LOSE IN THE THIRTEENTH

Locals Defeated by League Leaders in a Thirteen Inning Contest. Schleisingerville Defeats Richfield. Double Header Here Tomorrow.

In one of the most interesting games of baseball ever played on the home grounds, the locals were defeated by the Aherns of Fond du Lac last Sunday in a thirteen inning game by a score of 6 to 4. The game was one worth while seeing, and was noted for its errors, good fielding, daring baserunning and heavy hitting. It was a game that gave the spectators all they could expect.

The runs of both teams were scored as follows: Aherns, one in the 1st, one in the 4th, two in the 5th and were then blanked until the 13th when they scored two runs on 2 errors which won their game. The locals scored two in the 1st and two in the 9th. Although the locals had several chances to score which would have won the game, stupid baserunning spoiled all.

Gardner and Zickert were on the mound for the visitors, while Fohey and Reinke were their opponents. Fohey had his man out-classed at all times, while Zickert could not hold a candle to Reinke's catching. With any kind of support the locals would have had a walk away.

The features of the game was the pitching of Fohey who struck out ten men and also got three hits, and the running catch by Choats, the Aherns center fielder, who got a ball in center garden in the 12th which robbed Fohey of a sure two base hit.

Score by innings

Kewaskum	2	0	0

Schmidt and Schaefer both let an easy one get away which was costly.

NOTES

Only one Ahren stole a base. Hard luck is the cause of defeat. Every player on the home team had an error.

Fohey was there both with the stick and sphere. Slinger tomorrow in a double-header, first game called at 1:30 sharp.

Aherns centerfielder robbing Fohey of a sure two bagger in the 12th practically won the game for Fondy.

SCHLEISINGERVILLE WINS
Schleisingerville turned tricks upon Richfield last Sunday by defeating them at Schleisingerville by the overwhelming score of 12 to 3. By winning this game Slinger regained second place. Laubenheimer for Richfield was batted hard while Deneen for Slinger held his opponents safe throughout the whole game. He also received fairly good support.

SLINGER TOMORROW
Tomorrow, Sunday, a double-header will be pulled off on the home grounds, Schleisingerville and Kewaskum being the opposing teams. One of these games is a postponed game which was to have been played here in May. The locals will line up as follows: Schmidt 1st, Berger 2nd, Backus ss, Koch 3rd, Reinke c, Rosenheimer lf, Taylor cf, Schaefer rf, Fohey will pitch the first game and Schaefer the second. A neutral umpire will also be on the grounds. Everybody turn out and see these 2 big games as both teams are evenly matched. If the locals win they will jump into 2nd place so be sure and be on hand to cheer them to victory. Remember two games for one admission price. First game will start at 1:30 P. M. sharp.

$150,000 LOSS IN FIRE AT ALLENTON

Twenty Buildings in Heart of Village Destroyed by Flames Starting in General Store.

The entire business section of Allenton except that west of the railroad tracks was wiped out by a fire on Saturday. About twenty buildings were destroyed. The loss is estimated at $150,000.

The fire started on the second floor of the general store of John Ruplinger & Co. The cause has not been determined. No fire fighting apparatus was available, and the flames spread down the street, destroying everything in their path, until they reached the railway tracks, where they burned themselves out.

Following is a list of owners of properties destroyed: Store of J. Ruplinger & Co, also warehouses and barns of said firm, Saloon, dwelling and barn of Chas. Duffrin, harness shop of Jos. Kirsch, butchershop of Weinert and Gehhardt, dwelling of Mr. Gehhardt, dwelling of Mrs. A. Kirsch, building of Allenton State Bank, Post-office building, confectionery store of Mrs. Nodell, saloon, hotel and barn of Wm. Zimmer, dwelling of J. G. Miller, dwelling, blacksmith shop and barn of Peter Van Beek, saloon, dwelling and telephone exchange of Mike Schmit, hardware store, warehouse, dwelling and barn of the A. Endlich estate, residence of J. A. Christnacht, saloon, hotel, hall, dance hall and livery barn of John Kreilkamp, Fire house and dwelling of P. Pirsch.

Following is the loss sustained and insurance carried: J. Ruplinger & Co., loss $50,000; insurance $28,000; Jos. Kirsch, loss $6,000; insurance $3,500; Carl Duffrin, loss about $8,000, insurance $3,000; Weinert & Gehhardt, loss $5,000, insurance $1,700; Mrs. Anna Kirsch, loss $3,000, insurance $2,000; Allenton State Bank, loss $4,000, insurance $2,000; Wm. Zimmer, loss $12,000, insurance $5,000; J. G. Miller loss $6,000, insurance $3,700; Peter Van Beek loss $6,000, insurance $2,600; Mich. Schmitt loss $7,000, insurance $3,000; Mrs. A. L. Endlich loss $12,000, insurance $4,000; J. H. Kreilkamp loss $12,000, insurance $6,700; J. A. Christnacht loss $5,000, insurance $2,500. Besides the above, various other persons lost all their belongings. Jos. Wolf, who lived with his father-in-law, Mr. Christnacht, lost everything, including a trunk full of silverware, loss $1,000; no insurance. N. Gebhardt living in rear of meat market, lost all of his household furniture.

Overcome by the Heat.

Anton Schaefer of this city while taking part in the parade with the Hartford Fire Department band, at the State Firemen's convention in South Milwaukee yesterday forenoon, was overcome by the heat. He dropped out from the parade and after lying down on the grass for a time was able to go to the local firemen headquarters. About one o'clock he became so ill again that a physician had to be sent for. However, after sleeping until five o'clock, he was able to accompany the boys to Milwaukee and arrived home this morning. He became worse again this forenoon, but at the time of going to press this afternoon we were informed that he was getting along nicely.—Hartford Times.

Jewson Residence Burns.

The residence of Fisher Jewson at Fond du Lac was totally destroyed by fire Monday morning. The cause is a mystery as Mr. F. Jewson and family were out of the city. Chief Fire Marshal Charles Doll is of the opinion that the house was entered and has placed the matter in the hands of Chief of Police F. A. Nolan. The loss is in the neighborhood of $800 and is fully covered by insurance. Mr. Jewson formerly lived at New Prospect.

Obituary.

Mrs. Gustina Klukas, an aged and respected resident of this vicinity died last Friday, June 24th, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Ramthun, two miles east of here, of general debility. She was eighty-five years, nine months and twenty days old. The funeral was held from the Ev. Luth. St. Lucas church at 10 A. M. Monday, Rev. F. Greve officiating.

Fire Insurance Agents Meet.

The Union Mutual Fire Underwriters' Association of Wisconsin held its annual convention at the Palmer House at Fond du Lac last Wednesday. About thirty agents representing insurance companies in the state writing insurance on city and village property were in attendance.

The morning session was devoted to an informal discussion of plans relative to the insurance business. After the agents had banqueted at the Palmer at noon the session was continued at 2 o'clock. At the afternoon session the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Nathan Haessly of Theresa.

First vice president—Joseph Schmidt of Kewaskum.

Second vice president—A. Caldwell of Oconto.

Secretary—H. A. Wrucke, Campbellsport.

Carl Neubauer Drowns.

Carl, the 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Neubauer, residing on a farm north of the village of Barton drowned in Wallace's Lake near Barton last week Thursday. The boy in company with a few friends went to the lake to take a bath when he was taken with cramps and drowned in sight of his companions. Carl was the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Neubauer and was born in town of Kewaskum, where his parents lived on the old Schneider farm south of here. The funeral took place from the Catholic church at Barton last Saturday.

Otto Moritz is the proud owner of a handsome Buick automobile, which he purchased from the Theresa Auto Supply Co.

Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Sell returned last Wednesday after a weeks visit with the Herman Verzansky family at Juneau.

Our little hamlet was aroused early last Saturday morning by the sound of the fire bell when it was discovered that an old house belonging to Otto Moritz was ablaze. The Fire Co. responded promptly and after an hour's hard labor had the fire under control. When the fire was discovered, it had gained such headway that the roof was almost burned away and the new house which stood about a rod away was in great danger of being destroyed also. The origin of the fire is unknown, but is supposed to have started from the chimney. Mr. Moritz wishes to express his thanks to the fire company for their prompt action and to those who assisted in saving his residence from destruction.

Postal Savings Banks.

To encourage saving and enable persons earning small wages to place their savings in a bank and receive interest, the bill signed by President Taft on Saturday provides that any person 10 years old or more may, in his or her own name, open an account with one dollar in any postal savings depository. Married women may open accounts in their own names and free from any control or interference by their husbands. No one, however, will be allowed to deposit more than $100 in any one calendar month.

As deposits of less than $1 will not be received, any person may purchase for 10 cents a card, to which may be attached postage stamps, to be known as "postal savings stamps." When the value of the stamps placed on the card is $1, including the 10-cent postal card it will be accepted at the savings bank and placed to the credit of the depositor.

Interest at 2 per cent per annum will be paid on all deposits, but no interest will be allowed on fractions of a dollar. The balance to the credit of any person shall never exceed $500 exclusive of accumulated interest.

The postmaster general has been directed to prepare and issue the special stamps, and postoffices throughout the country will be selected and designated postal savings depository offices, where deposits will be received and withdrawals paid, with the accrued interest upon demand.

ADJOURNS SINE DIE

FIRST REGULAR SESSION SIXTY-FIRST CONGRESS COMES TO CLOSE.

TAFT'S PROGRAM IS PASSED

President Signs Harbor Bill, But Objects to System in Vogue—Gore's Bribe Charges to Be Probed During Recess.

Washington.—With President Taft's legislative program practically carried out in its entirety the first regular session of the Sixty-first congress adjourned sine die Saturday night.

signed the rivers and harbors bill, but sent a message to congress indicating that he had made up his mind to do so practically at the last minute of time at his disposal, so far as that measure was concerned.

Congress was warned that it must change its method of framing river and harbor improvement measures, and announcement is made that unless reforms which he suggests are carried out in future bills the withholding of executive approval will be justified, even though a rivers and harbors bill fall.

The president also signed without comment the postal savings bank bill, the omnibus public building bill, the latter carrying authorization for improvements aggregating $23,000,000, but leaving the items of appropriation to be attended to later, in connection with the regular estimates of the treasury department with respect to work authorized by congress.

There was little work remaining to be done when the two houses of congress met for the last day of the session. Practically everything of importance had been attended to except the general deficiency appropriation bill, which had become involved in the charges of attempted bribery made by Senator Gore of Oklahoma. The upshot of the recommitting of the last of the big appropriation measures to conference was the adoption of an amendment more drastic even than that of the Oklahoma senator had desired, providing that no contracts heretofore hereafter made affecting the tribal money or property of the Indian tribes shall be approved until further action by congress.

With this amendment, following the adoption of a resolution in the senate to have the Indian affairs committee investigate the contracts involved in the Gore charges, the general deficiency bill was passed by both houses. The one thing left pending when congress adjourned was the Appalachian forest reserve measure, upon which opponents in the senate prevented a vote.

For ten days after the president reaches his summer home at Beverly, according to an announcement made at the White House, he will attend to no business matters—make no appointments and have no political conferences, devoting the time to rest and recreation.

The only touch of excitement in the closing hours of the house came when Representative McGuire of Oklahoma arose to a question of personal privilege and offered a resolution directing an investigation of the charges of fraud and bribery in Indian contracts. A substitute amendment, offered by Representative Carter, more specific and stronger, was preferred by the house after promiscuous debate, which developed nothing of importance, except a widespread sentiment that a thorough inquiry should be made.

After a fight which had lasted almost from the beginning of the session of congress just ended Representative Martin (Dem.) of Colorado succeeded in securing an investigation by congress of his charges of fraud and maladministration in the sale of friar lands in the Philippines and of the entire interior department of the Philippine government by the house committee on insular affairs.

La Crosse, Wis.—Four persons are dead, a number seriously injured and about 400 slightly burned in attempting to escape from the burning hulk of the excursion steamer J. S., with 1,500 passengers aboard, which caught fire Saturday night in the Mississippi river 15 miles south of here.

