

CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS.

HON. M. E. BURKE

Of Beaver Dam, Candidate for Member of Congress From This District.

Hon. M. E. Burke of Beaver Dam, Wisconsin, of whom the above cut is a fair facial resemblance, was born in that city in October, 1863. At the age of two, his parents moved to the town of Beaver Dam, where he grew to manhood's estate, attending the district school in winter, and from the age of thirteen to twenty-five, working for wages among the farmers in his neighborhood in the summer. He attended the Law School at the State University, and was admitted to the practice of law in 1887. Ever since his admission to the bar, he has practiced law in his native city of Beaver Dam. His rapid advancement as a lawyer is best evidenced by the fact that for years he has enjoyed an extensive law practice in all the courts of his county. His ability and integrity as a lawyer are unquestioned by his fellow citizens.

He was twice elected to the assembly. First in the year 1890 and again in 1892, and to the senate in 1894, and he is now serving his second consecutive term as the first native born mayor of Beaver Dam.

For several years past Mr. Burke has been urged by influential Democrats in the Sixth District to become a candidate for Congress, and now that he is in the field, support is assured him in every county in the district. His nomination papers have been in circulation for some weeks past and it is safe to say that the Dodge County Democracy, among whom he has thousands of friends and admirers will stand practically as a unit for his nomination.

Mr. Burke has a long and favorable record as a Democratic legislator. He was chairman of the Judiciary Committee, and therefore, leader of his party in the Assembly, in the days of the Peck administration. No one was more active and influential than he in securing needed legislation in the interests of the people.

His four years' record as State Senator was a continuance of his efforts in behalf of legislation, founded on Democratic principles. He is a strong courageous man, and a progressive Democrat in the true sense of the word, and recognized all over the state as one of Wisconsin's ablest citizens. He is entirely free from corporation influences and from any and all interests hostile to the welfare of the people. He is fearless and incorruptable, and he is able to present his views in clear, forcible and persuasive language. He understands public questions and the needs of this district and of our state. He is now and always has been in entire sympathy with the agricultural and labor interests of this district and state. He could not be otherwise, as it is from the ranks of the farmers and laborers that he has arisen. He deserves the honors which he seeks, for in every campaign during the last twenty-two years, he has been a loyal supporter of Democratic principles and candidates. If elected, he will be a credit to the district and state. He is studious, fearless and conscientious, and will bring to the discharge of the duties of the high office of Congressman, for which he is a candidate, every necessary qualification.

In view of the peculiar circumstances existing in Democratic circles in this district at this time, he is the most available man to nominate.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED.

Resolutions adopted unanimously by the Democratic County Convention of Dodge county, Wisconsin, held at Juneau, Wis., July 6th, 1910. By Committee on Resolutions:

We, the Democratic delegates of Dodge county, in County Convention assembled, do hereby cordially endorse the candidacy of Hon. M. E. Burke, for the Democratic Nomination for Congress in this, the Sixth Congressional District, and we pledge to him our loyal and active support. We assure our fellow Democrats in the remaining counties in this district that his nomination will be gratifying to the Democracy of Dodge county, and will be a source of strength to the whole Democratic ticket in this county, as his qualifications for the position are firmly recognized by us, and we further recognize the fact that he is deserving of the honors which he seeks.

We further assure the Democracy of this District that for many years past he has been and is now one of the pioneers in Progressive Democracy, which is now so essential to the success of the party, we recommend his candidacy to the Democracy of this District

CAVALRY MARCHES THROUGH KEWASKUM

Wisconsin National Guard of Milwaukee Passed Through Here Saturday Enroute to Milwaukee.

Troop A. of the First Regiment, Wis. National Guard of Milwaukee, who were ordered for camp July on a practice march by Adj. Gen. C. R. Boardman of Madison, passed through here last morning enroute to Milwaukee.

The troop which was composed of 82 men and horses started out of Milwaukee a week ago last Friday, the soldiers followed the shore of Lake Michigan, passing through Sheboygan and Manitowoc, thence taking a northwestern route to Appleton, Neenah and Menasha. The company came via Fond du Lac and camped near Five Corners on Friday night. They passed through Kewaskum at about 8 o'clock Saturday morning for Cedarburg, where the last night was spent before returning home to Milwaukee.

