OBSERVED ANNIVERSARY

22nd Anniversary of Priesthood

(From Beaver Dam Argus.)

Rev. George J. Muenzer, pastor of St. Peter's church in this city celebrated the twenty-second anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood on Friday, December 17 There was a high mass at 10:30 A M. to commemorate the event. Rev Father Muenzer finished his studies in June 1887, but was not ordained until Dec. 17, on account of not being old enough to receive Holy Orders. He was ordained at St. Francis church in Milwaukee on the 17th of December, 1887, the anniversary of his father's fiftieth was as assistant at St. Joseph's church in Milwaukee which position he filled from January 3 to February 22, 1888, when he was appointed as pastor at Random Lake, Wis. and mission, where he remained from February 22, 1888 to December 28, 1892. On January 1, 1893 he was appointed pastor of St. Michael's church at St. Michaels, Washington county, Wis., where he remained until October 6, 1908, when Joseph Schlosser, the barber, has he was appointed pastor of St. rented the Heilman bakery for a Peter's church in this city, coming happened about 100 feet from the term of three years and will take here on October 10, 1908. IN THE SENATE.

There was no session of the Senate on the 15th. During a brief session on the 16th the Senate adopted a resolution by Senator Cullom calling on the secretary of the interior for information respecting mining disasters and facilities of the government for rendering aid in such disasters. Adjourned at 1:16 until Monday.

The Senate was not in session on the

The nomination of Horace H. Lurton to be associate justice of the United States supreme court was confirmed on the 20th. Senator Depew made an optimistic Christmas cheer speech in reply to pessimistic predictions based on the tariff made in La Follette's magazine and iff made in La Follette's magazine and in newspapers. A long list of nomina-tions for ambassadors, ministers and other appointive officers was sent to the Senate by the President.

The Senate on the 21st adopted a resolution by Mr. Flint calling for all the papers in the Ballinger-Pinchot case, and thus put in motion an inquiry into that controversy. After some debate adjournment was taken to January 4.

IN THE HOUSE. The Esch bill, requiring railroads to make full monthly reports to the interstate commerce commission and a measure giving the commission power to com-pel railroads to provide uniform equipment for their cars, were passed on the 15th. Opposition developed to the sec-tion of the Esch bill prohibiting the use in any action brought for damages of the reports furnished by the railroads. Chairman Mann urged that the section be allowed to remain in the bill as an encouragement to the railroads to give the commission the fullest information of accidents. All amendments to the section were defeated. The measure be-comes effective at once. The Mann Panama canal bill was reported by the committee on interstate and foreign commerce and was the subject of general debate. The provision for abolishment of the isthmian canal commission and the centralization of responsibility for the construction of the canal and the government of the canal zone under the President, in a director general, aroused opposition. Mr. Harrison of New York charged that former President Roosevelt had usurped authority in the canal zone he did not possess. Mr. Olmstead of Pennsylvania and Mr. Mann defended Mr. Roosevelt. Mr. Sterling of Illinois and Mr. Baker of New Jersey attacked the section of the bill relating to the judicial power in the zone. The reading of the bill was begun. At 5:35 p. m. the House adjourned.

The House devoted five hours on the 16th to the District of Columbia appropriation bill, carrying $10,156,473 for 1911. Mr. Hitchcock of Nebraska in a speech demanded a congressional investigation of the general land office. He attacked Secretary Ballinger in con-nection with the so-called Cunningham coal land cases. The House adjourned at 4:55 p. m. Consideration of the District of Columbia appropriation bill again occupiedthe day on the 17th. An amendment pro-viding $17,000 for children's playgrounds was inserted. Mr. Mann of Illinois attacked Auditor Tweedale of the dis-trict for criticising Congress, and Mr. Fitzgerald of New York intimated that ex-President Roosevelt's bad example was to blame. Adjourned at 3:53 p. m.

The District of Columbia appropriation bill, carrying about $10,275,000, was passed by the House on the 20th. Mr. Mondell of Wyoming upheld Secretary Ballinger in a speech against the proposition to enlarge the government's au-thority over dams and water power rights in the different states. The Fitzgerald "unanimous consent" rule was invoked for the first time and two small local were passed.

In a ten-minute session on the 21st Mr. Mann reported his bill for the sup-pression of the white slave traffic and Mr. Richardson filed a minority report against Mr. Mann's bill for the reorgan-ization of the government of the Isthmus of Panama. The House adjourned to January 4.

an Arctic Explorer's Daughter Finds 1t the Root of Much Evil.

Miss Anna Hall, daughter of the late Dr. Hall of Cincinnati, who gained fame as an Arctic explorer, has announced that she will return to the government the $15,000 which was voted to her father by Congress as a reward for his presenting to the country the data and specimens of his explorations. Dr. Hall bequeathed the gift and medals to his wife, who in turn left them with other property to her daughter by will, cutting off her son, Charles, with a small bequest to be held in trust. Charles Hall tried to break the will, and the estate has gone through litigation in several courts, the daughter winning the last and decisive victory. As soon as the decis ion was announced the daughter said she would return the money to the government because it had caused so much dissension in the family.

DEPOSED TREASURER OF BIG FOUR RAILWAY ADMITS EMBEZZLE-MENT CHARGE.

GRAND LARCENY IS DROPPED.

