HUNTING SEASON CARNAGE AT END

CLOSE OF DEER KILLING PERIOD SEES LONG LIST OF FATALI-TIES IN ITS WAKE.

THIRTY-THREE ARE MASSACRED

Personal Carelessness and Utter Sense lessness on Part of Nimrods Are Invariably Cause of Deaths.

FORTY-TWO ARE BADLY WOUNDED.

When the clock's twelfth stroke a midnight sounded the end of deer hunt ing for 1909, the season's death roll was by no means complete, for while thirty three hunters are known to have fallen by their own or fellow hunters' hands. there is a strong probability that anoth er half dozen will not survive the criti cal injuries sustained while in pursuit of the sport. Likewise, some forty-two nimrods are in hospitals and their homes suffering every variety of injury from loss of fingers or toes to great gaping holes near vital parts, while scores more are nursing wounds of minor nature.

In ten years there has been but one in which the number of hunters killed equaled or exceeded that of 1909. In 1907 the death roll contained fifty-one names. In the same year and in the next, the wounded list was as large at for the season just closed, sixty-six in jured being reported for 1907 and fifty three for 1908. The total dead and in jured this season is seventy-six. In 1907 it was 117, while 1908 comes next with seventy-six.

Three Are Lost.

Bosides the thirty-three hunters known to have been killed or to have died from their injuries, at least three more men who set out on the chase never returned. Anton Lepusha of Iron-wood, Mich., a former Milwaukeean, is believed to have been shot to death and friends do not expect to find the body until the snow melts, and maybe never.

Harry Brownwell of St. Charles,
Mich., and Robert Beilby of Dowagiac. Mich., are believed to have perished from exposure. However, there is no tangible evidence as to the exact fate which has befallen these hunters. A son has offered a $2000 reward for the body of Beilby, for whom large parties have searched two weeks.

It is significant that not a few hunt-ers were killed or wounded before the deer season was legally open. Also, it is noteworthy that numerous duck hunters were among the victims, as well as young boys practicing at target shoot-

Carelessness Is Obvious.

Individual carelessness was a large factor, as well as the old, old story of a hunter firing at a noise in the under-brush. Likewise, in several instances the man who fired the fatal shot fled without disclosing his identity. In scanning the appended lists, it will be observed that a number of victims were men of high standing and wide acquaint-

The total number of licenses for the 1908-9 hunting season was 6626, 207 dess than the total number issued thus far for the 1909-10 season, the total to date being 6833. It is believed that the new law limiting the killing to one deer has proved a blessing, as it has in all cases cut the stay of the hunters in the woods to one half and consequently the chances of being shot by just that much. In many cases hunters secured their deer the first day, whereas formerly it required sev-eral days before they were able to get their limit of two.

TAINTER VISITS SWEETHEART.

Escapes Arrest by Removing Boards from Fence Near Back Porch. LA CROSSE, Wis., Nov. 30.—Robert Tainter, former Beloit college athletic star, now a fugitive, daringly escaped the police here Monday night when two officers found him with his sweetheart on the back porch of her home.

Tainter had taken precautions against arrest by tearing two boards off the back fence, and when the police mounted the steps commanding him to surrender, he leaped to the ground and, darting through the fence, vanished. The police believe he escaped on a southbound Burlington passenger train which was just pulling out a block away. Tainter was serving a year at the Green Bay reformatory for robbing and burning the Holway auto garage and shooting himself to cover the crime. He is the son of rich parents and first came into the limelight when, as a student, at the Beloit college, he mysteriously disappeared, being later found playing with an Iowa baseball team.

Paasche, national-liberal, the house elected Paasche second vice president. The latter, how-ever, declined to serve, declaring that the national-liberal party had decided unanimously not to accept office in the reor-ganization of the house.

The imperial party, or free conserva-tives, also declined to take part in the organization while the radicals went so far as to decide that they would cast blank votes. These three parties are determined to place the full responsibility for the coming legislation upon the German conservatives and clericals.