This march was conducted under strict regulations of the United States army. Every necessity for the comfort and well being of the soldiers was carried on horseback. Transfer of only a few things were made by wagon. The troop had one wagon for the officers' equipment and the other for provisions. One ambulance was drawn on the march, to be used in case of emergency. An automobile truck carried the cook apparatus.

First Lieut. G. H. F. Godson of the regular army, under detail of the war department accompanied the detachment as inspector, both of the officers and privates. Other officers were Gen. Otto Falk, late adjutant general and now an aide-de-camp on the staff of the governor; Col. J. G. Salsman, adjutant general; Capt. R. W. Miller of Troop A, First regiment, W. N. G.; Lieut. Ferdinand Fitz, Lieut. Carl Panner, and Capt. W. H. Cronin of the medical department.

Excursion Picnic a Success.

The picnic and dance held here at the North Side Park by the Ph. Sheridan Lodge, brotherhood of Firemen and Engineers last Sunday was a great success. It was an ideal picnic day and everybody who attended felt cheerful. About 500 from Milwaukee came out to attend the affair and a special train consisting of seven coaches, filled to their capacity with excursionists, arrived here shortly after 10 A. M. and about 150 passengers arrived on the early train from Milwaukee. After the arrival of the excursion train most of the visitors went to the park where they spent the forenoon and took dinner.

The picnic began shortly after one o'clock, when the long list of games and contests for prizes took place, which amused a large crowd. It is estimated that over 3,000 people were on the picnic grounds during the afternoon. The dance in the evening was also very largely attended. In all the picnic was one of the best the brotherhood ever held here. The committee, who had charge of the arrangements deserves praise for the interesting program of the day.

CARRIERS CAN SIGN PAPERS

Rural Mail Men Empowered to Make Out Pension Vouchers for Veterans.

Hereafter it will be unnecessary for United States pensioners along the rural mail lines out of town to secure the services of a justice of the peace or notary public to have their vouchers made out. Through the provisions of a bill which has recently become a law, all carriers in the rural mail service are empowered to execute vouchers, for which they are to receive the regulation fee of twenty-five cents. The authority conferred upon the mail carriers will prove an immense convenience.

To facilitate the execution of pension vouchers Congress passed a law in 1894 empowering fourth-class postmasters to administer any and all oaths required to be made by pensioners and their witnesses in the execution of pension vouchers.

Because of the establishment and extension of rural delivery, 23,550 fourth-class postoffices have been discontinued, taking away from pensioners a convenient means of executing their vouchers and in many instances they now have to travel long distances for the purpose of finding some person authorized to execute vouchers.

Lightning Strikes Barn.

A big barn 36x125, owned by J. Gerlach, residing about two miles south of Theresa was struck by lightning Monday night and was totally destroyed. The fire also communicated to the hog house and destroyed this building.

The big barn building was filled with hay and grain and this too fell prey to the flames. A number of hogs, calves and all chickens were destroyed, while the cattle and horses were saved. The fire was visible very plain from here during the night.

The building and contents are valued at about $2,500 with insurance of $1,600 in the Theresa Farmers Company. Mr. Gerlach expects to rebuild at once.—Lomira Review.

John Pick Has Loss by Fire.

John Pick formerly a member of the Pick Bros. Co. of West Bend, who recently located at Stanford, Montana (in the Judith Basin) sustained a total loss of his personal property on August 14, the property being destroyed by fire resulting from lightning. While Mr. Pick and those with him were at dinner a neighbor's screams alarmed them, and looking out of the tent in which they were quartered they beheld the machine shed, 20x36 feet in size, which had only recently been built, a mass of fire. The distance from the tent to the shed was too great to reach the latter in time to save anything, and the only articles saved was the clothing worn.—West Bend Pilot.

CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS

Well Known Fond du Lac Attorney a Candidate for Congress. Has a Splendid Record.

Mr. Reilly was born in the town of Empire and secured his earlier education at the district school. He was graduated from the Oshkosh Normal, class of '89; the University of Wisconsin, college of letters, class of '94, and from the law department of the university, class of '95.

He made a splendid record as a student, and won exceptional laurels as an orator, being class orator at the Normal; one of the commencement orators at the university.

