPTROLLER APPOINTS JOHN W. SCHOFIELD TO ACT AT MINERAL POINT, WIS.

SHORTAGE TO EXCEED $200,000.

Vice President Allen's Alleged Confession of Forgeries Comes as Heavy Blow to Directors of Institution.

OFFICIAL IN DYING CONDITION.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 12.—The discovery of alleged forgeries and defalcations aggregating, according to unofficial advice, approximately $210,000 today, resulted in closing the doors of the First National bank of Mineral Point, Wis., and the appointment of John W. Schofield, of the office of the comptroller of the currency, as receiver of the Wisconsin institution. Arrests were expected to follow the closing of the bank after a conference between the federal authorities at Mineral Point.

Discovered on October 9.

The first word of irregularities in the bank reached the treasury department on October 5, when National Bank Examiner Richard W. Goodhart, who had been making his regular examination of the bank's condition, telegraphed to the comptroller of the currency that he had found some shortages and questionable paper. The first indications were that the loss would reach only $30,000. The figures of the discrepancy then began to grow. Soon the amount was increased by $20,000 and the next and last amount reported to Washington swelled the loss to $128,000. The losses on other paper in the bank subsequently discovered probably accounts for the difference between this amount and the $210,000 of alleged shortage announced in the press reports.

Will Make Shortage Good.

S. Calvert Spensley is president of the bank. He expressed to the bank examiner confidence in his ability to carry through this amount and a veteran in receiver matters. He has been more recently the receiver of the First National bank of Manassas, N. J., the First National bank of Brooklyn, N. Y., the American Exchange National bank of Syracuse, N. Y., the First National bank of Doyleston, Pa., and the First National bank of Asbury Park, N. J.

F. E. Hinescom is the bank's cashier. The directors comprises President Spensley, Vice President Allen and James Brewer, W. P. Cundey, Fred Vryan, R. J. Penhalligon, and J. L. Gray.

Bank's Last Statement.

The statement of the resources and liabilities of the bank as shown by its last report of condition rendered to the comptroller on September 1, gives the following:

RESOURCES.
Loans and discounts	$486,170
United States and other bonds	51,393
Banking houses and other real estate	37,428
Due from other banks	48,296
Cash and cash items	44,470
Total	$667,757
LIABILITIES.
Capital	$100,000
Surplus	20,000
Undivided profits	11,724
Circulation	25,000
Deposits	555,578
Bills payable	5,000
Total	$667,757

The confession came as a thunderbolt to the officers of the bank, who said they thought that the securities in hand were self-secured.

Allen said he had used the money to promote mines which had afterward proved useless.

He agreed to turn over all the securities he held in mining stock which, after inspection by the other officers of the bank, were declared to be worth next to nothing.

The officers of the institution are: Calvert Spensley, president; F. E. Hinescom, cashier; Philip Allen, Jr., vice president.

ORANGE PLANTING IN TEXAS.

Forty Thousand Trees to Be Set Out at Raymondville.

Harvey S. Styles of Raymondville, Tex., editor of the Industrious Mexican, has just completed arrangements for planting the largest orange orchard in Texas. The fruit selected by him is the Satsuma orange. Forty trees to the acre will be set, making a total of 40,000 trees for the tract. He will also set out 60,000 grafted pecan trees on his property, covering at least 1500 acres.

The planting of orange and pecan groves has recently been undertaken very extensively in Southwest Texas. About 10,000 acres have been planted with orange trees within the last few years. Only fifty acres, however, are at the time bearing fruit. During the coming year the acreage will be increased to at least 20,000 acres, and Southwest Texas will be in position to enter the fruit market of the United States strongly.

DR. W. A. GORDON, DIES IN CHICAGO

SUPERINTENDENT OF NORTHERN HOSPITAL AT OSHKOSH, WIS., SUCCEEDS TO CANCER.

RANKED HIGH AS A DOCTOR.

Served Fifteen Years as Head of Wisconsin Institution and Was 63 Years of Age.

FUNERAL TO BE IN OSHKOSH.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 12.—Dr. W. A. Gordon, superintendent of the Wisconsin Northern Hospital for the insane, died today at the Chicago hospital. His death was due to cancer which assumed a malignant form seven weeks ago. Since that time he had been under the treatment of physicians. Two days ago Dr. Gordon went to the Chicago hospital, where efforts to prolong his life failed.

