Dr. Driessel Wins His Case.

Judge Lueck rendered his decision last Monday at the opening of the special term of court of the slander suit in which Dr. Driessel of Barton was the plaintiff and Dr. Urkart of this city defendant. The case was tried at the March term of the circuit court and the jury brought in a verdict assessing $75 damages against the defendant but found that the words were spoken without malice. Both plaintiff and defendant moved for judgement on the verdict. The judge finds that the verdict of the jury is an unequivocal determination that the defendant made false statements, and that the plaintiff is entitled to judgement in the sum of $750 damages as found by the jury and his costs.-West Bend

CONGRESS IN SESSION. In the Senate.

The Senate made material progress with the railroad bill on the 1st, adopting several amendments and rejecting others. Among the provisions accepted were two by Senators Simmons and Burton prohibiting railroad companies from reducing rates to destroy water competi-tion. An amendment suggested by Sen-ator Burton imposing a penalty of $5000 upon carriers for divulging information concerning shipments also was accepted. An amendment by Mr. Bailey re-enact-ing the commodities clause of the Hep-burn act was rejected. Mr. Bailey free-ly criticised the supreme court. Senaly criticised the supreme court. Sena-tor La Follette's physical valuation amendment also was voted down.

A number of important amendments to the railroad bill were adopted by the Senate on the 2nd. Among these was one by Senator Overman of North Carlina prohibiting federal courts from granting interlocutory injunctions to suspend state laws, except upon an order of three judges, one of whom should be a member of the supreme court or a circuit judge. The provision including telegraph companies within the scope of the interstate commerce law was modified so as to prohibit the granting of telegraph franks and permitting special rates on press dispatches. The Senate on the 6th voted to take up for consideration the conservation bill authorizing the President, at his discre-tion, to withdraw from entry and settle-ment the public lands, thus sidetracking the bill admitting New Mexico and Arizona to statehood. Senator Hughes and other Democrats showed an inclination to charge bad faith on the part of the Republicans, because, as they said, there had been a tacit understanding to consider the question of statehood immediately after action upon the railroad bill. A number of Republican senators gave assurance that the statehood bill should be given first place on the calendar after the disposal of the conservation bill, but the Democrats were not satisfied with these statements. Senator Nelson sharply criticised the conservation policy, especially as applied to Alaska, which was Resident Commissioner Lar-rinaga declared that a majority of the Porto Ricans preferred the present law governing the islands to that proposed by the administration bill. The bill will be considered again next Wednesday.

The women's ward was in the basement, and the atmospheric conditions were stifling. There was no ventilation. The hospital kitchen adjoined the mortuary chamber, and the larder was in the bathroom. The clothes and soiled linen of the poorest classes of the population lay all over the floor, and the entire place was verminous. About 500 inmates were lodged in wooden sheds hastily put to-gether—the councillors described them as mere stables; and many tuberculous patients were being treated in these insalubrious jerry-built barracks. The sights they witnessed during their four hours' visit so affected the municipal councillors that they did not complete the inspection.

Mrs. Gayford threw her tennis racquet into the air and deftly caught it by the handle as it descended; then she turned to her partner.

"Thank you, Mr. Delmar. We have won the first prize, it seems, and entirely by your good play."

"Oh, no, Mrs. Gayford! You have helped me splendidly all through, and Whitemere and its tennis tournament should be charmed to welcome such an accomplished lady player in its courts."

The umpire was descending from his elevated position on a pair of steps, the scorer handing round the book to the spectators, when Mrs. Gayford and Delmar went up to thank them and speak to their defeated opponents. Though Mrs. Gayford had only resided in Whitemere a few months, she was already a general favorite among the male population; they were all at her feet, with the apparent exception of one, her late partner, Delmar. The ladies were one and all jealous of her; strange to say that symptom often manifests itself when a woman is young, pretty, and successful.

But they did not know much about her. Lady Broadhurst had pumped her as much as she dare concerning her past life, but she had gained little information for her trouble.

