SPORTING COLUMN.

BASKETBALL

The local high school basketball five dropped another game last Friday evening, this one being to the Campbellsport high school five by a score of 11 to 9. The game was very slow and rough, which the score indicates. The locals put up the poorest article of basketball since they started this season, which accounted for their defeat.

The game between the local high school girls and the Menomonee Falls high school girls proved to be a hummer. It was a game that was worth while seeing, as it was no team's victory until the referee blew his whistle at the end of the second half. The score was very close and finally ended 7 to 6 in favor of the locals. The Menomonee Falls team is known to be one of the best teams in the state. They tried very hard to win the State championship. This defeat to them meant a great deal.

NOTES:

Considerable time was taken out in both games.

The crowd was the second largest of the season.

Frieda Gales was substituted for Olga Haug in the first half.

Van de Zande, center for Campbellsport made 3 field throws.

Al. Schaefer played part of the game at Fond du Lac Saturday.

Menomonee Falls was handicapped by the weight and size of the locals.

Martha Staats and Olive Oppenorth were the stars for the locals in the girls game.

Schneider was not allowed a field throw in the second half of the boys game on account of a dribble.

All officers and members of the local basketball association are requested to meet at Miller's studio to-morrow, Sunday, afternoon at 2:30 sharp. All players are also requested to be present in full uniform.

A team supposed to be the Barton Maroons were in the village Sunday evening to play a game of basketball with some of the local players, but as no game was arranged a picked team could not be gotten up, so the boys had to return home without playing.

The high school boys were to Fond du Lac Saturday evening and lost to the Independents of that city by an overwhelming score of 10 to 68. The Fond du Lac boys out classed our boys in all stages of the game, as they played according to the inter-collegiate rules, which the locals have never played.

BASEBALL

A baseball association was formed in the village Monday evening when about twenty baseball fans assembled in the village hall and elected the following named officers:

President—S. C. Wollensak
Secretary—J. F. Schaefer
Treasurer—Byron Rosenheimer
Manager—Otto E. Lay
Director to Central Wisconsin semi-prof. League—M. Heindl

This association was formed to promote baseball in the village and they will make a very strong effort to have the team finish among the top-notchers if not successful in winning the pennant.

A standing committee consisting of J. P. Klassen, Herman Backhaus and William Endlich, was appointed by President Wollensak to see that the field is kept in perfect order at all times and to get estimates as to the cost of building a grand stand.

The outlook for the village to have a strong ball team in the league is very promising. The team will also consist mostly of home players.

Manager Lay has already in view a very good pitcher, whom he expects to sign. He will start his team in training as soon as the weather permits and the field is in condition to play.

The association also made their deposit of $25 to the League President as a guarantee to finish the season.

Death of Peter Hahn Sr.

Peter Hahn Sr., a well known resident of Campbellsport, and for many years a resident of the town of Auburn, died at his home in Campbellsport last Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, after a lingering illness of six months duration.

Mr. Hahn was born in Walsdorf, Rheinpreussen, Nov. 22, 1826. He came to America in the early '50's settling near Saukville, Wis., where he was married in 1852 to Miss Barbara Roden. Later he moved to Eblesville, Fond du Lac county, where he lived until 1867, when he moved to his late home near Campbellsport. He is survived by his wife, six sons and two daughters, viz: Nicholas, Adam, Matthias and Peter Hahn Jr., of Campbellsport; Joseph and John of Empire; Miss Susan of Campbellsport and Mrs. Catherine Lehman of Danville, Ill. Mr. Hahn had been ailing for six months past and was taken suddenly for the worse Sunday.

The funeral was held at 10 A. M. Thursday from the St. Matthews church with interment in the Catholic cemetery. Rev. July officiating. The bereaved relatives have our sympathy.

Rural Carrier Has Runaway.

John H. Martin, rural carrier on route No. 5, experienced a runaway last Saturday, 3 miles north of St. Michaels, while covering his territory. The roads being in such bad condition, he was forced to drive over a stone pile and in some manner was tipped over, being unable to stop the horse, it proceeded at a break neck speed up to Bernard Haack's place, where it was caught. The only damage done, was to the cutter, which was considerably broken.

Mr. Martin started to cover the remainder of his route on horseback, but upon reaching Johnny Bremser's place, the latter willingly offered to take him over the route with his team and sleigh.

Freight Cars Damaged.

Two cars loaded with malt by the L. Rosenheimer Malt & Grain Co., were badly wrecked here last Monday afternoon. The smash-up was caused by a string of cars left standing in the side track, without the breaks being set which started running down the track, which is on a decline, and crashed into the two cars of malt at the point of the switch as the two cars were being pulled out of the malt house tracks. Both cars were derailed and so badly damaged that the grain had to be transferred into other cars. It required several hours work before the tracks were cleared of the wreckage.

Alfred Ebenreiter's Wife Wants Divorce.

"I am determined to hate Americans more bitterly than ever, and to confine all my interviews to my niece, Denzilia, to the Englishman. To tell you the truth, I like that Englishman. But now new complications are arising. I find that Miss Matthieson, to whom I go twice a week to give her lessons in miniature painting, is a friend of Mr. Langrishe. In fact, poor girl, I somehow fear that she is foolish enough to hope to be something more. Well, I wish her all luck in that enterprise, but I cannot run the risk of presenting myself before Alick Langrishe as Denzilia Anselm. In spite of my darkened eyebrows and the silky smoothness of my dusky tresses, he would inevitably recognize me instantly; and, though I am getting a little tired, and, though I have made up my mind to let myself be found out. Perhaps this might be the easiest way of concluding the comedy. It is certain that it must be shortly concluded. My friends are both tiring of the amusement.

"Therefore my mind is made up to abandon the game as soon as possible; but when I reappear in my own proper person I don't want to account for Denzilia Catherhouse and Denzilia Anselm. I do not indeed fear that much will be said concerning the latter, for only one, besides the Englishman, knows of her existence; but, having brought Denzilia Catherhouse into being, it is necessary that I should be able to dispose of him decently.

"And there the murder is out, my dear Francesca. Aubrey Montresor is the amateur detective, and all but penniless barrister, who knows me as the poor portrait painter, and as such loves me well enough to sacrifice all his bachelor comforts and marry me. I do not say that there are not men in New York who would have done as much. This man I love, Francesca, and it is the fear that he may not altogether approve of what I have done that makes me hesitate to tell him. I desire above all things that he should know me in my own proper character, that he should learn that in loving me and pledging himself to me so generously and recklessly he has drawn a prize in a worldly point of view."

CHAPTER XIII.

Miss Lavenham's letter to her friend, which had obviously been written at different times, came to an abrupt break here, and then another date was added.

"10th August.—It is all over. Everything is over, and my life—everything that is worth calling life—is over with it. He knows; he is angry, and he does not forgive. I made a stupid mistake. Not that it matters much, or indeed at all. It had to come out. Only it might have made a difference if I had confessed it to him of my own free will instead of being forced into the avowal.

"Here is the story. I traveled down into a little village called Carleshope in the parish of Denzilia Catherhouse in order to post a letter to Mr. Catherhouse, purporting to come from myself, imploring his assistance in enabling me to escape from the clutches of one Mr. Thomas Wilson, who had me locked up until I would consent to marry him. It was not a very probable tale, was it? And it was scarcely worthy of my inventive genius. But you see I was getting so bored. I did not care how soon I was found out. I chose Carleshope simply because I saw the name in Bradshaw. I selected the name of Mr. Thomas Wilson at random; and the ridiculous thing was that there turned out to be really a Mr. Thomas Wilson living at Carleshope. Oh, how I laughed when Aubrey told me, though it turned out a poor jest for me!