Mr. Reilly was district attorney for Fond du Lac county, two years; City Attorney, five years; delegate to the Democratic National convention at Denver, Co., in 1908 and is serving his sixth year as chairman of the Democratic city committee. He has practiced law in Fond du Lac for the past thirteen years, being senior member of the law firm of Reilly, Fellenz and Reilly. Both as a prosecutor and as counsel for the defense, as well as in civil actions, and in fact all branches of legal practice, Mr. Reilly has been signally successful, being especially effective in the summing up of evidence and in jury pleas.

Mr. Reilly's democracy is of the "dyed in the wool variety" and he will make the run for congress on no other platform than the plain tenets of that party. While still a student at the State university he took the stump in the campaigns of '90, '92 and '94, and in every campaign thereafter, has been active both as an orator and an organizer always fighting in the van guard without intent or expectation of material reward.

Both in private and public life, Mr. Reilly's career has been without a blemish. He is known as a lawyer of high standing; a citizen ready to do his duty as he saw it without fear or favor, and a man with both the ability and energy to carry out whatever he may undertake.—Daily Reporter, Fond du Lac, Wis., June 4, 1910.

FOREST FIRES CLAIM MANY VICTIMS—LOSE LIVES FIGHTING DEADLY FOE.

SETTLERS FLEE FOR SAFETY

More Than 50 Persons Are Known to Be Dead—About 100 Missing, 200 Injured—Loss Already Reaches $25,000,000.

Spokane, Wash.—One hundred fire fighters are reported dead in the flooded canyon near Wallace, Idaho, and five citizens were burned to death in their homes as a result of forest fires which for sixty days have terrified the Coeur d'Alene country and which spread to the town of Wallace, the metropolis of the mining district.

More than a third of Wallace is burned. The Pacific, Michigan and Coeur d'Alene hotels, two O. R. & N. depots, a big hardware warehouse and 150 to 200 residences are destroyed. The town is almost dark by day and the heavens and surrounding country a seething mass by night.

Ashes fill the air and the heat is tremendous. Telegraphic communication is cut off for a time, but the fighters believe they have the fire in the city under control.

Newport, Wash., a town of 2,000, is burning, but the loss of life is as yet unknown. Cries for help are being answered as rapidly as relief parties can be made up. All available soldiers in this part of the country are pressed into service.

Spokane, Wash.—In the Coeur d'Alene district of Idaho more than fifty persons are known to be dead, and nearly 100 are missing as a result of the forest fires.

The seriously injured, mostly fire fighters, will number, according to the statement made Monday by W. R. Weigle, forest superintendent of the Coeur d'Alenes, more than 200. Many of them have been stricken blind and others have broken limbs.

At many points hundreds are hemmed in by a narrowing wall of flames and it is impossible to reach them with help.

From Wallace came reports that the town of Burke is in flames and certain of destruction. The fire rangers in that territory are so exhausted that no effective battle against the flames can be made. The 300 residents of the town are in flight toward Wallace.

All along the Great Northern and Northern Pacific tracks between Spokane and Helena numberless fires are known to be raging furiously, but definite reports cannot be secured.

Before communication with Libby, Mont., ended it was reported that every male resident of the town was working, with 200 paid fire fighters, to divert Flower creek to the south side of the village as a protection against the flames driving up from that direction.

Helena, Mont.—Reports received here from every fire district in Montana indicate that the situation is by long odds the worst in the history of the state. Despite the large number of troops, civilians and railroad employes that have been put into the field, the flames are absolute masters of the situation, and there is only one salvation—general rain, but for which there is no prospect.

Butte, Mont.—Six hundred fire fighters who left Thompson Falls four days ago are reported lost, and Forest Superintendent Bushnell of the cabinet reserve, who is at Thompson, fears all may have perished. The wind is blowing furiously toward Thompson and it is feared the little town, which is crowded with refugees, will be swept by fire.

The first cheering news from the great forest fire zone came Tuesday afternoon in the form of a report that heavy rain was falling at Outbank on the eastern edge of the great Flathead country. Should this rain become general in the western and northwestern part of the state, the fires will be conquered and not until then, according to those who have visited the scene.

Governor Norris called out five companies of state troops to assist in fighting fires in the Flathead country. Fergus and Gallatin counties, in each of which districts the fires are beyond the control of the foresters and railroad employes. The reports from the northern end of this county are anything but assuring. Several new fires are reported from Lincoln, Stemple, Gould and Flesher and with the flames complete masters of the situation.

Summit, a town on the Great Northern, is reported surrounded by flames. Libby and Troy are still in grave danger of burning, according to Governor Norris, who has returned from there.