As an alienist Dr. Gordon ranked with the most noted in the country and for the last fifteen years he has been at the head of the Wisconsin Northern Hospital for the Insane, near Oshkosh, Wis.

He was 63 years old and leaves a daughter. The funeral will be from the hospital of which he was the head.

Sketch of Doctor's Life.

Dr. William Alexander Gordon was born at Washington, Pa., October 27, 1846. He was of Scotch descent and comes from a family noted for literary and general intellectual ability. His father was Rev. Gordon, a Presbyterian minister and a man of considerable recognition as a scholar, who favored the abolition movement before the war.

Dr. Gordon's paternal grandfather was Rev. Robinson who for a number of years was a pastor in Winnebago county, holding a charge at Winnebago and also at Neenah.

Dr. W. A. Gordon resided at Washington after his father's death, receiving his education in a seminary in that city. When he was about 17 years of age he was a clerk in the office of his uncle, Gen. Burton. When he was 18 years old he enlisted in the army at Baltimore, as a member of a Maryland cavalry regiment, in the Civil war. His mother tried to secure his release, but he did not leave the army and remained until the close of the war.

Shortly after the war, Mrs. Gordon moved to Winnebago with her son. Dr. Gordon entered Rush Medical college in Chicago, from which institution he was graduated in 1869. Returning to Winnebago, he practiced for some time and then removed to Oshkosh, where he practiced until the building of the new state hospital for the insane. Dr. Walter Kemper of Milwaukee, the first superintendent of the institution, had Dr. Gordon for his first assistant.

He remained as first assistant for about a year and then resumed his private practice.

Improved the Hospital.

In 1895 he became superintendent of the Northern State Hospital for the Insane under his management many new features were introduced and added to the method of the care of the patients. He had the distinction of having many of his methods copied by many other institutions of a like character. He also had the distinction of holding the office longer than any of his predecessors.

He arranged the interior of the hospital to make it more pleasant and cheerful for the patients, secured better lighting and sanitation and introduced a new system of taking care of patients, providing regular exercise for them daily and otherwise making their lot in life as pleasant as possible.

Dr. Gordon was married in Oshkosh in 1872 to Miss Helen Jackson, daughter of Joseph Jackson, the first chief of police and the second mayor of Oshkosh. Mr. Jackson was one of the early settlers here in Milwaukee. Mrs. Gordon died February 26, 1903.

Four children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Gordon, but only one survived, Miss Kate Gordon, a graduate of the Chicago university and an authority upon psychology.

LAW NOT MISPRINTED.

Secretary of State Frear Comments of Primary Suit Brought to Overturn Law.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—Secretary of State James A. Frear today made this comment on the suit brought to overturn the Wisconsin primary election law: "I have not made any examination of the complaint served by Mr. Van Alstine and can offer no opinion as to that part which declares that the law prohibits the assembling of the people in conference or convention."

The state would fail to officially recognize nominations which may be made by convention. Such conventions have been held and nominations made by one of the parties since the passage of the law but beyond an expression of the sentiment of those present such followings have no binding effect. Nor are the officials certifying to the proceedings given any recognition under the present law.

"As to that part of the complaint which alleges that the law was never published, properly, the allegation is a mistake and I am confident the records will show that the law was published and taken by this department in the past."

BANK'S SHORTAGE MAY BE $400,000

CONDITION OF MINERAL POINT INSTITUTION PROBABLY WORSE THAN FIRST REPORTED.

ALLEN NOT DYING, SAYS DOCTOR

Wrecker of Bank Occupies Pulpit at Times—Swindle Extends Over Period of Sixteen Years.

ARREST OF OFFICIALS PROBABLE.

MINERAL POINT, Wis., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—That the shortage of the First National bank will reach $400,000 is the belief of those most conversant with the situation created by the discovery of irregularities and the confession of Vice President Phillip Allen of extensive forgeries and swindling, which has resulted in federal officials taking charge of the institution.