Mrs. Gayford generally evaded any questioning, and in consequence, what they could not understand, these ladies made up, and some charitable stories were circulated in the town.

Just now Lady Broadhurst was remarking to Judge Lynton-"I believe that woman would flirt eyes at Percy Simonds!" "Why do you ladies all dislike her so much? You seem to have formed a society to 'sit on' the poor little woman."

"I am surprised that you, with your keen perception and usually critical judgment, do not take her measure at a glance, Judge Lynton; but I suppose that at present you are like the rest of the men, and will one day find her out. For my part I don't believe there ever she is his widow? In my idea she is more like an actress out for a holiday!"

By turns Mrs. Gayford was an actress, a fortune, or a professional singer, only because, as she would pathetically say on hearing, as of course she did hear, haps lay claim to some little personal beauty, and was alone and unprotected.

"You remember you once told me that you wished to ask nothing of my past life, that if there was anything that required telling, you trusted it all to me . Then I will tell you about my first marriage. I was my parents' only child; they lived down in Devonshire, where my father was a large landowner. Five years ago I met the man Charles Gayford, afterwards my husband. My father much opposed the match-he said he was not steady, and that I was too coolness and greenness to be found in young; but, being just 21, I took the law into my own hands, and ran away from my home to be married. My for-tune of £10,000, inherited from my mother, I placed entirely under my husband's control, but before a month had passed I found the mistake I had made.

"I had married a gambler, the com-panion of cheats and roues. I will not dwell on the misery I endured during the year I lived with him. I loved him then, I hate him now; he would leave me for weeks in a third-rate lodging house, while he attended race meetings

"Sometimes he would leave me almost penniless, or when he gave me money he would curse me for wanting it.

"Well, during one of his absences at Monte Carlo my little girl was born. She lived but a week, and I was mourning her death, for I had thought what a companion she would be for me, when the news was sent me my husband had been killed in a drunken affray with some of his disreputable associates. Thank God I was free.

"While he was alive I had endeavored to be true to him; now that I had received that scrawl from one of his associates, whom I knew well, I was free to return to my own home. My father received me with open arms, but he lived only a week after my return.

"He had left me the whole of his fortune to do as I liked with, but I could not endure my old home. I rented it on a long lease, and took the residence in Whitemere where you first knew me. "That is my story, Bertram. If you can still love me, knowing me to be an undutiful daughter, the wife of a blackguard, I am willing to come to you." "My poor darling!" Delmar said pitifully, "your troubles are over; you have found a nest at last. You shall, if it is in my power to accomplish it, find perfect happiness."

How Catfish Caught Catfish.

Christopher Brummett, a farmer living south of town, caught a 9-pound catfish a few nights ago in a peculiar way. He says that he was fishing with two bamboo poles, one of them being set about 20 feet from where he was standing. He got bites on both hooks at the same time and pulled up the one nearest him. After having the fish out of the water the other pole was being pulled into the creek. He hurried to it and caught a catish weighing? pounds He had left catfish weighing 2 pounds. He had left a catfish 10 inches long on the other hook and when he returned to it there was a 9-pounder on it. The larger fish "Mildred, what matters it? Dry States Show That Liquor Is Sold and That There Is Great Demand for Drugs.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN IS QUOTED.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 8.—In addressing the annual convention of the United Brewers' association, Representative Boutell of Illinois today made an unqualified attack on prohibition. Three lessons, he said, were to be learned from the several states that had put prohibition laws into effect. These were, he contended:

That prohibition does not prohibit.
That when the open sale of mild beverages was forbidden the sales of strong spirits of an inferior quality greatly increased.

That there was an appalling increase, in prohibition states, in the demand for patent medicines, tonics and narcotic drugs.

He declared that prohibitory laws, whether effective or ineffective, were regarded by the wisest statesmen and philanthropists as out of harmony with the spirit of an ideal government of an enlightened free people.

