Theresa Bakery Has Fire

Last Tuesday morning Theresa was nearly the scene of a big fire. Mrs. O. J. Host was engaged in baking fry cakes and had about twenty pounds of lard boiling on the oven. Through some unacfire and soon the entire basin was one mass of flames. The flames rapidly spread to the adjoining woodwork. The fire department was called out and by good work soon extinguished the blaze. The greatest damage was done in the kitchen which is totally wrecked. The second too was damaged to some extent and the loss will awhich is fully covered by insurance.-Lomira Review.

Decide Election Contest

At the November term of circuit court at Fond du Lac, which will open Monday, one of the important cases to be tried is the election contest over the office of the county superintendent of schools. Edward Crain, the defeated candsome ballots which were thrown out should have been counted for him. He was defeated by two votes at the last election.

Limit is One Deer

It would be a good thing for the deer hunters who contemplate going north for the opening of the deer season to remember that they erely slashed Otto Bodendoerfer, must not kill more than one deer. While a majority of the hunters know of the change in the hunting laws, there are a few perhaps who might not know of it.

There is another angle to the situation which perhaps is not common knowledge to the hunters. A hunter cannot this year go into the woods and shoot a deer which he will use for camp venison and then go out and shoot another deer. The hunter will either have to eat his venison at camp or at home, for at one end he has got to do without it. Of course he may eat part of his deer at camp and the other part at home, but he can't shoot more than one deer.

The company was organized August 7, 1901 and issued its first policy Oct. 26th the same year. Although it was very hard for a Mutual company to get a solid foothold at that time, as there were only a few Mutual Fire Insurance companies then in the state, that made a success of the business, the officers were able, through careful management, in building up a very strong company, a company which is now ranked as one of the best in the State of Wisconsin.

During the eight years that they are in business, they have never levied an assessment, have paid $38,400 in losses and have accumulated a surplus of $20,000, not only have they accumulated such a surplus, but they have also saved its members since organization 40 per cent of the cost of insurance or in other words $70,900. The total number of policies written since organization are 12,400 and the total amount of insurance written since that time is $10,533,000. There are now in force 3,600 policies amounting to $2,784,000 of insurance.

Railroad Travel Made Absolutely Safe

The announcement is made by the Chicago & Northwestern Railway that for the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1909, 27,000,000 passengers were carried over its rails without a single fatality. This splendid showing has been made possible not by accident, but by a fixed policy on the part of the company for a systematic and liberal expenditure wherever and whenever human life might be safeguarded. By means of double tracks and the installation of the reliable and effective automatic block signal system, which places a check on human fallibility by mechanical devices, the possibility of accident has been minimized to the vanishing point.

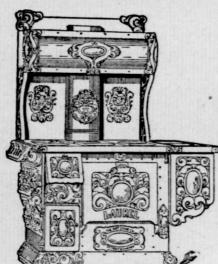

It is difficult for the average mind to grasp the immensity of the figures. This one line of railroad in one year carried seven times as many persons as were included in both the federal and confederate armies during the civil war. The population of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, Massachussetts and Indiana approximate 27,-000,000. Statistics show a great number of fatalities each year in these states as the result of accidents to persons who are pursuing their usual duties, thus indicating that travel on the passenger trains of the Northwestern is attended with less hazard than pertains to the ordinary every-day vocations

This is a remarkable showing, so gratifying as to deserve unusual publicity. It tends to show what can be done when care and caution and comfort to the traveling public are of foremost consideration.

Railroad Travel Made Absolutely Safe

The announcement is made by the Chicago & Northwestern Railway that for the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1909, 27,000,000 passengers were carried over its rails without a single fatality. This splendid showing has been made possible not by accident, but by a fixed policy on the part of the company for a systematic and liberal expenditure wherever and whenever human life might be safeguarded. By means of double tracks and the installation of the reliable and effective automatic block signal system, which places a check on human fallibility by mechanical devices, the possibility of accident has been minimized to the vanishing point.

It is difficult for the average mind to grasp the immensity of the figures. This one line of railroad in one year carried seven times as many persons as were included in both the federal and confederate armies during the civil war. The population of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, Massachussetts and Indiana approximate 27,-000,000. Statistics show a great number of fatalities each year in these states as the result of accidents to persons who are pursuing their usual duties, thus indicating that travel on the passenger trains of the Northwestern is attended with less hazard than pertains to the ordinary every-day vocations

This is a remarkable showing, so gratifying as to deserve unusual publicity. It tends to show what can be done when care and caution and comfort to the traveling public are of foremost consideration.

Important Gathering in New York Representing American Progressive Judaism.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 .- A coming event of great importance to the Jewish community of this city will be the meeting of the Central Conference of American Rabbis which is to open in New York on the evening of November 9 and last for a week. The conference is made pears to have been the outcome of up in its membership almost wholly of those who preach reform Judaism and has an enrolled membership of 250.