The story of the rescue as told is that the steamer, when it finally reached Bad Ax island, where the passengers were able to escape ashore, was burning so fiercely that only 200 of the 1,500 aboard were able to go ashore on the gangplank. The other 1,200 or 1,300 passengers were forced to leap over the rail into water four or five feet deep and wade ashore, suffering terribly until they were able to reach the main land.

LA FOLLETTE SEES ROOSEVELT

SENATOR LEAVES COLONEL IN JUBILANT MOOD.

Declares Former President Is Greatest American Living and Is in Fighting Trim.

Oyster Bay.—Robert M. La Follette, United States senator from Wisconsin, spent two hours talking politics with Theodore Roosevelt. He left Oyster Bay wearing a broad smile.

Senator LaFollette arrived with G. E. Roe, a New York lawyer, who was formerly his law partner. Colonel Roosevelt's chauffeur was waiting for them, and whisked them away to Sagamore Hill. The senator had pulled his hat down over his eyes and tried to escape unseen. But he was caught fairly at it by a group of newspaper men. They tackled him on suspicion, although nobody recognized him, for his hat hid his famous pompadour.

"Not a word," he said. "I'm going to Sagamore Hill, but I don't want a word said about it."

When he returned, just in time to catch a train for New York, he was smiling his most expansive, persuasive smile. "It's all right, boys, he cried jocularly. "The colonel says I may talk with you."

"Did we talk politics?" he replied to the first question. "We did."

"We talked of the legislation of the present session of congress, from the attitude of those members of the Republican party whom the newspapers are pleased to call insurgents."

"Can you go into details?"

"No; I prefer that they come from Sagamore Hill. I am very much pleased with the result of my visit with Colonel Roosevelt, very much pleased, indeed."

The senator paused for a moment. Suddenly the smile left his face for the first time and he said impressively:

"I want to tell you that Colonel Roosevelt is the great living American, and," he added slowly and significantly, "he is in fighting trim."

ROB PASSENGERS ON TRAIN

Three Bandits Escape After Raid on Oregon Short Line in Ogden, Utah.

Ogden, Utah.—Three masked bandits held up the second section of Oregon Short Line train No. 1, northbound, which left Ogden at 1:30 a. m., in the northern part of this city. All of the passengers were robbed of their valuables and the express messenger was compelled to deliver the contents of the safe. The exact amount the robbers obtained has not been ascertained. Two passengers and two trainmen were injured.

After the train had been robbed the bandits fired into the air to frighten the passengers, got into their buggy and drove away. Sheriff Wilson gathered a small posse and started in pursuit.

Nearly 100 passengers were on the train and every one of them lost something.

PICTURE SHOW RUINS EYE

Omaha, Neb.—Over-indulgence in moving picture shows may cost Attorney C. W. Britt of Omaha his eyesight. He went to Clarkson hospital, where an operation was performed on his right eye by Dr. Harold Gifford Sunday.

Plickering of the moving pictures attended almost nightly for two months by Mr. Britt and members of his family is said to have aggravated former eye trouble. A growth under the lid of the right eye resulted. Mr. Britt was totally blind in the right eye before going to the hospital, but hoped that the operation would restore the sight.

Jackson, Tenn.—The Tennessee supreme court Saturday rendered a decision declaring the Memphis charter bill constitutional and upholding the commission form of government.

GETTING HER FITTED OUT FOR HER TRIP

TAFT'S SON RUNS DOWN MAN

LABORER IS BADLY HURT BY AUTOMOBILE.

Hospital Reports Say There Is Evidence That Workman Is Seriously Injured.

Beverly, Mass.—One of President Taft's automobiles, driven by his son, Robert T. Taft, ran over and seriously injured a street laborer.

At the hospital it was said there were indications that the workman's skull was fractured.

Robert, with two college friends, Lendall King of Minneapolis, and George Harrison of Washington, started out from the summer White House for a spin along the Massachusetts north shore.

Robert, who has been driving the automobiles about the city considerably since his arrival last week, was at the steering wheel.

At Pride's crossing, about two miles from home, the streets were being oiled by a gang of men. The automobile was slowed down. The horn sounded and most of the men stepped aside.

One of them, however, was not quite quick enough, and the machine struck him, tossing him into the gutter. He was unconscious when picked up by young Taft and his two friends.

GEN. FUNSTON NEAR DEATH

Army Officer Dangerously Ill of Heart Disease at His Home in Kansas.

Leavenworth, Kan.—Gen. Frederick Funston, commandant of the army service schools here, is dangerously ill with an attack of heart disease at his home here.

General Funston's condition is such that the post army physicians and the best-trained nurses in the hospital are in constant attendance upon him. Mrs. Funston, who is in California, was notified of the general's condition Friday.

General Funston is suffering from angina pectoris. It was learned that he has been subject to slight heart trouble for some time, and it is believed that the heat of the last week brought on the present severe attack.

speculators Form Corner in Product and Hope to Realize Big Profits Next Winter.

Newark, N. J.—Forty-five million eggs have been shipped into this city since April 1 and placed in cold storage by the warehousemen, to remain there until the high prices of last winter are duplicated. They were purchased at an average price of 23½ cents a dozen, and the total cost is about twenty-six cents a dozen. If the eggs can be retailed in New York next winter at 45 cents a dozen—which they fetched last winter—there will be a profit of 19 cents a dozen, or a total of something over $700,000.

20 MEXICAN SOLDIERS SLAIN

Four Cars of Transport Train Are Wrecked After Wild Dash Down Steep Grade.

Mexico City.—Twenty federal soldiers are reported to have been killed and many more than that number injured when four cars of a train in which the troops were being transported on the Manzanillo line of the national railway in the State of Colima broke loose from the locomotive and dashed down a steep grade.

Storm Makes Many Homeless.

Whitesburg, Ky.—As the result of the worst storm which has ever visited southeastern Kentucky, over a hundred people were Monday rendered homeless and when a full report is made of the storm it is feared that several persons have lost their lives in the flood. The middle fork of Beaver creek overflowed its banks following the storm and swept away more than a score of homes of the farmers living along its banks. The loss it is estimated will run into millions of dollars.

CORN PLANTING IS OVER

THAT CANADIAN TRIP SHOULD NOW BE TAKEN.

If you had intended going to Canada for the purpose of purchasing land on which to establish a home and accompanying some land company, whose holdings you proposed to look over or to go up on your own account to select one hundred and sixty acres of land free, you should delay no longer. Corn-planting is over, your wheat crop is well ahead, and you have a few weeks' time before you are required in the fields again. Now make your intended trip. Reports at hand show that the crop prospects in Canada were never better than they are today. The cool weather has not affected the crop, but if anything, it has been a benefit. There has been plenty of moisture and those who have had their land properly prepared look upon this year as likely to be one of the best they have had. A great many are going up this season who expect to pay two or three dollars an acre more than they were asked to pay last year. Others who wish to homestead are prepared to go farther from the line of railway than would have been necessary last year. Still it is worth it. So it will be with you. Next year lands will be higher-priced and homesteads less accessible. There is a wonderful tide of immigration to Central Canada now. It is expected that one hundred and fifty thousand new settlers from the United States will be numbered by the end of the present year, an increase of fifty per cent over last year. In addition to this there will be upwards of one hundred thousand from the old country, which does not include those who may come from the northern countries of the Continent. These all intend to settle upon the land. The reader does not require an answer to the questions, "Why do they do it?" "Why are they going there in such large numbers?" Western Canada is no longer an experiment. The fact that one hundred and fifty million bushels of wheat were raised there last year as against ninety-five millions the year previous, shows that the tiller of the soil in Central Canada is making money and it is safe to say that he is making more money than can be made anywhere else on the Continent in the growing of grains. He gets good prices, he has a sure and a heavy crop, he enjoys splendid railway privileges, and he has also the advantages of schools and churches, and such other social life as may be found anywhere. It is difficult to say what district is the best. Some are preferred to others because there are friends already established. The Grand Trunk Pacific, on its way across the Continent, is opening up a splendid tract of land, which is being taken up rapidly. The other railways—the Canadian Pacific and Canadian Northern are extending branch lines into parts inaccessible a couple of years ago. With a perfect network of railways covering a large area of the agricultural lands it is not difficult to secure a location. Any agent of the Canadian Government will be pleased to render you assistance by advice and suggestion, and a good plan is to write or call upon him. The Government has located these agents at convenient points throughout the States, and their offices are well equipped with a full supply of maps and literature.

TRIUMPH FOR AMERICANS

German Campaign of Slander Against the Deutsche Vacuum Oil Company Fails.

Berlin.—The long and venomous campaign waged by German newspapers and rival industrial interests against one of the German branches of the Standard Oil company—the Deutsche Vacuum Oil company—has just been brought to a victorious end for the Americans involved.

A well-known Hamburg newspaper for months printed such a series of attacks on the "American graft methods" alleged to have been practised by the vacuum company in the conduct of its German business that the public prosecutor of Hamburg felt constrained to make an official investigation with a view to eventual indictments. The prosecutor has now concluded his investigation, especially of the work of E. L. Quarles, American manager of the German company's sales department, and announces that no necessity exists for pursuing the inquiry further.

No evidence of anything warranting prosecution was found against Mr. Quarles, and the costs of the entire inquiry will be borne by the state.

The result of the investigation constitutes a notable triumph for American interests in Germany.

It is not the first time that Germans, finding themselves unable to compete with Americans on ordinary terms, have resorted to slander.

SAY CHARLTON IS INSANE

Alienists Who Examined Wife Murderer Declare He Is Irresponsible for His Acts.

New York.—Porter Charlton, self-confessed slayer of his wife, Mrs. Mary Castle Charlton, whose body, stuffed in a trunk he tossed into Lake Como, Italy, may escape punishment for his crime.

Powerful influences were put at work Friday to save the prisoner, now locked up in the Hudson county jail at Jersey City, from being extradited to Italy.

Judge Charlton, the murderer's father, consulted with R. Floyd Clarke of this city and former Senator William D. Edwards of Jersey City, whom he retained on Thursday after getting word at Washington of the arrest of his son as he stepped from the steamer Princess Irene at Hoboken. At this conference it was decided to fight the extradition proceedings urged by the Italian charge d'affaires in a cablegram to his government at Rome.

The murderer's counsel have determined upon a defense of insanity to keep him from being removed from this country. Four alienists visited Charlton in his cell and watched him for five hours. When they emerged they said that he is without doubt insane and that his particular species of insanity is incurable.

QUASHES TRUST INDICTMENT

Judge Landis Sustains Demurrer of Defense in National Packing Company Case.

Chicago.—The indictment against the National Packing company and its ten subsidiary concerns charging them with conspiracy to restrain trade in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, was knocked out Thursday when Judge Keneshaw M. Landis in the United States district court sustained the demurrer filed against the indictment by the so-called beef trust.

A special venire of seventy-five men was ordered called for July 14. From this venire a grand jury will be drawn and a second investigation of the packing companies begun.

ADJOURNS SINE DIE

FIRST REGULAR SESSION SIXTY-FIRST CONGRESS COMES TO CLOSE.

Taft's Program Is Passed

President Signs Harbor Bill, But Objects to System in Vogue—Gore's Bribe Charges to Be Probed During Recess.

Washington.—With President Taft's legislative program practically carried out in its entirety the first regular session of the Sixty-first congress adjourned sine die Saturday night.

signed the rivers and harbors bill, but sent a message to congress indicating that he had made up his mind to do so practically at the last minute of time at his disposal, so far as that measure was concerned.

Congress was warned that it must change its method of framing river and harbor improvement measures, and announcement is made that unless reforms which he suggests are carried out in future bills the withholding of executive approval will be justified, even though a rivers and harbors bill fall.

The president also signed without comment the postal savings bank bill, the omnibus public building bill, the latter carrying authorization for improvements aggregating $23,000,000, but leaving the items of appropriation to be attended to later, in connection with the regular estimates of the treasury department with respect to work authorized by congress.

