"Blood Stains" in Vicinity of Crime Are Shown to Be Paint Splotches.

Chicago. - In the face of a complete crumbling away of the evidence that Ira G. Rawn, late president of the Monon railroad, was murdered for revenge by a former chauffeur and the discovery that the "blood" spets leading from the vicinity of the crime were splotches of paint, members of the family of the dead man were more firmly convinced than ever that Mr. Rawn was the victim of a trapped burglar. Within an hour after the release of Ernest Stevens, the negro chauffeur arrested Friday night, they announced an offer of a reward of $5,000 for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons supposed to have broken into his home and to have fired the shot that resulted in his death.

In the midst of these developments a new theory was offered as a possible solution of the mystery, that Mr. Rawn met his death accidentally. It was pointed out by Charles L. Schaeffer, superintendent of a local detective agency, that a plausible solution was on the theory of accident. Towns of Bleomville and Heinemann, Wis., Menaced by Forest Fires-Railroad Tracks Burned.

He was sailing along at a moderate height when he got in the path of a skybolt. Instantly the aeroplane was enveloped in flames, its canvas wings shriveled up, and clinging to the skeleton of his craft Ehrmann came down with a thud.

But Virginia loved the out of doors. She had begged the privilege of taking care of the vegetable garden when she found that she could not have flowers. Of late, too, there had been a deeper reason for Virginia's loy in her out-of-door work. Virginia knew what he wanted to say to her. She knew that he loved her, and she knew, too, that he would never tell her as long as he was a poor and struggling farmer. She knew that even if he did ask her Miss Cornelia would never consent to their marriage.

She sighed and he saw her shadowed eyes.

"I wish I could tell you all that is in my heart. Virginia." Mark said. Virginia smiled bravely and said,

"But you mustn't, Mark," and then she had run away from him into the

"I am not, Mark," she said again. 'Why, you-" Then her voice died away. She could not tell him what she thought of him. That was the man's part. Mark looked down at her. "I know what you want to say, Virginia," he told her, gently, "and I wish you would say it. It seems as if I had no right to ask you to love me and to marry me. Miss Cornelia, unconscious of the awakening of the young people, came down the path and across the garden to play the part of cruel fate. She had ruled Virginia in everything for years and she meant to rule her still.

"Virginia, go back to the house. I won't have you idling in the vegetable garden," she said.

The boys made no attempt to open the car door and the girls got frightened. They screamed a little and kicked with their bare feet. Pretty and knew them to be trying to open the door. The door never budged. A little longer the two girls kicked and beat upon the door. Then Mary Moni heard Nelsie fall upon the floor of the car and begin to sob.

They heard an engine puffing louder every second. Bang; Mary was bumped to the floor. There was an interval of several minutes. Then the engine chugged, the car gave a jerk, and in the darkness they knew themselves to be moving. They were moving rapidly now. Mary coaxed Nelsie up into a corner. They sat there and sobbed as the train sped.

After a long time thye felt hollow and hungry. Mary and Nelsie explored the floor of the car. They found nothing at all. The two girls found they were to be without food or water. Besides, it was so hot and stifling they found it a labor to hausting. They lay perfectly still, ness of hunger left them.

But it was intolerably hot, and their thirst grew. It was night now. The beam of light was gone. Yet neither girl slept. The roar of the train was loud and steady. Great tears rolled down their cheeks. During the first night Mary made a useful discovery, the only relief they hit upon the whole journey. She imparted it at once to Nelsie. You take your thumb and catch the tears on it. Then you sip the tears. They are salt and inadequate, but they cool the mouth. In experimenting with this discovery they passed the rest of the night.

At length the beam of light appared, red and pleasurable. All that day the two lay on the floor of the car, jolted each minute and turning from side to side. Then night came on. It is possible the girls slept fitfully, though they could not recollect having done so. The second morning found them a little weaker. They no longer spoke to each other in one syllable words. Nelsie tried to repeat a prayer. She repeated "Ave Maria" to herself several times.

Then came night and as the beam of light faded Mary's consciousness faded, too, and Nelsie, who could cry no more, lapsed into quietness.

But when the two girls didn't come home the first night their parents had gone anxiously to the police. Some were found who had seen the children in the freight yard. F. H. C. Schoeffe, chief special agent of the Lackawanna, thereupon telegraphed Chief Beatty of the Lackawanna special police in Hoboken to peer instantly into every empty that reached Hoboken. For two days not an empty car reached Hoboken without being examined in a hurry.