In the course of the week some of the most important questions agitating American Judaism will be discussed. Two papers, for example, will be read on intermarriage. There will be one day given en to the reading of something like four papers and a discussion of all the probems of religious school instruction. A day will be devoted to a visit to Ellis island and to the study of the immigration question. There will be a meeting in the educational alliance which will be devoted to the discussion of the relation of the synagogue to the workingman, and at the same time the opportunity will be taken of observing the many-sided Jewish life on the east side.

The purpose of the invitation to the conference to meet in the New York was two fold: To impress the largest Jewish community in the world with the progressiveness of American Judaism as represented in the conference, and to stimulate and inspire the members of the conference by the contact with the Jew-ish community of New York.

The president of the conference is Dr. David Philipson of Cincinnati.

MIKADO'S FOREMOST DIPLOMAT ASSASSINATED AND COMPAN-IONS WOUNDED.

ASSASSIN'S MOTIVE REVENGE.

Killing at Harbin Is Believed to Have Been Outcome of an Organized Plot There.

WASHINGTON SHOCKED BY NEWS.

HARBIN, Oct. 26 .- Prince Hirobumi Ito was assassinated at the Tsaitsagan railway station here today.

At the moment the Japanese diplomat was acknowledging the noisy welcome that had greeted him as he stepped down from the coach he had occupied in the railroad train. Smiling and bowing, he turned to make his way toward the Russian finance minister, Kokovsoff, who was awaiting him on the station platform a few paces distant. Suddenly a half dozen revolver shots fired in quick succession were heard, followed by the cries of those standing near the prince, who had either been wounded or imagined themselves to be.

At the second report, Prince Ito staggered and fell fainting. It was subsequently found that he had received three bullets, two of which entered the ab-domen. Prince Ito did not recover consciousness, and died twenty minutes later.

Crowd in a Panic.

The fusillade of shots threw the crowd citement had somewhat subsided, it was There is no other family in New York whose disagreement could cause such genuine regret in the social as well as in the business world. Both Mrs. Astor and her husband, besides their rights as of the South Manchurian railway, who had moved closer to the prince as the firing began. It is thought that those three are not mortally wounded.

The perpetrator of the outrage was not hard to discover, as he stood defiantly in the crowd, revolver in hand. He proved to be a Korean, and with two companions of the same nationality, boasted of a conspiracy to take the life of the former resident general of Korea in satisfaction for the alleged tyranny of the prince over Koreans.

As the police pounced upon the three

Koreans, the one who did the shooting exclaimed dramatically: "I came to Harbin for the sole pure of assassinating Prince Ito, to avenge my country.'

Three Are Arrested. None of the three Koreans attempted to escape. The assassin, while declarson. William Vincent Astor, is now 17 years old, and her little daughter, Alice, is 7.

protection for the prince was adequate, but the police stated later that they were unable to distinguish the Korean among the many Japanese who had been admitted to the railway station to welcome the prince. The Russian police stated that Japanese Consul General Kawakan had requested them to permit entrance to the station of all Japanese who sought admission. A great crowd gathered, among them being the three Koreans whose nationality passed unde-

Very soon after death the body of Prince Ito was made ready for removal home and placed upon a railroad train. The casket was covered with flowers and in other ways the sorrow of the officials and public life was manifested.

Prince Ito had come to Harbin to meet the Russian minister of finance for what was believed to be an important conference. The conference was suggested by Prince Ito in his capacity as president of the privy council of Japan. The subjects to be discussed were not definitely known to the public, but they were supposed to concern affairs of administra-tion in Manchuria.

Conference Widely Announced. Kokovsoff had before declined an invitation to visit Japan for such a conference, and Harbin was agreed upon as a meeting place. In accepting the invi-tation, the Russian minister said that political questions must be barred, as he was competent only to discuss financial and technical subjects, these con-cerning the status of the Manchurian railway. The conference had been announced widely in advance and it was generally known when the diplomats would reach Harbin. The assassination of Prince Ito appears to have been the outcome of an organized plot. The local authorities who, anticipating the arrival of Prince Ito, were on the lookout for suspicious characters, arrested three Koreans who were at the station and were found to be armed with revolvers. However, the task of quadding the prince was revolved. task of guarding the prince was rendered difficult by reason of Japanese Consul General Kawakan's request that the railway officials permit all Japanese to enter the railroad station to greet the prince. The police point out that it was quite impossible to distinguish Koreans from Japanese by their appearance.

Other Officials Lucky. The Russian minister of finance, M. Kokovsoff, and the Russian military authorities accompanying Prince Ito, were exposed to the same danger from flying bullets as was the prince. Indeed, Kokovsoff was nearer the Japanese envoy at the time of the shooting than were those who were wounded. Had the because in delayed for a moment the shoot. ssassin delayed for a moment the shootng, the foreign consuls would have been n much danger as Ito was approaching hem, and they would have been direct-y in the line of fire.