There was little work remaining to be done when the two houses of congress met for the last day of the session. Practically everything of importance had been attended to except the general deficiency appropriation bill, which had become involved in the charges of attempted bribery made by Senator Gore of Oklahoma. The upshot of the recommitting of the last of the big appropriation measures to conference was the adoption of an amendment more drastic even than that the Oklahoma senator had desired, providing that no contracts heretofore or hereafter made affecting the tribal money or property of the Indian tribes shall be approved until further action by congress.

With this amendment, following the adoption of a resolution in the senate to have the Indian affairs committee investigate the contracts involved in the Gore charges, the general deficiency bill was passed by both houses. The one thing left pending when congress adjourned was the Appalachian forest reserve measure, upon which opponents in the senate prevented a vote.

For ten days after the president reaches his summer home at Beverly, according to an announcement made at the White House, he will attend to no business matters—make no appointments and have no political conferences, devoting the time to rest and recreation.

The only touch of excitement in the closing hours of the house came when Representative McGuire of Oklahoma arose to a question of personal privilege and offered a resolution directing an investigation of the charges of fraud and bribery in Indian contracts. A substitute amendment, offered by Representative Carter, more specific and stronger, was preferred by the house after promiscuous debate, which developed nothing of importance, except a widespread sentiment that a thorough inquiry should be made.

After a fight which had lasted almost from the beginning of the session of congress just ended Representative Martin (Dem.) of Colorado succeeded in securing an investigation by congress of his charges of fraud and maladministration in the sale of friar lands in the Philippines and of the entire interior department of the Philippine government by the house committee on insular affairs.

1,500 IN SHIP FIRE PERIL

Four Dead, Number Seriously Injured and 400 Slightly Hurt—Result of Burning of Excursion Steamer.

La Crosse, Wis.—Four persons are dead, a number seriously injured and about 400 slightly burned in attempting to escape from the burning hulk of the excursion steamer J. S., with 1,500 passengers aboard, which caught fire Saturday night in the Mississippi river 15 miles south of here.

The story of the rescue as told is that the steamer, when it finally reached Bad Ax Island, where the passengers were able to escape ashore, was burning so fiercely that only 200 of the 1,500 aboard were able to get ashore on the gangplank. The other 1,200 or 1,300 passengers were forced to leap over the rail into water four or five feet deep and wade ashore, suffering terribly until they were able to reach the main land.

American Is Held Guilty. Bluefields.—William Pittman, the daring American, who was captured by the Madriz army during the fighting about Bluefields, more than a month ago, has been found guilty by a court-martial of conspiracy against the government, according to dispatches received here Monday. Pittman will be sentenced to at least ten years in the government prison at Managua. An effort will be made at once to induce the state department at Washington to check the execution of sentence.

LA FOLLETTE SEES ROOSEVELT

SENATOR LEAVES COLONEL IN JUBILANT MOOD.

Declares Former President Is Greatest American Living and Is in Fighting Trim.

Oyster Bay.—Robert M. La Follette, United States senator from Wisconsin, spent two hours talking politics with Theodore Roosevelt. He left Oyster Bay wearing a broad smile. Senator LaFollette arrived with G. E. Roe, a New York lawyer, who was formerly his law partner. Colonel Roosevelt's chauffeur was waiting for them, and whisked them away to Sagamore Hill. The senator had pulled his hat down over his eyes and tried to escape unseen. But he was caught fairly at it by a group of newspaper men. They tackled him on suspicion, although nobody recognized him, for his hat hid his famous pompadour.

"Not a word," he said. "I'm going to Sagamore Hill, but I don't want a word said about it."

When he returned, just in time to catch a train for New York, he was smiling his most expansive, persuasive smile. "It's all right, boys, he cried jocularly. "The colonel says I may talk with you."

"Did we talk politics?" he replied to the first question. "We did. "We talked of the legislation of the present session of congress, from the attitude of those members of the Republican party whom the newspapers are pleased to call insurgents." "Can you go into details?" "No; I prefer that they come from Sagamore Hill. I am very much pleased with the result of my visit with Colonel Roosevelt, very much pleased, indeed."

The senator paused for a moment. Suddenly the smile left his face for the first time and he said impressively: "I want to tell you that Colonel Roosevelt is the great living American, and," he added slowly and significantly, "he is in fighting trim."

ROB PASSENGERS ON TRAIN

Three Bandits Escape After Raid on Oregon Short Line in Ogden, Utah.

Ogden, Utah.—Three masked bandits held up the second section of Oregon Short Line train No. 1, northbound, which left Ogden at 1:30 a. m., in the northern part of this city. All of the passengers were robbed of their valuables and the express messenger was compelled to deliver the contents of the safe. The exact amount the robbers obtained has not been ascertained. Two passengers and two trainmen were injured.

After the train had been robbed the bandits fired into the air to frighten the passengers, got into their buggy and drove away. Sheriff Wilson gathered a small posse and started in pursuit.

Nearly 100 passengers were on the train and every one of them lost something.

Omaha, Neb.—Over-indulgence in moving picture shows may cost Attorney C. W. Britt of Omaha his eyesight. He went to Clarkson hospital, where an operation was performed on his right eye by Dr. Harold Gifford Sunday.

Fllickering of the moving pictures attended almost nightly for two months by Mr. Britt and members of his family is said to have aggravated former eye trouble. A growth under the lid of the right eye resulted. Mr. Britt was totally blind in the right eye before going to the hospital, but hoped that the operation would restore the sight.

Man Barricaded in His Georgia Home With Six Children Laid Low With Bullets.

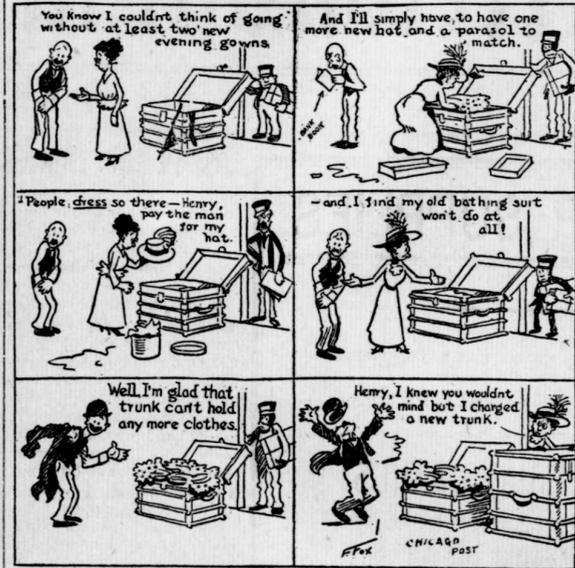

Atlanta, Ga.—After being barricaded in his house for many hours and killing two of his besiegers, W. T. Bostwick was killed by soldiers in a rush on his house near Irwinville, Ga. His six children were taken unhurt. Threats were made to burn Bostwick out of his house, but when it was seen that it could accomplish nothing that way the posse began firing. The military company came from Fitzgerald and went to the scene of the battle.

GETTING HER FITTED OUT FOR HER TRIP

LABORER IS BADLY HURT BY AUTOMOBILE.

Hospital Reports Say There Is Evidence That Workman Is Seriously Injured.

Beverly, Mass.—One of President Taft's automobiles, driven by his son, Robert T. Taft, ran over and seriously injured a street laborer.

At the hospital it was said there were indications that the workman's skull was fractured.

Robert, with two college friends, Jendall King of Minneapolis, and George Harrison of Washington, started out from the summer White House for a spin along the Massachusetts north shore.

Robert, who has been driving the automobiles about the city considerably since his arrival last week, was at the steering wheel.

At Pride's crossing, about two miles from home, the streets were being oiled by a gang of men. The automobile was slowed down. The horn sounded and most of the men stepped aside.

One of them, however, was not quite quick enough, and the machine struck him, tossing him into the gutter. He was unconscious when picked up by young Taft and his two friends.

GEN. FUNSTON NEAR DEATH

Army Officer Dangerously Ill of Heart Disease at His Home in Kansas.

Leavenworth, Kan.—Gen. Frederick Funston, commandant of the army service schools here, is dangerously ill with an attack of heart disease at his home here.

General Funston's condition is such that the post army physicians and the best-trained nurses in the hospital are in constant attendance upon him. Mrs. Funston, who is in California, was notified of the general's condition Friday.

General Funston is suffering from angina pectoris. It was learned that he has been subject to slight heart trouble for some time, and it is believed that the heat of the last week brought on the present severe attack.

Speculators Form Corner in Product and Hope to Realize Big Profits Next Winter.

Newark, N. J.—Forty-five million eggs have been shipped into this city since April 1 and placed in cold storage by the warehousemen, to remain there until the high prices of last winter are duplicated. They were purchased at an average price of 23½ cents a dozen, and the total cost is about twenty-six cents a dozen. If the eggs can be retailed in New York next winter at 45 cents a dozen—which they fetched last winter—there will be a profit of 19 cents a dozen, or a total of something over $700,000.

20 MEXICAN SOLDIERS SLAIN

Four Cars of Transport Train Are Wrecked After Wild Dash Down Steep Grade.

Mexico City.—Twenty federal soldiers are reported to have been killed and many more than that number injured when four cars of a train in which the troops were being transported on the Manzanillo line of the national railway in the State of Colima broke loose from the locomotive and dashed down a steep grade.

Storm Makes Many Homeless.

Whitesburg, Ky.—As the result of the worst storm which has ever visited southeastern Kentucky, over a hundred people were Monday rendered homeless and when a full report is made of the storm it is feared that several persons have lost their lives in the flood. The middle fork of Beaver creek overflowed its banks following the storm and swept away more than a score of homes of the farmers living along its banks. The loss is estimated will run into millions of dollars.

CORN PLANTING IS OVER

If you had intended going to Canada for the purpose of purchasing land on which to establish a home and accompanying some land company, whose holdings you proposed to look over or to go up on your own account to select one hundred and sixty acres of land free, you should delay no longer. Corn-planting is over, your wheat crop is well ahead, and you have a few weeks' time before you are required in the fields again. Now make your intended trip. Reports at hand show that the crop prospects in Canada were never better than they are today. The cool weather has not affected the crop, but if anything, it has been a benefit. There has been plenty of moisture and those who have had their land properly prepared look upon this year as likely to be one of the best they have had. A great many are going up this season who expect to pay two or three dollars an acre more than they were asked to pay last year. Others who wish to homestead are prepared to go farther from the line of railway than would have been necessary last year. Still it is worth it. So it will be with you. Next year lands will be higher-priced and homesteads less accessible. There is a wonderful tide of immigration to Central Canada now. It is expected that one hundred and fifty thousand new settlers from the United States will be numbered by the end of the present year, an increase of fifty per cent over last year. In addition to this there will be upwards of one hundred thousand from the old country, which does not include those who may come from the northern countries of the Continent. These all intend to settle upon the land. The reader does not require an answer to the questions, "Why do they do it?" "Why are they going there in such large numbers?" Western Canada is no longer an experiment. The fact that one hundred and fifty million bushels of wheat were raised there last year as against ninety-five millions the year previous, shows that the tiller of the soil in Central Canada is making money and it is safe to say that he is making more money than can be made anywhere else on the Continent in the growing of grains. He gets good prices, he has a sure and a heavy crop, he enjoys splendid railway privileges, and he has also the advantages of schools and churches and such other social life as may be found anywhere. Since the First Fourth

WE HAVE no written record to prove that the makers of the first Fourth of July were given to boasting about their possessions. If they were in the habit of writing letters to their English cousins, in which they casually referred to the fact that they owned a territory of over 297,000 square miles, or some five times as large as all England and Wales, neither Poor Richard nor any of the other dear old chroniclers made note of the fact.