Free from Sin.

Among the many excuses for drinking one of the most convincing is that noted by Lord John Russell in the journal kept of his youthful travels in Spain. When visiting Plasencia he met a convivial ec-clesiastic who expressed his astonishment that a scion of the aristocracy noted throughout Europe for their drinking prowess should prove so moderate in his potations. Lord John retorted that he had no desire to reach the six bottle standard set by some of his peers. His boon companion proceeded to rebuke him for this departure from sane tradition and concluded by remarking that "even on religious grounds you are wrong. For he who drinks well sleeps well. He who sleeps well sins not. And he who sins not shall be saved."—London Chronicle.

For a whole day things went exceedingly well. She told me what a good comrade he was that day, how they laughed together over a thousand small absurdities, cracked jokes, told stories couple of schoolgirls on holiday. He did certainly take her hand as the evening came on, kissing it once or twice and saying fond nothings in German. But it was all done with such gay camaraderie and such honest, healthy laughter that spend the whole day wandering about in none but a prude could have taken offense. The good man was evidently distressed. He glanced at her questioningly and at length broke the silence to ask if she were angry with him. Constantia expressed with great frankness her deep indignation at his want of respect. She explained once more at great pains her views on the independence of woman, now that the truly free woman was indeed deserving of respect because she was herself the guardian of her own liberty.

I need hardly say that the poor herr was completely mystified. He could only eply, "Je ne vous comprends pas, mademoiselle," over and over again until Constantia was tired of explaining. Public Letter Writers of Mexico. The "evangelistas" are easily among the most unique figures of the city, and they meet a great demand, as one realizes who passes that way frequently, for they pen daily many letters of business and stories of happiness and sorrow-not to mention the "cartas de amor" for brown Romeos and dark eyel Juliets. There are about eighteen of these men and women-however, there are only two or three women-who from 9 or 10 o'clock in the morning until late in the afternoon offer their services with pen or typewrit-er to the unlettered ones of the capital at from 6 to 12 cents, according to the length of the epistle.

There is a blond young woman among the number who is an expert typewriter; another woman, no longer young, offers her services free to the poor the nine-teenth of every month; this is one of the ways of honoring San Jose, as he is guardian of the nineteenth day of March. "Conscience money" paid anonymously in respect of evaded taxes is familiar to the British revenue authorities, but a new variety of this kind of contribution is reported from Rugby, where the board of guardians (poorhouse authorities) have BELLS OF MEXICAN RANCH.

Date from the Sixteenth Century and Highly Prized by Indians.

The ranch of Jocotlan, belonging to the Indians of the district, comprises 50, 000 hectares of very rich land. The pride of the Indians is two old bells that hang in the tiny churchyard. They date from the year 1550 and, it is rumored, are cast with gold and copper and silver. They bear the date and some words in Latin. Of their history nothing is known. It seems probable that they were cast up by the sea or taken from one of the old Spanish galleons, as Jo-cotlan is only a day from the coast. This immense ranch has a history. After the war of independence it was handed to the indigenes of Jocotlan, who now number 200. This gift was further rati fied under the government of Comonfort Herald.

A NURSE'S EXPERIENCE

Is a Good Guide for Any Person Who Does Not Understand Kidney Troubles.

A nurse has to know just what to do for common ailments, and those who suffer backache, languor and other common signs of kid-

Do you feel weak, tired, despondent, have frequent headaches, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in morning, "heart-burn," belching of gas, acid risings in throat after eating, stomach gnaw or burn, foul breath, dizzy spells, poor or variable appetite, nausea at times and kindred symptoms ?

If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion, or dyspepsia. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at these will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength, from the roots of native American medical, forest plants. GOES DIRECT TO MANUFACTURERS

WISCONSIN COMMITTEE ON INDUS-TRIAL INSURANCE SENDS OUT INQUIRIES.

COMPILE RATES ON

dence in Making Up Its Statistics.