Allen's peculations have extended over a period of sixteen years instead of only several, as was first supposed, and hundreds of depositors stand likely to lose their all, especially scores of widows and orphans, as Allen acted as administrator of many estates.

While the federal inquiry is going on he is in a daze. Five hundred thousand dollars of his savings are deposited in the wrecked institution. If the bank goes down to complete ruin nearly the whole community will be bankrupt, for 75 per cent. of the adults of the town's 3000 population had money in its vaults.

Arrests Are Expected.

It is the general belief that when the district attorney arrives a warrant will be sworn out for Allen and he will face a prosecution which may land him in the penitentiary.

Allen is confined to his house closely guarded against intrusion by his wife and adopted daughter.

"Mr. Allen is in a very bad condition," said Dr. H. D. Ludden, his family physician. "He cannot be seen. Strict orders have been issued that no one shall be admitted to the house; he is in such a nervous state verging on complete collapse that it would not be advisable."

Dr. Ludden denied the story that Mr. Allen was a dying man and also emphatically denied another story that he had attempted suicide.

Preacher and Good Templar.

Allen has been prominent in church and temperance work. He is of the primitive Methodist sect and occasionally acted as a local preacher.

Robbed Ten Years Ago.

In the spring of 1900 the bank, then occupying an old building since abandoned, was robbed of about $20,000 in gold and a large amount of securities. A barber who had been in town but a short time cut his way into the vault through the roof. The entire building was wrecked by the force of the explosion which opened the vault. About a month later the barber robber was caught and most of the plunder recovered. He was sentenced to a term in Green Bay reformatory.

That fraud is behind the failure is admitted. The cause is said to be disastrous speculation in mines. The way the bank was run, it is alleged, was by the substitution of notes in the forged names of well-known local business men for negotiable securities. The repeated occurrence of these notes and a certain uniformity in their character aroused the suspicions of the bank examiner and a further probing into the books of the concern determined his sudden action in closing the bank.

Misunderstanding Causes Closing.

A difference of understanding between Examiner Goodhart and those who were willing to assist the bank was what closed the bank's door. The Kennedy mine was held at $400,000 and in which Allen and Spensley each held a one-fourth interest, was sold for $250,000 and it was believed the bank would be able to pay the balance.

The mine was purchased by the Jones Brothers. The papers were made out and the money was at hand to make the payment. Mr. Goodhart had understood the entire purchase price was to go into the cash, which would have enabled him to permit it to proceed. The misunderstanding on the other side was that the money was to be put in as a means of restoring confidence and later, after matter was quieted down, it was to be withdrawn with the exception of Allen's one-quarter. President Spensley also was willing to put his share in, but when the mine was sold, and on this issue were shattered all hopes of saving the bank.

The legal aspect of the failure was scheduled for discussion between the bank examiner and the United States district attorney today, but the latter missed his train from Madison and is not expected before tonight.

ROBBERS BLOW SAFE.

Waterford State Bank Suffers No Loss Because Explosion Fails to Crack Strong Box.

WATERFORD, Wis., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Burglars at an early hour today wrecked the safe at the Waterford state bank, but fled without securing any booty. The explosion did not alarm the village residents, and the burglary was discovered when Cashier William Sanders opened the bank at the regular hour this morning.

It is believed that the robbers stole a horse and buggy at Burlington and drove to Waterford Tuesday night. After the job at the bank was finished, they drove to Ives Grove and then walked to Corliss where they boarded a train.

The Waterford State bank carried $7000 burglary insurance with the Maryland Casualty company of which Roger L. Merrill of Milwaukee is the Wisconsin representative. Mr. Merrill will send a safe expert here to open the inner compartment of the safe, which was left untouched by the explosion.