But inasmuch as the colonists felt big enough and strong enough and rich enough to pitch into Great Britain, and, not only did pitch into her, but beat her after a fair fight, it would look to an unbiased person today as if the forefathers of the firecrackers had a pretty good opinion of themselves and of what they had in hand. It is quite likely that after the unpleasantness known as the Revolution, when the country was striding ahead with its commerce, was selling its cotton and its tobacco to every one that wore clothes or used the weed, they felt they had more reason to pat themselves on the back for the marvelous growth they showed before the eighteenth century was done.

But just supposing one of the framers of the Declaration could read over a few statistics and observe a few events that are at hand today! If you told him that since his day the country—his country—has increased more than ten times in area, more than 30 times in population, and more than a thousand times in wealth, would he take the news? Would he still assert, as some of our friends among the oldest inhabitants are prone to do, that the "good old days were best," or would he not be more likely to sally forth in search of the beads and make a peremptory demand for your incarceration as a dangerous lunatic?

Surely if truth is stranger than fiction figures are stranger still when measuring the vast strides that our country has taken since the Fourth of July, 1776. What one of the signers dreamed that in 1803, or less than 30 years after his ink dried upon that historic document, the United States would acquire a territory of 875,000 square miles, or nearly three times the size of all the 13 original states put together. But that was what we got when we bought Louisiana for $15,000,000. In 1819, when we took in Florida, we added more than 70,000 square miles to our area; in 1845 we took in Texas with its vast domain of 359,000 square miles; and within three years thereafter had absorbed Oregon and the Mexican concession, adding in round numbers 800,000 square miles more.

Every once in a little while Uncle Sam seemed to grow territorially hungry, and would lurch off a promising fragment of the continent. The Gadsden purchase of 36,000 square miles was made in 1853; Alaska was bought for $7,200,000 in 1867, adding nearly 600,000 square miles to our map, and in 1897 we took in the Hawaiian islands to prove that we were not discriminating against the Pacific ocean in the matter of our favor. Then all in a bunch, during the days of 1898 and 1899 we took in Porto Rico, Guam and the Philippines, and a few of the Samoan islands. The Sandwich islands were scarcely worth mentioning for they added only a wee mite to our real estate holdings—6,740 square miles, to be exact—and Porto Rico with its 3,600, and little Guam with its 175 might be left out altogether and we'd hardly notice that we had lost them.

The Philippines totaled about 143,000 square miles, and you'll hardly be able to suppress a smile when you are informed that the Samoan "islands" that we took over in 1899 had the enormous area of 73 square miles. But even at that there's plenty of room upon those little ocean dots for cable houses, dry docks and coal stations. A few thousand tons of coal stored at any one of those places may at some time in the future save the American battleship fleet and give it the power to overcome a foe in the far east. Thus, all told, when you add up the various breakfasts, luncheons, and dinners of new land that our uncle has enjoyed since 1776 we get the tidy showing of 2,936,731 square miles.

This new territory cost the United States treasury exactly $37,039,768, or about $30 a square mile. Add what we've bought to what we had during the Revolution, and you get a total of a little more than 3,000,000 square miles of territory.

The government figure experts, who ought to be the best on earth, for they get more pry than any other statisticians on the globe, calculate that the total wealth of the United States today is over $110,000,000,000. They have come to the conclusion, after going over acres and acres of numerals that every man, woman and child in the United States has $34.72. If you have not as much as that you should go to Washington and demand the difference from Maj. O. P. Austin, chief of the bureau of statistics. If every one who has more than $34.72 should go to Major Austin and "whack up" with him to the extent of every penny they have above that sum, he could make an exact distribution of our national wealth and everybody might be satisfied—for a minute. The calculation of what every one in a country ought to be worth is the estimation of what is known as the "per capita wealth."

According to the bureau of statistics' reckoning, you and I are worth a good deal more than we were in the days when the country was young. In 1800, or at the time when they have the first record of per capita wealth, the citizens of the United States were only worth $5 apiece. The gain in per capita wealth has not always been steady during the decades. Certain census years showed us poorer than during the previous ten years, but most of the time we have been getting along nicely, thank you. In 1810 we were worth $7.59 a head, 1820 had fallen to $6.94; in 1830 we were even a little poorer at $6.79, but in 1840 had jumped to $10.91.

In the middle of the century we had advanced to $12.02 apiece, and from that time on there were no more bargain drops or reductions whatever. But while we are talking of what we are worth per capita, it might not be amiss to mention the fact that every one of us here in the United States has also a debt per capita. In 1800 the per capita debt was $15.63, or more than three times as much as the wealth per capita. Now, thank goodness and the statisticians, we seem to be well out of the financial woods, for each and all of us has a per capita debt of only $10.76, or considerably less than one-third of what we own. With a showing like that we may be pationed if we take the day off and go celebrate.

The biggest figures that the government has compiled this year are probably found in the freight records. They are so colossal that they really mean nothing to any one outside of the railroad business, and perhaps not so very much to the railway expert except by way of comparison. Last year the railroads hauled 235,601,390, 103 tons of freight one mile. We cannot easily compare that showing with the amount of freight hauled during colonial days, for during colonial days railroad freight was not known. Possibly there were figures compiled showing how many pounds of freight were carried by the coastwise vessels or the ships that plied between American and English, Dutch, French, and Portuguese ports. If these figures were prepared, however, they have been lost in the dust of time and the world has been too busy to hunt for them.

In the year 1800 the United States coined all of $317,600 worth of gold. That was going quite a bit, one must acknowledge. Last year we converted $131,638,632; the silver coinage record was $224,294; last year it was $12,391,777.

More than $96,000,000 worth of gold was taken from our territory last year. In 1810 when the gold mining business was in its cradle, the production was $2,463, and even that amount is not vouched for as absolutely accurate.

In 1820 the pig iron production of the entire country was estimated at 20,000 tons; last year it was about 16,000,000.

In the year 1810 there were said to be 359 newspapers in the country, as compared with 21,320 at the present time. The records do not attempt to tell what kind of newspapers the editors printed 100 years ago, nor do they give any sworn statements of circulation.

The war department spent $2,560,000 in 1800 as against more than $175,000,000 last year.

The navy expended $3,448,000 in 1800, as compared with $118,000,000 last year, while the pension roll of the two years was $64,131 and $153,892,467.

Cotton consumed in 1800 amounted to 18,829 bales; now we use 4,500,000 bales. We are consuming more than 6,000,000,000 pounds of sugar a year just now; in 1860, the first recorded year, the consumption for the 12 months was 631,000,000 pounds. Almost equally enormous and unfathomable figures are produced to show the annual value of the stock products of the country.

Of farm animals there were produced for the market last year $4,525,259,000.

Half a century ago, when the statisticians first began to busy themselves about such things, the record was $544,180,000, showing that the farmer has been doing his duty by his country and his family as well as by the manufacturer, the miner, and the railroad man.

The postoffice has grown from an institution with 903 branches in 1800 to nearly 70,000 today.

The salaries paid public school teachers have increased from $37,000,000 in 1870, to $197,000,000 this year, and the number of telegrams sent over the wires has jumped from 9,000,000 40 years ago to 90,000,000, or thereabouts this year.

These figures, while eloquent, give but a faint idea of what has happened in our material welfare department within the space of 134 Fourths of July. With airships floating, or about to float, above the cities; with messages to Mars almost released and answered, with radium ready to revolutionize the scientific world—why is it not fair to presume that before 134 more anniversaries occur the United States will show even more marvelous progress in the world of nations?

Words That Are Out of Style.

Most old English words have fallen from their high estate and are now banned in the best society, at any rate in Mayfair and Belgravia. Of these is the Saxon word "lady," which we are told is derived from "loaf-giver."

In 1910 we speak of a "woman" and the word "lady" has become almost a term of reproach. A young single woman is a girl—pronounced "gyrl"—as the name "young lady" is reserved for barmaids, shop hands and telephone operators.

Then the word "dress" used to describe the outer garment of our mothers and grandmothers, but "gowns" and "frocks" are worn by women of the twentieth century. Also we may talk of "relations," but not of "relatives;" and the most venerable of rooster must be called a "chicken," as the word "fowl" has sunk almost to the level of low language.—Queen.

People of Other Planets.

Calculations as to the size required for human beings on the other planets vary widely according to the basis of reckoning. According to those based upon the attraction of gravity, Jupiter should be peopled by pygmies of 28 inches. Wolfius, on the other hand, argued that Goliath himself would be accounted decidedly undersized upon that planet. He worked from the feebleness of the sun's light there, which would demand, that the pupil of the eye should be, much more dilatable. Since the pupil stands in constant proportion to the ball of the eye, and that to the entire body, said Wolfius, a little calculation shows that an average Jovian must be nearly thirteen feet seven inches tall—not quite four inches shorter than Og, king of Bashan, according to the measure of his bedstead given in Deuteronomy.

Male Fashions in 1850.
Male fashions of 60 years ago had other discomforts besides long hair. Trousers were tight and buttoned under the foot with broad straps. Every man who aspired to be well dressed wore his coat so high in the collar that the back of the hat rested upon it. This fashion was so prevalent that, according to Sir Algernon West, "every hat had a crescent of cloth on the back of the brim to prevent the rubbing of the beaver, or imitation beaver, of which the hat was made, for silk hats were not then invented." And from the same authority we learn that "opera hats were unknown, and in the evening a folding chapeau bras was always carried under the arm. Nobody but an apothecary or a solicitor would have dreamed of leaving his hat in the hall of the house where he was calling or dining."

BADGER NEWS BREVITIES

Grantsburg.—The territory north of Grantsburg, commonly called the "Erbes Meadow," including thousands of acres of prairie grass land, is afire, and there is little prospect that any of the grass can be saved. This means a loss of the greater part of hay crop of Burnett county, and will be felt keenly, as many who are just beginning the clearing up of their lands depended upon this crop for their hay supply. The unusually dry and hot weather has made the catching and spreading of fire in grasslands easy and it is feared that, unless rains come soon, settlers will suffer much more loss and damage.

Stoughton.—Fire threatened the plant of the Mandt Wagon company, a branch of the Moline Plow company, valued at $4,000,000. A night watchman noticed sparks and smoke rushing out of a dry kiln and quickly sounded the alarm. Quick work on the part of the volunteer fire department and the company's own men extinguished the flames before any serious damage was done by fire. In trying to put out a spark on the office building adjoining the dry kiln, considerable water was thrown into the second story of that structure doing damage amounting to approximately $200.

Appleton.—In the closing session of the Wisconsin Music Teachers' association here, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year. President, Dean William Harper, Lawrence college, Appleton; vice-president, Dr. Abram Tyler, Beloit college; secretary, Dr. Lewis Brooks of the cathedral in Fond du Lac; treasurer, Mrs. Elizabeth Bintliff of Ripon School of Music. Beloit was selected as the place of meeting in 1911. Prof. F. A. Parker of the University of Wisconsin was elected honorary president of the association.

Appleton.—Because of recent drownings the Commercial club of Appleton plans to construct a public bathhouse and safe swimming pool in the Fox river for the use of the boys. The city council will make an appropriation for its maintenance. It is proposed to furnish bathing suits and towels for one cent each.

Eau Claire.—After a preliminary examination in Justice Ellis' court Ernest Rosenow, living on a farm two miles south of Eau Claire, was bound over for trial at the September term of circuit court on a charge of stealing $300 from his father-in-law, William Loltz.

Appleton.—The Fox River Valley Guernsey Breeders' association will hold the second annual summer meeting at the farm of A. N. Schmidt in Greenville. Prof. George C. Humphrey, Madison, and others will deliver addresses.

Sheboygan.—During a runaway here J. Grasser of Gibbsville and his wife and daughter were thrown from their wagon, Grasser being seriously injured and the two women also hurt.

Grand Rapids.—George Willmot, one of the old residents of Plover, committed suicide by shooting himself. He was seventy years old and a veteran of the Civil War.

Beloit.—Charles Godell, a blacksmith of Clinton Junction, was badly burned by the explosion of babbling metal and is in a Beloit hospital.

