Only two more weeks for the opening of the season. The local club will have a practice game to-morrow. All candidates are requested to report. The local association requests all fans and spectators to enter the ball park at the school house gate, as a ticket office will be erected there.

Otto E. Lay having resigned as manager of the local baseball club, President Wollensak called a special meeting last Monday, when Geo. H. Schmidt was elected to fill the vacancy.

President J. A. Anderson of the Cent. Wis. League was in the village Tuesday to look over the local grounds. Besides a few minor changes he reports the local field in good condition. He also visited the other towns in the circuit on Wednesday and Thursday.

The local ball club will make its debut to the village to-morrow Sunday, afternoon, when they will line up against the strong Campbellsport ball team. A good game can be expected. Doyle of the locals last year's team, will do the twirling for the visitors and Jeske will do the stunts for the locals. The game will be called at 3 o'clock. The regular admission price 25 and 15 cts will be charged. Everybody enter grounds at school house gate.

CONGRESS IN SESSION.

In the Senate.

The Senate proceeded with the consideration of the railroad bill on the 13th. An amendment was agreed upon permitting complainants to appear as parties to a suit upon the proposed commerce court. this action being taken in accordance with views of opponents of the measure.

After devoting two hours to the rail-tract system.

Discussion of the rivers and harbors bill occupied the Senate during most of the session on the 18th.

The rivers and harbors bill carrying appropriations of $52,500,000 kas passed by the Senate on the 19th.

In the House.

Various bills of local interest through-out the country, especially in relation to the land laws, were passed by the House on the 13th.

The President on the 14th was requested to send to Congress any facts in his possession which might make inadvisable any investigation of the sugar trust frauds, unless in his judgment such action might be incompatible with the in-terests of public service. A speech by Mr. Rainey of Illinois, dealing with the sugar trust and charging that Attorney General Wickersham and Henry W. Taft, brother of the President, had certain legal connections with the trust, at-tracted considerable attention. Representative Mann concluded his opening speech on the railroad bill and Mr. Adamson of Georgia, senior minority member of the committee on interstate and foreign commerce, spoke in opposi-tion to the measure.

By 149 to 69 the House on the 15th sed to pass a bill giving to Maj.-Gen. Daniel E. Sickles the rank and pay of lieutenant general, United States army, retired. The House passed a bill declar-ing that Gen. Fred D. #### DICTATES SCORES OF LETTERS TO STENOGRAPHER.

ATTNANG-PUCHHEIM, Upper Austria, April 20.-(Aboard Roosevelt Train) -Although it was after midnight when the train bearing the Roosevelt party left Budapest, the colonel was up at 7 o'clock today.

During the stop at Vienna, he got out and walked up and down the station platform for half an hour. As the train left Vienna, a heavy fall of rain obscured the landscape and Mr. Roosevelt turned his attention to a vast accumulation of correspondence.

For three hours the former President dictated without interruption to his stenographer. The letters and telegrams which reach Mr. Roosevelt increase in number daily. While many are from friends and acquaintances in America and Europe the maiority are from perand Europe, the majority are from per-sons of whom the recipient has never known. Many are received from those known to Mr. Roosevelt only by reputa-tion. A feature of these letters is the unanimity with which the writers look to the former President for leadership of any cause in which they are interested. From Constantinople came an appeal for aid in the establishment there of an American college for girls. The request for a change of itinerary that would per-mit Mr. Roosevelt to visit their particular city or town received from number-less correspondents are very insistent. Upon leaving Budapest, Mr. Roosevelt was obliged to decline the invitation of the Bavarian government made through the Bavarian minister at the Austrian court, to stop over several hours in Mu-nich today.

Can't Please Everybody.

The manager of an asbestos mill in the west conceived a novel idea for New Year's announcements. He had them printed on thin asbestos and enclosed n envelopes of the same material. As he was uncertain of the correct addresses of some of the stockholders, he ordered his stenographer to write on each envelope "Please Forward. The idea was clever, but one may appreciate the feelings of the widow of one of the stockholders when she received an asbestos envelope addressed to her late husband, with the inscription "Please forward" beneath the address.-Lippincott's.

Democrats Cheer Election News and Republicans Applaud When Cannon Calls Turn.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 20.-With mock seriousness, Representative Rucker of Missouri, a Democrat, arose to make parliamentary inquiry soon aft-er the House convened today. "Has the House yet heard that the Second district of New York had an elec-tion yesterday?" asked Mr. Rucker. When the Democratic demonstration, precipitated by the engregation that a precipitated by the suggestion that a Democrat had been elected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of a Re publican member, had ceased, Speaker Cannon, with equal gravity, replied: "Answering the parliamentary inquiry the chair observes that one side of the House and the gentleman from Missour seem to be enthusiastic.

Then raising his voice, the speaker added prophetically. "He laughs best who laughs last."

It was then the turn of the Republic ans to laugh and applaud and the Demo-crats good naturedly joined in laughter of the Republicans.