"Well, I went down by train and posted my letter, and, as luck would have it, I lost my return ticket and had no money in my pocket. As a matter of fact my funds were getting low, which was another and very important reason for my resuming my own proper character without loss of time. So I stepped into a pawnbroker's shop to pawn my ring. It was a ring I always used to wear, and which, since I became my own relative, I had always kept hanging round my neck by a ribbon. I need not say I put it on my finger before going into the shop. It was a new experience to me, bargaining with a pawnbroker, but you know I always did enjoy any kind of new experience. I did not much like parting with the ring even till the next day, when I thought I could easily go down again and redeem it.

"But I could not go down the next day because it was one of the days when Aubrey came to spend the afternoon with me. The pawnbroker, for some reason best known to himself, put the ring in his shop window. I had nearly forgotten about it when I sent for my amateur detective and showed him my ring at once and investigated the matter. He and Mr. Langrishe at once went like knight errants of old to rescue their lady-love, and there they saw the ring in the pawnbroker's window.

"They also saw Mr. Thomas Wilson, which was a contingency I had not reckoned on. They also discovered that they had been duped, and then they put their wise heads together and made the further discovery that Denzilia Catherhouse had murdered his niece Denzilia! They further proceeded to secure a warrant for the old gentleman's arrest.

"On the day that this precious scheme was to be put into execution I upset their plans by taking off my wig and going for a drive in a hansom in my own undisguised person, as it was now and then my custom to do, to see what would come of it. Hitherto nothing had come of it; but on this occasion I was seen by Aubrey Montresor. Ah, why did I not then and there jump out of that hansom and tell him everything as we stood on the pavement together! Instead of doing so I waited till I was two or three streets off and then got out, dismissed that hansom, hailed another, and was driven back to Graham street, and had not been there ten minutes before Aubrey Montresor arrived and insisted on seeing Mr. Denzilia Catherhouse at once. I had to keep him waiting while I donned my disguise, which it always took me a long time to do.

"It was the last time—though I did not know then when I dressed in the part—that I should personate my imaginary, eccentric uncle. I was a long time, but he waited—I can't tell you any more. I had to show him the truth. I had feared he might not quite like it, but I had not realized what it would be to him. How could I have realized such a thing! Alick Langrishe, when he learnt it, admired my cleverness, as all these months I have been admiring it myself. But now! When one loves a man does one always see everything through his eyes? I have learnt to be bitterly ashamed of myself.

"Yet I still think he was a little hard on me. He has cast me off, and I have forgiven him for doing it. Is not that strange?"

"I promised to tell you all, and I have done it; but, remember, no one knows of my second alias. The world had several garbled versions of my first; it is absolutely ignorant of my second. It must remain so. I can trust you never to speak of it even to me, Francesca? I mean to turn my attention to leading a nobler life than I have done, a life that would have made me worthy of him had I lived to live it sooner.

"Adieu! Burn this, and try to forget its contents. Yours ever,

"DENZILIA LAVENHAM."

The next letter of the batch was much shorter. It was dated immediately after the exposure of Miss Lavenham's escapade, and was written by Alick Langrishe to Agnes Matthieson.

"My Dear Miss Matthieson: I am leaving England for America tonight. I feel that I owe you and Mrs. Matthieson an apology for this abrupt departure without any leave-taking. I have written to Mrs. Matthieson to express to her my gratitude for her many kindnesses to me, which have largely helped to make my stay in this country so pleasant, and to excuse myself as well as possible for my apparent ingratitude, which is indeed only apparent.

"To you, however, who always understood me and helped with your ready sympathy, I need offer no such apologies nor assurances. I need only tell you that my quest is ended. Probably the newspapers, before you receive this, have informed you of the reappearance of Miss Denzilia Lavenham in sound health and prosperity. They will, no doubt, also have furnished you with many of the remarkable details as to the reasons for her reappearance and the manner of her reappearance.

"How much or how little of truth there may be in these stories it is not for me to say. Miss Lavenham's story, so far as she has condescended to relate it to me, is her own secret. Possibly she may publish the whole to the world. More probably she will not. In any case it is sufficient for me to assure you that there is nothing in it that she need be ashamed to publish, nothing to make an honorable man who loves her strive to put her out of his heart. I have long loved her, as you know. My love is not less hopeless than it has always been, but it has taken root, and I cannot tear it out, and would not if I could.

"I think it right, however, to tell you so much for her sake, because I know I can trust the deference of her name to you should ever hear it maligned. A man's advocacy of a woman rarely does her much good, but the good word of another woman, and of such a woman as you, cannot fail to help her.

"Farewell, dear Miss Matthieson. I thank you for the friendship you so generously gave me, and I pray you to believe that it will ever be one of the sweetest memories of my life. Yours most faithfully,

"ALICK LANGRISHE."

Alick Langrishe had judged with his usual perspicuity. Agnes Matthieson would for ever defend the name of the woman she did not know, or rather whom she believed she did not know, and whom she frankly hated.

The third letter was dated two years later, and was once more from Alick Langrishe to Agnes Matthieson. During those two years there had never been any communication between them, either by letter or in person. Mr. Langrishe had, in fact, never been in Europe since.

"My Dear Miss Matthieson: I will not insult you by asking you if you have forgotten me, for I believe you to be one of those rare and admirable persons who never forget a friend, and I, unworthy though I was, was one of those whom you honored with your friendship.

"I use the word unworthy, believe me, as no mere idle figure of speech, nor in any mock humility. In the days that have elapsed since we parted I have thought long and often of your friendship, and have daily realized more and more definitely that I was, and am, unworthy of it and of having known you. And so, with what sounds like an illogical audacity, I have resolved to ask you to give me, instead of friendship, love. I am a lonely man, and my heart is empty. I ask you to fill it as I have loved in vain. That long unsatisfied passion has burnt itself out.

"I am not going to mock you with vain assertions. Perhaps I should if I thought they would be of any use in inclining your heart towards me; but I know you would not believe them. I do not love you, but with all my heart I desire your love. Can you, will you, give it to me? I can offer you respect, affection, tenderness, and besides these sufficient wealth to procure all that wealth can procure. I know you will not marry for these worldly advantages, but if you can love me I feel sure I shall be able to make you happy. I shall await your answer with feverish impatience. Yours ever faithfully,

"ALICK LANGRISHE."

He had not to wait long. By the return mail he received Agnes' answer.

"My Dear Mr. Langrishe: No, I have not forgotten you. As you say, I never forget a friend. My friendship will always be yours. More I will not give you without an exact equivalent.

therefore I appreciate the high compliment you have paid me in understanding me well enough to treat me with perfect sincerity. I need not make the usual conventional apologies for giving you pain, because in the circumstances you can hardly feel pain at my reply to your request. Neither is it in these circumstances a conventional folly to offer you my continued friendship. I value yours and give you mine for ever. Your sincere friend,

"AGNES MATTHIESON."

Alick Langrishe never answered her letter; but none the less it gave him stimulating food for reflection for many days. She had not confessed or denied that she loved him. She had merely given him to understand with unmistakable firmness that she would never marry him unless he could assure her with truth that he loved her.

He began to wish that he could love her. He began to ask himself if she thought him a conceited coxcomb. He found it absurdly painful to believe he could entertain such an opinion of himself. He went on to consider whether it would not be a good plan to go to England and prove to her that he was, at least, not what she was desirous he should be. He stepped over to the bank to see if he could make arrangements for his business to look after itself, and finally started on a trip to Europe.

He had got as far as Paris when he heard casually, through some friends of the Matthiesons who were also acquaintances of his, that Mrs. Matthieson and her daughter were at Lausanne, where they had been spending several weeks. With a promptitude which surprised himself he made up his mind to go to Lausanne too. And just when he was about to put this plan into execution he stumbled across Aubrey Montresor.