Bayfield.—Fire destroyed the general store of Paul Melthke at Red Cliff, also the post office and offices of the Red Cliff Lumber company of Duluth. The complete loss is about $10,000. About 100 men are out working to prevent the spread of the fire to the extensive lumber yards and docks of the Red Cliff Lumber and the Bayfield Mill company, which are filled with valuable lumber. Forest fires are being reported again in several places and the entire country is enshrouded in smoke. Unless rains come soon the situation will be serious.

La Crosse.—Bitten by a horsefly while out fishing and then handling a snake are causes to which is attributed the sudden death of Fred Heberlin, twenty years old. A pimple formed near his mouth upon his return home from his fishing trip and he sought a doctor's aid when it began to cause him pain.

Superior.—The unusual heat is thought to have been the cause of suicide of John Hennessey, who jumped into the bay at Allouez. The temperature for several hours had been 93, this being the first time in nine years that the mercury has gone above 90. Hennessey was fifty-five years old.

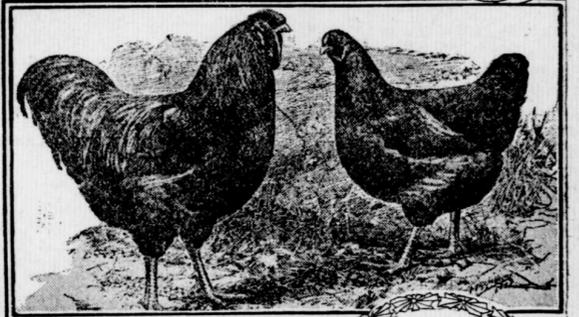

Madison.—The following Wisconsin postmasters have been appointed: Oak Center, James L. Sorenson, to succeed M. F. Cavanaugh, removed; Phlox, Margaret Kauffman, to succeed G. McIntee, resigned, and Shanagolden, Frank A. Urwan, to succeed W. E. Zehn, resigned.

Superior.—Oscar Jacobsen, a patient in Parkland, made his escape from the asylum.

Superior.—Eight fishermen from Duluth have been arrested in the last three days by deputy game wardens from this side of the bay and each of them was sentenced to pay $25 and costs or serve 30 days in the county jail. They were charged with being nonresidents fishing in the waters of the state without the necessary fishermen's license.

Beloit.—The common council passed an ordinance prohibiting women entering licensed saloons for any purpose whatever. The ordinance, under which saloonkeepers will operate, will be rigid.

A FLORIDA CHICKEN FARM

PAIR OF RHODE ISLAND REDS

FOR the last four years I have earned my pin money out of chickens. My hens give me a profit of more than five dollars a head. You think that an enormous yield for chickens? So do I, for I had been raising a few chickens ever since I was a small girl; but I have my account book and so I know just what I spend and what I take in.

My chickens are Rhode Island Reds and bred from the best layers. I have found that there is more in the strain than in the breed of chickens. I carried my chickens with me when I went to Florida, so I know all about them for generations. Years ago I sold all my other breeds, keeping only the Plymouth Rocks and Rhode Island Reds, because I had proved to my satisfaction that these two breeds gave most eggs in the winter when eggs are scarce and fetch the highest prices. I finally discarded the Plymouth Rocks because I found the Rhode Islanders harder and lighter feeders, or perhaps I should say better foragers.

This characteristic of their being good foragers has had a good deal to do with my large profits in Florida. I never have given my flock meat. They find insects enough for their own meat supply. Since the first season down there I have never given them a bit of meat except the few morsels that are mixed in the table scraps which they have regularly every day.

In Florida I have not raised my own feed but have bought it in small quantities at the regular retail prices. I have been forced to hire all labor done, such as building and repairing the houses, coops and fences. At my home in Massachusetts, being then a comparatively strong woman, I was able to do all such things myself, and yet my chickens never netted me more than $150 a head all the years that I struggled with them.

There is in the winter the birds had to be housed and supplied with green and meat food besides their regular rations of grain. In Florida they run in the yards all the year long and get their green food from the small patch of grain which I keep for them at the back of their yard and their own meat by catching insects.

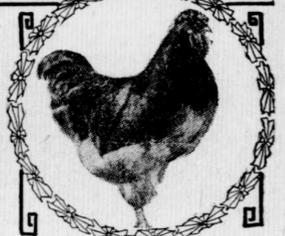

Northern friends who have come to visit me ask if there is not a difference in the prices which I now receive for my chickens and those I sold while in Massachusetts. I am forced to reply that I formerly received somewhat higher prices than are paid in Florida. Most of my eggs and dressed fowls are bought by the largest hotel and though it is run by a northern manager, he expects and gets southern prices. All that the hotel does not take is readily sold to private families, so I never have the expense of shipping.

I do not think any other breed would do as well as my Rhode Island Reds. I let my hens sit on their own eggs. I have found this best in a small flock. A hen must have some time for rest from laying. I never allow a hen to sit more than once in each year, because it is not necessary where all are equally good mothers and where there is a good demand for fresh eggs.

Before the chickens are a month old the mother invariably has begun to lay again. I have four hens that give me 200 eggs each year. They are mother and three daughters. As the mother is now four years old I am looking forward to the time when her yield of eggs will drop off, but even then I think it will pay me to keep her, not only because of the strain, but also because she is an excellent brooder and mother. The ordinary hen I do not think it pays to keep after it is two ears old.

I have found that in Florida the houses have to be much more carefully attended to than in Massachusetts because of the extreme difficulty in keeping down vermin. My houses are all of wood built for ventilation more than warmth. For the first four feet the boards are put on solid to prevent the depredations of what the negroes down here call varmints, that is, minks, coons, foxes and stray dogs and cats that may slip through your fence. Above this solid line a space of two inches is allowed between the boards until on a line with the roosts. There again is a solid belt to prevent the chickens from roosting in a draft.

Besides the usual enemies here a chicken raiser has to fight snakes. They slip into the nests and not only swallow the eggs, but often devour young chicks. To fight them a Florida friend told me to get a pig and give her the run of the yard, but to make sure she had no Berkshire blood in her veins. It seems that in Florida if nowhere else, the Berkshire hog has a reputation of eating flesh and being especially fond of young poultry.

I succeeded in getting a pig of a particular breed, and since then have had no trouble with snakes; indeed I seldom that one is seen in the place. That pig and her successor families have driven away all the snakes that have driven away all the pigs haven't eaten up. Oh, yes, the snakes fight for their lives, striking the pigs repeatedly, but this doesn't appear to interrupt the feast. They are calmly caught and chewed up. They say the snake diet doesn't injure the quality of the pork or affect the taste in the slightest, but I much prefer to sell my pigs to serving them on my own table.

I feed my poultry only once a day. I mean the grown fowls. The chicks are fed just as I did in Massachusetts. This one meal is given at night and they have all they will eat up. In the fall months when the grass seeds are ripe the fowls eat very lightly. At the beginning of my venture here I did give a morning feed, but I soon found that the chickens preferred to go to the grain patch and the orange grove when they first jumped down from their roosts.

If I were stronger and able to do all the work myself I am sure I could easily make eight dollars a head. I have heard of several instances down here in which such a profit is made regularly and without a great amount of work.

RELATED BY OLD SETTLE

Just a Little Happening in Which He and a Big She-Bear Had Parts.

Senator Boles Penrose, at a dinner at the Philadelphia club, said of a movement that he opposed:

"It promises incredible things. In fact, it makes me think of Jack Travers of Pike county. Jack is an old man now. He remembers the time when bears were as plentiful on the barren mountains as rattlers still are. Once, when I was fishing at Porter's lake, I asked him if he had ever had any remarkable adventures with bears.

"Well, no, senator," said the old man, as he filled his pipe with cucum; "I can't say as I ever had much to do with bears hereabouts. Wunst in my sparkin' days, me and a bear got together—'twan't nothin', though."

"It all come about over old Sukey our cow. She had a bad habit o' stayin' out late at night. Then I've have to go to the woods and fetch her home to the milkin'."

"Well, one night when I wanted to go sparkin', Suke was late agin, and it certainly riz my dander. I started out after her, cussin' a blue streak and in about an hour I heard her snortin' and puffin' in the thicket."

"I'd missed my gal by that time and I was riled clear through. I was a saplin' and went for old Sukey. I was too dark to see, but I knew her snuff, and I grabbed her by the ear and began to lay on with my stick just about proper."

"The old cow showed fight. She wrestled me around considerable. But I was mad—mad all over—and I half pushed and half-dragged and half-carried her to the barn, and there I tied her up tight and fast, and I milked her in the dark. Afterward I went to bed."

"I certainly did have to laugh though, when I come down the next mornin'." Gosh darned if I hadn't fetched home and milked a big she bear."

Antiquated.

"Man wants but little here below," quoted the poetic person.

"On the contrary," rejoined the practical party, "the classified columns of the modern newspaper prove conclusively that his wants are numerous."

VEST'S CAMPAIGN SPEECH.

Why a Small Boy Persisted in Hearing It Every Day.

"Senator Vest was making a buggy campaign in southeast Missouri some years ago," said a Missouri official. "His driver was a small boy, who was duly impressed with the importance of his distinguished passenger.

"At each town visited by Vest the boy hurried his team to a convenient livery barn and then raced for the courthouse, or wherever the 'speakin' was to take place, and perched himself with painful regularity on the front seat. He invariably turned his eyes on the senator and took in every word of the speech as if his very life depended on it.

"Finally the lad's continued conspicuous presence among his auditors annoyed the senator, and he kindly but firmly reminded the boy that it was not necessary for him to attend every meeting.

"I make the same speech each time. You have heard it often enough to know it by rote, so just put in your time in the future looking after the team," he admonished his youthful driver.

"Despite the senator's objection, the boy was again in the front seat the next day and the following day. This enraged Vest, and he thundered:

"Why do you persist in always occupying that front seat? Didn't I tell you I make the same speech every day? It's as old and stale to you as it is to me. Why insist on hearing it again and again?"

"I want to see what you're going to do when you ferget it," answered the boy. Vest capitulated.—St. Louis Republic.

The Vengeance of Nita Caldara.

"Well, I can't very well explain what it is I mean, my lady, but you never sing or play of an evening now, and all that."

"You mean I am getting mopy, and anything but a lively companion."

"I wouldn't take such an unwarrantable liberty for all the world, my lady."

"There is no need to look frightened, Louisa; be candid."

"Well, then, if I may speak out what is in my mind, I believe you are eating your heart out for a glimpse of dry land. It's only natural, too, for I know it's downright awful to be for everlastingly stuck on a boat with nothing but the sea to look out upon."

"It becomes wearisome, no doubt. Well, Louisa, our grievance will soon end, for we are going to Cape Town."

"I am glad," the girl exclaimed, her face breaking into smiles at this welcome news.

That evening, after the cloth had been removed, Nita said, in her old usual winning way which she had schooled herself to adopt to lure her husband's affection back to her hungry heart—

"Let us sing the 'Gipsy Countess,' Rex; dear, it will bring back the evening we sang it together, when this gold ring had been only a few hours on my hand."

"Inane rubbish!" he answered; "the fellow who composed it should confine himself to gutter vocalists."

"Is it the music or the words you object to?"

"Both."

Nita was too proud to continue the conversation after such a repulse, so took up a book and relapsed into silence.

"This is getting infernally slow!" Carfax told himself a few minutes afterwards. "Such a woman as Nita is an expensive luxury—that is, for a wife, for I should have to give up all thought of taking my place in the House—worldly advancement would be utterly gone. No, I must cut the knot—it is absolutely imperative. The esquirehood of my family must not be sullied by ratifying such a union as this; the honor of the Carfax demands the sacrifice, beautiful as she is, and I will not shrink from my duty."

Cape Town loomed in the distance; all hands on board were busy carrying out the captain's orders, and, anticipating a few days' stay on land, were as merry as crickets.

"Be in readiness to start tonight about ten o'clock," his lordship said to the astonished skipper, as Nita and he were leaving the vessel.

"Tonight, my lord!"

"Tonight, I said," Carfax repeated, irritably.

