in Seattle Tragedy

Miss Alvina Bunkleman Shoots a Wealthy Merchant and Then Commits Suicide.

Relatives from Fond du Lac can offer no explanation of reports from Seattle that Miss Alvina Bunkleman, a former resident of Fond du Lac, shot and killed Chas. O. Tucker, a wealthy merchant, and then committed suicide. The bodies were found at the McLean hotel. The motive for the tragedy can only be conjectured. It is thought that Miss Bunkleman may have become infatuated with the man, and that there had been quarrel. When the bodies were found Miss Bunkleman was in her street attire.

Miss Bunkleman resided in Fon du Lac a few years ago, making her home with her brother, Herman Bunkleman. She is survived by two brothers, Herman of Fond du Lac, William of Stevens Point and two sisters, Mrs. Arthur Flint and Mrs. William Buddenhagen of Neillsville, Wis., besides her aged

RURAL PATRONS MUST WRAP COINS

Post Office Authorities Announce That Rural Mail Carriers Need Not Take Loose Coins.

Postmaster A. G. Koch has been informed by the fourth assistant postmaster general that rural carriers will no longer be required to collect loose coins in boxes after Feb. 15. Carriers will only be required to collect coins when they are placed in a paper receptacle.

The reasons as set forth by the postal authorities establishing the new rule are that delay in delivering and collecting mail has been caused by the growth of the practice of putting loose coins in boxes. The practice of putting loose coins in boxes has become to be a nuisance in a number of ways.

The postal department recommends that the patrons of the route enclose loose coins in an envelope, wrap them securely in a piece of paper or deposit them in a coin-holding receptacle, so that they can be quickly an I easily taken from the boxes. Carriers will be required to receive coins when properly wrapped.

CONGRESS IN SESSION.

Senate.

The Senate spent the day on the 26th. in consideration of the Alaskan legislative council bill and the Sunday closing law for the District of Columbia.

The postal savings bank bill was received by the Senate on the 27th, referred to committee. A bill for the disposition of Indian lands in South Dakota by lot was passed, but not until Senators Gore and Burkett had bitterly assailed the system.

The Senate spent more than two hours on the 28th in a fruitless academic dis-cussion of the tariff, Mr. Lodge contend-ing that the rates of duty have no effect on the price of living and Senator Bacon taking the contrary view. Mr. Gallinger and Mr. Bailey indicated that they would oppose the postal savings bank bill. The Gore resolution for an inquiry into the cost of transportation of second class mail matter was referred to the compilities of postal field. ferred to the committee on postoffices and post roads.

The Senate was not in session on the 29th. Senator Carter spoke at length on the 31st on the postal savings bank bill and answered some objections by Mr. Hey-

The entire time of the Senate on the 1st was devoted to a discussion of the postal savings bank bill. Senator Davis declared that the bill as it stood was in the interest of the national banks, while Senator Smith of Michigan thought the measure might prove a plague instead of a blessing. W. E. Purcell was sworn in as successor of Senator Thompson of North Dakota, who was appointed last Saturday to succeed the late Senator Johnson. Mr. Thompson resigned on account of illness.

House. The House passed the Mann "white slave" bill by a viva voce without material amendment from the form in which it was reported from the committee on interstate and foreign com-merce on the 26th. During a debate of two hours opposition was made on con-stitutional arguments against the bill's provisions requiring keepers of brothels to report to the commissioner general of immigration persons within their houses who had come to the United States with-in three years, which, it was claimed, infringed upon state's rights.

Animated debate and political speeches were the order of the day in the House on the 27th, tht subject being the agricultural appropriation bitl. Mr. Boutell upheld the Payne tariff law and the upneld the Payne tariff law, and the House adjourned at 5:12.

Mr. Douglas suggested creation of a committee on budget so that war ex-penses could be kept down in the interests of agricultural appropriations on the 28th. General debate on the agri-cultural bill was concluded.

An effort on the part of southern members to have increased from $215.-

The operation is a simple one, consisting of merely putting a drop of liquid into the eyes. The drug does not cost more than five cents. The blind children in the Ohio state school represent a waste of $25,160. There are seventyfour cases which were preventable, an the per capita cost to the state is $340 a year. If these children had their sight it would cost only $30 annually to edu-rate each one. This represents a net loss of $310 a year."

The Grip in New York.