The assassination became known here when the government received the report of the speech which the prince recently made at Darien. The news of his father's death came to him in a cipher telegrah from the Japanese embassy at London soon after a similar message from the secretary of the imperial house at Tokio had been received here but not delivered to the

"I knew that father was at Darien." said the marquis. "His murder was an act of Korean revenge. There is a strong party there which detests Japa-nese rule and which would be disposed rather to accept a Russian regime in Korea

Marquis Ito recalled the murder of Durham while Stevens, the American adviser to the Japanese in Korea, at San Francisco by Koreans in March, 1908, and said that Stevens was assassinated because of having supported the policy of Prince Ito.

Notwitmstanding the bereavement of the son, who is vice grand master of ceremonies at the court of Tokio, will continue his journey to Paris, and accomplish the mission on which he has been sent. This mission is the purchase of jewels for the trousseau of the imperial princess.

LAST OF THE UNION COMMANDERS EXPIRES SUDDENLY IN VER-MONT HOME.

FOUGHT IN MANY BATTLES.

Saw Action at Antietam, Gettysburg and Chattanooga and in Indian Fighting in West.

GIVEN THANKS BY SENATE IN 1908.

BURLINGTON, Vt., Oct. 27.-Gen. Oliver O. Howard, last of the Union commanders of the Civil war, died at his home here Tuesday night. Heart disease was the cause. Gen. Howard was 79 years old.

Last week Gen. Howard was in Ontario delivering his lecture on "Abraham Lincoln." His last public appearance was at London Sunday night. On Monday he returned to his home in Burlington and was apparently in his usual good health. Tuesday night while sitting in a chair at his home he was attacked by heart disease and was dead when a physician reached the house. Including Gen. Howard's services in the Indian wars, he was probably in more engagements than any other officer in the United States army. Sketch of His Career.

Maj.-Gen. Oliver Otis Howard was born in Maine in 1830. He graduated from Bowdoin college at the age of 20 and received an appointment at the military academy at West Point. He stood fourth in his class and, upon graduating in 1854, was made a second lieutenant in the ordnance department serving at Watervelt, N. Y., and at the Kennebeck arsenal, Me. During the next year he accepted the position as professor of mathematics at West Point with the rank of first lieutenant. When the Civil war broke out, Gen. try needs me." He went to the war as colonel of the Third Maine volunteers. At the first battle of Bull Run he commanded a brigade and was made a brigadier general soon after. He lost an arm at the battle of Fair Oaks on June 1, 1862, but he resumed his command the next month and saw action at Antietam, Gettysburg, and Chattanooga.

Wins Praise of Sherman. For his services during Sherman's march to the sea he was made a briga-dier general in the regular army. It was dier general in the regular army. It was at this time that Sherman wrote to Grant concerning Howard: "I find him a polished and Christian gentleman, exhibiting the highest and most chivalrous traits of character."

At the close of the war he was appointed head of the freedmen's bureau, and held this position for nine years. In 1877 Gen. Howard engaged in Indian he wrote a book describing this campaign and paying tribute to Chief Joseph, the head of the hostile tribe.

He then became superintendent of the military academy at West Point, in 1881-1882. He afterward commanded the department of the Platte at Omaha, the department of the Pacific, and finally went to Governor's island as commander of the department of the east. Given Thanks of Congress.

In 1894 he was retired with the rank of major general, and in 1908 the Senate passed a bill placing Gen. Howard and thanking him at the same time for his meritorious service. He was founder of the Lincoln Memorial university at Cumberland Gap, Tenn., and chairman of the board of directors of that institution for many years.

The honorary degree of Li. D. has been conferred on Gen. Howard four times, and the Frenca government made him clevalier of honor in 1884. He was the author of a number of books, the best known of these being his war me-

MOVEMENT FOR CONSERVATION OF NATURAL RESOURCES LAUNCED IN NEW YORK.

FOLLOWS ROOSEVELT'S PLAN.

Militant Organization Opens General Offices and Will Have Branches in Different Sections.

HAS BACKING OF PRESIDENT.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.-Nationwide in scope and backed with the enthusiastic endorsement of President Taft, a movement was launched here today to appeal to the people of the United States for concerted action in preserving the natural resources of the country. The National Conservation association, with offices here and in Washinton, will carry on the proposed vigorous campaign under the leadership of Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard university.

This association is to be an active, militant organization with the general object of procuring through legislative and administrative measures by the states and by the federal government practical application of the conservation principles adopted by the governors of the United States at a conference with President Roosevelt in 1903. The association is the outcome of a plan on which men of national prominence have been at work with former President Eliot for many months. President Taft evinced his interest by giving the organization his hearty approval and by being enrolled as the first member. Included among the officers and membership are some of the most prominent men of affairs in the United States. General Offices Opened.