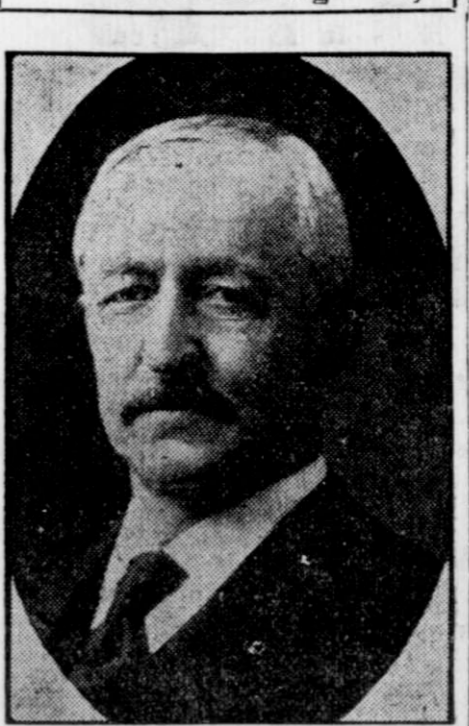

Queen Wilhelmina an Inventor.

Baby Princess Juliana of Holland now takes exercise in an elaborate sort of caravan invented by her mother, Queen Wilhelmina. The novel conveyance is used for taking the royal infant to sheltered spots in the park of Het Loo, and protecting her from the weather during the short journey. It contains space for an ordinary baby carriage, seats for nurses, and a small stove for heating food as well as warming the interior, with other appropriate appointments.

The Go-Devil. Instead of employing hundreds of men with picks to dig up streets for the purpose of resurfacing them the city of Cincinnati now uses a 15,000 pound rake, which enjoys the gentle name of go-devil. When dragged along by a steam roller it does the work of the laborers with their picks in about one-fifth of the time and 50 per cent. better. The big steel teeth dig into the street six inches deep and three feet wide and travel about twenty-five feet a minute. It is estimated that the machine saves the work of hundreds of laborers and pays for itself in every two days' work.—Popular Mechanics.

ROBBERS BLOW SAFE

WATERFORD STATE BANK'S VAULT WITHSTANDS EXPLOSIVE.

Cracksmen Steal Horses to Reach Scene of Attempted Burglary and May Be in Milwaukee.

RACINE, Wis., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Cracksmen at an early hour today attempted to rob the state bank of Waterford, Wis. They succeeded in blowing off the outer vault door and partly wrecking the door of the inner safe with nitro-glycerine but left empty-handed.

Previous to reaching Waterford, the burglars stole a horse and buggy belonging to J. J. Zerhahn. Finding the horse too slow, they stopped at the next farm, Howard Foreman's, and exchanged horses and stole about thirty grain sacks and a number of blankets.

On reaching Waterford, the robbers stopped at a blacksmith shop and secured a number of tools and also filled the bags full of manure. They then went to the rear of the bank building broke open a window and crawled in. The robbers then placed the bags around the outer door of the vault and succeeded in opening that, and also partly wrecked the interior door, but failed to get in the strong part where the money and securities were kept.

They evidently became frightened then and left. They drove to Corliss where the horse was abandoned and the men evidently took the train for Milwaukee. Nothing was known of the attempted robbery until this morning when Cashier William Sanders opened up for business.

SUES FOR LUCKY LOAN.

Estate of Millionaire Lumberman Seeks to Recover $250 with Which Subsequent Fortune Was Made.

LA CROSSE, Wis., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—In an attempt to recover $250 on a promissory note executed twenty-seven years ago, and which proved the foundation upon which a fortune was afterward built, the estate of N. B. Holway has brought suit against Mr. and Mrs. George W. Sanborn of Storey, Ore.

Papers in the suit could not be served upon the defendant until he came into Wisconsin. The opportunity came when Mr. and Mrs. Sanborn arrived here to visit friends. Both plaintiffs claim the note was paid to the late N. B. Holway, a millionaire lumberman, in 1888, but there are no records among the papers of the estate to show that payment was received.

Mrs. Storey is the daughter of the late Mr. Holway by his first wife. After her marriage she requested the loan from her father and with it as a nucleus her husband has since made a fortune in the salmon trade.

Facts For Sick Women

We know of no other medicine which has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women, or secured so many genuine testimonials, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In almost every community you will find women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Almost every woman you meet has either been benefited by it, or knows some one who has.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing over one million one hundred thousand letters from women seeking health, in which many openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has saved many women from surgical operations.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is made exclusively from roots and herbs, and is perfectly harmless.

The reason why it is so successful is because it contains ingredients which act directly upon the female organism, restoring it to healthy and normal activity.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials such as the following prove the efficiency of this simple remedy.