Grip is again epidemic in the city, and is bringing in its train an increased death rate. It finds, as usual, least resistance in systems previously attacked by it, or otherwise enfeebled by chronic troubles of the heart, respiratory organs or kidneys. Every district in the city yields its quota of victims. Mortality per 1000 for the week ending on Christmas was 17.85, against 15.07 for the corresponding period one year ago; for the week ending Year's it was 17.29, against 15.36. The disease has not been pre-viously so prevalent at this time of the year since 1901, when the record for the weeks in which the two holidays occur reached 20.73 and 23.69, and for the week ending January 19 of that year mounted to 24.33 .- New York World.

DISCOVERER OF NORTH END OF EARTH'S AXIS MAKES OFFER TO GEOGRAPHIC SOCIETY.

TO MAKE START NEXT FALL.

Commander Has Announced That He Will Not Accompany Expedition, but Will Give Advice.

PROPOSITION WILL BE ACCEPTED.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 2 .-Commander Robert E. Peary, discoverer of the north pole, has made a proposition to the National Geographic society, which, if accepted, will mean that an American expedition will be on the way to discover the unconquered south pole next fall. On behalf of the Peary Arctic club of New York, Commander Peary suggested that the club and the Geographic society fit up a joint expedition to reach the south pole. The Peary Arctic club, he said, in making the offer at a dinner giv-en by Dr. Alexander Graham Bell to the board of directors of the National Geo-graphic society, would contribute the steamship Roosevelt, which could not be duplicated for $150,000, provided the National Geographic society would assume the responsibility for the first $50,000 toward the cost of the expedition.

To Divide Expense. According to the plan suggested, all expenses above that sum are to be divided equally between the two organizations. Commander Peary estimated that the total cost would be $75,000 to $100,000. The proposed expedition would start next fall and would reach exect land above. fall, and would reach coast land about March, 1911. This point is directly op-posite the base of the British South Polar expedition. The two camps would be about 2000 miles apart, and approximately the same distance from the pole. It is estimated that the explorers would the helpless in the outskirts of the city. reach the south pole about December 31, 1911.

MANY STARVING IN PARIS OUTSKIRTS

GREATEST DISTRESS PREVAILS AFTER RECENT FLOOD.

FREEZING TEMPERATURE ADDS TO MISERY OF POOR.

PARIS, Feb. 1 .- The River Seine feil steadily today, the recession being at the rate of three-fourths of an inch an hour. The waters are also retreating from the streets. More tramways were in operation, as were the new sections of the subway. Streets that had been closed to traffic were in many instances reopened, and in the heart of the city things resumed a more normal appearance. In the out-skirts and in the inundated regions above and below the city, the greatest distress still prevailed, despite the magnificent efforts toward relief and the prodigal distribution of food supplies. Hundreds of persons are found on the verge of starvation, and thousands who everything must be aided for months.

It is estimated that more than a quarter of a million persons have been affected by the floods. Freezing temper-ature adds to the misery of the unfortunate. An attempt to resume the railroad service before the electric signal system had been restored has resulted in a dozen train collisions.

The Seine at noon had dropped a little more than three feet from its crest. Many seminaries left vacant since the properties passed to the state have been equipped as hospitals and temporary homes for refugees, in some cases beds being set up in the cellars of the churches. NEW YORK, Feb. 2.-The banking house of Fisk & Robinson, prominent among the houses dealing in government, state, and city bonds and other investment securities, failed Tuesday. The firm's representative said the liabilities were approximately $7,000,000, of which more than $1,000,000 is unsecured. The liabilities thus are greater than those of any other private banking house which has suspended since the panic of 1907. The concern has branches in Chicago, Boston, and Worcester, Mass. SAY THE HENS DO THINK

Facts in Experiments to Test Their Power of Memory.

If the average man were asked if hens had any memory he would probably say, "No," says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, but he would be wrong, according to the experiments of two German scientists. The plan they adopted was to gum twenty grains of rice on a piece of cardboard, and between them to place ten grains of loose corn. At first the hens, of course, pecked at both rice and corn, but soon they learned to leave the rice alone, thus very clearly showing, ac-cording to the scientists, that they remembered the rice was stuck down.

A very remarkable point about the experiment was that the longer the time between the trials the better was the hen's memory. When the experiments were made consecutively it took them six times to learn that the rice was not worth touching, but when the experiments were made at intervals of an hour they learned the lesson at the third try, thus showing, it is claimed, not only that they had memories, but that they thought the matter over in the intervals.

A FOOLISH FROLIC.