SUON TO MAKE TOUR OF STATE, lish history, at least in 300 years, by re-manufacturers of the state asking for against the budget to 75 in its favor. information bearing on industrial accidents. The blank forms sent out by the committee were compiled under the expert advice of authorities on industrial for the able and convincing arguments accidents, Prof. John R. Commons of the arrayed for and against the budget and University of Wisconsin, United States Labor Commissioner C. P. Neill, Prof. C. R. Henderson of the University of Chicago, H. V. Mercer of the Minnesota employes' compensation commission and others being asked for their aid.

Compile Accident Rates. The object of the Wisconsin committee

The object of the Wisconsin committee in going direct to the manufacturers for facts regarding industrial accidents is to secure reliable data from which to make up tables of rates for various industries. Steel, furniture, gas, candy and a hundred other kinds of manufacturers have been asked to give the number of accidents in their plants during the years 1906, 1907 and 1908. They also are asked to give the period of disability in cases where the injured employe was away from work for thirty days or more. The committee, in addition to this information, seeks data on the cost of these accidents, including the cost of these accidents, including doctor bills, hospital bills, lawyers' fees and other items entering into the probem of industrial accidents.

Great Economic Waste.

The investigation of the committee has one far enough to date to show that in Wisconsin there is a tremendous economic waste under the present lack of system in caring for employes injured in manufacturing plants. The "ambulance chaser" is the chief offender. While system in caring for employes injured in manufacturing plants. The "ambulance chaser" is the chief offender. While a great many lawyers take personal injury cases on a fair percentage of the possible verdict, others take as high as 70 per cent. of the amount finally award-70 per cent. of the amount finally awarded an injured employe. The committee also has found in its inquiry that manufacturers almost without exception, are enthusiastically in favor of a law whereby injured employes may be cared for by a general insurance scheme when they are incapacitated for duty. They point to the multitude of cases where injured men are persuaded by lawyers to bring suit and how the employe is encouraged to cultivate the gambling spirit of fighting for a big verdict. In many cases they lose their suits and get nothing beyond a heavy bill for legal services, while in others they get half or as little as 30 per cent. of the verdict, the lawyer getting the balance. Manufacturers say that in a great majority of case they are unable to settle direct with their men because the latter have been solicited by watchful "ambulance chasers" to bring suit in court.

In asking for information from manufacturers of Wisconsin, the legislative committee agrees to hold the data in confidence. In carrying out this plan the committee sends out with its inquiries a separate card for the manufacturers' names, locations and business. These which bear a number identical with that on the schedules of questions, are to be filed away under lock and key; thus the statisticians and others at work on the completed schedules will not know the identity of any of them, this information being held in strict confi-dence by the secretary of the committee.

Make Tour of State. For the present the Wisconsin committee is maintaining headquarters in Within the next thirty days it will hold a few sessions in various manufacturing centers of the state, La Crosse, Eau Claire, Racine, Superior and Manitowoc probably being included in the itinerary. The hearings in all prob-ability will be held by the entire committee, which is composed of Senators A. W. Sanborn of Ashland, E. T. Fairchild Milwaukee and John J. Blaine of Boscobel and Assemblymen Wallace Ingalls of Racine, C. B. Culbertson of Stanley, Walter D. Egan of Superior and George G. Brew of West Milwaukee. Paul J. Watrous of Milwaukee is secretary of the committee and will accompany it on its tour of the state.-Evening Wisconsin, Milwaukee, Wis.

The Old Shah Is Learning.

The ex-Shah of Persia, who is living at Odessa, under the protection of the Czar, is tramping that city day and night, gathering impressions of the civil-ized world. Before he left Persia, he had never seen a railway car, steamer or printing press. He had never ridden in an elevator. Sanitary arrangements were entirely unknown to him, and that men and women walk erect in his presence, without shedding their boots and knocking their forehead on the pavement, is a perpetual element of wonderment to the former tyrant. He has attained the newspaper habit, and buys every newspaper he sees and has its contents translated to him on the spot. To facilitate his newspaper studies he has engagedd a Russian teacher and is eager to learn the difficult language.