On the third when a string of twenty-five empty cars came rolling in Yardmaster Dutton, who happened to be moving about the yard, pounced on refrigerator car No. 6986 and pried open the door. He jumped inside. There in the corner he found the two barefooted girls black with dirt. Nelsie was unconscious.

It took the doctor two hours to bring both girls to.

One result of the shark's capture is that the crew of the Goodpartner will never do any more Sunday fishing. Captain Dragich and five men were soon they heard the voices of the toys hard at work early on Sunday morning pulling up their big salmon net.

They had not pulled very much of it into the boat when the leviathan made its presence known by thumping the bottom of the Goodpartner with its tail. A minute later it appeared alongside and hit the Goodpartner amidships.

Luckily the shark had entangled its front fins and its head in the stout meshes of the net. Before it could tear itself free three thicknesses of the net were wound around it. Then the struggle began. The six men on the Goodpartner worked desperately to keep the head of the big fish near the boat and the death-dealing tail away. Again and again it would rear its big hulk out of the water and smash in the sides of the cabin.

The Pioneer II. came to the assist ance of the desperate fishermen on the Goodpartner after about an hour of the conflict. They towed the fish and the boat to a sandy beach.

Tackle was fastened to a tree on the shore and the Pioneer's winch managed to pull the fighting fish into the shoal water. As the tide ebbed the shark was left high and dry and its struggles diminished. At 1:00 p. m. Capt. George Saeher of the Pioneer II. got close enough to the fish to chop a hole in its throat with an ax. A couple of barrels of blood flowed out and the long struggle was over. Besides the personal injuries suffered by the various members of the crew, a big net valued at $1,000 was destroyed. When first examined the fish was believed to be a whale or basking shark, but when the belly was cut into after 15 minutes' work with an ax, bones were found which indicate that it is a man eater. The bones. from their size and weight, are believed to be human, although the largest fragment is only four inches long, making it difficult to decide. Another unusual find in the stomach, which might be taken as an indication that the bones are really human, is a piece of aluminum, now in the possession of Captain Dragich. None of the fishermen could explain of what the thin curved plate of aluminum had originally been a part. As soon as they came ashore, however, it was identified as part of a folding kodak. The leather which covered the aluminum frame and the wooden parts of the kodak had been eaten away by the powerful juices in the shark's stomach. When the deposit of grease was scraped from the plate the words "No. 3 Folding Pocket Kodak, Model

A, Patented" were plain. It is believed that perhaps the owner of the kodak can be traced through the maker of the camera, as there are other factory marks on it which may allow of its being identified.

L adjectives and ills have three degrees-save one. Seasick and seasickness are always in the superlative. Even a "light touch" is agony to the victim, and to him is just as bad as the worst case ever suffered by mortal.

And yet, in itself, seasickness is no more dangerous than a stubbed toe, and not nearly as terrible in its possible effects as a severe bump of the knee. For the knee is one of the most sensitive portions of the anatomy, while the much-abused, yet patient, stomach can stand a lot of bad treatment.

Just what the percentage of average travelers is who succumb to seasickness savants have neglected to figure, but a conservative may place it at about 90 per

So, when statistical steamship agents tell you that probably 400,000 persons travel by boat on the Atlantic and Pacific oceans and the great lakes each year, you can easily compute the number of seasick sufferers at 360 .-000 persons. Marines Erect Headstone at a Setter's Grave.

Came to Kittery Navy Yard a Friendless Waif-Became a Life Saver and Left Many Mourners.

Portland, Me.-Beneath a headstone in the naval cemetery at the Kittery navy yard sleeps a faithful little soldier, who, when he died in April, 1909, left a long train of mourners-and he was only a dog.

When Percy died, if the American flag on the tall staff surmounting the administration building was not halfmasted it was through no fault of the noncommissioned men about the yard. Their devotion to Percy is shown by the following inscription on his gravestone: "Percy, the marines' dog. Died April 7, 1909. Erected in his memory by his companions, the marines, whom he loved."

Percy was a full-blooded Irish setter. He came to the yard 14 years ago, a starved waif, in whom the marines at the barracks had much ado to keep make him vomit again, while if it is the spark of life alight. Thenceforth his life was one long exhibition of dumb animal gratitude and he best showed it by saving three human lives. but unceasingly, too, in many lesser

No Alpine St. Bernard trained from birth to life-saving ever did a nobler duty than Percy in the case of Private Cleveland. Percy habitually cheered the sentries on the loneliest beats about the reservation, whether the time were noon or midnight. Cleveland one cold, snowy night, had post No. 6, nearly a mile out on the bleak, undeveloped southeastern part of the island. He was subject to fits and at this inopportune time had one.