TRY TO SETTLE STRIKE

Executive Committee of Philadelphia Union Holds Session to Clear Traction Misunderstanding.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 20. -After a conference which lasted practically all of Tuesday night, the executive committee of the street carmen's local union went into session again today in an endeavor to clear away the misunderstanding of the terms of settlement which ended the car strike in this city. C. A. Pratt, national organ-izer of the carmen's union, who conducted the strike, returned here today from Detroit and attended the meeting. The Philadelphia Rapid Transit company has announced that the men who turned in their badges and collected back wages during the strike cannot be classed strikers and therefore do not come within the settlement agreement which provided that all strikers should be reinstated and those not given regular runs shall be paid $2 a day. The strike lead-ers and the men generally take the oppo-

CHAPTER XIX.

A search party was quickly organized. Langrishe took a guide and went in one direction and Montresor and the Duke went with Heironymous in another.

The threatened storm still kept off, but the sky presented an appearance that was far from reassuring.

Montresor walked in silence save when be raised his voice, as they all did from time to time, to shout Denzilia's name aloud. But no answer came, except an occasional echo.

Kenneth talked incessantly. He could not forgive himself for having left the girl to come alone.

"What could I do?" he asked despairingly, "when she told me plainly that she wanted to be alone."

"You should have kept at a respectful distance, but you should not have lost sight of her," returned Montresor pitilessly.

They toiled on. It was now beginning to get dark. Heironymous walked on ahead out of earshot.

The Duke presently began again.

"I asked her to marry me, and she refused me."

Montresor said nothing. He was not in a mood to feign condoleness he did not feel.

"She was very sweet and gentle," Kenneth went on, more for the relief of talking than for enlisting Montresor's sympathy. "But she said her mind was quite made up; she did not think she would ever marry. I shall never marry either."

"You will think better of that by-andby," Montresor said, with an effort at kindliness "and so will she, for that matter."

"She will not think better enough of it to marry me," replied Kenneth. "She spoke very decidedly. She told me-it just shows what she is-sne said it was only fair to tell me so that I need not go on buoying myself up with false hopes, that she cared for somebody else. Somebody who had once loved her, but who, because of her own fault, had ceased to do so, and now despised her. I love her, Montresor," the Duke repeated with sad earnestness. "I love her as I have never loved anybody before! I will make her love me! I will make her, Montresor!"

Presently the guide stopped for a moment and held up his hand. They listened, but there was no response to Heironymous' jodelling. After a few minutes of intense listening they walked on again. A very distant growl of thunder now increased their fears.

For ten minutes they walked in silence. Then Heironymous having once again got ahead of them, the Duke began again his tale of love and sorrow. He expatiated on his hopes and fears until at last his normally sanguine temperament began once more to gain the ascendancy over him. He had in imand the Duke to do, for the doctor had been already sent for. Langrishe had not yet returned from his search. But neither of the two young men could go to bed, and the Duke in his misery clung to his friend's companionship for solace. For a time Montresor listened in silence, as they sat in the empty smoking be an invalid for months perhaps, but room waiting for news, to the Duke's reiteration of his feelings, of his love, and of his grief.

"She is so young and so beautiful, and I love her so," the young man said with a break in his honest voice. "She surely cannot die! If she will only live I will make her love me!" Suddenly Montresor spoke.

His voice was harsh and unsteady, and he looked out of the window at the distant mountain peaks which the morning sun was just illuminating.

"I ought to tell you something, Ken-neth," he said. The Duke turned round and looked at him with surprise. He had no suspicion of what was coming. Montresor paused moment and then went on desperately: "I am the man who loved and treated Denzilia Lavenham like a scoundrel!"

"You!" cried Kenneth, starting back and gazing at his friend as if he suspected him of having taken leave of his senses. "You!" "Yes, I!" Montresor answered more steadily now. "Then you are a villain!" exclaimed the duke furiously. He flung himself down o nthe sofa with his head in his hands. "And she loves you!" he added with something like a sob. "I love her!" said Montresor, as if the words were wrung from him. "At least

Cast in the bronze from the cannon of opposing Chilians and Argentinians, it was placed on the boundary line of the two nations in March, 1904, as a symbol of the perpetual peace which should thenceforth prevail between them. It stands a colossal figure, 26 feet in height, placed on a gigantic column surmounted by a globe, on which the con-figuration of the earth is outlined. One hand holds a cross and the other is extended in blessing. At the base are two tablets, one inscribed with the history of the monument and the other bearing in Spanish the following legend:

"Sooner shall these mountains crumble and Chili break the peace to which they ed that her husband bathed only four have pledged themselves at the feet of Christ the Redeemer."

History Writing Unprofitable.

I cannot recommend the profession of historian as a means of gaining a iven-hood, writes J. F. Rhodes in Historical Essays. Bancroft and Parkman, who had a good deal of popularity, spent more money in the collection and copying of documents than they ever received as incomes from their histories. A young reer and with his living in part to be reer and with his living in part to be earned, went for advice to Carl Schurz, who was very fond of him. "What is your aim?" asked Mr. Schurz. "I pro-pose being a historian," was the reply. "Ah!" laughed Schurz, "you are adopting an aristocratic profession, "one which re-oures a rent roll." quires a rent roll.