By the Author of "The Wild Geese," "A Democratic Duchess," Etc.

But it was too late. Aubrey Montresor was already in the room. Agnes greeted him with a warmth proportionate to what she supposed he had come to tell her, and introduced him to Miss Anselm in a perfunctory manner.

Montresor looked at the miniature painter with an air in which admiration, interest and perplexity were subtly blended. The girl, however, acknowledged the introduction as perfunctorily as it was made, and seemed entirely absorbed in the business of packing up her painting materials.

"Sit down and tell me all about it," began Agnes eagerly. "You have found out something?

"No, indeed!" he answered dejectedly, with his glances roving still in Miss Anselm's direction. "I have found out nothing.

Miss Anselm turned slightly and looked at him with a pretty smile. "I should not think," she observed, with a sort of half-shy, half-malicious demureness, "that you are a very good person to find anything out that somebody wants to conceal.

"I am not so sure of that," he retort-"I mean, at any rate, to find out who played this photographic trick on Miss Matthieson."

"And then you mean to find Miss Denzilia Lavenham herself?"

"I mean to try," replied Montresor. Montresor then proceeded to explain how the trick on Agnes' photograph could have been done. The two girls listened with interest, and Miss Anslem drew near and looked over Agnes' shoulder at his book of illustrations.

"I wonder," she said, "what sort of girl this Denzilia really is. Do you think it possible that she can be, as her uncle thinks, hiding herself for reasons of her own?" "No!" returned Montresor sturdily.

"I don't believe it for a moment." "Why?" asked Miss Anselm, looking at him very intently. "Because I should not like to think the woman to whom belongs the face I saw at Marlingham could be capable of any sort of deception." At this moment the footman came into the room.

"Mr. Langrishe is downstairs," he began hesitatingly, "and is very anxious to see you, miss. "Oh, show him up here!" exclaimed

Agnes impulsively. Then she checked herself and looked at Miss Anselm. "That is if-" "I am going," Miss Anselm said he had passed in to go out.

She, however, looked at him with some curiosity, and made her exit from the room so carelessly that she caught her little open straw bag on the door handle and upset its contents. Montresor instantly sprang forward to help her to pick them up. She was, however, herself on her knees gathering them together. "Please don't mind," she murmured.

"I can do it myself." Langrishe glanced somewhat impatiently at the girl he did not know, and whose face he could not see. "I want to see you and Montresor alone," he said to Agnes. "We have got a clue."

CHAPTER V.

Langrishe had spoken in what he doubtless meant for a whisper, but the one in the room. Miss Anselm looked up, and her eyes

"Make haste and let me go. I can assure you I don't want to hear any more about her." With sudden haste she snatched up her brushes and paints and thrust them into her bag, and was on her feet and out of the room before Montresor had time to collect any wits. He closed the door after her and turned towards Langrishe with an unaccountable feeling that he was no longer so deeply interested in Denzilia

"Well," he said a little impatiently, 'what is the clue?"

"The police have found the person who put Miss Lavenham's dress and jacket so much in value that this is more than on the river bank at Marlingham." Montresor's interest began to revive a Montresor said. "Did the man not suspect anything wrong?" "The bribe was large enough to make him unwilling to suspect what would

"I wonder, Miss Matthieson, if you would give me Mr. Montressor's address, or if you would give him a note from me?

Agnes could not conceal a faint expression of surprise. She answered a little coldly "I can do either if you wish it."

Miss Anselm seemed unconscious of the surprise or the coldness. "There is some bother about my exceedingly small patrimony," she explained simply. "And I thought that

Thus it happened that that same evening Montresor received a note in a delicate old-fashioned handwriting that he did not know-

"Dear Mr. Montresor: I hope you will excuse the liberty I am taking in writing to you; but I am in difficulties about my money, and I am afraid I must consult a lawyer. I do not know who to consult, as I cannot afford to go to a grand, expensive one, and I am told that it is not safe to go to a cheap one. I thought perhaps you, though in another branch of the profession, might know of some clever lawyer who has still his disinterested friend. Mr. Montresor is name to make. Would it be too much trouble to you to give the name and address of such a man? tea and invited him to bring a chair near the table, "I will tell you, if I may, what my difficulty is." Montresor expressed his readiness to hear anything she had to say. "You see," she said, "it is like this.