Prisoner Is Alleged to Have Confessed to Shortage of $643,000 in His Accounts.

SENTENCE NEAR LAWFUL LIMIT.

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 22.-Charles L. Warriner, deposed local treasurer of the Big Four railway, pleaded guilty to embezzlement in the common pleas court today and was sentenced to serve six years in the Ohio penitentiary.

Warriner is alleged to have confessed to a shortage of $643,000 in his accounts. When court convened this morning, it was understood that the defendant's attorneys had entered into an arrangement with Prosecutor Hunt for their client to plead guilty to the charge of embez-zlement and that the grand larceny charge would not be pressed.

The limit sentence for embezzlement is seven years and the minimum one year.

Money Accounted For. Of the $643,000 Warriner is alleged to have taken from the Big Four railroad less than half has been accounted for by him. There have been many sto-ries that he had secreted part of the money, but these have not been verified.

After the sentence had been pronounced. Prosecutor Hunt stated he would not press further charges against Warriner unless it is shown that Warriner has money hidden away. Ford Trial Next Week. The trial of Mrs. Jeanette Stewart Ford. "the woman in the case," who is under indictment charging blackmail and receiving stolen goods, has been set for next Monday.

Dr. Egan, who reached here today on the Oscar II. and will remain during the holidays, talked freely regarding his own part in the enthusiastic reception of Dr. Cook at Copenhagen, which led to the acclaim of Dr. Cook as a hero all over the civilized world.

"What I did for Dr. Cook," said the minister, "I don't believe influenced the Danes appreciably in their reception of the explorer. "I myself welcomed him not only as an American seeking civilization after harrowing experiences and needing assistance, but as a citizen who, from his own then undisputed story, had accomplished

The scene was impressive as the cor-tege passed through the streets where the crowds massed on the sidewalks, at the windows and upon the balconies and roofs, paid respectful homage.

More impressive as a spectacle, how ever, was the scene at the Cathedral of St. Michael and St. Gudule, that magnificent gothic pile which from the highest eminence dominates the many archi tectural beauties of ancient Brussels. In the cathedral interior, all that the hand of man could fashion to emphasize the regal rites had been done, yet served to conceal rather than make more pronounced the simple noble lines of the edifice. The imperial nave of the cathedral was draped with long tapestries of black bordered with white, forming a somber back ground for the famous statues of the apostles. The cortege entered the transept portal headed by officers of the army and civic guard in full uniform and followed by the judges in their scarlet robes, the ministers, members of Parliament and many priests. The mass was ceremoniously followed by the rites of absolution performed over the body by five bishops and the papal nuncio. This concluded, the cortege was reformed and proceeded to the church at Laeken, where the burial was made.

As the imposing military cortege left the cathedral and passed through the denser parts of the city, the crowds in-creased and impatiently surged against the cordons of soldiers who guarded the line of march. The soldiers were unable to restrain the spectators who soon be-came riotous. For a time disorder reigned.

Lines in Confusion.

The lines were broken and in the hopess confusion that followed the carriages of the members of the Parliament were intercepted and the funeral parade all but broken up. CHIEF MAGISTRATE OF NASIK, INDIA, KILLED.

BOMBAY, British India, Dec. 22 .-Arthur Mason Tippetts Jackson, chief magistrate of Nasik, in the presidency of Bombay, was assassinated by a native while attending a theatrical performance Tuesday night.

The motive for the murder is supposed to have been a wish for revenge upon the magistrate who had recently sentenced a criminal to life imprisonment. Nasik is a hotbed of sedition. Jackson had been in the British Indian service since 1888.

Whatever may have been the imme diate motive for the assassination of Chief Magistrate Jackson, the outrage cannot fail to increase the ever-present fear of an uprising against British rule in India. Attempts have been made in India against the lives of Lord Minto, Lord Kitchener, Sir Andrew Frazer, the lieutenant governor of Bengal, and many other British officials.

PROF. MUNYON'S PHILANTHROPY

Giving to the Nation a Prize That Money Cannot Buy. "I would rather preserve the health of a nation than to be its ruler."-

This motto, written by Prof. Munyon about sixteen years ago, was the real cornerstone of his medicine business. He felt that the people of the nation were neglecting their health owing to lack of money. With the one thought in view of helping humanity, he started in the medicine business, paying large sums of money to eminent specialists for known and tried formulas that were known to have been successful in curing diseases. After carefully compounding these formulas and putting them up in a marketable condition, he offered them to the public for a few pennies, easily within the reach of the poorest family. He hired eminent specialists at large salaries and offered their services absolutely free to the public to diagnose their cases and advise them what remedies to take. After giving the public all these benefits he was still unsatisfied and offered further to those who were not in reach of the offices which he established throughout the country; he advertised, asking them to write to his specialists for free medical examination, and to-day Prof. Munyon is still following out this policy, and whenever he hears of a new drug or a new formula that is more effective than those that he is at the time compounding, he purchases them regardless of cost.

Prof. Munyon puts up a separate cure for almost every ill, and these remedies can be had at all druggists, mostly. 25 cents a bottle. In taking these remedies, you are taking what might be called a sure thing, for he guarantees them to produce satisfactory results or he will refund your money. This is a remarkable man and a remarkable institution, manifestly fair to all, and a firm that we do not hesitate to recommend to our readers.