Washington.—Already the forest fires raging in the Missoula, Mont., and northern Idaho districts have consumed timber and property valued at more than $25,000,000. This, according to an official of the forest bureau Monday, is a conservative estimate.

TAFT PROMISES REVISION

ISSUES A LETTER FOR THE CONGRESSIONAL CAMPAIGN BOOK.

Executive to Recommend to Congress That Individual Schedules Be Taken Up Separately.

Beverly, Mass.—In the letter he has written for the Republican congressional campaign book, President Taft advocates revision of the tariff by separate schedule.

The president dwells at length upon the work of the tariff board which has been investigating the cost of living at home and abroad. Summing up what he hopes from this board, the president says that whenever it reports to him facts which in his judgment warrant a revision of any particular schedule, he will recommend such revision in a message to congress.

If it is objected that this method of tariff revision is open to the possibility that the attempted revision of one schedule will bring down a flood of amendments which will, in effect, open up the entire tariff law, the president has a reply. He will recommend the adoption of a rule in both houses of congress providing that only the specific schedule that is named shall be reopened and that all amendments not germane to that schedule shall be regarded as out of order.

In taking this stand in favor of revising the tariff, a schedule at a time, the president is going more than half way to meet the progressives, who have charged that the scheme of revision followed at the special session of congress makes a fair and impartial revision of the tariff impossible and paves the way for deals and dickers under which the interests of "big business" are fostered and protected. The move is another step toward harmonizing the party.

CRUISER ASHORE; 18 DEAD

British Warship Bedford Goes on Rocks Off the Korean Coast—Probably Total Loss.

London.—Eighteen lives were lost when the British cruiser Bedford ran ashore on the rocks of Quelpart Island, Korea, according to a report received here Monday by the admiralty. The men were members of the engine room force.

The accident occurred during full speed trials of the vessel and the cruiser was evidently badly damaged, since the deaths are stated officially to have been due to "the rush of water." The wreck is about two miles to the west of Nearlow Island, which is off the southwestern point of Quelpart Island. Many sunken rocks are charted in this vicinity, and navigation in the passage between Barlow and Giffard Island, its neighbor, is not recommended for this reason.

The vessel lies in such a desperate position that there is practically no possibility of saving her. The hull is full of water up to the engine room bulkhead, the water pouring in through gaping holes punched by the sunken rocks, and the officers and crew have been taken off. The sister warships, the Minotaur and Monmouth of the British squadron, which anchored near the wreck to render assistance, were obliged to put to sea owing to the heavy weather which prevails.

UNCOVER BALLOT BOX FRAUDS

Receptacles Are Found to Have Been Tamped With and Poll Books Abstracted.

Springfield, Ill.—Greater scandal than any hinted at was uncovered in the contest of the recent park district election in this city. The ballot boxes were brought into court and unlocked by the secretary of the park board. It was discovered that the boxes had been tampered with and the poll books abstracted. This was found to have been done in every district in which fraudulent voting and incorrect count of votes was charged. The boxes have been in a bank vault in this city for a month, prior to which time they were in the custody of men representing both parties to the contest.

ARREST ENGLISHMAN AS SPY

German Authorities at Borkum Nab Another Suspicious Briton After a Severe Struggle.

Emden, Germany.—A second Englishman, in addition to the one captured Monday at Borkum, was arrested at Borkum on suspicion that he also is a spy. He offered violent resistance to arrest.

It was reported that photographs had been taken of the fortifications at Borkum and of the new defense works on the island of Wangeroog, in the North sea near the entrance to Jade bay.

SIBLEY IS ARRESTED

CONGRESSMAN CHARGED IN WARRANT WITH CONSPIRACY TO DEBAUCH VOTERS.

THREE OTHERS ALSO TAKEN

Politicians of the Twenty-Eighth District in Net in Which the National Lawmaker Is Taken—Votes Valued at Five Dollars Apiece.

Franklin, Pa.—Following his withdrawal from the congressional race in this district because of alleged poor health, Joseph C. Sibley was arrested here Tuesday on a warrant which charges him with "conspiracy to debauch voters."

Sibley's campaign expense account, filed recently, showed an expenditure of $42,000, or about $5 a vote for all the voters of the district. His accounting had been brought into court by his Democratic opponent, William J. Breen.