General offices were opened today in the Fifth avenue building, where it was announced that the association already had organization well under way, and that applications for membership were pouring in from all parts of the country. It is expected that as the work of the organization advances, branch offices will be established in different sections. Mr. Eliot is personally directing the work of the association. The membership, which is open to every American citizen, is expected to reach into hundreds of thousands. Among the most important measures advocated by the association in the general conservation scheme which includes the forests, waters, lands and minerals, is that relating to waterpower rights. The association advocates legislation for incorporation in all future grants of water power rights by state or nation provisions to secure prompt develop-ment, payment of reasonable compensation for the benefits granted by the people, the limitation of all such grants to periods of not exceeding fifty years and the recognition of the right of the authorities to make reasonable regulations as to rates and services.

Health a Natural Resource.

The association declares that it desires to further all legislation designed to diminish sickness, prevent accidents and premature death, and increase the comfort and joy of American life, believing that human efficiency, health and happiness are natural resources as important as forests, waters, lands and minerals.

New York Police Learn That Confessed Murderer Deserted Woman in Russia.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 .- Persistent efforts of the prosecution officers of Suffolk county, Long Island, to learn whether or not Frederick Gerhardt, the confessed murderer of Anna Luther had engaged in a series of bigamous marriages and desertions were rewarded in a measure today by the finding of a woman who declares that Gebhardt, then known as Otto Mueller, married her in Russia fourteen years ago.

The woman is now known under her maiden name of Minnie Rosenau, attended the inquest held at Islip yesterday, and positively identified Gebhardt as the Mueller who had married her in Russia. "After gaining possession of a fair dowry which I brought him." she said, "Mueller deserted me, and came to America."

Further identification of Gebhardt is to be made by the woman's brother when the inquest is resumed Friday. The police have also brought into the case another woman who for a time was much in the company of Gebhardt, but who mysteriously disappeared a year

CHAPTER XIV.

A few weeks had passed. Gartmore and his father and step-mother had been laid in the family vault; and Emily laid in the family vault; and Emily had gradually melted away, till there Keverne's grave was in the churchyard, was nothing in his voice and manner but not very far from the mausoleum of the noble family of which she might have been a member.

The new Viscount Gartmore, Alick Lorrin, had taken Kathleen and Irma to London with his mother. His father was still in Rome, a slight illness having delayed his homecoming. Alick Lorrin, in the earl's name, had begged Dr. Surtees and Mme. Vassie to remain in the house as long as they wished. It was in fact necessary to remain, for Claude made but slow progress towards recovery.

The girls did not yet know of their mother's existence. Mme. Vassie shrank nervously from revealing herself to them. "They are going away tomorrow," she said to herself the evening before the day fixed for the girls' departure. She was in the drawing room with them, while Dr. Surtees was having a cigar with the viscount.

Kathleen was at the piano, playing softly. Irma was sitting in a low chair near her mother. They were young and beautiful, these girls—her daughters. Life was all before them—all to come. They might be so happy—life might bring them so much joy. Surely she was not to be asked to sacrifice her life's best

It would be hard. But perhaps she was not going to be called upon to choose. There was no doubt, as yet, that he was hers. Yes, he loved her; and she could not be wholly sorry. The years to come might hold something better for Irma. The girl would forget-it was perhaps only a girl's fancy-and in any case, if he did not care for Irma-

"Mme. Stephanoff," Irma said, "you know that Kathie and I will leave for London tomorrow. I-we-we would like to say 'Good-bye' to Dr. Surtees and to thank him."

She looked straight at Mme. Vassie as she spoke, imagining that she had quite succeeded in keeping her secret.

"Of course; he is quite well enough to see you," Rose Vassie said. So next day Kathleen and Irma had been ushered into the sitting room where Claude lay on a couch. Mme. Vassie sat

The young man blushed violently at sight of the girls. In her black garments, Irma was more stately than ever; and Claude felt overcome with shame at the thought that she now knew of the boyish trick he had played.

He began to falter out an apology.

"Oh, that's all serene!" laughed the viscount, who had come in with the girls. They aren't angry with you, any more than I am. Kathleen wants to shake hands with you.'

Claude, still blushing hotly, held out his hands to Kathleen.

"I shall never forget how good and brave and clever you were," she said— "you and Irma too. Why, if it hadn't been for you, Alick would still be believing that about me."

Claude pressed the little hands warm-ly. Kathleen's child-like frankness and effusiveness made it all the more apparent that Irma was standing aloof. He took courage to address her di-is. I understand." There was a silence, filled on the doc tor's part with compassionate thoughts. with the bitter self-reproaches for letting things come to this pass. As for Claude, he was genuinely astonished, not so much at his brother's goodness as at his intelligence. Phil understood!

"Phil, old fellow!" Claude said. "What a good fellow you are! I can't tell you how much I feel your kindness—how much you have helped me. You see, we can't help it. She will never know it. I do love her-and I'll be true to her!"

"Yes," the doctor said. "That's the only thing you can do as an honorable man. Be true to her, and heaven will help you."

They shook hands and parted.

CHAPTER XV. Retta looked up from her correspondence, brought to her by that morning's post. She had just opened an envelope containing a card.