LITTLE ANNE OLIVER.

Sir Roger kept White Barns, his country place, in exquisite order. His oldworld gardens and leafy pleasaunces were things of beauty. His establishment down there was no bachelor housefather before him.

Now, however, he found himself for the first time interested in a woman-Anne Oliver, shabby, poor, unobtrusive in her shy prettiness, eking out her scanty governess' wage by playing for money in the public streets, had achieved what no well-dowered, well-born damsel in his own rank of life had been able to accomplish; for, all unknown to himself up to the present, and certainly without Intention on her part, she had innocently found the way to Sir Roger Gresham's hitherto unsusceptible heart.

Bit by bit during the quiet sunny hours they passed on board the yacht together the young man drew from the girl's innocent lips that story of her hand-to-hand struggle with poverty, be-ginning with the circumstances of her father and mother's death and ending with her present courageous efforts to their combined musical talents to account.

Roger listened, and marveled as he listened. The patient toil, the cheerfulness under adverse circumstances, the undaunted energy and resolution displayed by so young and frail a creature sort of cheap excursion or outing, either as little Anne aroused in him an admiration he had never experienced for any woman in his life before.

"There is nobody in the world like her, and she's a lady, from the crown of her head to the tip of her little shoes," he thought, glancing furtively under the peak of his yaching cap at his com-panion, sitting beside him in a red-cushioned chair on the Petrel's deck, in her faded blue serge skirt and plain white

It was a very hot day, and, with a shy little effort to follow the fashion, Miss Oliver had ventured to dispense with a collar for once and wore only a breeze ruffled the soft curls of chestnutbrown hair that rested on her forehead, and brought a delicate tint like the lining of a sea-shell into her pale smooth persuasion, that perhaps she could.

CHAPTER V. "Wake up, Nan! Wake up! It's the day! The day of the party!" shouted Gerry Oliver, scrambling from her own little bed on to her sister's, and kissing her rapturously. The sun was shining brilliantly into the little whitewashed attic under the thatched roof of Fuchsia cottage that served the two girls for a day for Sir Roger's proposed entertainment, and certainly he had spared neither trouble nor expense in his efforts to make the party a successful one.

St. Martin's, the first station out of Sandbeach, was only two miles distant from White Barns, and by 11 o'clock on hold, but consisted of a small staff of that memorable morning an open landau efficient servants, the housekeeper and verd awaiting in the station yard, awaiting, in fashionable state, the butler having been in the service of his arrival of Anne and the talented children by train.

Gerry and Phil were delighted when they found themselves for the first time in all their lives driving rapidly along the green lanes, with the trees arching overhead and the hedges on either side. To little Anne also the country sights and sounds savored of enchantment. In all her three-and-twenty years the girl had hardly known what it was to have a holiday-never a country holiday. Her father, like most toilers and workers in great towns and cities, had been imbued with the idea that five hours by the seaside was the ultimatum of enjoyment, when a few shillings could be squeezed out of the scanty hoard to afford the family such a luxury.

Thus little Anne's experience in his lifetime were only of exhausting days spent at Ramsgate or Margate, where dust, hot sun, high winds, trippers and obtain the change of air so essential for highly-perfumed shell-fish got mixed up her young brother and sister, by turning on her tired brain in inextricable confusion, culminating in a violent headache that caused her to be supremely thankful when the holiday pleasure-socalled-was over.

But since the loss of her parent she had resolutely set her face against any for herself or the children. The horrors which during the journeys it was impossible to avoid, quite outweighed any sort of enjoyment resulting from these expeditions, and a little trip on a penny steamboat or a picnic just for the three of them in some out-of-the-way spot in the Rent's park or Kensington gardens was the extent of any dissipation they indulged in when bank holidays or birthtivity. The delights of green fields, waving corn, breezy uplands and shady lanes, were to little Annie Oliver as unknown as the Coptic language or the ridhoneysuckle and traveler's joy, grassy commons, where geese waddled on the green, and fat white ducks, fit for the larders of Mrs. Bond of immortal memory, swam on glassy ponds edged with elder bushes and brown bulrushes in bloom. The corn was just being cut. and some of the fields were still piled with golden sheaves, while others where the end of this week. You'd like it, wouldn't you? Do say you would."

Something in his tone of voice made little Anne glance hurriedly at the speaker and look away again.

"Whatever is the matter?" whispered Phil as he bent over the piano for an instant to tune his fiddle. Neither he nor Gerry had ever seen Lady Chilcote or her daughter, and had therefore no key to the puzzle of Anne's sudden agitation; but anyhow the entertainment had to spreading boughs of the big trees in the go on, and he and his little sister accordingly took up their places in front of the Woman's Club of Wisconsin and an earnest worker for the erection of the Woman's Club of Wisconsin and an earnest worker for the erection of the working the costly and beautiful paintendent the costly and beautifu speaker and look away again.

Little Anne, treading lightly through the spacious, dimly-lit old rooms, beside their owner, felt herself transported back three or four generations at the sight of a great deal more of his pressing and the dark oak floors, the faded brocades and chintzes, the green spindle-legged, highly-polished furniture, the family portraits and miniatures, the cabinets and shelves of priceless old china, while Sir Roger, glancing down at the girlish figure by his side, thought to himself how well her delicate beauty and quiet grace suited his quaint old home.