My money, £70 a year, comes from an estate which belongs partly to me and partly to a cousin whom I do not know. He wants to get the whole estate into his own hands and pay me off with a lump sum down of £3000. He wrote ington Star. to me that the property is depreciating a fair equivalent. But I happen to know for a fact that coal has been from home and procured the clergyman found on the property, and that surely of a neighboring parish to officiate on found on the property, and that surely means, does it not, an increase rather than a decrease in value?"

"It may or it may not," returned Montresor. "But who manages your affairs? Who pays you your money?" "His lawyer," replied Miss Anselm

"Please do, if you can find time in the stervals of looking for Miss Denzilia SUPREME COURT intervals of looking for Miss Denzilia Lavenham," she answered demurely. He came again three days later to inquire what her cousin had said. She greeted him with frank pleasure, and told him that she had made up her mind to hold on to her share in the property, and that her cousin had resigned himself to her determination, and that therefore she would not need the assistance of a lawyer at present.

Montresor was a little disappointed at this. He had cherished a hope that the necessity for watching her affairs, and seeing that the lawyer did not overcharge her, would have been an excuse for frequent visits to her tiny tworoomed flat. However, she was so delightfully frank and yet so dignified in her manner to him that he began to perceive that she looked upon a friendship with him as a matter of course. He came again and again. By-and-by he found himself beginning to wonder if their friendship might not merge some

He had ceased to care whether Denzilia were ever heard of again or not, when a somewhat startling incident revived his waning interest in the New York heiress. He had never told Agnes Matthieson that he had cultivated so assiduously the acquaintance of her miniature painter. He left it to Miss Anselm to inform her pupil of that fact if she chose. From one or two remarks Agnes let fall it was evident that Miss Anselm made no se- alty provided by section 1954, which is cret of the circumstance that he was civil, or that provided by 1905, which is one of her visitors, but whether she let criminal. Mr. Caterhouse has hopes of discovering the present whereabouts of his niece, but he needs the help of a trustworthy and earnestly requested to communicate the contents of this note to no one, not even to Mr. Langrishe."

CONSTITUTIONALITY NOT FIXED.

MADISON, Wis., Feb. 1.-[Special.] -In the Columbia National Life Insurance company case the supreme court holds in effect that a company which has withdrawn from the state but leaves outstanding policies in force is still doing business in this state. The court then holds there is doubt as to whether the Legislature intended to enforce the penthat the state may now start prosecu-

Service Hard to Obtain.

In this connection it is noted that the tate does not prosecute according to the riminal section because of the diffiulty of obtaining service. In the decision, which Justice Barnes vrote, it discusses the question at some ength and then concludes that the crim-nal penalty under all circumstances is he milder of the two in view of the fact that the civil penalty is cumulative and therefore suggests that the criminal action is the proper method of enforcing the provisions of section 1953n, which in effect requires insurance companies doing business in this state filing annual eports and paying the fee required by

Constitutionality Not Settled. The whole effect of the decision is to eave the matter of the constitutionality of the so-called drastic insurance law "up in the air," as the court distinctly says at the close of the opinion that it has not been found necessary to consider the constitutionality of the statute. Twenty other companies are affected by the decision.

It is apparent that the section provid-ng for the filing of annual reports by all companies doing business in the state is defective, in that it contains in it-self no express penalty for violation and the court seems to have declined to stretch another section to a point where it will cover violations of the section requiring annual reports.

STATE WINS BANKING CASE.

Supreme Court Decides Waupaca Action in Favor of Berge.

MADISON, Wis., Feb. 1.—[Special.]
—State Banking Commissioner M. C.
Bergh and District Attorney Severson of Waupaca county won a victory in the state supreme court when the case of W.

H. Wood et al. plaintiffs and area of W. H. Weed et al. plaintiffs and appellants, against them was decided in their favor, the decision of the lower court being affirmed. The case before the supreme court was an appeal under a temporary injunction restraining the commission of banking from prosecuting the appellants for violating the law which requires that only corporations shall do a banking business. The appellants maintain a copartnership. In their appeal they hold that the law of 1909, under which the commissioner sought to prosecute criminally, contained a defect in that it was signed by the governor and officially published after a transportation of its pro-visions not intended by the Legislature had been effected; also that the law abridges the constitutional rights of persons with respect to "life, liberty and pursuit of happiness.'

ONE HUNDRED AND FORTY-NINE ENTOMBED BY EXPLOSION AT PRIMERO, COLO.

BODIES ARE FOUND IN HEAPS.

Nearly 100 Are Known to Be Dead and Little Hope Is Held Out for the Others.