CHAPTER XIV.

The hotel omnibus had hardly turned out of the station-yard when the young Duke, looking round upon his fellow passengers, recognized Langrishe. The Duke was always glad to see any one he had ever seen before, provided he had not disliked him too much the last time he saw him; and, though he had not retained any very clear recollections of the American, he had a vague impression that his sister had seemed to like the man.

"Perhaps you don't remember me," he began a little diffidently. "My mother is Mrs. Matthieson."

Probably Langrishe would not have immediately recognized the young man, but the mention of Mrs. Matthieson brought him at once to his mind. He expressed his warmly grateful remembrance of Mrs. Matthieson.

"This is awfully jolly!" said Kenneth. "My mother and sister are at the same hotel. We shall all be together."

Langrishe did not think it necessary to explain that he was going to Lausanne solely for the purpose of seeing the Duke's sister. "Are there indeed?" he returned blandly. "It will be a great pleasure to me to meet them again."

Then Kenneth, casting about for some way of assuring the American of his desire to make one of the party, could think of nothing better than to introduce him to Montresor. He had been in Norway at the time when the two men met so frequently at his mother's house, or he could not have failed to know that they were already acquaintances. He knew nothing of the disappearance of Denzilia Lavenham, but he had indeed, with the rest of London, heard of the American heiress. But she had never interested him much, and he had long ago forgotten all about her.

"Montresor and I are old acquaintances, and have already exchanged greetings," Langrishe said quietly. "Why did you not tell me?" asked the Duke, turning to his friend in quite a little state of excitement.

But Montresor, having suitably acknowledged his companion's introduction, was in no mood for explanations. The Duke and Langrishe therefore continued their conversation without his assistance.

When they reached the hotel Langrishe and Montresor went straight to their rooms to dress, after having negotiated the waiter's suggestion that they have their dejeuner before the table d'hote was ready. But the Duke went first to his mother's sitting room, with she and Agnes were awaiting him with the impatient mothers and sisters after a year's absence, of an only son and brother.

BLACK CANARIES.

New-Fashioned Birds Whose Notes Promise to Rival Nightingales.

The yellow-feathered canary, with its shrill voice, will soon be a bird of the past. The bird of the future must have the voice of a nightingale.

Breeders have also evolved a black-coated breed, in place of the familiar yellow bird.

At the international cage-bird show at the Crystal Palace recently these canary satinists monopolized all attention. Also the new black canaries made their first appearance in public.

In conversation with the Daily Mirror recently, Charles Baill, cage exhibitor at Sydenham, gave an interesting account of the efforts made to induce canaries to sing.

"It is the sudden discovery that the lowest note on the water organ (the instrument used for training the voices of singing birds) bears a remarkable resemblance to the melting liquids of the nightingale," he explained, "that has caused the flutter."

A Big Thief Now Immune.

The thief who stole $173,000 from the Chicago sub-treasury February 18, 1907, is now immune from criminal prosecution, the statute of limitations having expired. The only recourse left the government is to find the thief and sue to recover the money.

GRINGES BEFORE COURT.

TOBACCO MERCHANT COLLAPSES WHEN HE IS SENTENCED.

Face Grows Livid and His Knees Bend in Progress of Scathing Denunciation.

INDIANAPOLIS, Minn., March 15.—Just before sentence was pronounced upon him by Judge A. B. Anderson in the United States district court today, Paul C. Gall collapsed and slipped to the floor between two deputy marshals who were supporting him. Gall's face grew livid in the progress of a scathing denunciation, and his knees bent under him when the court said:

"I sentence you to five years in the federal prison at Leavenworth."

Gall was convicted of having aided Max P. Emmerich, a bookkeeper of the Capital National bank of this city, in abstracting $40,000 of the bank's funds. Gall, a tobacco merchant, was a depositor in the bank and he overdraw his account $3000. Emmerich covered up the overdraft. He is now serving a sentence in the Leavenworth prison for having embezzled $40,000 from the bank.

"You have perjured yourself and are more guilty than Emmerich, who pleaded guilty here," said Judge Anderson. "The depth of your infamy is greater than I ever before have seen, having some hold over Emmerich because of something you knew about his private life you forced him to commit this crime. Maybe he helped you from friendship, but even in that case your course was almost as wicked as if you coerced him."

LAUGHLIN WILL FILED.

Late Steel Manufacturer Disposes of Estate Valued at $1,400,000 in Personal Property.

PITTSBURG, Pa., March 15.—A coroner's jury today rendered a verdict of homicide by a bullet wound, self-inflicted in the case of Thomas McK. Laughlin, the millionaire of Pittsburgh, who last Thursday was found dead in the basement of his palatial home and whose demise was not made public until Friday afternoon.

The will of the late steel manufacturer was filed in the county courts today. The will disposed of an estate valued at $1,400,000 in personal property and $100,000 in real estate. The instrument bequeaths all personal effects to his wife, Lucy H. Laughlin, including the Woodland road home, and furnishings, automobiles, books and valuable paintings as well as $100,000 in cash. Dr. Thomas M. P. McKenna, cousin and attending physician to the late Mr. Laughlin, received $200.

The residue of the estate is to be held in trust until the youngest surviving child reaches 27 years of age when it shall be divided share and share alike between the wife and the children.

AMERICAN IS JAILED.

Cousin of Le Roy Cannon in Nicaraguan Prison, Charged with Being in Conspiracy.

PORT LIMON, Costa Rica, March 15.—A report has reached here that George F. Cannon, 25 years of age, an American, cousin of Le Roy Cannon, who was executed by order of Zelaya, president of Nicaragua, is in the penitentiary at Corinto, charged with being one of the conspirators to take the life of Dr. Madriz, who succeeded Zelaya as president of Nicaragua. It is alleged that while in Bluefields, George Cannon was secretary to Gen. Chacabuco, leaving Nicaragua, the cousin reached Costa Rica, where he passed under the name of Robinson. Changing his name to Wallace, he is said to have succeeded in getting a letter of introduction to Dr. Madriz. Cannon put up in San Jose at the Imperial hotel, where he was recognized by an old acquaintance.

CUDAHY CASE CALLED.

Defendant Does Not Appear in Court and Adjournment Is Ordered by the Judge.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 15.—When the case of John P. Cudahy, the millionaire clubman, charged with attacking Jere F. Lillis, president of the Western Exchange bank of this city, was called in the municipal court here today neither Cudahy nor his attorney, Stephen Charles P. Orr, appeared at the request of the city attorney.

AID PLEDGED TO ORCHESTRA.

Friends of Thomas Organization Undertake to Wipe Out Debt.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 15.—Friends and supporters of the Theodore Thomas orchestra, at a dinner in the foyer of Orchestra hall, Monday night, pledged $85,000 toward wiping out the mortgage debt of $350,000 against the organization. Fifteen thousand dollars is already on hand.

Aside from cutting down the debt nearly a third, the rally to the support of Chicago's famous musical organization is believed to have blocked a threatened calamity.

It was learned that negotiations have been pending for the lease of Orchestra hall to an eastern vaudeville syndicate for a term of years. Members of the orchestra organization were apprised of this fact and the necessity of financial aid made apparent. Opinion was expressed that the debt and insuring for the hall should continue to be the center of musical interests of the city.

When Harmony Breaks Loose.

"What we want is harmony," said the statesman. "Yes," replied Senator Sargolam, "it makes me think of a fellow I used to belong to. Every man's own key and ring so loud nobody else could be noticed."—Washington Star.

Unexplored Arabia.