Kewaskum Statesman BUDGET IS VOTED DOWN BY LORDS

AL STRUGGLE IS NEAR.

Entered at the Kewaskum Postoffice as BILL NOW GOES TO COUNTRY.

Vote Is 350 to 75 and, in Theory, It Is Illegal to Carry on King's Government.

MONEY AFFAIRS ARE CONFUSED.

LONDON, Dec. 1 .- In the sedate, detached manner characteristic of the proceedings in the gilded chamber, and in direct disregard of the advice of some of its ablest and oldest members, such as Rosebery, Morley, Lord James of Hereford, Lord Cromer, Lord Balfour of Body Will Hold Information in Confi- Burleigh, the Earl of Lytton, Lord Courtney and the archbishops of Canterbury and York, the House of Lords just before the clock struck 12 last night created a situation unprecedented in Engfusing formal assent to the budget bill and referring it to the country itself for Within the last week the industrial in- judgment, thereby, in theory, making it surance committee of the Wisconsin Leg- illegal to collect taxes and carry on the islature has sent out 4000 inquiries to King's government. Scene Is Impressive.

After six days' debate, notable for the high standard of the oratory as well as placing in every possible light all the aspects of the great constitutional questions involved, the House of Lords cleared for division at 11:30 o'clock Tuesday night.

The scene was impressive, but in no sense exciting, except that the house was packed to its utmost capacity and a great array of strange faces was seen on the benches owing to the presence of numbers of peers who only appear in the house in most exceptional cases. None would have supposed that the event proceeding was destined not only to prove memorable in the annals of British history, but possibly also involv-ing far-reaching changes in the British constitution.

Galleries on Oui Vive.

There certainly was unusual animation in the public galleries, which were crowded with peeresses, members of the House of Commons, ambassadors and others, but in the house itself complete calm prevailed. There was none of that tense excitement or exuberant enthusiasm so distinctive of a similar occasion in the lower house. The vote was on Lord Lansdowne's amendment that the house was not justified in giving its consent to the bill until it had been submitted to the judg-ment of the country. Nearly fifteen min-the amendment, a few mixed cheers were heard. Owing to the crowded state the chamber, the tellers had some difficulty in forcing their way through to Lord Loreburn, lord high chancellor. The Earl of Crewe immediately moved an adjournment and the house rose.

Crowd Awaits Result.

An eager and expectant crowd was awaiting the result in the central hall, and when the figures of the vote became known there was a slight attempt at counter demonstrations. The officials, however, speedily cleared the hall, and in a few minutes the lobbies and precincts were empty.

Makes Curious Point.

Among the minor speeches during the debate, Lord Courtney, in speaking against Lord Landsdowne's resolution, made a curious point. He reminded the peers that by violating the established usage they were creating a precedent which might be carried far. For example, they held their seats in the House of Lords by virtue of writs of summons. "If, under the minister's advice, these writs were withheld," he said, "no court existed which could enforce them and the peers would have no right of entry into the house. They might meet in Trafalgar square, but could get no legal edress."

The following abstained from voting: The Duke of Connaught, the Archbishop of Canterbury, Viscount St. Aldwyn, Earl de-la-Warr, the Earl of Lytton and the Marquis Dufferin and several other peers and bishops. The Archbishop of York and the bishops of Birmingham, Chester and St. Asaph voted against the resolution. The Bishop of Lincoln voted for the resolution, while Lord James of Hereford and the bishop of Hereford paired against the resolution. Otherwise the division was on strict party lines.

The House of Commons holds that the peers have not the right to reject the financial measure; that the so-called upper house must concur in whatever financial proposition is sent to it.

Lord Lansdowne's amendment, however, contended that the peers had the right to reject.