He fell insensible in the snow and Percy, devotedly by his side, tried with all his little might to drag his heavy body to shelter. Failing to move the it finished in three or four years, but log-like form, he snatched the sentry's cap in his teeth and flew through the storm for the distant barracks.

The sleepers there were roused and a rescue party reached the prostrate marine in time to save his life.

On one more occasion Percy performed an almost similar service for another marine who succumbed to the rigors of a wintry night, and who, but for the faithful canine messenger, would now be under the sod which covers Percy

Percy pitched into two thugs who one night attacked a marine on the bridge leading from Kittery to the navy yard, and the ferocity of his onslaught not only made the yeggmen glad enough to escape, but brought the guard from the main gate. The victim was badly used up and but for Percy's

Other mascots have since partially engaged the affections of the marine guard, but Percy's death left a void never to be filled.

Slowly Approaching Consummation in St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn.-Slowly rising upon the crest of a hill on fashionable Summit avenue, St. Paul, Minn., is a $3,000,000 cathedral, the consummation of one of the dreams of Archbishop Ireland. Stone by stone and block by block, the great gray granite structure is taking form, and when completed will be the most magnificent Catholic cathedral in all America. No house of worship will surpass it, unless it be the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York, which is being erected by the Episcopalians.

The beginning of this cathedral was in the mind of Archbishop Ireland on the evening of Holy Thursday, March 31, 1904. The next day he imparted his idea to some of his influential friends, and on April 9, following, the site was purchased at a cost of $52,-

Since then Archbishop Ireland has worked continuously for the culmination of his plans. In response to his requests for money, persons in his diocese have subscribed $1,672,390. Of this sum $415,209.10 has been paid in. Ground for the cathedral was broken in 1996, and the corner stone was laid June 2, 1907. The foundations are completed and material is arriving for the walls.

Four years have been spent in making the foundations for the building, and they are calculated to be of sufficient strength and durability to last 10,000 years.

EPIDEMIC OF ITCH IN WELSH VILLAGE

"In Dowlais, South Wales, about fifteen years ago, families were stricken wholesale by a disease known as the itch. Believe me, it is the most terrible disease of its kind that I know of, as it itches all through your body and makes your life an inferno. Sleep is out of the question and you feel as if a million mosquitoes were attacking you at the same time. I knew a dozen families that were so affected.

"The doctors did their best, but their remedies were of no avail whatever. Then the families tried a druggist who was noted far and wide for his remarkable cures. People came to him from all parts of the country for treatment, but his medicine made matters still worse, as a last resort they were advised by a friend to use the Cuticura Remedies. I am glad to tell you that after a few days' treatment with Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent, the effect was wonderful and the result was a perfect cure in all cases.

"I may add that my three brothers. three sisters, myself and all our famflies have been users of the Cuticura Remedies for fifteen years. Thomas Hugh, 1650 West Huron St., Chicago, Ill., June 29, 1909."

An Easy Fit.

A number of years ago there lived in northern New Hampshire a notorious woman-hater. It was before the day of ready-made clothing, and wanting a new suit, he was obliged to take the material to the village tailoress. She took his measurements, and when she cut the coat, made a liberal allowance on each seam.

The man's dislike of women in general prevented his having a fitting. He took the finished garment without trying it on. Fire on Morgan Liner Under Control and Vessel May Proceed Under Its Own Steam.

Key West.-Wireless messages received here from the big Morgan liner Momus, which experienced a dangerous fire in its afterhold early Saturday morning while off the Florida coast, en route from New York to New Orleans, are to the effect that the fire was still burning at noon on Sunday, though practically under control. After transferring its passengers and baggage to the steamer Comus, without mishap, the Momus anchored off Cape Canavarel, 335 miles north of Key West, and the crew of 120 was at once put to work

Fortune Paid to Players.

Cincinnati .- More than $5,000 .-000 will be paid out this year in salaries to baseball players. This does not include the enormous expense of keeping parks in order, buying supplies and paying traveling expenses. The Deacon's Parable.

A self-conscious and egotistical young clergyman was supplying the pulpit of a country church. After the service he asked one of the deacons, a grizzled, plain-spoken man, what he thought of his morning effort.