Mr. Sibley was released on his own recognizance to appear before Justice of the Peace Perry at Warren, Pa., August 28.

In the warrant under which Mr. Sibley was arrested three other prominent politicians in the Twenty-eighth district are also charged with conspiracy to debauch voters.

It was only after Mr. Sibley, who has been a stand-pat leader and the alleged representative of the Standard Oil company in congress, had seen the court action, that he resigned, and his ill health is declared to have been hard to see till the suit brought on the "heart failure" that he gave as the reason for not making the race, after weathering many hard political storms.

Sibley has been elected from the Twenty-eighth district, sometimes as a Democrat and sometimes as a Republican.

CLEAR SHERMAN OF BLAME

Congressional Committee Exonerates Vice-President and Senator Curtis in Indian Land Probe.

Sulphur, Okla.—The select committee was appointed by the house of representatives to investigate Indian land affairs and the so-called McMurray contracts and which also has been investigating the Gore bribery charges issued the following statement:

"The committee has heard and carefully considered all the testimony submitted and is unanimous in the opinion that there is and was no warrant for any person to use the names of Vice-President Sherman and Senator Charles S. Curtis in connection with any improper relations with any Indian contract whatever."

This is the opinion of the committee after hearing scores of witnesses who appeared following the testimony of Senator T. P. Gore that he had been approached by Jake L. Hamon, who, acting in the interest of J. F. McMurray, offered him (Senator Gore) $25,000 or $50,000 as a bribe to promote in congress the contracts by which McMurray was to receive a ten per cent attorney's fee on the sale of $30,000,000 worth of Indian lands.

CAPTAIN OF LINER BUCKMAN SHOT TO DEATH.

Two Armed Passengers Attempt to Take Possession of Vessel—One Jumps Overboard When Arrested.

Eureka, Cal.—The Alaska Pacific Steamship company's liner Buckman was held up at sea off this port by two passengers.

Captain Wood was shot and killed by one of the men in resisting. The second man was overpowered by the engine-room crew. The passenger who shot the captain jumped overboard with a life preserver.

The Buckman was bound from Seattle to San Francisco. Early in the morning Fred Thomas, passenger, went to the captain's cabin, while an accomplice descended to the engine room. Both men were armed and they attempted to take possession of the vessel. Captain Wood refused to comply with Thomas' demands and was shot dead. Thomas ran out of the room and, seeing his plans had miscarried, strapped on a life preserver and leaped into the sea.

Meanwhile the accomplice had encountered resistance in the engine room. He was overpowered and placed in irons. The Buckman is proceeding to San Francisco in charge of First Officer Brennan. The attempt to rob the Buckman was reported to the steamer President, north-bound.

PEST IN ITALY SPREADING

Twenty Thousand People Flee From Cholera-Stricken Town—Disease of Virulent Type.

Rome.—The cholera epidemic is rapidly spreading in southern Italy, but rumors that it had also reached this city are without foundation. Not a single case has been reported here and the health officials are on the qui vive for any appearance of the malady.

According to the reports Friday the disease is of a most virulent type and accompanied by a high death rate. Thirty deaths are reported at Trani. The town is being rapidly depopulated because of the panic among the inhabitants.

The authorities are greatly concerned over the possibility of a still wider spread of the epidemic as a result of this flight of people from the disease centers.

MRS. CUDAHY GETS DIVORCE

Wife of Packer Who Slashed Jere Lillis Wins Quick Suit on Incompatibility.

Kansas City, Mo.—Upon her testimony of incompatibility, supported by the testimony of her maid, Elizabeth Johnson, Mrs. Edna Cowin Cudahy got a divorce from Jack Cudahy, son of the millionaire Chicago packer, Tuesday. She was given alimony amounting to $1. The court proceedings lasted just ten minutes.

By the terms of the decree, the four Cudahy children will go into the custody of Michael Cudahy, father of Jack Cudahy.

Where Millions Are Entombed.

The catacombs at Rome were the burial places of the early Christians. They are about 580 miles in extent and are said to have contained 6,000,000 bodies. During the persecutions of the Christians under Nero and other Roman emperors the catacombs were used for hiding places. Under Diocletian the catacombs were crowded with those for whom there was no safety in the face of the day. The art of the catacombs is unique and most interesting. Simple designs are etched in the slabs which seal the tombs. Now and then are small chapels whose paintings are to be found. All are Bible illustrations, so that the catacombs may be said to be a pictorial Bible in effect.—The Christian Herald.