When Lord Lansdowne last week in the House of Lords moved his amend-ment he acknowledged that his amendment was a grave, perhaps an unprecedented, proposal. But, he contended, the preamble of the bill showed that it required the consent of the House of Lords before it became a law. That, he insisted, involved the right of rejection, and he declared the peers were not jus tified in giving their consent to the bill until it had been submitted to the coun-

FEEDING OURSELVES.

Farm Products More Than Keeping Pace with the Home Demand. In spite of the declaration that the production of foodstuffs is not keeping pace with the growth of population, the department of agriculture has issued a statement showing that the United States is more than holding its own in the task of feeding its people. The bureau of statistics is authority for the decrease of the laration that during the fiscal year the imports of farm products into the United States were valued at $540,000,000, which was $14,000,000 less than in 1905 and $87,000,000 less than in 1907. That the American farmer is awakening to the necessity for closer and more inten-sive cultivation of his land is evidenced by the fact that during seven years prior to 1900 more than half of the total imports into the country consisted of farm products. In the nine years since 1900 much less than half of the imports have been products of the farms.

Revival of Beads.

have come into fashion. Beads are being used in huge quantities as ornamentation for dresses. Necklaces and collars of colored beads are everywhere demanded, and many ornaments are covered with pretty patterns in multi-colored beads. The sudden fashion has placed the Bohemian glass manufac-turers in great straits. The trade of beadmaking had practically died out. The workmen have either died or lost their skill, and immense orders have to be refused. Boxes of beads stored in warehouses as worthless for many years are being sold for incredibly high prices.

HARRIMAN TAX HEAVY

NEW YORK TO RECEIVE $1,490,000 FROM ESTATE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 .- Edward H. Harriman when he died was worth $149,000,000.

His Wife.

This became known when the appraisers appointed by the surrogate's court completed their estimate of his holdings. The state of New York, under the inheritance tax, will receive from Mr. Harriman's estate $1,490,000, as it collects one per cent. of the total where the estate is left to one person. That was the case with Mr. Harriman's hundred and a half millions. He bequeathed everything of which he was possessed to his wide. his widow, Mrs. Mary Averell Harri-man, whom he married in Rochester when he was merely a small leader in Wall street. Only one will which anywhere ap-proaches the Harriman will in magni-tude of state inheritance tax has been filed in New York. That was the testa-ment of the late James Henry (Silent) Smith. His fortune was appraised at $24,000,000. The inheritance tax, colected at several different ratios because Mr. Smith did not leave his millions all to one person, amounted to $923,495.

Mr. Harriman's fortune may have been more than the $149,000,000 now discovered, however. It was said about the time of his death that he had distributed in the said about the said about the time of his death that he had distributed in the said about the said ab tributed a large part of it—large in ordinary terms of money, though not large when compared with his total wealth—to his children.

In his beautifully worded will, leaving everything to Mrs. Harriman, the railroad builder seemingly left to her the future distribution of his millions as well as the present holding of them. From that it was reasoned that he left to her also the duty of giving to their children what he thought was fitting.

Mr. Harriman's personal holdings of railroad stocks—that were his chief possessions—amounted to but a small figure

MYSTERY IN MURDER

BODY OF BROOKLYN WOMAN FOUND IN VACANT RESIDENCE.

Clues Lead Detectives to "House of Mystery" Where Victim's Aged Aunt Lived.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 .- Mystery surrounding the death of Mrs. O. W. N. Snead, a young Brooklyn woman, whose body was found in a bath tub in a vacant house in East Orange, N. J., Tuesday was still unravelled today, though the police have taken into custody the victim's aged aunt, Miss Virginia Wardlaw, pending an investigation, the aunt's statements having been regarded as contradictory.

Clues led detectives to Flatbush, Brooklyn, early today, and what was found caused an attempt to establish a connection between the death of Mrs. Snead in East Orange and happenings in a so-called "house of mystery" in the Brooklyn suburb, where Miss Wardlaw. Mrs. Snead and two strange old ladies lived until recently.