RESCUERS HURRIED TO SCENE.

PRIMERO, Col., Feb. 1. - Fighting MILWAUKEE STOCKYARDS REPORT. madly to escape through a narrow, partly choked airshaft, trampling over fallen comrades, in a struggle for life, more than half of the 149 miners employed in the Primero mine of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company, wrecked by an explosion Monday afternoon, were overcome by gas and fire. The dead bodies were found in heaps about the bottom of the airshaft, where the men had fallen in the desperate struggle.

One hundred and forty-nine men are known to have been in the mine when the explosion occurred. It is stated that seventy-nine are dead. One has been rescued alive but dangerously injured. The bodies are so torn and charred, it has been impossible to identify the dead. This morning thirty-one bodies had been brought to the surface and rescue

As the day wore on, hope gave way and the full import of the disaster broke upon the survivors although from every quarter aid was being rushed to the scene. Rescuers worked all night and at daylight a fresh supply went in. The first rescue party to enter in the slope proceeded to the seventh entry, then turned and made a way across the main slope. Some fire was found in the cross cut and extinguished. Near the west end of the eighth entry a pile of dead mules was encountered. A little beyond were found the bodies of four-

One Man Found Alive.

Turning back toward the main slope on entry 8, the rescuers penetrated until a big cave-in was encountered. in the midst of a pile of dead mules and the bodies of dead human companions, the rescuers found Donacio Vergen whose survival is the miracle of the disaster. He was found by J. B. Manley, who was startled to see Vergen open his eyes and say in pleading tones: "Please may I go home now?" Vergen walked unassisted to the air shaft where he was carried out this morning. He is all right, estimated

Both fans with which the property is equipped shattered, and it was not until three hours tered, and it was not until three hours later that the fans were repaired and a rescue party headed by General Superintendent J. F. Thompson was able to descend the air shaft. The investigators discovered three bodies before being forced to return to the surface. Five men, one of them 100 yards away, were killed at the entrance to the mine shaft by the concussion.

Whole Mine Wrecked.

The rescuers say that the whole mine is wrecked, and it is almost impossible that any of the entombed miners are still alive. The fire which followed the explosion was confined closely to the workings near the main shaft, and soon burned itself out.

Supt. Thompson was reinforced by every superintendent and expert within reaching distance of the mine, and hun-dreds of miners stood about the shaft last night begging for a chance to join one of the rescue parties.

With the Cherry, Ill., disaster fresh in their minds, frantic women and children surged against the ropes drawn to keep them from the shaft and begged the rescuers to bring back the husbands and fathers. Some of the women attempted to join the workers below and had to be restrained by force. As each body was brought to the surface the women gathered about it with shrieks and prayers. Until the workings can be opened the cause of the explosion will remain unknown. The officials declare that safety lamps were used in every portion of the mine, and that every precaution was taken to prevent accident. Coroner J. H. Guilfoil has taken charge of the bodies and has ordered thirty coffins from Denver. Most of the miners entombed are Slavs, Hungarians and Italians. Only two Americans—William Helm, electri-cian, and David Williams—are among the missing.

A Sailor's Compliment.

A Boston publisher said of Mrs. Asquith, whose name has been so much discussed in connection with "The Woman With the Serpent's Tongue:"

After finding a man alive, the work of rescue was resumed with renewed activity, but the hope of finding any more alive almost vanished as time went on. Most of the victims were believed to be in entries 9, 10, 11 and 12. It may be days before the rescuers reach them. The machine shop of the mine has been converted into a morgue, but the bodies will be sent to Trinidad today. The bodies of thirty-five government and throwouts, 2.00@ 5.50. men were injured.

The missing are Peter Kelly, the mine foreman, and one other man. About half a dozen are injured. While there was still doubt as to the number of men in the mine at the time of the explosion, it was reported that there might not have been more than fifty. The explosion is believed to have been caused by a miner's lamp igniting gas in an unused room. The force of the explosion was apparently sufficient to cause instant death to all the men inthe eastern wing where the mishap occurred. Cars and heavy timbers were blown about like kindling wood.

Crowd About Shaft.