Minneapolis, Minn.:—"I was a great sufferer from female troubles which caused a weakness and broken down condition of the system. I read so much of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for other suffering women, I felt sure it would help me, and I must say it did help me wonderfully. Within three months I was a perfectly well woman."

"I want this letter made public to show the benefits to be derived from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. John G. Moldan, 2115 Second St. North, Minneapolis, Minn.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

Opening of Cheyenne River Indian Reservation in South Dakota

Registration Dates, Oct. 4 to 23, inclusive.

The General Land Office at Washington has designated Le Beau and Aberdeen, So. Dak., as the Minneapolis & St. Louis R. R. registration points.

Le Beau, which is the Missouri River terminus of the Minneapolis & St. Louis R. R., is located on the Missouri River, opposite the Reservation, and is the nearest railroad station to three-fifths of the land.

Aberdeen, the other registration point, is the chief city in northern South Dakota.

These points are reached best by the Iowa Central and Minneapolis & St. Louis R. R. lines.

There will be about 14,000 quarter sections allotted to settlers. The land lays well for farming over most of the reservation. The soil is a light loam and is very fertile. It is similar to that in the counties east of the River, where the land sells from $25.00 to $30.00 per acre. Lignite coal is found over a great part of the reservation.

Who May Secure a Homestead—Under the homestead laws of the United States, any person, male or female who is not the owner of more than 160 acres of land in any state or territory, who is a native born citizen of the United States, or has been naturalized, or declared his intention to become a naturalized citizen of the United States (i. e., one who has taken out his first papers of citizenship), who is over the age of 21 years or the head of a family, may make a homestead entry of not exceeding 160 acres of any of the unoccupied lands of the United States.

FOR WOMEN AND GIRLS

An earthen baking dish is quite as satisfactory to use for cooking braised meats as the iron kettle. However, which utensil is used, it is essential to have it provided with a tight-fitting cover.

"No. I am not running these plaster of paris figures," said a housewife, as she proceeded to cover them with a thick coating of starch. "You see, the covers fitted so tight that it was really a task to take them off. In one I have cold cream, and it was this fact that led to my discovering a way to have the covers slip off easily. Some of that cold cream got on the edge of the glass box, and when I went to take off the silver cover it slipped off like magic. I acted on the suggestion and now I simply wipe a little cold cream or vaseline around the edges of the covers. The result is that now I have no further trouble with the covers."

"I have two or three glass boxes with silver tops on my dressing table, which for a long time were well nigh useless to me," said a woman who likes dainty toilet articles. "You see, the covers fitted so tight that it was really a task to take them off. In one I have cold cream, and it was this fact that led to my discovering a way to have the covers slip off easily. Some of that cold cream got on the edge of the glass box, and when I went to take off the silver cover it slipped off like magic. I acted on the suggestion and now I simply wipe a little cold cream or vaseline around the edges of the covers. The result is that now I have no further trouble with the covers."

After all the hunters' moon makes the bluest honeymoon. Full moon is ideal for either traveling or sightseeing, and no wedding is more charming than the out-of-town affair on crisp September or October days. The autumn bride moreover has a supply of clothes far more substantial and lasting than the pretty summer outfit of the June bride, whose dainty frocks, flimsy though numerous, must be put aside in a few months to make way for winter garments. The autumn bride's wool and silk costumes, her pretty dinner, ball and bridge frocks and her handsome wraps have a character and substance, and are built of a quality of material which will make them serve not only through the six months or so until spring, but also under slightly different guise—through a second and even a third season.

If one is to keep supplied with clean ribbons all the winter, it either means the outlay of considerable money or great amount of care in preserving and renovating them when they are soiled. Here is a process by which many of the ribbons can be washed. They should be placed in a soap suds, and while they are in this water the other preparation should be made. This calls for soap jelly, made from dissolved, shredded white soap in boiling water. Sufficient jelly should be added to warm water to make a thin suds, and to this cold water added a pinch of borax. The ribbon should be squeezed through the hands, rubbing the soiled places, and the soap should not be used directly on the ribbons, as it will fade delicate color. When the ribbons are clean remove to warm and clear rinsing water, and then to cold. To dry the ribbons in the open air would fade them, so the best manner to do this is to lay them flat and smooth on a clean towel and then roll tightly. They should stay rolled for about two hours, when they will be in just about the proper condition for ironing.