Faults in American Character.

In an address on botanical education in America, Prof. W. F. Ganong remarks that "disregard of particulars and a tendency to easy generalities are fundamental faults in American character," and he insists upon the necessity of laboratory and experimental work in all scientific study. Books "ease the wits," but independent observation is the source of sound knowledge in science.

CUDAHY DIVORCED

WOMAN GETS DECREE AGAINST PACKER'S SON IN TEN MINUTES.

ALIMONY IS ONE DOLLAR

Plaintiff and Maid Only Witnesses and Jere Lillis Affair Is Not Mentioned. Children to Be in the Care of Grandparents.

Kansas City.—As a sequel to John P. Cudahy's attack on Jerry Lillis in the Cudahy residence shortly after midnight of March 5, Mrs. Cudahy obtained a divorce from her husband, son of the millionaire packer. The decree was granted by Judge James H. Stover on the grounds of incompatibility of temper, ten minutes after Mrs. Cudahy had filed her petition. Mrs. Cudahy and her maid, Elizabeth Johnson, were the only witnesses. No mention was made of the Lillis affair.

Cudahy was not in court. He is said to have been here, but he could not be located. Attorneys represented him at the hearing, but they made no protest against the decree.

Mrs. Cudahy was given alimony amounting to $1.

It is understood that Gen. John C. Cowin of Omaha, father of Mrs. Cudahy, and Michael Cudahy, the defendant's father, brought about an amicable settlement outside of court.

Attorneys for both sides refused to discuss the report that a secret settlement had been effected. A friend of Mrs. Cudahy, however, said Michael Cudahy had agreed to pay his son's wife $5,000 during the first year following her divorce and $3,000 during each ensuing year of her life as long as she remains single.

Custody of the four Cudahy children was given Michael Cudahy and his wife, Catherine, during their lifetimes. Upon their death Mary Cudahy, an aunt of the children, will have charge of them, and when she dies Clara Cudahy, another aunt, will become their guardian. Mrs. Cudahy was given the right to visit the children "at all reasonable times and places and for such periods as may be reasonable and proper."

"To protect the children," was the reason given by attorneys that no charge other than "incompatibility" was made in the bill.

Immediately after the decree had been granted, Mrs. Cudahy left for Chicago with her children. She will take the children to the home of their grandparents. It is understood she will return here to make her home.

FIND MAN AND WIFE DEAD

Woman Dead in Carriage With Bullet Hole in Chest, While Husband Is Found in Road.

Perkinsville.—Sitting upright in her carriage, shot through the heart, the body of Mrs. Fanny Hewey, aged 45, was found by a party of automobilists. The horse was also dead, shot through the heart. A little farther on the body of G. Frank Hewey, aged 48, husband of the woman, was found, a bullet wound in his breast and a rifle by his side.

The police call it a case of murder and suicide, the outcome of family troubles. The woman had left her home here three times and refused to return. Hewey then became morose and for several days, it is said, had sat in front of his house with his rifle across his knees.

When his wife drove along the road it is believed he halted her, killing the horse and then, when she refused to listen to his pleadings, shot her through the heart, sending a third bullet into his own body.

Bradley Firms in Court.

Wausau.—Judge A. H. Reid, in Circuit court here, heard arguments on demurrers in actions against eight companies, known as the "Bradley companies."

The petitioner in each case is Mary H. Kelley, a leading stockholder in each company. She alleges that she was denied the right to audit the books of the companies and petitions for an order to compel the management to permit her to do so.

The companies are the United States Lumber company, the Electric, Water and Telephone company, the Tomahawk Land company, the Bradley Land company, the Bradley & Collins Land company, the Wisconsin Land and Power company, the Merrill Lumber company and the Bradley company, all of Tomahawk and Merrill.

Great Damage by Wind.

Kenosha.—A heavy electric storm which passed over Kenosha played havoc with the standing crops and in many parts of this county the corn was leveled by the wind and rain. Two inches of rain fell in a little over two hours. The big farm residence of Albert Curtis, just north of Central park, was struck by lightning, the electricity causing an explosion in a gas main, which wrecked the house and started a fire which caused a loss of $5,000.

Was John Brown's Comrade.