"As you please, my lord; only, the men thought naturally they would have a few days' leave."

"When we get back to England, they can have as much leave as they like."

"Rex, what do you mean?" Nita gasped, a deathly pallor creeping into her face.

"Come on! this is no place to ask questions," he replied, brusquely.

"Now, Nita, I am at your service, and can answer any questions you wish to put," he said, when they were alone in a sitting-room at the hotel he had selected.

"Why did you not answer my question when we were landing, Rex?"

"I have a dislike to scenes, and you seemed on the point of making one."

"Are you really leaving for England tonight?"

"Decidedly, I am."

"Then what is to become of me?"

"You have Louisa with you and will, I am sure, make yourself very happy, like a wise little woman."

"Make myself happy in a foreign country without you! You cannot mean it! I will not believe that you could abandon me so cruelly."

"The sooner you realize it the better it will be for both you and me, for I have something more to reveal which will doubtless give you still greater pain."

"You can tell me nothing more crushing than that you have already told me. Go on, I am ready."

"To be brief, then, I have found out that the ceremony performed in Belgium was little more than a farce, and that consequently we are both free."

"Nita went white as death."

"You mean that our marriage was illegal?"

"Yes; the whole affair was a sham, and I need not say how deeply I regret it."

"Then the regret need be of short duration, since the error can be repaired."

He was quite taken aback at this answer—it staggered him.

He had expected tears, supplications, and reproaches.

"You take a long time to consider what reply you shall frame," she said.

"For a good reason—one that even you cannot contest."

"It must be a very potent one, when a gentleman puts it forward in a question like this."

"It is all-potent. The truth is, you and I should never agree; your tastes are different, our aims are at variance; it would be a divided household."

"And your unborn child—is your taste at variance with that?"

"I will provide for it, of course; I should be a scamp if I did not."

"How vastly condescending you are, Lord Carfax. When we entered this room I was a yielding, loving woman, ready to plead for a word or a look of affection. Now, I swear I will pursue to the ends of the earth, and shatter your every hope of happiness."

"You are crazed!" he exclaimed. "It isn't likely I intended to forsake you. Come, listen to reason, Nita!"

"Begone, you moral leper. Go and gloat over the wreck of a woman's life and honor, and prepare for my revenge!"

"For mercy's sake, don't talk like that!" his lordship cried.

"Adieu till we meet again, Lord Carfax. But stay—these will do for another victim," flinging at his feet the bracelets she wore.

"The ring you placed on my finger as an emblem of wifehood, I will retain until I ascertain the truth of your statement as to the illegality of that ceremony in Belgium. In the event of its being correct it will be restored to you by me at your own time and convenience."

Then she swept out of the room.

CHAPTER IV.

"IT IS THE TRICK OF SOME MISCREANT WHO GRUDGES US OUR BLISS."

Twelve months had elapsed since that tragic scene took place in the hotel at the Cape.

The London season was just dying, and the last of the fashionable marriages were being solemnized.

A big crowd was gathered around the doors of St. Paul's, Knightsbridge, evidently expecting a bridal party to come forth.

A beautiful, dark woman, with a black Spanish lace cloak draped about her shapely shoulders, stood close to the carriage awaiting the bridal pair.

"Here they come," ran in a buzzing murmur among the expectant throng, as a vision of maidenly loveliness, fair as a lily, was led forth by a proud, radiant, handsome man.

The quiet watcher stood regarding the wedded pair with eyes that glittered.

Just as the bride reached the carriage, the woman pushed forward and thrust a bunch of crape roses into her hand.

"A bride should have flowers," she said. "Here is Nita Caldara's gift."

The girl held the mocking emblem of mourning for one moment, transfixed with horror; then with a low cry cast them from her.

Lord Carfax caught his newly-wedded wife round the waist, and lifted her into the carriage, springing in after her.

"Rex, Rex!" sobbed the girl, as they rattled along Knightsbridge, "the memories of those crape flowers will haunt me to my dying day."

"It was only some wretched practical joke, my love, because you ordered no bouquet, got up one of the florists, who felt you had neglected their interests."

She shook her head sadly, and faltered—

"I cannot believe that; the woman who thrust them into my hand looked like some beautiful demon."

"My pet! you are overwrought, excited; and that dear little head conjures up all kinds of fancies, which my love and protection will have to charm away."

Meantime, what of Nita?

"The first act in the drama has passed!" she thought, exultantly, as she watched the carriage drive away. "I saw her cheek blanch—it struck home. Rex Carfax, beware! the hour of your punishment has come—Nemesis will dog every step you take."

Then she made her way towards the Oratory, and entered a brougham, evidently awaiting her.

A grim specter seemed to sit at that elegant wedding feast in Queen's Gate, between bride and bridegroom, the mocking, jibing phantom of an unredeemed past, and those terrible words of menacing threat kept ringing in his lordship's ears.

"I will pursue you to the ends of the earth, and shatter your every hope of happiness!"

He strove to pass through the ordeal without showing the anxiety he was suffering, lest some further outrage would be perpetrated before the nuptial day was closed.

Bride and bridegroom were standing later on in a marquee of pale green silk, out in the grounds, bidding farewell to their friends, both ready dressed to depart for their travels. Lady Muriel Carfax, looking sweet and fair as a pure white rosebud, her cheeks now tinged with a faint pink.

"Another present, actually!" she exclaimed in her usual bright way; "and still they come!"—as a footman handed a salver with a small package on it.

"It only just arrived, my lady, and I thought I had better give it to you," the man explained.

"Thanks, Watkins," she returned, graciously.

"Really, my love you will be able to stock a jeweler's shop," her father, Sir George Talbot, said, smiling with loving pride at his darling.

"I will not open it now, mamma," she observed, "for the carriage is waiting, and Rex is getting impatient," putting her arms around the tearful lady's neck and kissing her again and again.

Five minutes later the newly married pair drove away at a spanking pace.

For some time the bonny blue eyes of the bride were misty with tears.

"You haven't looked at your last present, my pet," his lordship said presently, to divert her thoughts. "Come open it; let me help you," producing a penknife and cutting the twine.

"It must be a very tiny affair, Rex," she remarked, unrolling sheet after sheet of tissue paper carefully.

"Why, what is it?" she gasped, coming at last to a wedding ring, tied to a piece of crape, which held a small square of foreign paper, on which were the words—

"Beware, destroyer! I told you your ring should be returned. Your bride is the proper person to receive it."

With a wild impulse Carfax snatched the proof of his infamy out of her hands.

"What did you do that for?" she asked reproachfully. "Oh, Rex, give it to me; I must see it!"

"Don't be foolish!" he returned, chidingly. "I am the right party to deal with this shameful practical joke."

"Wedding ring and crape!" she exclaimed. "Why should anyone be so lost to all feeling as to act thus cruelly on my bridal day? And the word! 'Beware!' What does it mean? Do let me see what else is written."

"It shall never leave my hand till I place it in that of a detective, who will unravel the affair!" Lord Carfax declared. "It is the trick of some miscreant who grudges us our bliss!"

CHAPTER V.

"A GULF SEPARATES US FOREVER."

On a southern shore was perched a chateau, in a tangle of orange and olive foliage.

Seated on a low bamboo chair in the grounds was Lady Muriel Carfax, and beside her a dainty lace-draped cradle, sheltered beneath the shade of a palm.

Though it was November, the wood-larks were carolling merrily, pink and scarlet geraniums filled the white marble vases, and vivid red roses were still filling the air with perfume.

Lady Muriel sat on, gazing with rapt affection at the small sleeper, little dreaming that, through a hedge of laurel, a face was peering, a face Medusa-like in its expression.

The golden sunbeams stole through the interlacing leaves on to the face of the child.

"My Maybird will get as brown as a berry," Lady Muriel said. "I will run and fetch a sunshade."

Very quietly she ascended the marble steps, and entered the glass doors beneath the striped green and white awnings.

"She has left her treasure unguarded," hissed Nita, her eyes blazing.

And then the tiny bundle of lace and ribbon was caught up in her trembling arms, conveyed to a close carriage, and borne rapidly away.

The abduction was carried out so cleverly that, when it was discovered that the child had been spirited away, all efforts of the police were fruitless, and at last the search was abandoned.

Lord Carfax tried to persuade his wife to return to England.

"No, Rex, I cannot go. I feel I must stay here," she told him resolutely. "The wound is not yet healed, and to be torn away from the hallowed spot where my lost baby first saw light would open it afresh."

And thus it came about that winters and summers alike found Lady and Lord Carfax still residing in their beautiful southern home.

One day a telegram reached them from England announcing the dangerous illness of Lord Carfax's father.

"I shall have to start at once," he said. "My own love, come with me. I cannot bear to leave you here."

"Let me stay," she pleaded. "You have not a moment to waste in even thinking of me. Go, dear, and return to me soon."

There was no time for argument, as the earl's life was in imminent peril, so, with a sad heart, Rex set off on his journey.

"If you take my advice you will not carry out this very rash intention, Lady Carfax," the clergyman of the little English church was saying earnestly to Muriel a few days after her husband's departure. "I will try and get someone less cowardly than these people to attend to the poor creature."

"Mr. Lovell, it is no use to argue such a question with me," Muriel replied. "This unhappy lady is a stranger in a strange land, and duty impels me to go at once to her assistance."

"The fever is infectious," he protested. "A precious life is in danger—there is no time to be lost. She shall not perish while I have the strength to save her," Muriel replied, with tranquil determination, standing ready dressed for driving.

In another five minutes she had set out.

The carriage dashed on till it came to a little wood of pines, compelling her to alight and walk through a narrow path to a gate she could discern at the end of it.

When she opened the gate she beheld with eager eyes the paradise in miniature stretched before her.

A black boy was playing on the velvet turf near a white marble villa, with a child, a little fairy-like creature.

"Missus vare ill in dare!" the son of Ham said in answer to her inquiry, and he pointed to a window where hung a drapery of eastern embroidery.

There, lying on a bed hung with palest blue velvet, was Nita Caldara.

She started, then recoiled, as Lady Carfax approached.

"Do not be alarmed, dear friend," Muriel said. "I heard you were alone and far from well, so hastened to you."

"Do you know this room is pestilential, that my very hirelings have fled?" Nita exclaimed.

"That is why I am here," Muriel answered tranquilly.

"When the doctor looked in, he found the fair young Samaritan seated beside the sufferer."

"This is no place for you, my lady," he said.

"It is too late to argue with me," she replied quietly; "all I want is the assistance of one of the sisters. Kindly send one from the convent."

He departed, thinking Lady Carfax the ideal of true womanhood, after promising to obey her.

In the delirium of fever, Nita revealed her unhappy history and the silent watcher listened till her whole frame seemed turning to stone.

"It cannot be true—it is some horrible coincidence of names!" she moaned. "There is only one Lord Carfax; and she spoke of those crape roses that were thrust into my hand, and of her wedding ring!"

But not one sentence did Nita breathe of her last act of revenge in that drama of sin and crime.

"You say I spoke of Lord Carfax," she gasped, when the worst was over and she was well on the road to recovery; "if I did mention anything in my fever it was only the wanderings of a distraught brain."

"Madame," Muriel besought, "in pity's name, be as merciful to me as I have been to you."

"Aye," she succored me when I was helpless. Heaven bless you for it!"

"You were the giver of those emblems of mourning, and the—the ring!"

"How do you know that?"

"You revealed it all in your fever."

"I did? Then God have mercy on us both! I would have spared you and died with my wrongs locked in my own soul, because you have taught me what a woman ought to be. Listen, Lady Carfax, to the history of my past, since you command it."

When the story was concluded, Muriel threw her arms around Nita, and faltered, while her heart throbbled with compassion—

"My poor sister! dearer to me now than ever sister could be, for the fire of affliction you have endured through my husband's sin."

"And you do not love me!"

"Why should I?"

"But I have something else to confess that may turn you from me with hatred in your heart, too deep ever to forget or forgive."