Further probing into the strange of currence disclosed that Mrs. Snead had an insurance policy of $20,000 on her life, and that the two women had come to East Orange from Flatbush.

Search of the "house of mystery" in Brooklyn by the detectives led to the discovery of bloodspots in various rooms of the house. In the kitchen stove, the police found two bundles of human hair, while crushed down in the stove were four human bones, partly burned. A skull of a child two years old was brought forth from the stove.

Blood spots in four rooms of the upper floor were discovered, and the detectives have ordered the cellar to be dug up, and the floors torn up. Mrs. Snead's husband disappeared last summer.

DEER PULLS TRIGGER?

Trio of Mighty Hunters Tell Tale of Which Munchausen Might Well Be Jealous.

ESCANABA, Mich., Dec. 1 .- [Speial.]-Returning from a hunting trip on the West Brule river, Ole Lundin, Otto Anderson and John Berquist of Iron river tell this tale: As they were about half way home, with Lundin and An-derson walking ahead of the wagon. on which their guns had been packed, the men thought they could see a deer off to one side, but they were not positive. Finally the deer made a jump and started for the tall timber.

Berquist, on the wagon, saw the ani-mal as it started to run and shot at it, knocking it down. Anderson saw it drop and ran to the spot. He grabbed the animal by the horns, when it jumped up and for a few moments the leer and the man had a veritable Cornish wrestling match.

Lundin appeared shortly, and taking he deer by the antiers, he and Anderson led the animal toward the road, as nicely and peaceably as could be. near the road they came to a windfall and while trying to get the deer to step over the animal dropped dead.

An Influential Woman Against Suffrage. Mrs. Ella Simmons Washburn, head of the Order of Eastern Star in the United States, an organization numbering 500,000 women and men affiliated with the Masons, is against woman suffrage.
"I don't believe in women voting," she said. "Personally I don't care to vote. However, I wouldn't object to women who are large property holders and who have nobody to represent them in the government voting. But I'm afraid that the giving of suffrage to women would cause them to go into politics—a thing which would be most deplorable. I don't like mannish women."

"Thanks, I'm most awfully obliged to you—I am really! Some of my pals—I mean friends—heard you all singing and playing on the front yesterday morning, and said you were ripping. You'll come, then—honest, eh? Four o'clock sharp; the gig will be waiting at the harbor steps. So long! Oh, stop, I'd better give you a pasteboard!" He dived into his waistcoat pocket, produced therefrom a gold cigarette case adorned with a monogram in brilliants, and took out a visiting card, which he handed to little Anne.

"I always carry a card with me in case of being taken ill or run over in some of being taken ill or run over in some strange place where nobody would know who I was," he explained in a rather apologetic tone as he turned away.

Anne, glancing at the little oblong white slip she held, saw the words, "Lord Frederic Germayne—Yacht Fire-fire DEPARTMENT IS CALLED.

fly," inscribed on it.

It was with considerable trepidation that Anne Oliver finished her own toilet and superintended that of Gerry and Phil for the momentous occasion of the afternoon party on board the Firefly.

During the time they had been Sandbeach, now nearly three weeks, she had only by degrees overcome her nerv-ous dread of recognition while giving their daily entertainments on the sea front, and indeed, had it not been for the extraordinary success that from the first moment had attended their somewhat rash experiment, she would have abandoned the idea at the first onset. But with the curious good luck that seemed to draw pence and halfpence, to say nothing of sixpences and shillings, and even an occasional half-crown whenever Phil offered his collecting-plate at the end of their little concerts, she felt it would be actually a sin to quarrel. Moreover, the two children were laying up a store of health and energy against the long, dark London winter, besides the welcome addition to their small funds, which would purchase extra warm clothing, food and fire, when they were most needed in the future.

During the first week of their stay in Sandbeach they made money enough to pay the rent of their rooms in Grannie Burns' little cottage without touching the sovereign little Anne had so carefully put aside for the purpose.