White is for the bride who steps from girlhood into matrimony. She, and she only, may wear it. The widow cannot be married a second time in white. Her choice may lie between pale gray, rose pink, blue or any other color, but white she must leave to the girl to whom this symbolic garb belongs by divine right.

No such sentiment and sacredness are attached to the white wedding robes which may be worn but once that it seems strange that any girl will forego this privilege and be married in a traveling costume or even a colored frock of any sort. Of course, the white wedding garb, if properly supplied, costs a deal of money, but the girl of sentiment will sacrifice all along the line in her trousseau in order to have this one supreme occasion dignified by a traditional wedding gown and veil.

To make a grape conserve take three quarts of pitted grapes (using both skins and pulp), five pounds of granulated sugar, one pound of pitted raisins and three large oranges and cut the pulp into small pieces. Mix all together and boil for twenty-five or thirty-five minutes. This is delicious for sandwiches.

There have been rumors of "bangs" for some time past; now they "fringe" has arrived. The "fringe" differs from the "bang" in that it is not so heavy and is quite a little shorter. Many society women have been seen wearing the "bang," and it is also worn by many on the stage. After the hair has once been cut to conform to this fashion, there is no going back, for it takes a year or two for the hair to grow again.

"One of the most difficult things for me to master at first," said a housewife, "was to know when a cake was done. Too frequently I made the sad mistake of taking the cake out too soon and so having it fall, or else I let it cook too much, and the result was that the loaf was dry and hard after a few hours. Of course, I had tried the old-fashioned way of testing it with a broom corn, but even this failed me at times; I suppose it was my fault rather than the broom corn's. Finally, however, someone told me how to test the cake with my ear. That to me was the open sesame, and from that day I have been able to tell whether my cake is ready to come out of the oven. I hold the pan to my ear, and if there is a peculiar crackling sound, almost like a ticking, I know the loaf must be returned to the oven. If that noise is absent, the cake is done."

One cook always runs her boiled potatoes through a ricer first when she wishes to serve them mashed. She says that by doing this they are much fluffier when the cream and other seasonings are added than if mashed in the old-fashioned way.

"Of all the many monuments and statues I saw abroad this summer," said a woman who has recently returned from Germany, "the one that made the most impression upon me was the Kaiser's. It is of Sir Frederick Drake, but it does not set forth his achievement as a globe girder. It was erected for other reasons. One side of the pedestal records the fact that Europeans owe to Sir Francis Drake their acquaintance with the potato. The statue is the gift of a Strassburg citizen, whose name appears on one side of the pedestal. Murr, I am told, has a statue quite similar to this one, and one speaking of the monument to some Germans I was told that there were several others in the Kaiser's country to Drake and his association with the potato."

To make green tomato pickle take two pecks of green tomatoes, one dozen small onions, two ounces of whole mustard seed, one-half pound of ground mustard, one-half ounce of whole cloves, and six green and six red peppers. Sprinkle the tomatoes with salt and drain them the next day. Boil them with the peppers and onions chopped very fine, and the other ingredients, covered with vinegar, for twenty minutes. Be sure to take the seeds from the peppers.

KAISER'S NEW BATHTUB.

Designed for Tenements—Can Be Used as a Dining Table Too.

The German Emperor is, as is well known, a great admirer of English domestic institutions. When over here he was charmed with the practical way in which the British workman living in modern tenement houses has the use of a bathroom.

He ordered, therefore, to have plans submitted to him which took particular note of baths in workmen's dwellings with a view to fit into small flats for small families. The bath which was ultimately adopted is meant to serve a threefold purpose.

This bath is actually already in use on the Emperor's different estates, and can with a clever contrivance of some wooden parts be changed into a washing tub, and this again can be changed into a dining table. Thus workmen are relieved from finding house room for a big bath in their dwellings, and when not in use for a bath or the washing it is one of the most indispensable pieces of furniture as the dining table of the family.

WISHED DEATH MIGHT COME

To Relieve the Awful Suffering of Advanced Kidney Disease.