"See, Philip!" she exclaimed. "It's an invitation to Lord Gartmore's wedding. Claude will have had one too, I sup pose? Why, we'll meet every one there!' "Oh, no, my dear! No doubt there will be some very, very nice people there; but it will be a very quiet affair. 1 must ask Claude if he will go." And the doctor went up to his brother's room.

Claude lived with him now, and Retta made no objections. Mme. Vassie was now living with her two daughters. She had elected to take a home in London, and their simple little establishment was kept up handsomely with Kathleen's and Irma's allow-

"But it won't be for long, mother dear," Kathleen said. "T'll come in for my fortune when I'm married to Alick, and then I'll be able to treat you as I ought." Of course Claude visited the house daily. He was able to bear Irma's presence now without the least thrill or tremor, he told himself. He honestly believed that never by word or look had he betrayed himself, and Irma thought that she had been equally circumspect.

And yet Mme. Vassie knew. She thought it all out one day alonethe day before Kathleen's wedding. Perhaps these were the saddest moments of Rose Vassie's sorrowful life. Perhaps she reached now the most sublime height of self-sacrifice. She knelt down and as she eagerly thanked him over and ing robes; then rose up, purified from Kathleen's wedding was over, and all the guests were gone. Irma, who was very proud to cry in public, had gone to her bedroom to shed a few happy enough tears for little Kathleen, who Mme. Vassie and Claude Surtees were Interestingly About It. "Just see what a match Dom Miguel, the great-grandson of a pretender to a second class crown has been table to make," exclaims the Paris correspondent of Truth in commenting upon the wedding of Anita Stewart of New York. "In creating Miss Stewart a princess before her marriage the Emperor of Austria followed two precedents, possible more. His great-uncle Francis gave a similar 'savonnette de viliain' (pleabean's cake of soap) to the great Hungarian heiress Antoinette Kohary when her encake of soap) to the great Hungarian heiress Antoinette Kohary when her engagement to Duke August of Saxe-Coburg had become 'official' The present Emperor, as administrator of Schleswig, raised Miss Esther Lee to the dignity of Princess of Noer in like manner in order to qualify her for a complete marriage with old Prince Frederick of Schleswig-Holstein, who had become enamored of her at dances at the Tuileries. The six aunts of the present Dom Miguel made under imperial Austrian auspices as brilliant matches as if their father and grandfather had not been rois en exil (kings in exile)). The eldest is Grand Duchess of Luxemburg; another, as Donna Maria das Neves and sister-in-law of Don Carlos, distinguished herself in the last Carlist war in Spain. She received, as a champion of true religion and legitimacy, the special benediction of two successive Popes. The second is widow of the Archduke Charles Louis, first presumptive heir to the empire of Austria."

DOM MIGUEL'S MATCH.

POLAR PEMMICAN.

Simply Dried Beef Shredded and Mixed with Tallow.

Pemmican! What is pemmican? The Pemmican! What is pemmican? The average man knows that pemmican more or less goes on every well conceived polar expedition, but as to its composition or constitution he is completely at a loss. He will probably define it in terms of polar exploration. Pemmican, he will say three times out of four, is something that polar explorers use.

Now pemmican is much more Amerithat polar explorers use.

Now, pemmican is much more American than the present day population, if antiquity is to count for anything. It was originally a preparation made by the Indians and carried by them on their hunting expeditions and on the war trail. It consisted of the lean parts of venison dried by the sun or wind and pounded into a paste. It was then mixed with melted fat and pressed into cakes.

Occasionally a few mild berries were aded to improve the flavor.

The pemmican of today is specially prepared from the round of beef, dried and shredded instead of pounded, and mixed with beef tallow. Currants are also added.

Judge Cooper believes in the capable and strong woman—she thinks that the day of the clinging, helpless woman is past. She said in a recent interview:

"In the strong and independent woman's hands, in the fighting woman's hands, our sex's future rests. There is more than a little truth in an episode that a Chinese missionary once related to me.

"Why,' one cried, 'you can walk and run as well as a man!"

"Yes, to be sure,' said the missionary."

MILKED THE COWS.

Further pranks of the "spooks" which nfest the property of Charles Roth, who resides west of the city on Rosendale avenue, have excited the neighbors in that vicinity. When Mr. Roth arose one morning last week he found that all of his cows had been milked during the night and he is of the opinion that the ghostly visitors probably got thirst and drank the milk. Large quantities of tomatoes that were outside the house were also partially eaten by the "spooks." Advertising Pays. Try It.

-A statement was circulated in press some weeks ago to the effect that it would henceforth be unlawful to issue checks for ticle seems to have been one of Mrs. G. Wendel of Seymour is the many mistaken statements ed upon good authority that there is no such law. What was done was to recodify certain old statutes making it unlawful to use anything intended to circulate in place of money. Checks in less sums than one dollar are not unlawful, it appears and the statement referred to is due to a misconstruction of the old law.

Paint in the Fall

Now is the Time to Paint Your House for the Following Reasons:

Your house will be much dryer after the summer's heat than after the winter's dampness.

The paint will dry better and harder than in the spring, thereby keeping out dampness and decay, which really causes more loss than fire.