He left her at last at the door of the guest-chamber, specially prepared for her use by his housekeeper. There was a bowl of late roses and carnations on a little table in one of the windows, and she ventured to steal a bloom or two flapped idly to and fro, stirred by a soft and tuck them into her waistbelt with just a tiny girlish sigh of regret when she remembered sadly that her holland

It was quite an event for the old house to be the scene of such a festivity, and the sleepy neighborhood had roused itself up at once to respond to it, and was immediately rife with gossip and conjecture as to what such an unusual move on Sir Roger Gresham's part 1-ortended. No doubt he was going to be married at last, and had taken this opportunity of introducing his future bride to the county.

There was, however, apparently no such reason for the entertainment. The host received his guests alone, and in his usual cheery, hospitable fashion. Tea was spread in the big entrance hall, the visitors trooped out through the open windows of the great drawing room on to the terrace and down to the bowlinggreen, where little Anne, with Phil and Gerry beside her, only awaited a signal from Gresham to commence the entertainment.

And then suddenly a bolt fell from the blue—the bolt poor Anne had always been dreading; and with one crashing blow destroyed all her hard-earned, innocent happiness. It came in the person of Lady Chilcote herself, bland, large and smiling, in black-and-white brocade, lace, and feathers, advancing with outstretched hand at her residence on Martin street this across the smooth velvet turf, followed by her daughter Agatha, tall, fair, and aquiline-nosed, faultlessly arrayed in clouds of filmy blue muslin and chiffon. "Dear Sir Roger, such a lucky chance!

We knew we might venture-staying at Downlands with the Gwynnes, you know -only five miles off-couldn't resist remaining on another day on purpose. What a delicious old place! Absolutely perfect! And an al fresco entertainment too! What lovely children! Altogether too charming-

Her ladyship, having run down, like a sand toy, paused for want of breath, while Roger, divided between rage at her of the companionship on such occasions unexpected and unwelcome advent and dread that Anne would think he had connived at such a situation, muttered some hurried form of greeting, and proceeded to find chairs for the new arrivals as far from the platform as possible.

Meanwhile little Anne, after one supreme moment of terror, when the gardens, the turf, and the trees seemed litrally to rock with her, proceeded to days seemed to demand some special fes- gather up her courage valiantly and face the position as boldly as possible. Per-haps indignation—a real hot blaze of wrath at what she, poor child, imagined was a cruel breach of faith on Gresham's little string of very common little pearl beads round her throat, her sailor hat lay in her lap and a little wandering die of the Sphinx.

She literally held her breath as they den occasion of bravery. She had been drove past rustic cottages bowered in too far off to hear Lady Chilcote's explanation of her unexpected appearance at the White Barns party.

"He knew it all the time and wouldn't tell me. He thought it would be fun if she found me out. He is cruel! I hate him-I hate him!" So thought little Anne passionatel to herself while rattling out a selection of airs from the comic operas on the piano with many an improvised turn and flourish.

The music went on in admirable fashion. Anne, still strung up with a combination of excitement and anger, played brilliantly, and the children, encouraged and supported by her accompaniment, surpassed themselves, and the delighted audience was warm and enthusiastic in its applause until the close of the first part of the programme. So far all had gone well. Lady Chilcote, thanks to Sir Roger's skillful maneuverong, had not as yet been near enough to her little nursery governess to recognize her, and, although a really musical and practiced ear might have noted something familiar in little Anne's brilliant touch on the pianoforte, it would even then have required a stretch of imagination of which neither her ladyship nor Miss Chilcote was capable to connect the masked, chestnut-haired girl at the instrument with their shabby little drudge.

"I believe we shall get through now. I won't move-I won't stir, then I can"t meet her," said little Anne to herself, clenching and unclenching her slender hands as she watched the guests like a cloud of gay butterflies in their manycolored dresses dispersing in knots and parties towards the house in search of refreshments."

INOWN FOR HER PHILANTHROPY.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 20, 1909 .-The death of Mrs. Edward P. Allis, widow of the founder of the great machinery works now known by the name of the Allis-Chalmers company, occurred morning at 9:30 o'clock.

She was seized with an apoplectic stroke last Wednesday afternoon, and though there have been intervals when she seemed to rally, the end has been feared from the beginning.

Mrs. Allis was 81 years of age. She had been a prominent figure in Milwau-kee society since her arrival in this city in 1848 as the bride of her late husband. A woman of culture, ability, energy and kind heart, she had borne a large part in social and charitable under-takings and was widely esteemed and

The maiden name of Mrs. Allis was Margaret Watson. She was born at Geneva, N. Y., September 28, 1828, beng the second of the twelve children of William W. Watson and Elizabeth Goundry Watson. The friendship be-tween Miss Watson and Mr. Allis began ween Miss Watson and Mr. Allis began in childhood. When he attended Union college she was a pupil at a seminary near by. When he came to Wisconsin to "spy out the land," in 1846, it was with the full intention of returning, as he did have year later and claiming her with the seminary and the seminary are seminary as a seminary as the seminary and the seminary and the seminary as the seminary and the seminary and the seminary as the seminary and two years later, and claiming her as his bride. The wedding took place at the home of the Watsons, September 12, 1848. Bringing Mrs. Allis with him, Mr. Allis came to Milwaukee without lelay. He first conducted a leather store at what is now 344 East Water street, in company with William Allen. It was in 1857 that he retired from the leather trade and in 1860 that he began the foundations of the great manufacturing establishment which long before his death had extended its business to all parts of the world.