Madison.—When Theodore Roosevelt makes the dedicatory address at the opening of the John Brown park at Osawatimie, Kan., he will have no more interested listener than Edward P. Bridgman of this city, who is one of the three surviving comrades of John Brown who took part in the battle of Osawatimie on Aug. 30, 1856. The others are Luke F. Parsons of Salina, Kan., and D. C. Collins of Santa Fe, Cal. Mr. Bridgman has received an invitation to attend. With his son he will leave early next week for Osawatimie.

WISCONSIN HAPPENINGS

Washburn.—A patent has been granted to George Lemieux of this city on a new mail delivery device which will undoubtedly be adopted by the government in the handling of mails from stations where the through trains do not stop. Heretofore the government has suffered great loss in the destroying and tearing of mail sacks under the manner in which they are now handled. The new device changes the system of handling mail sacks so that it will be almost impossible for them to be damaged or the contents smashed. The device is simple in construction, being a cylinder barrel worked by a spring. The mail is placed in the cylinder and when the train passes a lever is released and the force of the spring throws the mail sack into the mail car. The device can be moved out of the way when not in use, and the mail will be delivered no matter what speed the train is running.

Fond Du Lac.—August Gabriel, a resident of Bluff street, while laboring under the delusion that he was an airship, was taken into custody by Officer Flanders on Linden street and was taken to the Northern Hospital for the Insane at Winnebago in the afternoon, having been examined and adjudged demented. Officer Flanders, who is on the night beat, was on his way home when he heard a patter of feet behind him and saw a man running toward him at the top of his speed, flapping his arms as though they were wings and occasionally leaping into the air. He stopped the man, who explained that he was taking a running start so that he could sail up among the clouds.

Chippewa Fall.—The golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. John Hill occurred. They were married 50 years ago at Bathurst, N. B., and have resided here for the past 26 years. Their friends gave them a surprise party and contributed many presents, including $100 in gold. Mr. Hill is seventy-four years old and was born October 31, 1836, at Bathurst, N. B., while Mrs. Hill is seventy-five years old, born February 1, 1835, at Kingsale, Ireland. She has been totally blind for the past 22 years, yet does all her housework, and readily recognizes many intimate friends.

Manitowoc.—Willim E. Murphy and E. J. Carroll, the latter proprietor of the Williams house of this city, the former a Milwaukee man, were injured in an automobile accident at Port Washington while on their way to Milwaukee. Mr. Murphy had an arm broken and suffered other injuries, and Mr. Carroll suffered a dislocation of the shoulder. No details of the accident have been received here and whether other members of the party were hurt is not known. Messrs. Murphy and Carroll were accompanied by their wives.

Madison.—A handsome new theater on a site within one block of the capital square, the theater to be ready for use this season, is the plan of a company of Madisonians. The proposition is up to the Shubert people. The Madison people who are interested in the project have made their proposition to the Shuberts, and all that remains to bring a new playhouse to Madison is the "O. K." work from the Shuberts.

Kewaskum.—Otto J. Mattas, a rural mail carrier here, was arrested by Post Office Inspector Ralph Bird, charged with stealing a letter containing three checks on May 16. Mattas confessed, according to Mr. Bird, to cashing the checks. He was taken to Milwaukee and turned over to Marshal H. A. Well. He was arraigned before United States Court Commissioner Francis Bloodgood.

Washburn.—Bayfield county farmers have been cutting their grain crops and from reports from the different parts of the country it is found that the crop this year is about normal despite the dry weather of the first of the year. The grass and hay crops were short, but millet and alfalfa show a good yield to the acre. Corn is looking fine and the yield will be heavy.

Milwaukee.—The Marshall and Illsley bank has executed a 99-year lease of the property at 413 East Water street and will erect on this site a dignified bank building for its exclusive use to cost $200,000. This is the oldest banking house in Milwaukee.

Auburndale.—Several residents of the village and surrounding country have reported seeing a man, scantily covered with rags, in the woods, and who takes flight as soon as he is observed. Authorities have made a search without success. It is believed that the man is demented.

Grand Rapids.—The four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Walloch was attacked by a cow and seriously injured. She suffered a broken arm and it is feared that blood poison may result.

Hudson.—Judge Wickham of Eau Claire has decided that ex-Mayor Utman's police and fire commission is the legal one. He states that while the mayor was absent from the city, when Acting Mayor Casanova appointed his commission, Mr. Casanova's action was not justifiable according to the intent of the law.