The announcement that the Royal Geographical Society of Copenhagen is fitting out an expedition to explore the countries round the Persian gulf will surprise many who imagine that there is little of the earth outside the polar regions which now needs exploring. As a matter of fact, the interior of the great Arabian peninsula is still waiting to be discovered, and not even the poles offer such almost insurmountable obstacles to those who seek them as the unknown land lying around the Persian gulf. Some portions are doubtless as void of human beings as the frozen apexes of the earth, and will probably always remain so, for the heat experienced there is fatal to almost every kind of life.—Westminster Gazette.

THAW MUST APPEAR IN PHILADELPHIA.

Inmate of Matteawan Cited to Be Present in Court of Appeals on April 18.

PITTSBURG, Pa., March 15.—Harry Kendall Thaw was today cited to appear before the United States circuit court of appeals in Philadelphia, April 18, by Judge Charles P. Orr of the United States district court.

The citation followed the issuance of an injunction on March 8 by Judge Orr, restraining John B. Gleason, a New York attorney, from further proceedings in Gleason's suit to collect alleged fees due him, filed in the United States district court, southern division, New York state.

Upon the granting of the injunction, Attorney A. Wilson, representing Attorney Gleason, asked for a review of the case before the court of appeals. The case before the court of appeals, and Thaw petition was allowed today, and Thaw was cited to appear in Philadelphia during next month. Prominent attorneys take the citation to mean that Thaw will not have to appear in person but may be represented by counsel.

POOR PAULHAN PEEVES.

French Aviator Sore at American Weather and Flying Exhibitions—Wrights' Rights Wrong.

NEW YORK, March 15.—"I am ready and glad to leave this country," declared Louis Paulhan, the aviator today, in reiterating his declaration that he had made his last flight in America and would return to France by the first steamer. Disgusted with patent infringement suits and what he considers lack of appreciation of his aviation exhibits, dissatisfied also with the weather, and with the exhibition business.

PARIS, March 15.—The French aviator syndicate today brought suit for the annulment of the Wright patents in France. The petition sets up the general claim that the Wright brothers, both in America and in France, are trying to obtain a monopoly in mechanical flight.

FOND DU LAC NEWS.

WOMEN IN FIGHT.

FOND DU LAC, Wis., March 12.—Mrs. M. Sadoff was arraigned in police court today on the charge of having assaulted Mrs. A. Crogan. The authorities are of the opinion that the fight is the result of a feud that has been raging in the Russian colony for many months.

LARGE FREIGHT BUSINESS.

Owing to the steady increase in its business, additional men are constantly being employed on this division of the Soo line. Trainmen are in constant demand and there is also a scarcity of workmen in the shops. The freight business of the road this year is one of the biggest in its history and considerable difficulty is being experienced in obtaining enough men to handle all of the trains.

WILL CONSIDER TESTIMONY.

A lunacy commission will examine Victor La Marr next Wednesday, according to information given out by the authorities. All of the testimony taken at La Marr's recent hearing in police court is to be submitted to the commission. The officials say that La Marr is either insane or is a man of unusual habits. He is the strangest character ever taken into custody on any charge. The peculiar signs on the residence of the man are being examined by many persons daily.

SODAS COST MORE.

FOND DU LAC, Wis., March 14.—Beginning this week the price of ice cream sodas will be increased from 5 to 10 cents, according to an agreement between all dealers which provided that in case their business is affected the price may again be reduced.

TWO SMALL FIRES.

At 3:40 this morning a fire, supposedly caused by a spark from a furnace, machine shop of H. Scherer, West Johnson street, and at 7 o'clock a spark caused a small fire at the residence of Prince Henderson on Prospect street.

MOTHER DELANO DIES.

Mother Caroline Delano, a sister formerly connected with St. Paul's cathedral here, died Sunday at Springfield, Ill. Funeral will be held here from the cathedral Tuesday afternoon. She was the organizer of the St. Monica sisterhood for widows. She has been in charge of the Holy Child orphanage in Springfield until recently when ill health compelled her resignation.

BISHOP GRAFTON HOME.

Bishop C. C. Grafton returned Saturday afternoon from an extended visit through the south and east. "I have just completed a fast journey," said the bishop upon his arrival. "I left New York at 3:30 o'clock Friday afternoon and arrived in Fond du Lac Saturday afternoon. New York is a growing city, only twenty-one and a half hours from Fond du Lac." The bishop appeared to be in the best of health and said that he had enjoyed his trip. He will conduct the services at St. Paul's cathedral on Easter Sunday again this year.

OBITUARY MENTION.

Dr. John McNamara, a former resident of this city, died Saturday in St. Paul, Minn., as the result of a paralytic stroke he sustained last Wednesday. He was 55 years old and is survived by his wife, two children and three brothers.

FROM THE PARIS SHOPS.

Whole embroidery robes are lovely. New flowered tulles are beautiful. Jewelry is now made especially for daylight wear. Some deep cuffs on handsome waists have been seen. The new mohairs are shown in checks, small plaids, and figured stripes. All the new materials are rough; few broadcloths will be seen this spring. The tricorne hat is gradually disappearing as Chanteclair styles come in. New is a hatpin with a single rose petal and stamens in translucent enamel. Many of the new silk gloves are decorated with fancy stitching and embroidery. Girdles, deeply pointed, of pompadour ribbon, moire, or velvet, are worn with plain colored drapes. Often the draped tunic is outlined in a stripe of beads, sometimes mixed with embroidery. Many of the linea coats of an elaborate nature have three-quarter or seven-eighths sleeves. New coiffure ornaments are dazzlingly pretty and most becoming, particularly the jeweled bands. Flowered taffetas in old tent-stitch patterns in oiled coloring make up most effectively. The newest jabots are side plaited and the ruffles sewed down on one side of a strip of insertion. Valenciennes laces, French, German and Norman, are going to be extensively used on summer frocks. Some of the new combs are of carved horn with a design of birds or insects in natural tints. There is every reason to believe that black footwear is to be permanently modish this spring, and even in the ball-room black is worn in many cases. For Home-Made Matting. The government has imported grasses such as are used by the Japanese in making mats and will try and grow them in the south. If successful, mat-making may be added to the list of American industries. It ought to be, considering that carpet matting is in such general use, especially in the southern states. The government might find it profitable to experiment with the grasses of the South, which produce the finest and most flexible matting known to the trade.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Why Take Alcohol?

Are you thin, pale, easily tired, lack your usual vigor and strength? Then your digestion must be poor, your blood thin, your nerves weak. You need a tonic and alterative. You need Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the only Sarsaparilla entirely free from alcohol. We believe your doctor would endorse these statements, or we would not make them. Ask him and find out. Follow his advice. J.C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

The endorsement of your doctor will certainly greatly increase your confidence in Ayer's Pills as a family laxative. Liver pills. All vegetable. Ask your doctor about them.

KELLOGG SEES GRAVE DANGER, IN OIL COMBINE

GOVERNMENT ATTORNEY MAKES IMPASSIONED APPEAL FOR DISSOLUTION OF STANDARD.

WOULD LEAD TO ANARCHY SOON

Combination Causes Socialism and Next Step Is That to Red Flag, Declares Lawyer.

INDIVIDUALS MAKE GREATNESS.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 15.—"They have waved the black flag over the land as others have done over the ocean. Do I deny they have demonstrated their ability? No. They have coupled with an ability unequalled in this country."

In these words Frank B. Kellogg, for the government, arraigned the Standard Oil company before the supreme court of the United States today in the second day's argument of the case for the dissolution of the New Jersey corporation, as decreed by the United States circuit court for the eastern district of Missouri.

"With its ramifications, its influence and its money power, give it carte blanche, let it combine, as Mr. Watson suggests, and let it cut prices as Mr. Milburn speaks about, and I predict it will control every industry in this country in ten years, yea, in five years."