Within a few minutes after the first news of the explosion the inhabitants of the little mining town were crowding wildly about the shaft. Women and children, crazed with grief, pleaded with those in charge of the mine for news of the entombed men. They were spared one of the horrors of the other recent disasters, namely, long suspense. With-in a few minutes after the explosion the fans had sucked the workings almost clean of deadly gases and rescue parties were able to descend and begin to dig through the wreckage. No fire followed the explosion, and the ventilating apparatus was unharmed by the shock. The rescue party found a scene of de-struction that left no doubt as to the fate of the men. The first bodies recovered were in fairly good condition, the men having been smothered to death and not mangled by the explosion, but as the party pushed on, they found bodies mutilated as to be unrecognizable.

Foreman Thought to Be Dead.

been in mine accidents before and fre-quently told his wife that should an explosion ever occur where he was at work he would escape somewhow, either by rushing to the airshaft or to some safe part of the mine, and the members of his family are still hopeful that he has escaped the fate of the men. The mine officials, however, fear that Kelly is dead. State Mine Inspector C. J. Norwood said that the Browder mine had given the inspectors some uneasiness on account of a peculiar gas condition, and therefore had been inspected oftener than required by law. The mine has been visited at least once a month.

BURY VICTIMS OF PRIMERO DISASTER.

Desolate and Pathetic Little Procession Follows Bodies from Morgue to Railway Station.

PRIMERO, Colo., Feb. 2.-It was a desolate and pathetic little procession today that followed the bodies recovered from the Primero mine from the tempor ary morgue in the machine shop to the train which took them to Trinidad for burial. Led by Father De Palma, who has labored with them constantly since the disaster, women and children clad in the pitiful attempts at mourning which the company stores affords, filed silently into the cars after the coffins which were carried by the grimy men who had risked life to save the victims.

None but the coroner's jury and the officials of the company had been allowed to see the bodies until this morning when friends and relatives carried the "Sunday suits" to the machine shop to dress the bodies for burial, pinning on the breasts of the dead the badges of fraternal societies and placing in the hands of each Austrian a little Bible.

Bodies Not Identified.

Although several bodies were recovered early this morning, they have not been identified and will be held to be in-spected by the coroner's jury. Graves have been dug for the bodies to be buried stitute for hearses, will carry the bodies from the train to the graves. The main slope of the mine has now been cleared of black damp and the rescue parties are now clearing the workings which suffered least from the explosion. A tin dinner bucket saved the life of Leonardo Virgen, the only man rescued alive. Virgen must have been working near the point of the explosion, but when he was thrown by the shock and felt the puff of the flames and gas he held the bucket tight about his face, stuffing his cap about the edges, staggered to comparative safety. Lives have been risked recklessly in the attempts to rescue the entombed men, and yet scores of miners are waiting patiently for a chance to go below.

ANNOUNCEMENT MADE IN CHICAGO

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Sixty rail-roads in the country have notified the No flowers.'"—Washington Star. representatives of 32,000 firemen of the rejection of the demands for a 20 to 25 per cent. wage increase and other concessions. News of the rejection was Renowned Doctor's Prescription for contained in a private dispatch from Chicago today. The roads express a willingness to arbitrate the question of wages, but flatly refused other demands. The following statement was given out by the general managers' association in New York:

"Conference of ten general managers and forty labor representatives, which has been in session here since December has adjourned. Representation was for the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen on 109,000 miles of railroad involving fifty-one lines. The two committees failed to reach an agreement, and the railroads have offered to submit the wage question to arbitration which the labor leaders will in turn refer to a vote of the men.

EIGHTEEN YEARS AGO HE HAD LESS THAN THREE DOLLARS.

He Is Now One of the Richest Farmers in Saskatchewan, Central Canada,

Arriving in Canada in 1891, just eighteen years ago, E. A. Guillemin, could speak but his native language. He is a Frenchman. He had but a little over $2 in his pocket, thus being short over $7 of the $10 required to secure entry for a homestead of 160 acres. He eventually borrowed the money, and, near Forget, Saskatchewan, he started life in Canada on the homestead in which to-day he is the fortunate possessor of fifty quarter sections of land, or 8,000 acres.

Now Mr. Guillemin did not acquire all these acres as a result altogether of his farming operations, which were extensive. He looked with satisfaction upon what he was doing on his limited area, he was saving, careful and had foresight. Surrounding land could be had for about $3 per acre, and he continued buying as his savings would permit, until now he has fifty quarter sections, some of which he can sell at $25 per acre. Threshed Fifty Thousand Bushels.