"Is the use of beer by the citizen?"

Representative Boutell enquired, "what Lincoln said it was, 'that which is exclusively his own business,' or in the language of the English philosopher Mills, entirely 'a self regarding action,' or is it an action in wices to society. or is it an action injurious to society and therefore one that the state can forbid? In this country we first reversed the wisdom of the ages and agreed that the majority should not interfere by secular legislation with any man's religion. Now we are also quite agreed that the majority shall not encroach on the individual in his choice of food, apparel, amusements, and occupations

Temperance Is Advancing.

He concluded by saying that fortunately the cause of genuine temperance was advancing rapidly. "Temperance in all things," he said "is the amulet worn by all those who suc-cessfully strive for the mastery. It is the crown of all human virtues. Temthe crown of all human virtues. to strength."

A feature of this afternoon's pro-gramme was the living flag in which several hundred children participated in the court house square. The affair was held under the auspices of the Women's Relief corp, which closed its annual meeting with a business session at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon. The ladies of the G. A. The most exciting event Tuesday afternoon occurred when a veteran offered a motion providing that any man who had seen service in the Civil war should be allowed to wear the bronze grand army button. The proposition was greeted with a storm of opposition and was not even allowed to come to a

IS A HOMELIKE PLACE

YOUNG WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSO-CIATION IN MILWAUKEE.

A Warm Welcome and Pleasant Surroundings Are Extended to Outof-Town Visitors.

One of the interesting sights in Mil waukee is the five story building of the Young Women's Christian association at 384 Jackson street, directly opposite the city postoffice.

All the year round this attractive clul house is full of busy, happy garis. Eightysix make their home there and the three upper floors remind one of a college dormitory-cozy rooms gay with banners and photographs, embroidery parties on the landing, and songs and music in the beautiful green parlors on the third floor, where they entertain their men friends The entire second floor is given over to the cafeteria, where hundreds lunch each noon between 12 and 2 o'clock. A moment's giance at the bill of face posted in the hall, a quick order at the steam table where all sorts of tempting hot things are hidden away in brig. metal pots and pans, a pause before ... snowy counter where fascinating salads, not breads and dainty desserts vie with each other in attractiveness, a cup of coffee or pot of tea added to the tray, a cneck from the cashier, and one ready to enjoy a luncheon by the win dow whence can be seen the sights of Wisconsin street at one's leisure. The moderate prices in both lunch oom and boarding home appeal most strongly to vis.tors in the city, especially to those who come for their summer va cation. The building is only five blocks from the lake and almost all of the rooms look out across the water. There are double and single rooms, up to date lavatories and bath rooms.

One room is reserved for travelers who are stranded and with whom everything has gone so wrong that the purse is ab-solutely empty. That room could tell some pitiful stories but most of them have a happy ending-work found or a gad return home. Last year 2979 trans.ents spent from one night to three weeks in the building and went home to sing its comforts to their friends.

At present there are 1500 girls and women in Milwaukee who belong to the Young Women's Christian association and pay their $1.00 or $5.00 membership fee, not only to secure for themselves the right to register for the classes in sewing, millinery, gymnastics, cooking or literature, but so that they may each do their part towards supporting the aggressive work which the association is doing among the poorer paid workers of the city. Each week the industrial secretary is brought in contact with over a thousand young girls at her daily meetings in the large factories. Extension clubs are held in various parts of the city and the association carries to those who cannot afford the carfare to come to the central building whatever social and educational work is desired.

Then there are the girls who come from all over the state and while they are still strangers need more than at any other time some social life to fill the long evenings and Sundays. The frequent entertainments, outings and home like Sunday afternoon gatherings mean a very great deal to these girls and many are the worth-while friends they make on these occasions.

TAFT'S ITALIAN COUSIN.

Disposition of a Little Girl by Omaha Juvenile Court.