"What makes a great country," he asked, "not great corporations? It is the individual, the independent proprietor with the star of hope that has always been held out to man before him. Your honors, it is but a step from combination to socialism, and but another from socialism to anarchy."

Mr. Milburn, representing the Standard Oil company, concluded his argument by saying that the government's case was based on the income of the Standard Oil company.

"This company has been under search as no other concern has ever been," said Mr. Milburn in closing. "The power of the United States government as it exists has reached right into the vitals of this organization."

"Here is an organization that has had a continuous life of forty years. I don't say the men in it have never done anything wrong. Judge us, I ask you, by human standards. I have no doubt it has done things that it has had no right to do. But it has done this: It has fought for the marketing of an American product; for the delivery of an American product all over the inhabitable globe; it has built it up with capital and undaunted courage. We beg of this court that if we are found to be doing wrong, enjoin us from doing that, but in the name of justice do not destroy the organization, which has accomplished such results, unless there is nothing else to do."

Stillness as though a great life were hanging by a thread pervaded the court chamber when Mr. Kellogg concluded. Kellogg Begins Address. The next moment Mr. Kellogg was facing the court to begin his argument of behalf of the government.

"If your honors please," said Mr. Kellogg, "this is the second time I have listened to that passionate appeal to protect American foreign commerce. It has always been the slogan in this case. As a matter of fact, the Standard Oil has not increased American percentage of exports of this product. The percentage exported previous to 1871 was greater than it has since."

He then quoted figures to support this statement. "For many years the Standard Oil did not create a market," continued Mr. Kellogg, "or increase it." Those markets were made by independent buyers struggling in competition for the commerce of the world.

With that as an introduction, Mr. Kellogg launched forth into the history of the Standard Oil as discussed by Mr. Milburn and concluded by telling of the purchasing and closing up of the refineries. "That was the genius of Mr. Rockefeller," shouted Mr. Kellogg, turning to Mr. Milburn, whose words the speaker quoted.

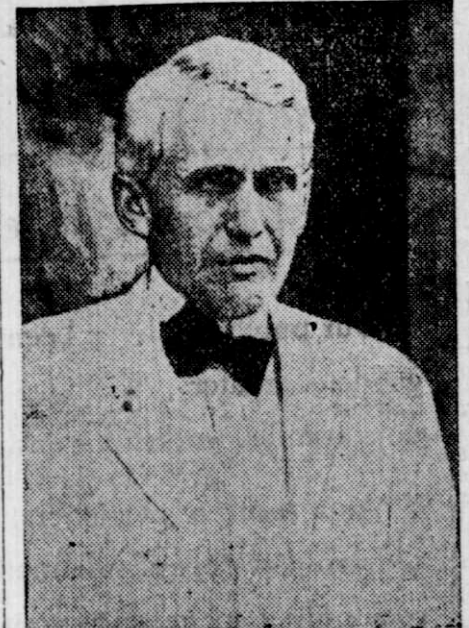

Justice Lurton asked whether Mr. Kellogg would not reply to the claim that all the Standard Oil properties had always had common owners. The Standard Oil attorneys claim that the property having common owners, there was no restraint of trade in the reorganization of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey.

"I get the idea," said Justice Lurton, "that the body of the Standard Oil has always been the same, at least the controlling proportion."

"I think it has not," replied Mr. Kellogg, who added: "The number of stockholders has increased from three to many thousands."

QUAKER CITY STRIKE MAY BE ADJUSTED.

Representatives of Both Sides Are Brought Together to "Talk."

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., March 15.—The fact that representatives of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company and officials of the Central Labor union and Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway employees were brought together late Monday afternoon for a "friendly talk" and to become "better acquainted" is expected to lead to some definite proposition upon which negotiations can be opened looking to a speedy settlement of the strike.

The conference came so suddenly that everybody was taken completely by surprise. That the opposing sides got together for an exchange of views is looked upon as a sign that the transit officials are willing to concede a point, and discuss peace plans with the strikers.

The company had repeatedly announced to various committees seeking a settlement that it would not talk over details until the strikers returned to work and opened negotiations as employees of the company.

It was reported that a definite proposition had been presented at the conference. This is untrue, but the way has certainly been paved, it is declared, for the presentation of a plan upon which a settlement, it is hoped, will be evolved. The conference was brought about by Edward Lowber Stokes, a member of the stock exchange, and a nephew of the late John Lowber Walsh, who was interested in street car companies in this city.

Those at the conference were: Charles O. Kruger, president of the Rapid Transit company; George H. Earle, one of the city's representatives on the company's board; W. D. Mahon, president of the carmen's union, and three members of the Central Labor union.

All those in the conference declared themselves satisfied with the progress, and although no predictions were made they expressed hope of a speedy ending of the strike.

Mahon Issues Statement. Mr. Mahon in a statement of what occurred at the meeting said: "We discussed the general situation without laying down any basis of a settlement. It was suggested that both sides carefully think over the subject with the idea that we might be able later to come together again and reach some kind of a settlement. There was the best of feeling, seemingly all the way around when we adjourned."

BLACK HAND SEEN ON ROCKEFELLER ESTATE. Italians Terrorize Workmen at Pocantico Hills—Kidnaped Child Found by Trolley Conductor.

NEW YORK, March 15.—New York detectives today are aiding the West Chester county authorities in trying to run down a band of Blackhanders who have terrorized the workmen on the John D. Rockefeller estate at Pocantico Hills and whose latest exploit was the kidnaping of the 4-year-old son, Leonard Carlo. The boy was found several miles away from home in the custody of two women agents of the Blackhanders, who became frightened and fled when questioned by a trolley conductor. The trolley man's suspicious had been excited by the crying of the child and the woman's actions.

The gang now operating on and near the Rockefeller estate is believed to be the same as that which four or five years ago was investigated and temporarily checked by the late Lieut. Petrosino. The terrorized workmen on the estate can be induced to say little about the Blackhanders' extortion, but the police are working on clues that it is hoped will result in the final breaking up of the gang.

MINER FALLS 800 FEET. Ferdinand Schlesinger's Mine on the Gogetic Iron Range Is Scene of Man's Terrible Tumble.

REPUBLIC, Mich., March 15.—[Special.]—Many men have been killed by falling down the shafts of Lake Superior mining properties. Few, however, have plunged to their doom a greater distance than has William Hakala, who is dead on an accident at Ferdinand Schlesinger's Newport mine. Hakala fell 800 feet. He was assisting in straightening out a "kink" in the hoisting cable. His body was horribly mangled. The man was aged 29 and married.

LEAVES ON TRIP TO CHICAGO.

Will Speak at St. Patrick's Day Banquet and Will Then Swing Around the Circle.

RETURNS TO CAPITOL MARCH 23.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 16.—President Taft left here at 9:10 a. m. for Chicago, over the Pennsylvania railroad. He is due there at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

From Chicago, the President will "swing around the circle," to Rochester, Albany, New York, New Haven and Providence and will not be in Washington again until March 23. Shortly after leaving the white house on his way to the station, the President had an extremely exciting moment. The big white house automobile, bearing him and his aid, Capt. Butt, narrowly escaped running down a woman. The heavy car running at good speed, was crossing Fourteenth street on New York way, when a woman darted in front of the machine. Instantly the chauffeur applied the brakes, bringing the conveyance to a sudden stop. The President, seeing the impending accident, was on his feet in an instant, and shouted a warning. The car then narrowly missed hitting a trolley car.