William Gibson, Greenup, Ky., says: "Three months I was in bed, and would have died, I believe, but for Doan's Kidney Pills. My doctor said the case was hopeless. My back felt as if it were being seared with a red-hot iron. The kidney secretions were painful, irregular and full of sediment. There were puffy spots beneath my eyes and my head pained terribly. I was miserable in every way and often wished death might relieve me. When I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills my condition was so serious that they had little effect, but I persisted, getting gradually better, and it was not a great while before I was cured. The effect has been lasting."

Bringing Him Back to Earth.

Henry James, the American novelist, lives at Rye, England, one of the cinque ports, but recently he left Rye for a time and took a house in the country near the estate of a millionaire jam manufacturer, retired. This man, having married an earl's daughter, was ashamed of the trade whereby he had piled up his fortune. The jam manufacturer one day wrote to Mr. James an impudent letter, vowing that it was outrageous the way the James servants were trespassing on his grounds. Mr. James wrote back: "Dear Sir—I am very sorry to hear that my servants have been poaching on your preserves. 'P. S.—You will excuse my mentioning your preserves, won't you?'—Florida Times-Union.

Mrs. Hen, having performed her ovarian function, took a constitutional around the yard. Returning to her nest she found it empty and clucked angrily. "What's the trouble, ma'am?" asked the rooster. ## THE BEST INVESTMENT ANY COW OWNER EVER MADE

That's what more than One Million COW OWNERS the world over have found the DE LAVAL CREAM SEPARATOR to be, after thirty years of separator use.

A DE LAVAL FARM SEPARATOR costs from $45 to $175 according to capacity. It saves butter fat and produces a cream of superior quality over any setting system or any other separator every time it is used,—twice a day every day in the year.

It involves far less labor than any setting system, and runs easier, has greater capacity and lasts from two to ten times longer than any other separator.

That's how a DE LAVAL separator saves its cost at least the first year, and frequently in a few months, and then goes on doing so right along for an average of twenty years.

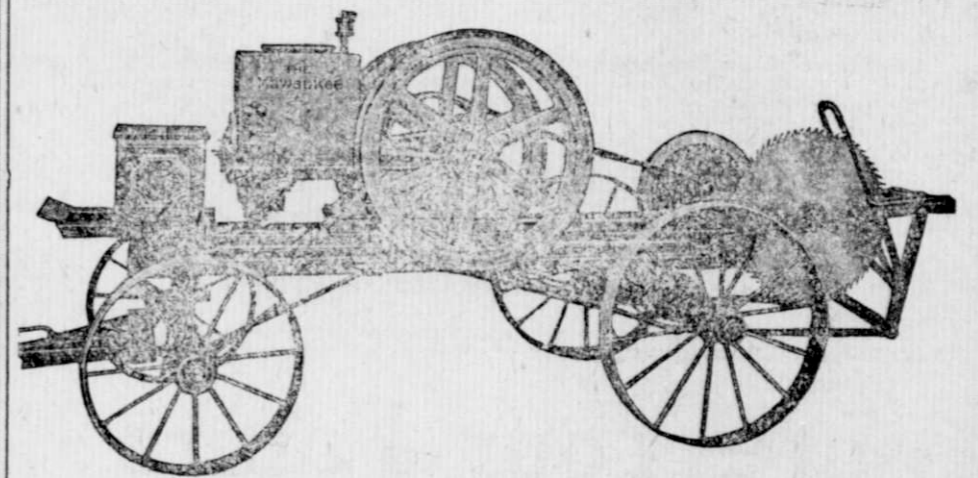

So far as other separators are concerned they leave off where the IMPROVED DE LAVAL machines begin, and the DE LAVAL makers, with thirty years of experience in separator construction and development, have forgotten more about separators than all the others know. In fact it's what the DE LAVAL has forgotten and discarded that he others use.

That's what makes the DE LAVAL CREAM SEPARATOR the best investment any cow owner ever made, and an investment no cow owner can have sound reason for delaying to make. And in buying a DE LAVAL machine you don't have to part with one cent until you have satisfied yourself that every word of all this is simple truth.

Any desired separator information can be had of the nearest DE LAVAL agent or of the Company directly.