This year he was engaged in threshing on his place for 541/2 days. He threshed out 50,000 bushels of wheat, of which he sold 34,000 bushels, one train load, at a price varying from 84 to 87 cents per bushel. He has on hand still 16,000 bushels. In addition to wheat he raised 30,000 bushels of oats, 7,000 bushels of barley and 500 bushels of flax. He owns 104 horses and a number of cattle, but since the construction of the railway he has been engaged chiefly in raising wheat. This year he bought his first threshing machine, paying for it the sum of $2,100. He estimates that the machine earned for him this fall $3,000, thus paying for itself in one season, and leaving him $900 to the good. The weather was very propitious for farm threshing, not a single day being lost in the two months which were spent in this work. The wheat averaged 23 bushels to the acre and graded No. 1 and No. 2 Northern. In the past nine years, seven good crops have been harvested on this farm. For six successive years the returns were excellent, that is in the years 1901, 1902, 1903, 1904, 1905 and 1906. In the two following years there was a partial failure. As the years have passed the quality of the buildings on the farm have been steadily improved, and are now as good as can be found in the district. About $10,000 has been invested in this way by Mr. Guillemin. The farm consists of 6,880 acres, of which about 6,000 acres were under Professor Munyon has just issued a most beautiful useful and complete almanac. It contains not only all the scientific information concerning the moon's phases, in all the latitudes, but has illustrated articles on how to read character by phrenology, palmistry and birth month. It also tells all about card reading, birth stones and their meaning, and gives the interpretation of dreams. It teaches beauty culture, manicuring, gives weights and measures and antidotes for poison. In fact, it is a Magazine Almanac, that not only gives valuable information, but will afford much amusement for every member of the family, especially for parties and evening entertainments. Farmers and people in the rural districts will find this Almanac almost invaluable. It will be sent to anyone absolutely free on application to the Munyon Remedy Company, Philadelphia, Pa.

"It was hard to drop Mocha and Java and give Postum a trial, but my nerves were so shattered that I was a nervous wreck and of course that means all kinds of ails.

"At first I thought bicycle riding caused it and I gave it up, but my condition remained unchanged. I did not want to acknowledge coffee caused the trouble, for I was very fond of it. At that time a friend came to live with us, and I noticed that after he had been with us a week he would not drink his coffee any more. I asked him the reason. He replied, 'I have not had a headache since I left off drinking coffee, some months ago, till last week, when I began again, here at your table. I don't see how anyone your table. I don't see how anyone known as helium, while heavier vapors, can like coffee, anyway, after drinking such as those of iron calcium, titanium. Postum!'

"I said nothing, but at once ordered a package of Postum. That was five months ago, and we have drank no coffee since, except on two occasions when we had company, and the result each time was that my husband could not sleep, but lay awake and tossed and talked half the night. We were convinced that coffee caused his suffering, so he returned to Postum, convinced that coffee was an enemy, instead of a friend, and he is troubled

A SAD PRINCESS.

Eulalia Says "It's a Bore to Be the Daughter of a Queen."

"It's a bore to be the daughter of a exclaimed Infanta Eulalia frankly at an informal gathering of Latin quarter friends this week in the studio of Eugene Paul Ullman, an American painter who has acquired fame

"I like to meet people without ceremony," the princess continued, "to be on a footing of perfect equality, making true friends irrespective of rank. I admire men and women of talent, which I regard as true royalty. I want people to orget that I am a queen's daughter. Nothing wearies me more than formal receptions, at which each person is presented to me and feels called upon to ciss' my hand and salute me because I happen to be of royal birth.

Infanta Eulalia met the Ullmans in a nanner that well illustrates how demoratic and bohemian she has become. Mr. and Mrs. Ullman were occupying a small ottage near the seashore last summer One day a smart trap drove up to the door. Mrs. Ullman was giving her chil dren a bath in the one large room which served as a living room. There were no apologies, but Mrs. Ullman, not the least embarrassed, laughed and begged the

'I'm Miss Gillette," said the visitor. Infanta Enlalia, who is visiting at a illa near here, heard that you and your usband are Americans and she always vishes to meet Americans wherever she oes, so she asked me to come here and ivite you over for tea.

Mr. and Mrs. Ullman went. When Infanta Eulalia returned the call, she saw some of Mr. Ullman's pictures, was fascinated, and a friendship ensued which has continued. Now the Ullmans are back in Paris. Miss Gillette, whose home is on a farm near Decatur, Ill., is the constant companion of Eulalia. They re now planning a tour together. Eulalia's husband, the Duke of Galfrom whom she separated years is also in Paris, where he lives with "ailinity," a middle-class French voman. Eulalia herself told some friends about this strange attachment.