Accompanied by Capt. Butt. Mr. Taft was accompanied only by Capt. Archibald W. Butt, military aid, and several white house attaches. The President's visit to Chicago is primarily for the purpose of attending the annual St. Patrick's day banquet of the Irish Fellowship club of that city. He will also be the guest of that organization at luncheon. From the moment of his arrival, however, until he leaves Chicago at nearly midnight tomorrow, he has continuing engagement. He will ride with a military escort from one of the suburban stations to his hotel, will visit the Newspaper club, the Traffic club, will attend a conservation meeting in the afternoon at the Auditorium, will be tendered a reception at the Hamilton club, and will wind up the day with the Fellowship banquet.

Arriving at Rochester the afternoon of Friday, the 18th, the President will be the guest of the chamber of commerce at a banquet that evening. He will spend the night in Rochester, and leave there early Saturday morning. He will be the guest of the Hamilton club, and will attend the tuberculosis congress, a dinner of the University club, and probably will be the center of a number of important political conferences.

At Yale Corporation Meeting. On Monday the President will be present at a meeting of the Yale corporation in New Haven, and proceeding to Providence that afternoon will be the guest of the New England manufacturing jewelers and silversmiths at an elaborate banquet, where Senator Aldrich will also be present.

HAVE CLOSE CALLS ON FLOATING ICE. Many Hairbreadth Escapes Are Reported on Great Lakes with Breaking of Frozen Fields.

DETROIT, Mich., March 16.—The villages of fishing shanties situated far out on the ice all around the Great Lakes are furnishing stories of hairbreadth escapes as the breaking up of the ice fields finds some of the fishermen slow to retreat from the scum of the winter harvest.

Tuesday at Traverse City, six men, including City Treasurer Ralph Hastings, were compelled to abandon their outfit and run four miles for life. The men part of the time were up to their waists in water and slush with the ice cracking and giving away.

Off Pigeoning, on Saginaw bay, S. G. Maloney, a school principal, had spent much of his leisure time during the winter fishing in a shanty more than five miles out on the bay, was completely cut off from land when the ice field began to move. He tied a handkerchief to a long pole and with this signal a distress attracted the attention of two Indians who, with a boat, went to his rescue. Chasms opened beyond him as he ran to meet the rescuing Indians and he fell into the icy water many times. When he reached the Indians his shanty had disappeared.

DRIFTS ACROSS OCEAN. Bottle Dropped by Peary Off Greenland Is Picked Up Off Coast of Ireland.

LONDON, March 16.—A bottle which was thrown overboard from Commander Peary's Arctic ship Roosevelt off Greenland on September 2, 1909, was picked up off Kinsale, Ireland, today. A letter enclosed in the bottle and addressed to E. Millan of Frankfort on the Main, says that the bottle was set adrift with the object of ascertaining the rate of the current on the Labrador coast.

STUDENTS STUDY BIBLE

"WAVE OF PIETY" ROLLS OVER UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN.

Visits and Lectures by World Renowned Religious Leaders Effect Concrete Results.

MADISON, Wis., March 16.—[Special.]—Recent reports that nearly 250 students at the University of Wisconsin were "converted" by John R. Mott, general secretary of the World's Christian Student federation, who spent a week in an evangelical work here, seem to be borne out by the authoritative announcement made today, giving exact figures.

Two hundred and ten persons attending the university have "made decisions" which mean that they voluntarily have promised to lead a Christian life. Of these, about thirty are women. While this changed condition will undoubtedly augment the attendance of students at the various churches in the city, more concrete results will be found in the formation of about fourteen groups of fraternity Bible study classes and perhaps a dozen similar classes in various boarding and rooming houses round the campus. The leaders in these classes will be faculty men and upper classmen.

While this "wave of piety" has been caused largely by the inspiring and eloquent addresses delivered by Mr. Mott, it is also the result of the visits of other religious speakers who have appeared at all-university convocations and who also have spoken, with the permission of the university authorities, on secular subjects to various classes. Among these are Prof. Black of Union Theological seminary, New York; Bishop W. F. MacDowell of the Methodist Episcopal church, and Chancellor Frank Strong of the University of Kansas.

In addition to these, Bishop J. J. Kane of the Catholic diocese of Wyoming will hold a series of meetings at the new St. Paul's university chapel and probably the Episcopal church will be represented later by a speaker to be selected by Bishop Webb of Milwaukee. The university Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. also continue their work with the student body.

CLUBMAN KILLS SELF.

Frisco Millionaire Commits Suicide While Crossing Atlantic Ocean on Board the Oceanic.

NEW YORK, March 16.—That Willis E. Davis, millionaire clubman and artist of San Francisco, who died on the White Star liner Oceanic, when she was on her way to this port, was a suicide was the information brought here today with the arrival of the steamer.

The first news of Davis' death reached here a few days ago in a dispatch from San Francisco to the effect that F. W. Van Sicken, brother-in-law of Davis, had received word that Davis had died on the Oceanic from heart disease. The dispatch added that Davis had gone aboard a short while ago and that his wife had died on the other side.

"Davis was found dead in his state-room on Saturday afternoon. A pistol thrust into his mouth had sent a bullet through the top of his head. At the time the shot was fired nearly all the first cabin passengers were on deck, and the shot was not heard. When the vessel reached here today, there were few passengers who were aware of the tragedy. It is said that Davis had been suffering for some time from congestion of the lungs.

KING NAMES ABRUZZI.

Duke Will Represent Victor Emmanuel at International Exposition in Buenos Ayres.

ROME, March 16.—King Victor Emmanuel will be represented at the International exposition at Buenos Ayres by the Duke of the Abruzzi, who will sail in April aboard a battleship, either the Roma or the Pisa. On the homeward trip the duke probably will visit the United States. The King has decided to give a dinner in honor of former President Roosevelt upon the occasion of the latter's visit to this city. The guests will include Mrs. Roosevelt, Kermit and Miss Ethel, American Ambassador Leishman, other members of the American embassy, and Count Guicciardini, minister of foreign affairs.

CATCHES $2000 QUARRY.

Rhineland (Wis.) Police Chief Nabs Much Wanted Montana Fugitive from Justice.

RHINELANDER, Wis., March 16.—[Special.]—Chief of Police Straub today arrested John Murphy, alias Wendell Roe, Smith and Jones. Murphy obtained goods under false pretenses here and was caught in the act. When arrested he told the chief that there was a reward of $2000 on his head in Montana. The sheriff of Price county is here for Murphy, who is wanted at Prentice for forgery. Murphy will be held here pending word from Montana officials.

CO-EDS TO BE EDITORS.

Young Women Will Publish University of Wisconsin Daily Paper. MADISON, Wis., March 16.—Young women will edit the Daily Cardinal, the university publication, on Thursday. It will mark the second time in the history of the paper that it has been given over entirely into the hands of the female journalists to do with it as they will. Why they chose St. Patrick's day for being speculated upon, some suggesting that it is a fitting day for an effective withholding of the "shillalah." The paper will make its appearance in a garb of shimmering green and will be brightened by a number of cuts and cartoons.

WHAT'S THE USE

Sticking to a Habit When It Means Discomfort? Old King Coffee knocks subjects out tolerably flat at times, and there is no possible doubt of what did it. A Mich. woman gives her experience: "I used to have liver trouble nearly all of the time and took medicine which relieved me only for a little while. Then every once in a while I would be suddenly doubled up with an awful agony in my stomach. It seemed as though every time I took a breath I would die. No one could suffer any more and live."

"Finally I got down so sick with catarrh of the stomach that I could not turn over in bed, and my stomach did not digest even milk. The doctor finally told me that if I did not give up drinking coffee I would surely die, but I felt I could not give it up."

"However, Husband brought home a package of Postum and it was made strictly according to directions. It was the only thing that would stay on my stomach, and I soon got so I liked it very much."

"Gradually I began to get better, and week by week gained in strength and health. Now I am in perfect condition and I am convinced that the whole cause of my trouble was coffee drinking, and my getting better was due to leaving off coffee and taking Postum."