There is not much rain to impede the progress of the painting. There are few gnats and flies to spoil the job. Painting in the Fall is the Best Kind

BOILERS EXPLODE; ONE LIFE LOST IN THE WRECKAGE

GREAT POWER PLANT IS WRECKED WHEN FOUR BOILERS ARE BLOWN TO PIECES.

ONE VICTIM IS NEAR DEATH,

Firemen Work Among Ruins Seeking Bodies-Draw Fires from Boilers Which Escaped Injury.

PLANT TO BE RUN BY ELECTRICITY

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 25, 1909.-The explosion of four three-ton boilers in the plant of the Pabst Brewing company's plant at Tenth and Chestnut streets shortly after 4 o'clock this morning resulted in the death of Frederick Stirn, a fireman who lived at 500 Thirtyninth street, the dangerous injury of Gottlieb Yehnert, another fireman, and a loss of more than $300,000 which is only partially covered by insurance. Building Is Wrecked.

The explosion, which was of terrific power, completely wrecked the boiler rooms of the plant, hurled one of the big iron boilers fully sixty feet across Tenth street and onto the roof of another building and shoved the elevator building, which adjoins the wrecked boiler room four feet to the south almost causing that structure to topple over. It is believed that the explosion was caused by low water in the boilers.

Two Men in Building.

Only two persons were in the building at the time of the accident. Of these. Yehnert is at the Emergency hospital, while thirty firemen are tunneling into the wreckage for the body of Stirn. But small hope is held out for the recovery of the body until late this afternoon as the mass of splintered wood and iron is piled highest over the spot where the body is supposed to be hidden.

Windows Are Shattered.

So terrific was the explosion that not a window in the whole district was left unbroken and three firemen under the care of Herman Grande who slept in an adjoining building were thrown from their cots to the floor. These three firemen were the first persons to arrive on the scene after the accident. They found Yenhert lying helplessly against the side of the building on the opposite side of the street and dangerously hurt. He had been bodily blown from the doorway of the wrecked building and only by a miracle his life was not snuffed out by the falling iron and timbers.

Boilers Are Ruined.

The exploded boilers were split from end to end along the main seam. They were bent and twisted into an almost un-recognizable mass. Three of the boilers are still buried under the wreckage. None of them will be put into commission again. The boilers were of 160pound pressure and 400-horsepower. building was left standing after the explosion is regarded as remarkable, in-

Seventy Men at Work.

Immediately after the accident Chief Clancy rushed thirty firemen to the scene and a short time later the Pabst company reinforced the city force by another detachment of forty men. The seventy men have been at work on the wrecked building since one hour after the accident, under the direction of Chief Clancy and Col. Gustav Pabst. Col. Pabst reached the ruined plant soon after the accident and gave out the statement that the damage would amount to more than $300,000, and the loss is only partially covered by insurance.

According to Fire Chief Clancy, there were eight boilers in the building at the time of the explosion. All of them were new, having been installed about a year They were last inspected on October 9, when they were pronounced safe. An insurance of $150,000 was carried on boilers in the Hartford Steam Boiler Insurance company. Low Water May Be Cause. Although he refused to make any def-Inite declaration covering the point, Chief Engineer Glassman of the Pabst plant said that he was of the opinion that the explosion must have been caused by low water in the boilers. If this is true it means carelessness on the part of both Yenhert's escape from death is thought to be due to the fact that he was just outside the wrecked building when the explosion occurred. However, the man has not been able to give out a state-

Big Building Crumbles.

The building that was demolished was located at about the middle of the block on Tenth street between Chestnut and Winnebago streets. It was situated between the elevator of the Pabst company on the south side and the old boiler louse now used as a storage house, on the north.

From the appearance of the ruins the structure simply crumbled in by the explosion and was hurled, a mass of bricks, timber and iron, out into Tenth street. Flying bricks from the explosion were thrown through windows of adjoining buildings tearing off the plaster therein

Statement by Col. Pabst.

In a statement given out today shortly before noon, Col. Pabst said: that the damage will go as high as $350,000, though I can make no positive statement. It will take us a week to find out accurately what the loss is. We hope to be able to put the plant in operation Tuesday, though I doubt it. This depends entirely upon whether or not we are able to have electricity in the plant by that time.

"The loss is only partially covered by insurance. I don't remember just how much of it."

Mme. Thiers' Pearls.

The great pearl necklace in the Louvre museum, consisting of 145 pearls and valued at $60,000, which was once the property of Mme. Thiers, was re-ported some time ago to be "dying." Through disuse the pearls were losing their luster and gradually but certainly declining in value. According to a Lonthe same deterioration has been noticed in a rope of pearls belonging to the wife of a peer. "After a death in the family four years ago the owner of the jewels had them locked away," says a writer of the article, "in dark place, the atmosphere of which must have influenced the lustre of the pearls. They were taken out a few days ago and found to be perfectly dull. The hange which has been known to take place in many years occurred here in a comparatively short time." A satirist writing about the dying pearls incident said: "Is it possible that my lady found it necessary to dispose of the pearls and that the lusterless beads are substituted? Such deceptions are considered fair unler some circumstances."