As for skirt length this season there s no rule to govern; but it is a pity, for some of the avowedly best models are Helena Lewyn, a Texas girl, is one of cut at extremely ugly lengths. Take, for the latest of the American "invaders" to example, skirts which are instep length in front, longer by a good 2 inches at either side, varying from there only 1 inch, or 2 at most, the rest of the way and around. Could anything be more awkhood at her home, she made her profes-sional debut and scored a distinct suc-that clears the instep and then abruptly slopes toward the back to a pointed train of exaggerated length.

The proper length of a skirt, since so much latitude is allowed in the matter, is dependent upon the individual, but that which is most generally attractive has the front touching the floor or barely escaping it, and then slopes to a train or, say, 4 inches. Where a long train is desirable, as frequently seen upon the skirt of a formal gown, it should not be too flaring at the sides. However, many of the new old models require the round the presents are displayed in all the model from which it was taken. Un-doubtedly this, with other features. Whoever chooses names for new weaves and thread combinations that make their appearance each season is wise in his generation. What, for example, coald be more alluring than satin "ravissant," crepe "chameuse," or crepe "sultane?" Doesn't all the sartorial desire in the world dwell in the sound? And in all of these, as well as in half a dozen others of their species, the design is to give that quaint, old time suggestion which, combined with a touch of garniture, brings back the flavor of a garniture, brings back the flavor of a fascinating age.

The Sun's Vapors.

"Chromosphere" is the name given to layer of incandescent vapors in the sun, developing the entire photosphere. Its depth varies at different times and in different parts, and ranges from 6000 to 9000 miles. The chromosphere consists chiefly of hydrogen and an element magnesium, etc., are sometimes projected into it from the photosphere. The so-called "prominences" are due to projections of hydrogen that are shot up to enormous altitudes, with velocities exeeding 149 miles per second. The name chromosphere is given to this solar en-velope on account of its beautiful rosy hue. It is visible only during the total eclipses of the sun or by the aid of the spectroscope, and is said to have been first noticed by Father Sacchi during an

Despair and Despondency
No one but a woman can tell the story of the suffering, the despair, and the despondency endured by women who carry a daily burden of ill-health and pain because of disorders and derangements of the delicate and important organs that are distinctly feminine. The tortures so bravely endured completely upset the nerves if long continued. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a positive cure for weakness and disease of the feminine organism.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

It allays inflammation, heals ulceration and soothes pain, It tones and builds up the nerves. It fits for wifebood and motherhood. Honest medicine dealers sell it, and have nothing to urge upon you as "just as good." It is non-secret, non-alcoholic and has a record of forty years of cures.

The basketball team was defeated by a score of 31 to 17 by the second High School team of Campbellsport. Considering the difference in weight and height in the two teams our boys did remarkab ly well. The next game will be played with the same team tonight, Saturday, in Rinzel's hall, and promises to be of great interest. Come and see what the boys do in their own hall. You can't afford to miss it.

Owing to the teachers institute there was a slight irregularity in the contests last week. In the adding match the girls defeated the boys by a score of 137 to 108. The individual scores are as follows: Goldie Romaine 16, Eva Romaine 26, Verna Romaine 36, Mathilda Jandre 18, Corral Romaine 17, Emma Kriewalt 21, Clara Krueger 1, total 137: Alex Rinzel 14, Aug. Jandre 12, Edgar Romaine 44, Henry Uelmen 7, Louis Reed 8, Pearcy Mc Gority 7, Willie Rinzel 5, Ben. Stern

7, Frank Warner 4, total 108. In the spelling contest there was a tie between Edgar Romaine, Mathilda Jandre and Alex Rinzel, the former finally winning.

TO START A TIGHT SCREW. Lots of folks have tried to re move a stubborn screw from a piece of wood, a screw that won't budge at all, and have in the end given it up as a bad job. Well, if such a thing occurs again, don't

Heat a poker red hot and then hold it against the crew head for a little while, wait a few minutes for the screw to cool down, when it will be found that the screw can be removed quite easily with Wallace Ward, John Hendricks the same screw driver that just Jr., and the Misses Alma Martin previously would not perform the work. The explanation is quite simple.

> The red hot poker heats the screw, the screw expands and makes the hole it is in just a wee bit bigger. The screw then cools down and resumes its original size, leaving the hole in the wood a size too large-and there you are.-The