"A short time ago I tasted some coffee and found, to my astonishment, that I did not care anything about it. I never have to take medicine any more. I hope you will use this letter for the benefit of those suffering from the poisonous effects of coffee." Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pgs. "There's a Reason." What Prof. Shaw, the Well-Known Agriculturist, Says About It—
"I would sooner raise cattle in Western Canada than in the corn belt of the United States. Feed is cheaper and climate better for the purpose. Our market will improve faster than your farmers will. The supplies of wheat can be increased up to the limit of 100 million bushels in the International zone. We will be taken at a rate of 100 bushels per acre. We have enough people to grow it. Sixteen alone who want homes to take up the land." Nearly 70,000 Americans will enter and make their homes in Western Canada this year. 1909 produced another large group of wheat, oats and barley, in addition to which the cattle exports was an immense item. The cattle raisers, dairymen, farmers and grain growers in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Free homestead and pre-emption areas, as well as lands held by railway and land companies, will provide homes for 100,000 people. Adaptable soil, healthful climate, splendid schools and churches, and good railways. Alabastine comes in all sorts of rich, soft shades of color that enable you to decorate your walls in the same style as the handsome city houses. Alabastine is a powder made from pure native alabaster, you mix it with clear cold water and apply it with a flat wall brush. Simple directions printed on every package. Anyone can do it. Then when you want to redecorate, just put the new coat over the old.

That saves a lot of work, trouble and money. People do not like kalsomine, as all kalsomine is mixed with glue to make it stick. The glue rots and the kalsomine comes off on your clothes and on the floor. Alabastine adheres to the wall of its own cementing qualities. It requires no dirty glue, nor paste, as with kalsomine or wall paper. These always attract insects and disease germs.

LOCUSTS DUE IN 1911.

Entomologist Warns Those Who Plan to Set Out Trees This Year.

That a large brood of seventeen-year locusts is due to appear in the Hudson valley in 1911 is asserted by E. P. Felt, New York state entomologist, who says: "These insects may seriously injure, if not ruin, young trees; consequently those planning to set out trees the coming spring should avoid, so far as possible, putting them in localities where this insect is abundant. The seventeen-year locust injures trees by depositing its eggs in numerous slits, usually in last year's wood. It is certainly advisable not to trim too closely the coming spring and to leave an abundance of wood the following year to offset in some measure the natural pruning necessarily following locust injury.

"This species has been reported in the Hudson valley from New York north to Saratoga and Washington counties, it being extremely abundant in a number of localities. The northern range of this species, based on the records of 1843, is given as Schuylerville and Fort Miller. In Rockland county it was very abundant at Palisades on the Hudson and Nyack, while in Westchester county it occurred in great numbers north to Croton. It was also very numerous on the eastern end of Long Island and on Staten island.

Tiny Baby's Pitiful Case.

"Our baby when two months old was suffering with terrible eczema from head to foot, all over her body. The baby looked just like a skinned rabbit. We were unable to put clothes on her. At first it seemed to be a few matted pimples. They would break the skin and peel off, leaving the underneath skin red as though it were scalded. Then a few more pimples would appear and spread all over the body, leaving the baby all raw without skin from head to foot. On top of her head there appeared a heavy scab a quarter of an inch thick. It was awful to see so small a baby look as she did. Imagine! The doctor was afraid to put his hands to the child. We tried several doctors' remedies but all failed.

"Then we decided to try Cuticura. By using the Cuticura Ointment we softened the scab and it came off. Under this, where the real matter was, by washing with the Cuticura Soap and applying the Cuticura Ointment, a new skin soon appeared. We also gave baby four drops of the Cuticura Resolvent three times daily. After three days you could see the baby gaining a little skin which would peel off and heal underneath. Now the baby is four months old. She is a fine picture of a fat little baby and all is well. We only used one cake of Cuticura Soap, two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and one bottle of Cuticura Resolvent. If people would know what Cuticura is there would be few suffering with eczema. Mrs. Joseph Kossmann, 7 St. John's Place, Ridgewood Heights, L. I., N. Y., Apr. 30 and May 4, 1909."

"Why, surely that should make him sing well!"—Flegende Blaetter.

TOOK NAIL FROM LUNG.

Forceps Used Through Windpipe with Aid of X-Ray.

One of the rarest surgical operations was performed in the Beth Israel hospital. A brass headed nail an inch long, located with X-rays, was taken from the lungs of 12-year-old Jacob Miller, Jr. of 40 Essex street. The boy suffered intense pain for five weeks and many doctors had tried in vain to diagnose his case. His parents had been told by a fortune teller that he would be playing with his companions within a day or two, the doctors at the hospital say, but he will in the future be careful not to swallow a nail. Fear that he had succumbed by his parents caused him to conceal the cause of his violent coughing. He was near death when his father took the lad to the hospital. Dr. Francis Huber, in charge of the children's department, after hearing the history of his case, ordered an X-ray examination.

Ordinarily after the X-ray picture is taken the physicians depend in operating upon locating the object to be removed by means of the X-ray, but yesterday Dr. Huber used a different method for the first time. He had the boy taken to the X-ray room on the fourth floor of the institution and placed on a small table with the X-ray tube underneath it. Dr. S. Hingst, the radiologist, took his place in another room and made ready to use the light. Dividing this room from the room where the operation was to be done was a partition of lead 2 inches thick, for protection from the intense rays of the light. A small window was in the partition, and placed in a diagonal position inside this window was a small mirror. By means of this mirror Dr. Hingst regulated the electrical current in accordance with Dr. Huber's instructions.

When all was ready the boy was given an anesthetic and his windpipe was opened. A fluoroscopic screen, a sort of range finder, was placed on the chest of the boy, and by this means the location of the nail could be plainly seen. Guided by the shadow of the X-rays a delicate long forceps was introduced into the windpipe and drawn into the shadow of the tubes. The shadow of the forceps was seen by the watchers to advance gradually and touch the shadow of the nail. In less than a second the nail was being grasped. The boy's lungs and out through the windpipe.

Dr. Huber was assisted in the operation by Dr. Solomon Horowitz, the house physician. A number of negatives was made of the exposure clearly showing the nail to be given to the American Academy of Medicine.—New York World.

PARISIAN PROCESS BY WHICH THE WHOLE WHEAT GRAIN IS USED.

Parisian bread is made without flour in a machine that separates the wheat into dough. The machine consists mainly of a large screw turning loosely in a case on whose inner surface is a screw thread running in an opposite direction. Between the main threads on the cylinder are smaller threads, and the depth of the groove grows progressively smaller from one end to the other, so that it will hold the entire wheat grain as it enters the machine and will accommodate only the pulverized wheat at the exit.

The wheat is prepared by a thorough washing, after which about a pint of tepid water to a pound of grain is added, and the whole is allowed to stand about six hours at the end of this time the grains of wheat have swollen to double their ordinary size. It is then mixed with the yeast and salt and poured into the machine. It falls between the fixed contrary screw, which simultaneously crush the envelope and body of the grain, making of them a homogeneous mixture which forms a smooth paste.

Bread obtained by this process contains a succession of holes whose size increases as they approach the crust, which is thin. The odor given off is most agreeable and far more pronounced than that of ordinary bakers' bread.—Chicago Tribune.

THE PANAMA CASE APPEALED.

On the last day allowed under the law the government decided to appeal its famous libel suit against the New York World to a higher jurisdiction. The suit is a result of Theodore Roosevelt's impetuous move against the critics of his Panama policy, and it is easily believable that Mr. Taft has little sympathy with its purpose. There was never any public support behind it. Few who understood the case expect that an adverse decision of the circuit court will be overruled. Yet it is better that the suit be allowed to go to the highest jurisdiction in order that the principle involved may be settled beyond dispute for all time.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE PARIS MORGUE.