President William H. Taft's little Italian cousin, Rosa Liberati, has just been taken away from her father, Edward Liberati, an Omaha tailor, because her parent beat her unmercifully, and by the juvenile court of Omaha has been placed in a private charitable institution where the father cannot see her except in the presence of the officials. The little girl is a granddaughter of the late Dr. John Solomon Taft of Greenville, N. C., a cousin of the President. Rosa is a little girl only 9 years of age. She played with children of whom her father did not approve and in turn was so severely beaten that the neighbors inter-Little Rosa's relationship to President Taft comes through mother, whose marriage to the Italian was the result of a pretty romance of ten years or so ago. At that time Liberati was an opera singer. While playing in Greenville he became ill and Dr. Taft was called to attend the case. The company went on its way and Liberati was removed to the Taft residence for treatment. Miss Lena, the doctor's daughter, helped nurse the young fellow, and each fell in love with the other, with the result that they were married heart, died from a broken heart at the Hospital for the Insane. The young woman was a member of a wealthy family in Finland and was engaged to mar-ry a young Finlander. The young man was supposed to be in Kenosha and the tinued his musical career until his voice failed. Then he settled down in Omaha the spring of 1906, expecting to be mar-ried on her arrival in Kenosha. When his wife died and since that time Liberati has continued to live there, with housekeeper to take care of the little girl. Doctor Taft, the grandfather, died some years ago, but his wife, grandmother of the little girl, is yet living in Greenville. Little Rosa will be kept in the institution in which the court placed her until her father gives assurances of good care and treatment.

Plant Watering Scheme.

Persons engaged in rearing household plants are often in a quandary when it is desired to leave the house temporarily without neglecting the plants. An arrangement can be readily rigged up so that the necessary water will be supplied to the soil automatically. Take a bowl of water, raise it well above the level of the plant to be watered by means of a book or pile of books. Twist several strands of common darning wool to-gether to form a long thread, and soak them in the water. If one end be hung over the bowl and the other end left in the water, a steady drip, drip will begin, and continue until the bowl is empty.— Dundee Advertiser.

Sixteen Years of Skin Disease.

"For sixteen long years I have been suffering with a bad case of skin disease. While a child there broke out a red sore on the legs just in back of my knees. It waxed from bad to worse, and at last I saw I had a bad skin disease. I tried many widely known doctors in different cities but to no satisfactory result. The plague bothered me more in warm weather than in winter and being on my leg joints it made it impossible for me to walk, and I was forced to stay indoors in the warmest weather. My hopes of recovery were by this time spent. Sleepless nights and restless days made life an unbearable burden. At last I was advised to try the Cuticura Remedies [Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills] and I did not need more than a trial to convince me that I was on the road of success this time. I bought two sets of the Cuticura Remedies and after these were gone I was a different man entirely. I am now the happiest man that there is at least one true cure for skin diseases. Leonard A. A STURDY FIGHTER. James W. Van Cleave Battled for Right and Justice. The death of James W. Van Cleave removes a sturdy fighter against the excesses of union labor. Thanks to him, the question of the boycott against his company, the Buck's Stove and Range company of St. Louis, was taken before the supreme court of the United States. When Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and William Morrison, the officials of the American Federation of Labor, announced that they were superior to any decrees of the supreme court of the United States and continued to violate its in-junctions not to boycott the Buck's Stove and Range company, they were promptly sentenced to jail for contempt of court.

Through the agency of the National Manufacturers' association, Mr. Van
Cleave waged a vigorous battle against such evils as the closed shop, the restric-tion of apprentices, the putting of need-less men on a job, etc. He was not only against what he called "follies and vices of labor utilons," but was also opposed "tyrannical and unpatriotic practices of certain captains of industry"—so he by note its position and its peculiarity bitterly fought the trusts. He is entitled and report observations to him. to a good deal of credit, even though he widespread has been the interest in the may have been an extremist in certain less strike. No one can deny the force of his final statement that "policy can never replace principle; that the United States will never stand for the less and the need-the appropriation for the payment of the cost of the messages, which come "Collect," and Capt. Knapp can devise no way to bring the flood of invited observation to an end. Therefore the directions, for the progress we are making away from the boycott and the need-States will never stand for the dema-gogue and the Socialist; that America is still America, and our constitution and our judiciary are still our bulwark." It is right and just that labor should have earnest, enthusiastic, and able leaders; and it is equally proper that the employ-ers of labor should have men like Mr. sound principles in the courts of law, according to the constitution.—New York Evening Post.