A Life of Cultivated Activity.

The culture and love of the beautiful which Mr. and Mrs. Allis brought with them to Milwaukee were a benefit to the young city. The wife had time to devote to music and the study of pictorial art, of which she was always a connoisseur.

earnest worker for the erection of the Athenaeum, the first woman's club house in the United States. She helped to establish the Wisconsin Industrial School for Girls and, the Wisconsin Training School for Nurses, and was one of the organizers of the Unitarian church in this city, and one of its earnest supporters. On the 1st of April, the anniversary of her husband's death, she gave to the Milwaukee University Settlement, in his memory, the settlement house and grounds, on First avenue. On her eightieth birthday she gave the settlement twenty acres of ground for their summer camp on Lake Beulah. It was on this land that the club house which is the summer home of people identified with the settlement was built by her son, Charles Allis.

Ten Surviving Children.

Mr. and Mrs. Allis had twelve children, of whom ten survive—William W. Allis, Edward P. Allis, Jr., of Mentone, France; Charles Allis; Jere Allis; Mrs. Eustace Conway, New York; Mrs. John H. Keeling, London; Frank W. Allis, Madison; Louis Allis; Mrs. R. H. Norris Gilbert Allis, Paris, France. The children who died were Ernest and Margy. Ernest was married to Miss Winston of Louisville and is survived by his widow and a daughter. Eustace Conway, who married Miss Maud Allis, is a son of the late Moncure D. Conway, well known in Europe and America as a Unitarian preacher and a voluminous and entertaining writer.

William, Charles and Louis Allis carried on their father's business after his death, Mrs. Aliis rendering valuable aid, and for a time spending a portion of each day at the works. M. ward P. Allis, Jr., is known in scientific circles throughout the world for his original researches in the field of vertebrate morphology. Asked to give a name to the flourishing manufacturing suburb west of the city in which the plant of the Allis-Chalmers company was established, Mrs. Allis suggested that it he called Work Allis and gested that it be called West Allis, and the suggestion was adopted.

Mrs. Allis was in her usual health until the sudden stroke from which she failed to rally.

Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been perfected.

GUARDS MUST LIGHT THE CONVICTS' PIPES.

Leavenworth Attendants Not Pleased with Order, Claiming It Makes Them Body Servants.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Dec. 20.-An order requiring the guards in the has just been issued by Warden Mc-Claughey. To say the least, the guards are not pleased with the order, as they claim it makes them the body servants of the convicts. A few days ago some of the prisoners almost set one of the prison barns afire by careless handling of matches and the new rule was issued in consequence.

Foreign White Slave Hunters.

The white slave traffic disclosure made in connection with New York city's municipal campaign are about to assume in-ternational proportions. They involve charges that members of the French and Italian immigration services have con-nived for years with the leaders of Lon-don and New York's slave traffic, send-ing to these shores French and Italian women. This information will be pre-sented to the Italian and French em-bassies by citizens of those countries. It is assumed that their governments will take immediate action. It is believed that the department of commerce and labor will be made party to these charges of collusions. Statistics showing the thousands of deportations of women who have arrived at New York in the last five years, as well as some of their depositions secretly obtained by inspectors of the American, Italian and French immigration. gration services, will be produced.

BALLINGER-PINCHOT TROUBLE TO BE SETTLED BY CONGRESS.

Senator Jones and Representative Humphreys Confer with Taft, Who Consents to Investigation.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 22. -Senator Jones, who Tuesday read in the Senate Secretary of the Interior Ballinger's letter asking for a committee to investigate the so-called Ballinger-Pinconsent. Representative Humphrey of Washington was also present.

Both Senator Jones and Mr. Humphreys said they agreed with Secretary Ballinger that the best results would be obtained through an investigation by a joint committee of the two houses of Congress. Senator Jones said he thought that inquiry by a joint committee would inspire greater public confidence than if conducted by the Senate alone. The ver-dict also he thought would carry great-

As a result of the conference, it was said that on January 4 Senator Jones would introduce in the Senate resolutions which Representative Humphrey would present in the House calling for a joint investigation of the widest possible scope. The forestry service will be included in the resolution along with the interior department and the land office. Secretary Ballinger and his friends insist that the whole question shall be gone into at once, and setled to the satisfaction of the public.

Gov. Eberhart of Minnesota Believes Conference Is Paving Way Toward Settlement.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 22 .- Gov. A. O. Eberhart made one of the most interesting statements today with regard to the strike situation that has been made since President Frank T. Hawley of the switchmen's union issued the strike order.

"I am very well pleased over the result of the conference held Tuesday be-tween the railroads and the representatives of the American Federation of Labor, railway department council. I felt that if I could get the men and the roads together," continued the governor, "conditions would shape themselves to-ward a betterment of the situation. I did not attend the conference in person, but was represented by my secretary, Ralph W. Wheelock, and from him I understood that everything is clearing smoothly toward a settlement. Both sides are showing a disposition to be fair in considering the propositions that arise and I feel very well satisfied with the present outlook."