After many months of discussion the future whereabouts and arrangements of the Paris morgue have been concluded. To Parisians proud of the beauty of their city the morgue has been an eyesore. The ugly little building in which the bodies of the unclaimed dead of Paris have been kept till burial is to be

HOW PEOPLE KISS.

Six Styles, from Rubbing to Holy Kiss for Mother.

"I have been keeping tabs on the different kinds of kissers who come in here," said Gustav Melhauser, the big porter at the piers of the Hamburg-American line, at the foot of First street, Hoboken, "and have found that there are six general types and many varieties.

"To begin with, there is the whisker kiss, or the Russian kiss, which is given by one man to another. The kissers enfold each other in a giant embrace and putting whiskers to whiskers, kiss each other on the cheeks. M. Witte, the Russian who came over to settle up the Japanese row, gave us the best example of this when he was in Hoboken. I know that stoutest fellow, the Russian and the Asiatic people bordering on the Russian states when they meet their brothers and friends here have this same masculine kiss, but sometimes bestow it on the ladies.

"The sweetest kiss is distinct from the husband and wife kiss. I can tell German sweethearts from German wives as far as I can see or hear their kisses. I can see the energy of the kiss given in Minnesota, and have found that they stand on the dock waiting and watching to catch sight of Gretchen on the ship. When she comes down the plank and—yes, throws herself, that's the word—into his arms, you can hear the smack of that kiss half way down the pier, a sound to give strength and courage to every male thing that hears it explode.

"There is the 'sent for' kiss! The scared, doubtful kiss of the girl who has come to America to marry a man she has never seen. Perhaps she has been introduced to him by some mutual friend in a letter. Some Swedish man in Minnesota, and some really steady old schoolteacher to find him some girl in 'Sma'land' that will make him a good wife—and here she is. When they finally find each other, and after due inspection, exchange salutes, it makes one think, generally, of the touching of two icicles.

"Then there is the wifely kiss; you all know that, with its varieties of jealousy and trust; and the kiss of elopers, who have stolen away from each other as they set foot on free American soil—a sort of congratulatory that they are at last safe—not knowing that the police of Hoboken and the customs inspectors and immigration authorities have a description of them and are only waiting for this signal to grab them.

"And last, there is the holy kiss of the good boy who has come here, made money enough to send for his old mother, and greets her with a kiss down the gangplank with the light of wonder and hope in her old eyes, he having come a thousand miles, or two thousand miles, across country to guide her to the new home he has made for her."—New York World.

THE CARE OF PARROTS.

Proper Food and Cage—Teaching Bird to Talk.

A parrot from time immemorial has been the pet and plaything of men, women and children, and chiefly beloved—one knows not why—of royalty, prima donna and eminent men of science. It is well known that parrots attain a great age, and there is still one living, still belonged to George IV., and he far from being the oldest bird in England!

There is yet another illustrious parrot who has gained considerable fame in having gained the room of a famous London nerve specialist, and the patient to "kiss him quick" and "have done with it," and has even been heard to murmur "fine girl" after the exit of a lady from the room.

Whether parrots do or do not know what they are talking about is a moot question, but the writers of these lines has at least had personal acquaintance with one parrot who had glimmerings of sense.

To leave parrots in particular for parrots in general the question arises: What is the best way to treat them?

As to their food, it should be seeds—canary, hemp (but not too much), millet, and maize, mixed rape and the like. Bread soaked in hot water is good, given twice a day, and fruit in moderation and in variety is wholesome, such as grapes, apples and pears, an occasional raisin and nut.

Gray parrots are very fond of rice, and almost all parrots appreciate rice pudding, and have a taste too for bread and butter. Meat is bad for them. Clean, fresh food should be given them to gnaw, bits of elm, birch, larch and chestnut. Fresh dry gravel must be sprinkled at the bottom of the cage every day and fresh water be put in the glass.

It is important that parrots should have the opportunity to stand flat footed. So if the cage has wires at the bottom it is well to remove them. Always to have his claws clasping a round perch is injurious to any bird, and two perches of different size are advisable, so that he may change his posture at will.

When a parrot continues to scream he wants water or food, or feels ill and uncomfortable, or maybe is merely doing Music, which he loves, will cheer him up at all times.

A parrot learns to talk only from one who speaks very slowly and distinctly to him, and preferably when he is about to sleep. Last, but not least, a parrot should be carefully covered at night.—London Daily Mail.

WORTH KNOWING.

Simple Remedy That Anyone Can Prepare at Home.

Most people are more or less subject to coughs and colds. A simple remedy that will break up a cold quickly and cure any cough that is curable is made by mixing two ounces of Glycerine, a half-ounce of Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure and eight ounces of pure Whisky. You can get these in any good drug store and easily mix them in a large bottle. The mixture is highly recommended by the Leach Chemical Co. of Cincinnati, who prepare the genuine Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure for dispensing.

Some Habits of the Fly.

Concerning his experiences while studying the life and habits of the house fly, Henry Hill, the well known lecturer, says in the London Standard: "I wish I could explain why a fly never walks down, but always up, a clean window pane, and why, on the other hand, it will walk down the slanting glass front of a picture. It is also a mystery to me why a fly always rests head downward on a wall. These are habits of the house fly which offer a field for interesting study.

ON THE PACIFIC COAST.

A valuable gold cup, set with diamonds, given sixteen years ago to Solano county, Cal., for making the best exhibition at the midwinter fair, was stolen from a case in the rooms of the California Development board, in Ferry building, San Francisco. Within sight of the desks of several officers of the board the robbers removed the plate glass from the safe in which the cup rested and extracted the valuable trophy. The police think women acted as accomplices and got away with the plunder, as the safe is near the women's room and the electric light was found burning in the room. The trophy was valued at $5000. The police have small hope of recovering the cup, as the robbers will undoubtedly extract the jewels and melt the cup for sale as bullion.

Of Course

If you don't make your selection of Wall Paper from a line or collection of Wall Papers that is full of very splendid designs, of splendid Quality, containing all the good things of all that is New, why your selection can't possibly be as up-to-the-minute as it ought to be—as attractive, artistic, good.

BUT—if you make it a point to look over

Orrell
Wall Papers

you will be looking at Papers that are the finest of their kind—all new and dependably good.

AND Prices you will pay the lowest possible prices at which papers of such character can possibly be sold.

NOW send for me that I may show these Orrell Wall Papers to you.

WEST BEND MARBLE
and GRANITE WORKS.

Having installed a pneumatic plant at my works, I cordially invite you to visit my place of business at any time when convenient, to see the new cutting and lettering device. With this new plant I am able to do work considerably faster than by the former hand method, and can therefore give you better prices on all kinds of work. Soliciting a share of your business and thanking you for past patronage.

Home Folks

Like to have good things to eat and to drink. They help make life worth living. Hundreds of Kewaskum families count upon a supply of

Lithia Bottled Beer

As a staple household provision and something that they feel they cannot well do without.

In one sense it is a luxury, but in others it is not. It is surely a cheer and a comfort, yet its low cost places it within reach of every family. And it furnishes much more than passing pleasure, for in it there is both nourishment and tonic.

Sometimes you break your glasses

Or the mainspring of your watch, or a ring, and then you need our services—badly. Maybe you want a rush job done.

Bring it here. Tell us to hurry, and we will oblige you at the earliest possible moment.

That is what we keep a repair shop for. We like to be busy, and you can't very well work us too hard.

The little job that brings us cents is accepted as gladly as something with more money in it.

Please remember this when you require the services of a jewelry fixer.