The question of securing a "pitch" where they could give their performances was waived by the town authorities on the condition that the Brown Holland concert party shifted their position on the sea front every day, not attempting to monopolize any one particular spot; so that item of expense was spared them. The pianette was hired from old Mrs.

Brown's daughter-in-law, who kept a little music shop in one of the back streets, and was glad to let them have the instrument for three shillings a week, while another three paid for the hire of light crispy, curling hair was unmarred by the baggy lines beneath the eyes, the coarse outlines and thick lips that no amount of exposure to winds and Evans who is come of the coarse outlines and thick lips that no to talk to without falling foul of Dale while the money flowed in every day in a wall-eyed old piebald pony and vegetable truck. "Yes, and don't you hope there'll be lots of lords and ladies on the yacht, would be if a great lord were to fall in love with you this very day, and then you could be married, and we could live with you and never bother about money any more!" cried Gerry. "He would say, 'Dear Miss Brown Holland, will you be my wedded wife,' and you would say, I will, my lord, with pleasure, only my name isn't Brown Holland, but Annie Oliver, and these are Gerry and Phil, my brother and sister."

"Oh, hold your noise, Gerry! Just like a girl-always thinking about marrying," interrupted Phil. "Do let us start, Anne! If we're late perhaps the gig won't wait for us, and then we shall lose everything. the instruments? It's a quarter to 4

He clattered off down the steep little wooden stairs at a breakneck rate, leaving his sisters to follow. Gerry's tongue ran like a mill stream with excitement, and she kept up a perpetual chain of questions on the way to the harbor.

INJURED TAKEN TO HOSPITAL.

Force of Blast Throws Walls Into Heap

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 29, 1909 .-George Odenbrett, 419 Broadway, part owner of the Gas Tank Recharge company, 961 North Water street, and a members of the firm of Bates-Odenbrett, 503 Broadway, dealers in automobiles, died in the Lakeside hospital at 1:10 o'colck today. His death followed injuries sustained in an explosion that completely demolished the recharging plant on North Water street. Mr. Odenbrett was within the building at the time of the blowing up of an acetylene tank. He was fearfully crushed and bruised. Immediately thereafter he was picked up, in semi-conscious condition, from among the smoking ruins of the building. He was rushed to the Lakeside hospital in an automobile. In spite of desperate efforts of physicians. he failed to recover. He sank steadily and died at 1:10 o'clock.

Three men were at work in the building at the time of the explosion. One of them was thrown more than forty feet, with the west wall. He was hurled outward, with a mass of brick and wreck-age. He was, however, not seriously injured. He appeared dazed for a mo-ment, then regained his feet, and imme-diately thereafter returned to the scene paper and probably money. Immediately thereafter he was hurried to a hospital by bystanders.

The other two victims were crushed against the walls. It seemed that the lesser force of the explosion at the point they occupied, did them additional harm. The walls, instead of being blown completely out, as was the west wall, were merely crushed and fell in. she will devote the rest of her time trying to find out who "that girl" is. A smile is a handy thing to have round, even when it is as broad as it is long. It may square a long stand-

Modest Dan Hayes,

An old playbill of the Kilkenny Theater Royal for May 14, 1793, was a lew years ago reprinted in the Western (England) Mast and the following

"The tragedy of Hamlet,' originally written and composed by the celebrated Dan Hayes of Limerick and inserted to Shakespeare's works." The playbill concludes with the interesting notice that "no person whatsoever will be admitted into the boxes without shoes or stockings" It is probable that this Irish clasmant to the honor of the authorship of "Hamdet is not so well known as his astounding claim might warrant.

Pretty Thin.

"My dear," said a thin tittle Brighton man to his wife, "this paper say that there is a woman down in Devonshire who goes out and chops wood with ber husband."

"Well, what of 182 I think she could easily do it if he is as thin as you are. I have often thought of using you to peel potatoes with."

The thin man laid down his paper with a sigh that sounded like the squeak of a penny whistia-London