At switchmen's headquarters in the Foley hotel, President H. B. Perham of the American Federation of Labor, railway deportment, council, made a pother way department council, made another cheerful announcement when he said that the council had decided to take a holiday and that no further action will be taken until the conference is called again to-morrow forenoon with Messrs. PLAN BETTER SCHOOLS.

FOND DU LAC., Wis., Dec. 18 .-[Special.]-About 300 persons were in attendance at the meeting of the officers of the school districts of Fond du Lac county held today at the courthouse. Supt. Ruby M. Acker urged that teachers be paid better salaries and that more attention be given to the sanitary conditions in many schools. She announced that the annual summer institute would be abandoned and that weekly meetings would be held by the teachers during the next few months in an effort to improve the school work. State Inspector of Rural Schools Larson spoke on the relation of the home to the school and urged the school officers to take a more active interest in the schools in their respective districts.

FLORENCE WESCOTT DIES.

Death, that mighty warrior, before whom all must fall sooner or later, entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Wescott of Farmington last Sunday evening, Dec. 19th and took from them their youngest child, Florence. The latter had been ill only a week and consequently the news of her death was a severe shock to her many friends and acquaintances. Until taken sick she had been working in a wholewaukee. Just seven days previous to her death she was taken ill with peritonitis and was brought home. Although the best medical aid was summoned she sank rapidly until claimed by death. Deceased was born in Farmington on March 1885. She spent her girlhood days in her country home and later went to West Bend where she attended the visited with Mr. and Mrs. Adam high school. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the house, Rev. E. G. Saunderson Orchard Grove cemetery.

On account of the briefness of her illness only the intimate friends of the family knew of the serious illness of the deceased, so her death came as a great shock to the whole community. All who knew her loved her for her gentle, winning ways and sweet, lovely character. WILLIS M. MOORE TO INVESTIGATE

COPENHAGEN Dec. 21.-The Unirersity of Copenhagen, the first institution of learning to recognize Dr Frederlek A. Cook as the discoverer of the the explorer had failed to establish the claim upon which his high honors had not been within several miles of the been based.

The committee appointed by the university to examine Cook's records recently presented its report to the consistory of the university, which reviewed the deductions of the experts with the greatest care, and discussed the findings from every standpoint. That both the committee and the consistory were disppointed was soon known.

The consistory met today, and adopted written report to the effect that the alleged records submitted for examination by Dr. Cook failed to prove his claim that he had reached the north pole.

The report of the committee, of which Prof. Stromgren was chairman, declares that Cook's papers as presented to the consistory are without any value; that cordingly the committee concludes that he affords no proof of having reached

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—News that the University of Copenhagen had declined to accept Dr. Cook's claim that he had reached the north pole came as no surprise to scientific circles here and to many of his friends, who had been prepared for the result by the early indications that Dr. Cook's claims would not be favorably passed upon.

Attempt to Outwit Federal Officials Is Alleged-Testimony in Bankruptcy Hearing Causes Action.

CONVICT FACES NEW ACCUSATION.

MADISON, Wis., Dec. 21.-[Special.] -Phil Allen's wife, her sister and their brother-in-law are under arrest here, charged with conspiring to conceal property of the face value of $547,000 belonging to the bank wrecker, turned over to them since he was declared an involuntary bankrupt. The prisoners in this latest phase of the Mineral Point melange are Mrs. Edith L. Allen, Miss Addie Jackson, bookkeeper for the Redford Sash and Door company of Chicago, and Guy Roe, president of the Union Fiber company of Winona, Minn.

The arrests were made Monday night following the testimony given earlies in following the testimony given earlier in the day by Miss Jackson, who admitted that Allen had handed her stock and other valuable papers since he became a bankrupt and while he was supposedly dying at home. Her testimony indicated Lonsdale from Cook's note books. This occupies sixteen pages of foolscap and inauthorities. Acting on this information United States District Attorney Gordon swore out warrants.

Held for Hearing.

Arraigned before Court Commissioner Blake, the trio were bound over for a preliminary hearing January 4. They were unable to furnish bail in the sum his report to the university is practically the same as that published in the New York Herald upon his return from his Arctic expedition. The copies of his note books submitted, the committee says contain no original calculation of observations but only results thereof. Accordingly the committee concludes that ure and would be delivered to the university in the course of a few days.

In presenting the data, Lonsdale stated explicitly and repeatedly that copy numbered 2 was a complete and accurate duplication of the information provided by the consists of 188 shares of the stock of the Union Fiber company of the value of $18,800; 45,000 shares of the numbered 2 was a complete and accurate duplication of the information contained in all of Cook's notebooks that could be of any importance to the university for the purpose of this examination. In spite of the explorer's promise and his secretary's assurance that they would be forthcoming, the commission is not yet in the possession of the original notebooks and diaries.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—Five persons were burned to death today in a fire that destroyed a frame dwelling house in Sherwood Park, Yonkers. All the dead were members of the family of Theodore Fredericks, who lost his life in the fire, together with his wife and their three children.

And Then—

The pedestrian paused on the street to light his eigar.

"Do you know," came from a doorway, "when I saw you standing here in the moonlight last night, it was all I could do to keep from kissing you?"

There was an instant's pause, then a coy, girlish whisper, "Did you never hear that 'the thought of today is the action of tomorrow?"—Judge.