"And you stole my babe!" Muriel said, dreamily, when all was told by the penitent.

"Yes! but I will restore her. Cannot you guess—has not the instinct of your mother's nature lit the spark of knowledge ere this?"

"Yes; I see it all—that little child out there on the lawn is mine! If you only knew what agony her loss caused you would have pitied me; but that is all passed, and I bless you now for restoring my sweet babe in all her rosy bloom of health and strength. Yea, Nita, sister, I can kiss and bless you for that!"

A day of reckoning came for Lord Carfax he had never recked of, even in his most anxious moments of torturing fear.

When he returned to his home, he was met by Muriel in a way that sent the blood rushing from his heart.

"A gulf separates us, Rex, for ever—a gulf deeper and colder than the grave," she said, in a sad, though firm voice.

"I will atone," he interposed. "Do not doom me to a death in life! See, I am kneeling at your feet. I will shape my future according to your commands. Do not cast me from you!"

"Rex, our lives must be severed; while Nita Caldara lives, I can never be wife to you, except in name."

Twelve months after that sad scene in the sunny south, Muriel was seated one morning in her husband's grand old home in Derbyshire, for she had consented to share the same roof for their daughter's sake, though they were really as much apart as the heavens are from earth.

The stately footman entered with a salver on which was a letter, and handed it to his mistress.

She sat like one in a dream after perusing the letter, then read it over again as if she wished to learn every word by heart.

"My preserver," it ran; "I restored to you your child—I am now going to restore to you your husband, for I know your gentle heart is cruelly widowed by your enforced separation. Tomorrow, I am going to marry Sir Charles Alton, an old admirer of mine, who has been constant through all, and knew some part of that dead and buried past. All barriers are swept away at last, and for the life you saved I now give you back your child's father, unfettered, free, with a love pure and deep as any man could feel for woman, for such a woman as you would convert the veriest sinner on this fair earth."

"She bids me return to my allegiance," Muriel said to herself, a look of radiance on her face; "and I will obey."

She went straight to the library, and gave a timid knock at the door.

Her husband started on seeing her enter with a half-shy, half-defiant expression on her face.

She gave him the letter. When he had read it his face became pale as death, and he looked with eager yearning towards her.

"And what is your answer to this?" he asked, in a voice that trembled.

"I accept her gift, Rex," she murmured.

And then he took the slender form in his arms and held her to his breast, with a rapture too deep for words.

(THE END.)

FRAUD ALLEGED.

Members of a New York Millinery Firm Indicted.

The mystery surrounding the indictment found and sealed a week ago, reported to have been against cotton murets was cleared when Hugo and Jules Rosenberg were arraigned before Judge Holt in the United States circuit court, New York, on charges of conspiring to defraud the customs. They are members of the wholesale millinery firm of Max Rosenberg at 130 Fifth avenue, where they occupy the third floor. Marshal Henkel and a deputy marshal found the two men there and arrested them on bench warrants. They gave cash bail of $10,000 each. The indictments charge that on November 20, 1905, they imported on the steamship La Touraine silver trimmings valued at $234 and that the invoices gave a valuation considerably lower. Marshal Henkel, when he made the arrest, seized the books and records of the company and turned them over to the United States attorney.

Counsel for the two accused men state that the difference in valuation was a matter for the board of appraisers, and was usually settled there. He declared that if there had been a lower value placed on the goods than the government believed they were worth, it was not with the intention to defraud the customs. Max Rosenberg, the head of the firm, is the buyer of the concern in Paris.

"GET MONEY."

Advice Denounced in Baccalaureate Address at Columbia.

"All questions are being answered now with the phrase 'Get money,'" indignantly declared Rev. Dr. Rush Rhees, president of the University of Rochester, in the baccalaureate sermon which he preached to students of Columbia university. "I frankly confess that I have little admiration for present-day tendencies in business life," he said. "Our recent public experiences have given us ample evidence of the sacrifices that men have made in order to amass wealth. The pursuit of money has been made so overwhelmingly important that all other occupations have been held subservient to it. They are even looked down upon. The ambitious man, the earnest worker of every class, has had the golden lure held out to him so that he has generally come to believe that there is no other end to human activity. It is the duty of the man and woman of college training to combat fiercely the spirit of materialism which have been rampant of late years. If the college man and woman would raise the standards of truth and justice in the world today, they would have far less of this bitter, gain-grasping present day conditions in business and finance."

To Play in Syndicate Theaters.

Klaw & Erlanger announce that Mme. Sarah Bernhardt's next visit to this country will be under the management of William F. Connor, who has long been her American representative. While in America she will play twice in New York city, both times at the New Amsterdam theater, answering in several plays. Mme. Bernhardt's American engagement will begin in Chicago on October 31. Following this she will come to the New Amsterdam for the month of December. She will then make a tour of the country, appearing in the syndicate houses in the principal cities. On her return east she will appear for another week at the New Amsterdam theater, New York.

Things That Plumbers Use.

According to testimony sustaining charges of graft in the distribution of plumbers' licenses in New York, a standing question in the examinations was, "What is lead?" and the answer on which the candidate was drilled in advance was, "Lead is something that is much used in the plumbing business. Further scrutiny of the examination papers may disclose that the same answer was called for to the question, 'What is time.'"—Providence Journal.

DANGER SIGNALS.

Sick kidneys give unmistakable signals of distress. Too frequent or scanty urinary passages, backache, headache and dizzy spells tell of disordered kidneys. Neglect of these warnings may prove fatal. Begin using Doan's Kidney Pills. They cure sick kidneys.

Mrs. M. A. Gambin, Russellville, Ark., says: "I was in such bad shape from kidney disease that I gave up hope of my recovery. I could rest neither night or day, the pains in my back nearly driving me frantic. There were decided dropsical symptoms such as swelling of my feet and ankles and my heart palpitated violently. After doctoring without benefit, I began with Doan's Kidney Pills and when I had used two boxes I was as well as ever."

SKIN HUMOR 25 YEARS

"Cuticura did wonders for me. For twenty-five years I suffered agony from a terrible humor, completely covering my head, neck and shoulders, so even to my wife, I became an object of dread. At large expense I consulted the most able doctors far and near. Their treatment was of no avail, nor was that of the Hospital, during six months' efforts. I suffered on and concluded there was no help for me this side of the grave. Then I heard of some one who had been cured by Cuticura Remedies and thought that a trial could do no harm. In a surprisingly short time I was completely cured. S. P. Keyes, 147 Congress St., Boston, Mass., Oct. 12, '09."

Face Covered with Pimples

"I congratulate Cuticura upon my speedy recovery from pimples which covered my face. I used Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent for ten days and my face cleared and I am perfectly well. I had tried doctors for several months but got no results. Wm. J. Sadler, 1614 Susquehanna Ave., Philadelphia, May 1, 1909."

Coming in Relays.

Twins were born to Mrs. O'Brien. When the first one was born the nurse called Jimmy and said:

"Tell your aunt to come right over. The stork has brought you a little brother."

The aunt could not come over immediately. In a half hour the nurse called Jimmy again and said:

"Run over and tell auntie the stork has brought you another brother."

Jimmy ran to his aunt's house and said:

"Auntie, the stork has brought another brother. I wonder how many he will bring before night."

THIRD OPERATION PREVENTED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chicago, Ill.—"I want to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. I was so sick that two of the best doctors in Chicago said I would die if I did not have an operation. I had already had two operations, and they wanted me to go through a third one. I suffered day and night from inflammation and a small tumor, and never thought of seeing a well day again. A friend told me how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped her, and I tried it, and after the third bottle was cured."—Mrs. ALVINA SPERLING, 1468 Clybourne Ave., Chicago, Ill.

If you are ill do not drag along at home or in your place of employment until an operation is necessary, but build up the feminine system, and remove the cause of those distressing aches and pains by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Awful Prospect.
One day recently a clergyman was performing a marriage ceremony at the parsonage in the presence of his little son. The boy listened very attentively while his father pronounced the couple husband and wife, then going to his mother he said:

"Mamma, when a man marries a woman, must he live with her?"
"Yes, dear," his mother replied.
The boy was thoughtful for a moment and then said:
"Mamma, must papa live with all the women he has married?"

WESTERN CANADA

What Governor Deneen, of Illinois, Says About It

Governor Deneen, of Illinois, owns a section of land in Saskatchewan, Canada. He has said in an interview:

"As an American I am delighted to see the remarkable progress of Western Canada. The people are flocking across the border, and I have not yet met one who admitted he had made a mistake. They are all doing well. There is no such thing as a free lunch in the Middle or Western States. It is not a representative in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta."

125 Million Bushels of Wheat in 1909
Western Canada field crops for 1909 estimated to be the largest ever, worth $170,000,000.00 in cash. Free homesteads of 160 acres, and pre-emption of 160 acres for $3.00 an acre. Survey and Land Companies have land for sale at reasonable prices. Many farmers have paid for their land out of the proceeds of one crop. IS THIRD IN PAPER

WISCONSIN RIVER VALLEY INDUSTRY HAS SHOWN A REMARKABLE GROWTH.

WATER POWER IS UTILIZED.

Pulp Mills Use Nearly Half a Million Cords of Spruce and Hemlock Wood Each Year in the Manufacture of Paper.

Stevens Point.—It may be interesting to know that Wisconsin stands third as to the amount of print paper manufactured in its mills at the present time, with New York first and Pennsylvania a close second.

The paper industry on the Wisconsin river commenced in the early 80s, when a few small pulp mills were built. By the year 1890, Wisconsin saw the wood-pulp process enormously developed. The greatly increased use created an enormous demand for the product, which the Fox River mills could no longer supply. This led to the growth of the industry in the upper Wisconsin valley, where both wood and water power were accessible.

One of the pioneer paper manufacturers of the Wisconsin river valley is Col. George A. Whiting, who was also the first to attempt the manufacture of book paper in Wisconsin. From 1875 to 1882 Col. Whiting was in charge of the Winnebago mill at Neenah, leaving it to turn his attention to the Wisconsin river plants.

The first mill on this river was built in 1886 below Centuria, by Col. Whiting and Frank Steele. It is still in operation. Three years later Whiting secured rights at Conant's rapids, below Stevens Point, erected dams and built two great mills. Others are to be found at Grand Rapids, Nekeosa, Port Edwards, Wausau, Rhinelander, Merrill and Tomahawk. All are huge producers, using either ground or sulphite wood pulp. The mill at Rhinelander is entirely a Wisconsin product, the machinery being furnished by the Beloit Iron works. The mills of the Consolidated company at Grand Rapids are operated entirely by electricity.

The use of the water power on the Wisconsin before the paper industry was started, was very limited, principally for lumbering purposes; perhaps 7 per cent of the total power was used between Rhinelander and Nekeosa.

The flowage of water in the river is much more uniform now than it was in 1890, because of the more intelligent handling of the source of supply by the reservoir system.

The water power owners on the Wisconsin found they needed a steadier flow of water, and purchased the Shery interests near Eagle river and the Mhoquoia dam property, afterward merging them with the Bradley power at Tomahawk into the Wisconsin Valley Improvement company. The work this company has done has enhanced the value of the shore lands all along the lakes and river, because it has put a stop to damage formerly done by spring freshets. They draw the water from the lakes during the winter months, and store it in the spring, when the snow melts.

The Wisconsin pulp mills use annually approximately 375,000 cords of wood, of which 50 per cent is hemlock, and the rest spruce. Of this the former is almost wholly cut within the state, while the spruce comes from Minnesota and Canada. The amount of hemlock is limited, and within a few years there will be a shortage for the paper mills. Their best chance is to develop the use of other species, such as jack pine, tamarack, balsam and birch.

HAS REMARKABLE CAREER.

Washburn Mayor is Socialist Choice for Secretary of State—Three Years With Party.