COTTON TAKES A JUMP.

Prices Make New High Records and There Is Great Excitement in Market in New York.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25 .- There was great excitement in the cotton market today, prices making new high records owing to the big gains in Liverpool, a bullish crop estimate by a prominent English expert, a scarcity of shorts, and general buying. December cotton sold at 14.11 and May at 14.25, about 15 to 20 points higher than Saturday. There was enormous realizing, particularly as the census report showed rather more cotton ginned to October 18 than recent private figures. As a result of the realizing, prices lost several points of the

DEPERE DEPUTY IS SHOT DEAD; DEEP MYSTERY

WATCH AND REVOLVER GONE WHEN BODY IS FOUND AT DAYBREAK.

WOMAN IS HELD BY POLICE.

Jail Key Broken in LYock Is Found-Fight Over Reappointment Is Ended.

DEPERE, Wis., Oct. 26.-[Special.] -Deputy Marshal Otto W. Zimdars was found dead in front of his office early today with a bullet wound in his back.

His watch and revolver were gone and the key of the jail was found broken off in the door. The town is aroused over the tragedy and rumors of all sorts are prevalent.

The police are inclined to pursue an investigation further, before saying Woman Is Arrested.

During the forenoon a woman who is sometimes called Mrs. Gigarre, and who is known here and at Green Bay, was arrested. No charge was lodged against her at that time.

Zimdars, it is said, had been in Green

FIVE CHILDREN DIE IN ORPHANAGE FIRE

Lives Are Lost When Girl's College of Lynchburg (Va.) Institution Is Destroyed.

LYNCHBURG, Va., Oct. 26.-Five children, all inmates of the nursery, were incinerated in a fire which totally destoyed Shelton cottage, at the Virginia synod Presbyterian Orphans' home early this morning.

The children were all on the second floor of a wing of the building and were caught by the fire in a manner that made rescue impossible. Ruby Moorefield, one of the victims, had been taken out of the building, but she ascertaining that her younger sister was stil linside and ran back. Both were lost.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. Priest, the cook, who was aroused by the roar of the flames. When she saw that it and first floor at that time being enveloped, and that it would be only a few minutes before the whole building would death Dr. Cleminson telephoned to a fall, she rushed to the third story and brought fifteen children down to the second floor, leading them to the veranda top, where they were taken down a lad-der, several of them dropping into the outstretched arms of the older boys in the institution.

When these children were all safe, Mrs. Priest had to jump for her life and in doing so dislocated her shoulder and received a scalp wound and an injury to her back. She will recover. Only one of the twenty-four rescued girls was injured. She sprained her ankle in

COLLIER IS EXONERATED

KENOSHA AUTO ACCIDENT LAID TO BAD ROADS.

Sensational Fatality of Oct. 5 Is Recalled by Witnesses-Driver, Though Hurt, Tried to Save Victim.

KENOSHA, Wis., Oct. 26 .- [Special.] "Accidental death" is the verdict of the coroner's jury upon the death of Harvey J. Gibson on October 5 in an automobile wreck. It is probable that some suit for damages brought either by the heirs of the late Harvey Gibson or by Edward Collier will be started against the town board of Salem as the evidence at the inquest showed that the accident was directly due to the condition of the road.

The witnesses before the jury included Edward Collier, the driver of the automobile; Peter Pedersen, the man who drove the horse attached to the buggy which Collier attempted to pass at the time of the accident; Dr. W. W. Warriner of Antioch and John Gaggin, who resides near the scene of the accident. Pedersen declared that he saw the automobile coming over the crown of the hill 400 feet in front of him and seeing that it would be impossible for the auto-mobile and the buggy to pass he had leaped from his buggy and taken his chances of rolling to safety down the embankment on the side of the road. To Keep Shoes from Slipping.

One often wonders how some girls walk, even climb mountains, in pumps and silk stockings. It is not a sensible think to do, but where ankles are strong it may not be particularly harmful if one can keep the pumps from slipping. One girl, who is proud of her small feet and them, has told her secret for keeping her pumps from slipping. She pastes a piece of black velvet at the back of each piece of black velvet at the back of each pump. This must be smoothly done that there is no wrinkle. Only a narrow strip need be used, though the girl in question lined the entire back part of her shoe. The same girl sews narrow strips of soft silk the color of her stocking inside the heel of her stockings just at the line where the pump rests against them. This makes the stockings last hem. This makes the stockings last wice as long, as low shoes and pumps bub holes even though carefully worn.

FOR WOMEN AND GIRLS

Tassels are being used even more extensively than last season for trimming the dressy gown. While they may be had in a variety of colors and sizes, it is often necessary to make them if one would have them just the right shade. The heavy rope silk, used for embroidery, is as satisfactory as any material for this purpose.