LADY GRANARD'S TACT.

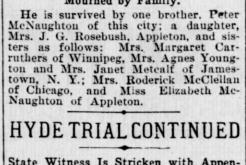

It Is Winning Her Many Friends in Ireland.

The Countess of Granard has rechristened her magnificent house known as Mortimer house, which was a wedding present from her father, and in future it will be known as Forbes house, after the family name of the Granards. Decorators are putting in their finishing touches in accordance with her individual and charming taste, but it is doubtful if the house will be ready for occupancy until May. Then Lady Granard will give an informal house warming for her compa-triots only. She will not give any big entertainments or entertain for the government until almost the end of the sea son, owing to the family mourning. Now she is winning a large circle of friends in contradistinction to her manner at first, which was aggressive, and which was criticized even by Americans. Lady Gra-nard has toned down considerably of late, and she has become quite popular in the neighborhood of Forbes castle, the family place in Ireland, and has received many cifts from the warm hearted poor many gifts from the warm-hearted peo-ple of Newton Forbes. In the meantime she is nursing her baby like a good, oldfashioned mother in the house they are temporarily occupying in Mayfair, where she receives a few intimate friends.— London dispatch New York American.

How the bottle of whisky got into the center of the huge maple tree is a mystery that even the oldest settler is unable to solve. At no place about it was there any cavity, and counting the rings of wood from the place where the bottle was lodged, each one of which represents a year's growth of the tree, it must have been there thirty years. MADISON, Wis., April 19. - [Spe cial.]-The Chicago theatrical man who came to witness the play "In Germland," given by students of the university Monday night, found that there is much merit in the play, but in its present form it is unavailable for him because it is nothing more than a clever advertising for a certain kind of vacuum cleaner. Th fact that the professors of the University of Wisconsin passed judgment on the play and accepted it is regarded something as a joke, as the play is the work of a clever vacuum cleaner booster in

"At a theatrical performance in a small town near Lodz, in Russia, the house was well filled, and the entertainment was proceeding to the evident satisfaction of the peasant audience," says Die Zeit of Vienna, "when a man arose in his place and said in a loud tone of voice: 'Please stop the play a few min-utes; I must look to my horses.' He walked rapidly to the door, and the director, recognizing him as the most im-portant citizen of the place, had the curtain lowered. #### GERMANY AND CANADIAN WHEAT.

Looks to the Canadian West for Her Supply.

A dispatch from Winnipeg, Manitoba, dated March 18, 1910, says that Germany is "anxious to secure a share of Canadian wheat to supply her imports of that cereal." The recent adjustment of the trade relations with Germany has made it possible to carry on a Canadian-German trade with much fewer restrictions than in the past, and considerable development of trade between the two countries is now certain. The great men of the United States are alive to the wheat situation in this country now, and there is consequently the deepest interest in every feature that will tend to increase and conserve the wheat supply. With its present 650,000,000 bushel production of wheat and all efforts to increase it almost unavailing, and the rapidly growing consumpthe anxiety as to where the wheat is to come from that will feed the na-

Aids Nature

The great success of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in curing weak stomachs, wasted bodies, weak lungs, and obstinate and lingering coughs, is based on the recognition of the fundamental truth that "Golden Medical Discovery" supplies Nature with body-building, tissue-repairing, muscle-making materials, in condensed and concentrated form. With this help Nature supplies the necessary strength to the stomach to digest food, build up the body and thereby throw off lingering obstinate coughs. The "Discovery" re-establishes the digestive and nutritive organs in sound health, purifies and enriches the blood, and nourishes the nerves-in short establishes sound vigorous health.

If your dealer offers something " Just as good," it is probably better FOR HIM .... it pays better. But you are thinking of the cure not the profit, so there's nothing "just as good" for you. Say so.

AN UP-TO-DATE STOVE

Do you realize there is no longer any reason why you should use a coal range? Oil is cheaper than coal; it is lighter and easier to handle, and gives an intense heat. Provided you have the right stove, oil is more economical, cleaner and less trouble. Have you seen the

The accompanying illustration gives you only a rough idea of its appearance. You really can't appreciate it until you either use it yourself, or talk to someone who has used it. It does everything that a coal range will do-except heat the room. The New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove will do anything, from heating a kettle of water to cooking a course dinner, but it won't heat a room. It doesn't "smell," it doesn't smoke. It can't get out of order. Light it and it is ready. Turn it down and it is cut. Only a woman who knows the trouble of carrying coal and cooking in a hot kitchen can appreciate what it means to have a clean, perfect stove that will cook anything, boil, bake or roast, and yet won't heat the kitchen. How is it done? The flame is controlled in turquoise-blue enamel chimneys, and directed against the bottom of pot, pan, kettle or oven, and only there. The flame operates exactly where it is needed -and nowhere else. With this stove your kitchen is cool.

The nickel finish with the bright blue of the chimneys makes the stove ornamental and attractive. Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.