Washburn.—The rise into prominence of Gustav A. Hering, the Socialist mayor of this city, has been remarkable, it being only three years since Mr. Hering first cast his lot with that organization. Largely to his efforts is due the growth of the Socialist party here. Last spring the Socialists nominated him for mayor. It was known that he was popular and that he would be able to pull many votes from the other parties. The fight that he went into was three-cornered, but with what assistance he received from the other factions he was able to muster votes enough to place him in the lead.

Mr. Hering has made a good officer for the city, trying to accomplish his ends with as little friction as possible, and has been able to get through the council a number of social reform measures. Mr. Hering's work has been mainly along the line of changes that would benefit the laboring man such as a raise in salary for some of the officers, and shorter hours for city employees generally, but all of the time demanding that the city employees should give in return a full day's work. The Socialist party of the state at its meeting held in Milwaukee recently, nominated him for secretary of state. The Socialists are now planning on putting up an entire ticket in the county this fall.

WISCONSIN LUMBER MEN INVITED TO A LAKE TRIP

Asked to Join Excursion and Annual Meeting of the Michigan Retail Dealers.

The members of the Wisconsin Retail Lumber Dealers' association have been invited, with their friends, to join the lake trip of the Michigan Lumber Dealers' association July 14-18, and then take in the annual meeting of the Michigan association in Detroit July 18, 19 and 20.

During the convention the lumber dealers will be given a trip up the river and through Lake St. Clair to the famous St. Clair flats, "the Venice of America," and then down stream again, past the city of Detroit, to Bois Blanc ("Bobbelow") island, where the river runs into Lake Erie. After supper on the island the steamer will return to Detroit.

For the trip to Detroit Wisconsin dealers will board the Goodrich liner, George Thursday evening, July 14, at Milwaukee, going via Green Bay to Mackinac Island and the Soo. Returning to Mackinac Island they will be transferred to the steamer Northland of the Northern Steamship company, which will take them from Mackinac to Detroit. The trip will consume three and one-half days, bringing the excursionists to Detroit at 11:15 Monday forenoon, in ample time to join the sightseeing tour of the Michigan retailers Monday afternoon, July 18.

ADDITIONS TO FACULTY.

University of Wisconsin Changes Are Announced.

Important appointments to the faculty of the University of Wisconsin have been announced. A professorship of manual arts in the course for the training of teachers was established with a view of preparing teachers in manual training for the public schools and Prof. F. D. Crawshaw of the University of Illinois was elected to the new chair.

Dr. J. A. E. Eyster of the University of Virginia was made professor of physiology to succeed Joseph Erlanger, who resigned. Prof. W. W. Cook of the law school presented his resignation in order to accept a professorship in the University of Chicago law school.

Prof. Robert B. Scott of the department of political science was transferred to the college of law to fill the vacancy thus created. Edward J. Ward, now professor of social science and play grounds in the city of Rochester, N. Y., was appointed acting secretary of the welfare department of the extension division to begin work about July 1. Half of his time will be devoted to carrying out some of the work in the city of Milwaukee.

Coach E. H. Ten Eyck was reappointed instructor in physical training for men. The resignation of Dr. Ernst C. Meyer as assistant professor of political science was accepted and M. S. Dudgeon and S. T. Lowry were appointed instructors in the department. Among the minor instructors named was Chester Allen to the extension division of Milwaukee district.

HAS TWO SETS OF OFFICERS

Hudson's Rival Fire and Police Commissions Preparing to Assume Duties July 1.

Hudson's two police and fire commissions are girding up their loins preparatory to taking charge of the police and fire departments on July 1. Each commission proposes to stick to the finish.

One commission was appointed by Acting Mayor Casanova, while Mayor Utman was out of the state. Upon the latter's return he appointed another commission. The matter will be brought to a focus when the officers bring their bills to the city council for approval. The council will pay one set only, and the others will have to test the matter in the courts if they desire to continue the fight.

FIND BADGER'S HOARD.

Party of Spokane, Wash., Campers Discover Fortune.

Inquiry is being made in the western part of the state for one Claude Parsons or Parker. A party of campers from Seattle, Wash., were engaged in hauling a gigantic cedar log upon the beach of Lake Washington to be converted into firewood when what appeared to be a huge cork or plug attracted their attention. One ran for the ax and the log was split into two pieces.

The plug was found to have acted as a door of a safety vault where some logger nearly twenty years ago had hidden his accumulated savings. There were $600 in gold, $38 in silver and $500 in currency. Several money orders for $100 each were also rolled up inside the currency. The name, though dim, on the postoffice money orders, appears to be Claude Parsons or Parker and they are payable in the postoffice at Eau Claire, Wis. The date the money orders bear is April, 1891.

Efforts will be made to find the rightful owner of the hoard. Many stories are told of the prodigality with which loggers handled their money in the halcyon days of logging. A favorite bank was to make a boom augur hole in a big timber. Into this hole was dumped the gold, silver and paper and a big plug tightly driven into the top of the hole. The plug was then sawed off plumb with the bark and the cached wealth left until wanted. Many of these improvised banks were swept away by floods or were destroyed in forest fires.

GOLF PROGRAMME

GOOD SCHEDULE ARRANGED FOR STATE TOURNEY.

SERIES BEGINS ON JULY 12

Dick Cavanagh of Kenosha, Holder of the State Championship, Will Not Compete This Year.

Plans were completed at Kenosha for the greatest gathering of Badger golfers in the history of the game. The state tournament of Wisconsin golfers is to be held at La Crosse on the links of the Shaghticoke Country club beginning July 12 and continuing for five days. It is expected that no less than 200 entries will be received for the state championship match. Dick Cavanagh of the Kenosha club, present holder of the state championship, has twice won the tournament, and he has announced that he will not defend the title again this year. This will leave the field open to a bunch of golfers who had been overawed with the prowess of the twice champion in the past. The detailed programme for the state meet is as follows:

Tuesday, July 12, 2 p. m.—Yule cup. Team of sixteen players from each club. To be eighteen holes, match play against bogey, the cup to be in the custody of the club having the winning team, each member of the winning team to receive a gold medal.

Wednesday, July 13, 8 a. m.—Qualifying round at 18 holes, medal play. The first 16 qualify for the championship. The second 16 qualify for the president's cup. The third 16 qualify for the director's cup. A cup will be given for the low qualifying score.

Thursday, July 14, 8 a. m.—First 18 holes, match play, championship. First 18 holes, match play, president's cup. First 18 holes, match play, director's cup. Consolation cup for those not qualifying in any of above flights at 18 holes, medal play, handicap.

Friday, July 15, 8 a. m.—Second 18 holes, match play, championship. First 18 holes, match play, vice-president's cup. Second 18 holes, match play, president's cup. First 18 holes, match play, secretary's cup. Second 18 holes, match play, director's cup. First 18 holes, match play, treasurer's cup. First 18 holes, "choice score" handicap.

2 p. m.—Semi-finals, match play, championship. Semi-finals, match play, vice-president's cup. Semi-finals, match play, president's cup. Semi-finals, match play, secretary's cup. Semi-finals, match play, director's cup. Semi-finals, match play, treasurer's cup. Second 18 holes, "choice score" handicap. First 18 holes, age limit (50) handicap, medal play. Two-ball foursome handicap, 18 holes, medal play.

8 p. m.—Annual meeting of W. S. G. A., election of officers.

Saturday, July 16, 8 a. m.—Finals, 36 holes, match play, championship. Finals, 36 holes, match play, vice-president's cup. Finals, 36 holes, match play, president's cup. Finals, 36 holes, match play, secretary's cup. Finals, 36 holes, match play, director's cup. Finals, 36 holes, match play, treasurer's cup. Second 18 holes, age limit (50), handicap, medal play. Match 18 holes against Col. Bogey, handicap. Social matches.

WINSLOW WARNS GRADUATES.

Chief Justice Addresses Twenty-three Candidates for the Bar.

Twenty-three members of the law class of 1910, University of Wisconsin, were admitted to the bar in open session of the supreme court. The class was presented to the court by Dean Harry S. Richards of the college of law, and Chief Justice J. B. Winslow made a brief formal address, an innovation in the practice in Wisconsin. Following are the names of the class admitted:

Henry W. Brown, Madison; Charles F. Peck, Milwaukee; Albert J. Lobb, Ripon; Leo O. Luedke, Milwaukee; Walter B. Murat, Stevens Point; George W. Blanchard, Colby; Joseph L. Bidanek, Beaver Dam; Karl E. Stimmetz, Madison; John J. Colligan, Sturgeon Bay; Winifred D. Haseltine, Mazomanie; Charles F. Milman, Milwaukee; Joseph D. Darrow, Argyle; Frederick A. Smith, Chippewa Falls; Oscar Rademaker, Madison; Archibald T. Dean, Gresham; Oliver S. Rundell, Livingston; Rudolph E. Puchner, Wittenberg; Stephen J. Regney, Scioto Mills, Ill.; John P. Ford, Rosendale; Charles J. Stark, Jr., Tiffany; Charles Forester Smith, Madison; Fred W. Dolmen, James A. Johnson, Emmett Donnelly, Milwaukee.

The court heard a few formal motions, reappointed T. C. Richmond as member of the board of law examiners for a term of five years and adjourned for the term. The court will meet Aug. 9.

Carroll Wants More Money.

An effort to raise $500,000 within the next two years was decided upon in the annual meeting of the board of directors of Carroll college, Waukesha, $200,000 to be used for building and property improvements and the balance to be added to the endowment fund.

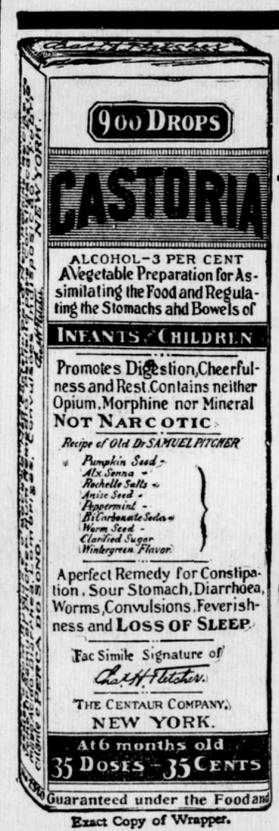

With the exception of Dr. W. L. Rankin, vice-president and instructor in Latin, and Prof. B. W. Clayton, vocal instructor, all the members of this year's faculty have been re-engaged for next year. Dr. Rankin has been ill for the last six months and it is improbable that he will be able to fill his chair the next year, and Prof. Clayton has not definitely accepted his old position as yet.

Is Centenarian Now.

Mrs. Anna Lehman, "Appleton's grand old woman," celebrated her one hundredth birthday anniversary recently. Mrs. Lehman declares her health is as good as it was a quarter of a century ago.

Wage Agreement is Renewed.

The La Crosse City Railway company and its employees have entered into an agreement for two years. The employees are to receive practically the same wages as agreed upon a year ago.

WARREN J. LYNCH, Passenger Traffic Manager, Chicago

Think of Last Summer--

You can remember days when the heat inside your kitchen was so great you could hardly bear it. With the right stove you would have made a better hostess. Save your health. Don't put up with the drudgery of a coal range. You can have a clean, cool, pleasant kitchen. The does away with all drudgery of cooking. Why should you be a slave to a coal range when you can have an Oil Cook-Stove that is cheaper than coal, cleaner than coal, doesn't "smell," doesn't smoke, lights instantly, can be put out instantly, leaves no ashes, and doesn't heat the kitchen. With one of these stoves you can boil, bake or roast the most elaborate dinner. You can change from a slow to a quick fire, or the other way about, by simply turning a wick. Apply a match, and instantly the heat from an intense blue flame shoots upward through the turquoise-blue enamel chimneys to the bottom of pot, kettle or oven—but nowhere else. The stove has every convenience that can be thought of: Cabinet Top with shelf for keeping food and dishes hot, drop shelves to hold coffee or teapots, towel rack; in fact every convenience possible.

The nickel finish, with the bright blue of the chimneys, makes the stove ornamental and attractive.

Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.

Every dealer everywhere. If not at yours, write for Descriptive Circular to the nearest agency of the