Queen Wilhelmina's favorite colors are green and brown and the cradle of the little Princess Juliana actually is lined with these shades. When pink or olde, the usual baby colors, was suggested by women in the royal household withelmina showed her independence of spirit by promptly ordering a green and brown combination. For potatoes, as they are served in one New York hotel, cut a pint of potatoes into balls with a French scoop cutter. Boil them in salted water until they are tender and drain. Then turn over them a cupful of hot milk and stir in three level tablespoonfuls of butter, adding a little at a time. At the last stir in the yolks of two eggs and let the sauce come nearly but not quite to a boil.

Add quickly the juice of half a lemon and a spoonful of minced parsley.

Brown bread sandwiches with baked bean filling were the substantials of a luncheon eaten on the Palisades overlooking the Hudson river pageant during the celebration. The slices of bread were buttered and then one was spread with a lettuce leaf and over it was put a layer of baked beans mashed and moistened with oil. Over this was moistened with oil. Over this was spread a layer of mayonnaise, with which a little minced pickle and a snappy seasoning of paprika had been added.

To steam the velvet of last year's hat for the new fall one, light a burner of the gas stove and invert over it a baking dish. Put a wet cloth on the upturned bottom of the dish, lay the velvet over that and brush the nap gently the right way. For a crab flake cocktail with which to introduce a dinner or luncheon, open a can of the meat and let it air for a time. Meanwhile, make a sauce of fresh well. The trouble usually comes from grated horseradish, lemon juice, a little trying to sew the buttons into cold in small glasses.

To bake beans in Spanish style, soak two cupfuls of the white beans over-night and in the morning parboil them with a pinch of soda and drain. Meanwhile, fry a big onion cut in slices with a piece of bacon. Add these to the beans with a cupful of canned tomatoes, two shredded chili peppers, salt and enough hot water to cover thoroughly. Bake slowly, covered, for six hours at least. The fireless cooker is ideal for baked beans of any kind.

News comes from Paris that clubwomen there are taking radical steps to do away with the long, sharp-pionted hatpin. Those in charge of the move-ment have been making systematic investigations of accidents in Paris directly or indirectly attributable to hatpins, and it has been found that within a short time over twenty people have lost their eyesight because of the hatpins, while many others have been seriously wounded. A prize has been offered for an invention which will lessen the dangers of the hatpin or provide a thoroughly practical hat fastening in place of the pin. It is expected that at the "Little Industries" exhibit, which takes place in Paris this fall, many novel devices to re-place the hatpin will be shown.

Both domestic and foreign-made handkerchiefs were never more attractive than in this year of grace.

But when every gown in the wardrobe has its necklace and brooch, to say nothing at all of the bracelets and rings that go with them, even though imitation and not real metals and jewels make them up, the cost mounts high. Some of the handsomest belt buckles and brooches seen recently imitate shaded indexts or picture and are shaped like the jade to a nicety and are shaped like the winged scarab of real jade pieces. These belt pins and brooches often have pendants of small human figures or scarabs, and the pin part will be rimmed with a clever imitation of antique gold work. Housekeepers who are canny in other directions too often forget that a heavy salad is out of place at the dinner table. In using hair cloth for interlining, it is a good plan to cover the joinings and bind the edges with some soft silk or lining material. Then there is no danger of the stiff hairs cutting their way through the fabric of one's gown.

A handsome and unusual present to an October bride is a large and full white willow plume. It came from a friend who knows well the taste of the person for whom she selected the gift.

A Diet of Dahlias.

By a curious horticultural irony the dahlia, which is the popular idol of all our early autumn flower shows, has a dreadfully prosaic parentage. It has been developed from the Mexican tubers introduced about 120 years ago by the Swedish naturalist, Dr. Dahl, for the purely commercial purpose of supplanting or supplementing the potato. They did not "catch on" and the dahlia dish soon disappeared from British dinner tables, but our gardeners at once perceived the great potentialities of the flower and proceeded to produce the double dahlia and other delightful floral fantasies. The tubers of the dahlia, too acrid for our tubers of the dahlia, too acrid for our insular taste, are still eaten in some parts of France.—Westminster Gazette.

When with age the blood becomes impoverished and ceases to pulsate through the veins with the same vigor as in youth, there is nothing more beneficial than Lithia Beer.

It is a happy combination of tonic, stimulant and nutrition. The tonic property is derived from the hops, a little alcohol furnishes the element of stimulation and the barley malt is highly nutritive.

Lithia Beer is a splendid drink for aged persons, anaemics, convalescents and nursing mothers.

Put $50 or $100 into a diamond

And it is like depositing the money in the bank. While the diamond may not pay interest on the money, directly, like the bank-it gives the wearer a prestige that pays dividends every day in the year.

We aren't afraid to have our collection of diamonds compared with anything in the country.

We know that we bought them right, and we can and WILL sell them right.

We guarantee every gem we handle. It will always turn out to be exactly what we said it was-and we state emphatically that you run no risk in giving us your diamond business.