A mother writes saying: "Our children are all so much better and stronger than they ever were before we made a change in the character of the food. We have quit using potatoes three times a day with coffee and so much meat.

"Now we give the little folks some fruit, either fresh, stewed, or canned, some Grape-Nuts with cream, occasionally some soft boiled eggs, and some Postum for breakfast and supper. Then for dinner they have some meat and vegetables.

"It would be hard to realize the change in the children, they have grown so sturdy and strong, and we attribute this change to the food elements that, I understand, exist in Grape-Nuts and Postum.

"A short time ago my baby was teething and had a great deal of stomach and bowel trouble. Nothing seemed to agree with him until I tried Grape-Nuts softened and mixed with rich milk and he improved rapidly and got sturdy and well."

Selling wood for meat is the charge ndirectly brought against eight Chicago packers who have been arrested for violating the shortweight ordinance by in-cluding the sticks and other wood used in stretching and hanging carcasses for dressing. It is evident that dealers will have to take into account the weights of packing materials, in order to avoid prosecution for giving short weight; but it will be hard to beat the shrewd grocers and butchers who weigh their hands as they permit them to linger in the scale pans while complacently reading the figures on the bar. Nothing but immediate reweighing can defeat that game

Five million young wall-eyed pike from he state fish hatcheries have been "planted" in lakes Mendota and Monona at Madison. If they could all grow to eatable fish, there would be great sport in a few years on the lakes mentioned. But some of the fry go into the maws of other fish; some go out of existence from natural causes; and worse than all, some get into nets of illicit fishers before they have attained their majority as candidates for capture with ine and hook. If illicit fishing could be stopped the fish would multiply despite natural interferences.

The resignation of Associate Justice Mooly from the supreme court of the United States, furnishes evidence that the illness which forced his cessation from work nearly a year ago still holds him in its clutch. When he was named for the position by President Roosevelt in 1906 he was in the prime of life— fifty-three years of age and in vigorous physical condition. To have held on physical condition. To have held on after the hope of his early recovery had passed away would have embarrassed the court, which has a large accumulation of cases on its docket. Moody's retirement gives another oppor-tunity to President Taft to name a member of the court which finally interprets the Constitution of the United States.

People who have not closely followed the history of the Halley's comet episode of the present year of grace, might be induced to believe that it has resulted in a good joke at the expense of astronomers. But that notion is incorrect. By what has happened nobody but pseudo astronomers and sensational newspaper writers has been discomfited. All that real astronomers asserted regarding the omet has been borne out by what has occurred. And what has occurred on this occasion of the comet's visit, as real stronomers are aware, is very much like what has occurred before. Pepys has left in his Diary a record of the fact that at the end of 1682 he rose at two in the morning and scurried to a point of vantage in the suburbs to see the comet, and was unable to catch a glimpse of it;" and that he saw it later, and was disppointed because it had lost its tail, but nterested in it as duller and larger than any of the stars.

Having been within a short distance of the North pole with Peary, Capt. Bartlett of the Roosevelt is now ambi-tious to seek the South pole. But ac-cording to Lieut. Shackleton, and he ought to know something about it, conditions at the South pole are not at all like those described by those who have traveled within the northern polar circle. Lient. Shackleton says dogs cannot be used on the south, because the wind blows the snows along the ice cap so steadily that the animals would be blind-The eyes of ponies are above this drift, and that is why he used them. It is evident from this that would-be explorers from the north will have to unearn and learn over to some extent when they enter the Antarctic regions.