NEGAUNEE, Mich., Dec. 21.—[Special.]—Cobdello Franciscan, one of four miners entombed in the Negaunee mine last Tuesday, was rescued alive Monday

It is supposed the trapped Finns had more food with them when the cave in occurred than did Franciscan and Mun-di, both of whom are Italians.

The men were caught just as they were about to be relieved Tuesday morning. Franciscan estimates that his food and water gave out about 144 hours be fore he was rescued.

Immediately after the cave-in rescue parties were rushed into the mine and found the men had been caught 300 feet below the surface. The rescuers worked day and night, in shifts. Answer Their Raps.

The men who brought Franciscan and Mundi's body to the surface reported that the two Finns answered signals with faint rappings and appeared to be only a few hours' digging away from rescue. Franciscan, when rescued, said that he was certain all the time that he would get out alive. He was not allowed to talk but a few words and then was hurried to the hospital. He said:

"I was sure from the first that the men would get us out. Mundi died two days ago, as near as I can figure. He couldn't stand it. We had nothing to eat for a week. We had plenty of water. I heard the men working, it seems like several days, and this helped me keep up. I don't know where the two Finns They were near us.'

DIRECTOR OF PHYSICAL TRAINING TO LEAVE U. OF W.

Accepts Position as Sales Agent for Montana Land Development Company-Begins January 1.

MADISON, Wis., Dec. 22.-[Special.] -Dr. C. P. Hutchins, director of physical training at the University of Wisconsin, has tendered his resignation to take effect January 1, 1910, to accept the position of sales agent for a development company in the Bitter Root valley in Montana.

Dr. Hutchins came to the university from Syracuse, where he had been connected with athletics for some years. In 1906 and 1907 he coached the university football team and since then has had charge of the track team. He has been chairman of the faculty athletic has been chairman of the faculty athletic conference committee and is Wisconsin's representative at the Western Inter-collegiate conference.

"My only reason for making a change at this time on such short notice, is the offer of an unusually favorable position which I have accepted," said Dr. Hutchins Tuesday night before leaving for Chicago to attend a meeting of athletic annual conference it was announced that none of the questions which have been raised concerning changes in the conference membership would be taken up, but that instead the conference would busy itself solely with the work arranging the baseball and track schedules.

The suit to set aside the will of Abraham Stephens of Weston, Ill., came to an unexpected ending in the circuit court at Bloomington, when the principals announced that they had agreed upon a compromise. By the terms of the com-promise the complainants who were practically ignored in the will are to receive $82,500 of the $300,000 left by the testator. It developed that Stephens wrote no less than three wills, all practically the same, and if the first to be probated was broken the next could be submitted, and if that, too, was declared invalid, there remained the third, thus assuring endless litigation at enormous expense. Rather than see the fortune divided among lawyers, the heirs decided to compromise. Mrs. Chapman, the nurse, loses heavily by the compromise, and she will receive but $42,000 instead of the $84,000 specified in the will. Abraham Squires of St. Joseph, Mo., and Fred Squires of Savannah, Mo., will receive twice their original, legacy, or respectively $6000 and $20,000 each.

SILHOUETTES OF WESTERN CANADA.

The man from lowa began to talk land before the train was well out of the C. N. R. depot in Winnipeg. The talk began in rather wide circles. The rush to the land, the bumper crop, the system of summer fallowing pursued in the semi-arid districts, were all discussed, and then, with a sort of apologetic smile, the lowa man said: "I'm a bit interested in this country myself. Some of the men down home got a few sections up here along this line, and I'm going to have a look at them. Never been up in Canada before" (it is curious how these mid-Western Americans pronounce the name of the Dominion as if it was "Can'dy"), "but if it looks good we will be up to stay next fall."

"You, see, it's like this," said the man from Iowa, quite manifestly continuing an argument that had been going on in his mind for some time. "Back in our State land has become dear. Anybody wanting to sell can get $70 or $80 an acre for it, and every farm that's offered is snapped up. In Saskatchewan we have just as good land that cost us $11 and $12, so that a man can take up five or six times as much there as in Iowa on the same investment of money.

"It isn't the money, though, that brings most of us up from Iowa. I'm not sure that money would be enough. The 'invasion' is a family affair. We have no chance of keeping our sons around us back home. They have to leave the farm and go into the big cities of the neighboring States to get work. To keep them on the farm and in touch with us, we come up here and make little colonies with the children around us, on homesteads or bought land. This makes it easier for Mackenzie river. the farmers back there in Iowa to get land for the stay-at-homes. The families that come to Canada are kept together and the families that buy the farms they leave are kept together, too. There won't be any slackening of the rush, either, for they still raise big families back in Iowa."

One could almost see the mental process of this typical American farmer in defending a step that meant a new flag, a new allegiance, a new land, and new associates. To abandon "Old Glory" and the Declaration of Independence for a good thing in cheap land would hardly be playing the game, but to go out into Saskatchewan to "keep the family together" was another and a quite higher motive.

Why seek too closely to analyze the reasons for the greatest land trek in Some Things That Can Be Done with a the history of America? It is enough to know what the sons of the frontiersmen of Iowa, and Kansas, and Minnesota-the best blood of the mid-West in an ever-increasing stream, and are learning that "God Save the King" and "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," are sung to the same tune.-Toronto (Ontario) Globe.

BRAVE BOY.