The sinking of the French submarine Pluviose seems to have resulted from recklessness on the part of her commander, who tried to make his craft dive under the passenger steamer which of sand is seen on one side, and on struck her a fatal blow. The incident will cause wonder why, after so much other Swiss touch to the scene. A has been said concerning ways and means for enabling men to escape in such contingencies, the crew of the Pluviose was without one of the contriv-ances described and pictured in technical lost and not a murmur but the echo of periodicals. It is due to those who go down to the sea and under the sea in such ships that every device that will increase the possibility of escape should be utilized.

to watch for the heavenly visitor, carefully note its position and its peculiarities, comet that incoming reports are swamp-ing the appropriation for the payment of propriation will probably need a tail in the form of a deficiency provision.

At a recent session in Boston of the Massachusetts committee which is investigating the milk business, a farmer of Central New Hampshire submitted figures under oath showing that with milk Van Cleave in their ranks ready to test and butter at present prices there is an actual loss on every cow of three dollars annually. A Massachusetts man testified that there is a loss to the producer for every cent less than five cents received for each quart of milk. This is said to be the cause of farm abandonment in New England and the reduction in the cattle population. During the past few years there has been a movement back to the abandoned farms of the east because of a belief that western enterprise can make the old farms pay; but these statements from New England farmers do not support that belief.

> Archaeologists will condole with the authorities of the University of New Mexico over the destruction by fire of Hadley hall, its science department, Albuquerque. A priceless collection of Indian and geological relies was destroyed with the building. The incident ought to warn owners of collections of this kind to keep them in fire-proof uildings, because every year adds to the value of relics by making it more difficult to secure them.

Lieut. Shackleton, who planted the British flag within a short distance of the South pole, declared in his Chicago lecture that he believes a tract of at least four million square miles in Antarctica is underlaid with coal deposits which possibly may be workable, in which event they would contribute tremendously toward the indefinite pro-Coal mining in the colder regions of the earth may eventually contribute to the fuel supply. Chicago's attention is called to the fact that Col. C. McD. Townsend, United States engineer in charge at Detroit, has orbidden further operations of dredgers and sandsuckers in St. Clair river, near ts mouth, because in his opinion the reloval of quantities of sand from this point tends to lower the level of lakes Michigan and Huron. The vote by which the Senate passed the bill authorizing the construction of two dreadnoughts was 39 to 26. The present estimate of the cost of each, cluding equipment, is $12,500,000. Be-sides these battleships the bill makes appropriations for the following: Two fleet colliers to cost not exceeding $1,000,000 each; five submarine torped boats, not exceeding a total of $2,500, 000; six torpedo boat destroyers to cost not exceeding $750,000 each. The peace policy which is buttressed by building battleships costs so much money that it increases the fierceness of the taxpayers fight for life.

And now it is a Minneapolis banker who is the clutches of the customs offi-cials at New York. An inspector disguised as a countryman bumped against him and discovered that he had jewelry in his pocket which he had not declared and which, when detected, he admitted he had purchased in Europe for his wife The banker has been placed under $2500 bail for examination before a commis sioner. If found guilty he will be not the last of a long line of American travelers including several ex-governors of states of the Union, who have fallen into serious trouble in the New York custom house. Collector Loeb, of course, is obliged to enforce the law, and sometimes there are flagrant attempts at downright smug-gling, which are indefensible from any standpoint. But in the present instance where family gifts are concerned, and in a very large number of instances where the bringing in of clothing and other personal belongings is challenged, and respectable citizens are subjected to prosecution as law-breakers, it does in deed seem as if they were the victims of legalized official outrage. The law should be made very liberal as to travelers bringing in their own clothing and trinkeepsakes for their friends.

CRATER LAKES OF MEXICO.

La Alberca and Zintora in the State of Guanajuato.