"Please don't tell mamma. She's sick and it would make her worse," said 12year-old Benjamin Levinson as he was carried into Bellevue hospital, New York, suffering with a broken thigh. On his left foot was a roller skate, the right skate having been wrenched off when the skate having been wrenched off when the boy was struck by an automobile owned by Dr. C. S. Cole at Fifth avenue and Thirty-fifth street. The car, a big touring machine, was coming down the avenue when Young Levinson, who was skating in the street, turned sharply in front of it, according to the story of the chauffeur. Before the brakes could ston chauffeur. Before the brakes could stop the car it had struck the boy, knocking him down. A policeman of traffic squad placed the chauffeur under arrest and ordered the car with the boy driven to Bellevue hospital. On the way to the hospital young Levinson repeatedly asked them not to worry his mother with news of his accident. He reiterated the request, despite his pain, when carried into the building.

Negroes for Northern Offices. President Taft's new plan for recognition of negro Republicans contemplates the appointment of colored men to offices in the northern states where there are large negro populations. It is understood that he will appoint white men to fill the offices in the south now held by negroes as soon as the terms of the incumbents expire. The appoint-ment of northern negroes to offices in their own section is the President's idea of the proper compensation to the race for the loss of offices south.

Jack London, the author, was also friend of McQuesten, and one of that au-thor's novels is said to have Jack Me-Questen as its hero. The story is woven around a prospector who married an In-dian of the north, deserted her, but re-joined her again. McQuesten married a Yukon Indian woman, but never desert-ed her, and she survives him.

From the days of his youth the well known miner has been in the van which has for its motto, "Go west." McQuesten was born in Portland, Me., and at 14 years went with his father to the wilds of Oregon. This was in 1850, and five years later he was fighting Indians in the "Oregon war," and had many a skirmish with the Walla Wallas, who were on the warpath with the general uprising of the northern tribes.

The government's best soldiers were employed in quelling the break, and Mc-Questen joined the volunteers in the company of which Capt. Ben Hayden of Salem was the commander. After long fighting McQuesten went into the quarermaster's service in the Sound country. In March of 1858 he was among the prospectors who joined the rush to the Fraser river gold fields, but gold was scarce and he had but little luck. He liked the country, however, and there he made his home, trapping and trading wath the Indians in the neighborhood of the

In 1878 he went prospecting down the Mackenzie, crossed the Rocky mountains by the Pelly and worked over to the Porcupine river and to the outposts of the Alaska Commercial company on the Yukon river. Lead Poisoning

Lead poisoning in cattle usually takes place during the remodeling of buildings, painting of water tanks, fences, etc., or even while painting houses, painters thoughtlessly scrape out the old paint pots and dump it out into the barnyard where cattle have access to, the result being that within a short time one or more animals are noticed to have a loss of appetite, shortage of milk, a depressed look, and later excited condition.

If permitted to run loose they are apt to go around in a circle, moan, press the head against fences or walls, indicating that the brain is effected, grate their tee-

While the treatment for lead poisoning is very unsatisfactory, it would be advisable to keep lead and paints out of the reach of cattle, rather than to permit them to come in contact with it and expect to save cattle thus afflicted.

Cure for Cold in Head

A Paris physician, P. L. Romme, has recently announced a new cure for a cold in the head. Inreality Dr. Romme's cure is said to have been discovered 150 years ago by an English doctor named Williams, well known at the close of the eighteenth century.

The remedy is simplicity itself. All one has to do is to abstain from all liquids during a period of 24 to 48 hours, starting from the moment when the sufferer feels the first irritating symptoms of a cold in the head.

Bread, fish, vegetables, white meat and pudding may be eaten, Mrs. A. Krueger and son John but beverages should be taken in very small quantities, a spoonful of tea, coffee or milk in the morn-Born to Mr. and Mrs. Herman ing and a small glass of water go-Butzke last week Wednesday a ing to bed, or if possible not taken at all.

It is not necessary to remain at home. The dry cure, in fact, is more rapid and complete if the sufferer breathes in the open air. Dr. Steinberg, a Viennese authority, has modernized it by forbidding soup and even the small quantity of tea or milk of Dr. Williams' system. But he allows a small glass of wine and water during the day. -Leslie's Weekly.

There are a class of merchants in this county, that begrudge a newspaper a decent living. They will attended the school board meet- fairy sweat when you tell them the inch. At this rate, a paper, after paying printers and incidental expenses, can hardly live. It is alright for a merchant to make his 35 or 50 per cent, but a newspaper, they draw the line there; any old thing is good enough for them. Many newspapers are to blame for this state of affairs. They have no fixed rate. You can buy their space at old scrap iron prices. It is such newspapers that hurt the profession. They are dead easy for the skin flint merchant. They manage to eke out a miserable existence, and are not even respected by the merchants who hold their business method in contempt.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT.

The manager of Sears, Roebuck & Co. announces that the gross sales of that concern for this year will reach fifty-three million dollars and he estimates the profits at fourteen per cent. The stock of this company is said to be greatly watered and the chances are that the real profits will be much greater than the manager predicts. At the manager's own estimate, however, Sears, Roebuck & Co. will make $7,420,000 this year. And still some people insist that they can buy merchandise much cheaper of this concern than from their local merchants. There is a lot of food for thought in the statement of this manager.-Central City Non-