Mexico, with all her romance, has never given abroad any description of her crater lakes. Valle de Santiago, a little town of the state of Guanajuato boasts four of the most perfect and beautiful of such lakes.

The village nestles among elever craters. In the old days the town, which is an ancient one, was called the Town of Seven Candles, for the seven craters which surround it. The eleven craters mentioned by scientists are not well de fined, some having come up within the others at later periods, resulting in but seven well defined hills.

The four craters which contain lakes are all within a few miles of the city, but two, La Alberca and Zintora are within easy walking distance. Alberca is one of the lowest of the craters, and on one side a portion of the crater wall has fallen away so that the approach is very easy.

Half a mile across is the low line of the crater wall and down below it is the greenest of lakes, calm as a plate of glass. The tiny boat which plies the lake is on the opposite side, close below the walls of basalt which rim it. These walls, which rise nearly 100 feet above the surface of the lake, are part of the native rock, which was blown off like the cork of a bottle when the crater was formed. It rises sheer and erect above the lake on every side.

The other crater lake which one can visit conveniently is the Zintora, which is approached after a long climb up its high sides; the lake glistens deep at the bottom with sloping sides covered with green leading down to it. A tiny beach of sand is seen on one side, and or other Swiss touch to the scene. A background of a towering peak, one of the Seven Candles, rises a short distance away, and in the great hollow of one's own voice from across the crater.

nearly a mile away, is heard. The calm restfulness of a crater lake is unlike anything else in the world. One finds lakes and solitary pools in forests or mountains fastnesses, and the calm One of the best jokes of this comet there is akin to witchery, but they are season is on Capt. Knapp, chief hydrographer at Washington, who sent out a general appeal to navigators asking them. But in a crater lake there is not a But in a crater lake there is not a breath that will stir it, and even a stone cast into its bosom creates ripple that seem as though they would be swallowed ere they are born. Peace is a word without a meaning until one lies silent on the slope of such a crater with such a lake at his feet .- Mexican Heraldo.

A PEARL BUTTON TOWN.

Making Them Is the Chief Industry of Muscatine, Ia.

Muscatine, Ia., which may be found by tracing with your finger down along map of the Mississippi river, is the place where they make pearl buttons out of clam shells, according to a citizen of that thrifty town, R. L. Oliver, who is at the Imperial. Mr. Oliver does not make pearl buttons, however. The com-pany he is in makes sash and doors and similar things.

"I have heard it said," he continued. "that 70 per cent. of the pearl buttons made in the United States are manu-factured in Muscatine. There are thirty factories engaged in the business there Some only cut out the forms and some only do the finishing. They have house-boats on the river from which they fish for the clams. These are the genuine fresh water clams from which they often get the fresh water pearl. I heard of a fellow who sold one of these pearls for about $2000. I offered a man $500 for one he had found in a clam. "The way they fish is to put a lot of hooks on a pole about three or four inches apart. Then the pole is sunk to the bottom of the river and the clams open their faces and grab hold of the hooks and haven't the brain to let go. It is not uncommon to see a fleet of a dozen of these clam fishers on the river The meat of the clams is not edible and has to be cleaned out before the shell is sold. Most of the work in the button factories is done by girls. They don't make the pearl vest buttons, I under-stand, but simply the kind that is used on shirts and underwear.

"Muscantine," Mr. Oliver added, "is the best town of its size in the country It has 20,000 inhabitants and there nobody in the place that you'll meet on the streets on a Saturday afternoon who cannot rattle money in this pock-

Parlor Car for Horses.

The shipment of gentlemen's fancy horses is quite a feature in England, and cars for that purpose are built for three horses and have a groom room in front of the horses' heads. The stalls are pad-ded and the horses are so arranged that, if desired, by opening a shutter they can look into the groom's compartment, and it is claimed that a high grade horse in constant company with his groom will not fret during transportation. The total weight of these horse cars is not over ten tons .- Consular Report.

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. < R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a- million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases. Every sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, absolutely without charge.