Madison.—The state tax commission has announced that on August 24 hearings will be held in Madison giving the different equipment companies of the state an opportunity to discuss the valuation of their property.

For Attorney General

On the Republican Ticket.

LEVI H. BANCROFT

OF RICHLAND CENTER.

Speaker of Wisconsin Assembly of 1909.

Judge Bancroft is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin Law department, former city attorney of Richland Center, County Judge of Richland County and Assistant Attorney General.

He was one of the ablest men in the Assemblies of 1907 and 1909 and is a lawyer of high repute.

He is a firm supporter of President Taft and the Republican party and has always been an ardent worker for Republican success. He is eminently fitted for the position he seeks.

Vote for him at the Primary, Sept. 6th.

MEANS MUCH TO FARMERS

When the filled cheese evil threatened the existence of the Wisconsin cheese business, Samuel A. Cook, then a representative in congress, saw the evil and rose to the occasion. Carefully preparing a bill, and the arguments to back it up, he introduced his bill and worked for it so long and so hard that it became the law. That law saved the dairy industry in Wisconsin, so far as cheese was concerned, and was a wonderful stimulus for the dairy industries as a whole.

But it was not all that Samuel A. Cook did for the farming and dairy interests. He worked for pure seed and for pure food while in congress, and since then as a member of the National Dairymen's, the Wisconsin Buttermakers and the Wisconsin Cheesemakers associations, has worked for the betterment of the dairying industry, for higher standards and for higher grade products, for the greater productivity of the soil and for the improvement of farm life and farm work.

A man who will do these things is certainly a friend of the dairymen and the farmers. He is a man who can do things and who has proved it by doing things. Samuel A. Cook knows the problems of farm and dairy life, and owning and operating a model dairy himself, knows how to solve those problems.

Mr. Cook's services to Wisconsin have meant millions to the farmers and dairymen of the state and they will remember those services when they vote at the primary election, September 6, 1910.

CHAPTER I.

I Go to Pittsburg.

McKnight is gradually taking over the criminal end of the business. I never liked it, and since the strange case of the man in lower ten, I have been a bit squeamish. Given a case like that, where you can build up a network of clues that absolutely incriminate three entirely different people, only one of whom can be guilty, and your faith in circumstantial evidence dies of overconfidence. I never see a shivering, white-faced wretch in the prisoners' dock that I do not hark back with shuddering horror to the strange events on the Pullman car Ontario, between Washington and Pittsburg, on the night of September 9, last.

McKnight could tell the story a great deal better than I, although he cannot spell three consecutive words correctly. But, while he has imagination and humor, he is lazy.

"It didn't happen to me, anyhow," he protested, when I put it up to him. "And nobody cares for second-hand thrills. Besides, you want the unvarnished and ungarmented truth, and I'm no hand for that. I'm a lawyer."

So am I, although there have been times when my assumption in that particular has been disputed. I am unmarried, and just old enough to dance with the grown-up little sisters of the girls I used to know. I am fond of outdoors, prefer horses to the aforesaid grown-up little sisters, and without sentiment ("am" crossed out and "was" substituted.—Ed.) and completely ruled and frequently routed by my housekeeper, an elderly widow.

In fact, of all the men of my acquaintance, I was probably the most prosaic, the least adventurous, the one man in a hundred who would be likely to go without a deviation from the normal through the orderly procession of the seasons, summer suits to winter flannels, golf to bridge.

So it was a queer freak of the demons of chance to perch on my unsusceptible 30-year-old chest, tie me up with a crime, ticket me with a love affair, and start me on that sensational and not always respectable journey that ended so surprisingly less than three weeks later in the firm's private office. It had been the most remarkable period of my life. I would neither give it up nor live it again under any inducement, and yet all that I lost was some 20 yards off my drive!

It was really McKnight's turn to make the next journey. I had a tournament at Chevy Chase for Saturday, and a short yacht cruise planned for Sunday, and when a man has been grinding at statute law for a week, he needs relaxation. But McKnight begged off. It was not the first time he had shirked that summer in order to run down to Richmond, and I was surly about it. But this time he had a new excuse.

"I wouldn't be able to look after the business if I did go," he said. He has a sort of wide-eyed frankness that makes one ashamed to doubt him. "I'm always car sick crossing the mountains. It's a fact, Lollie. Seeing over the peaks does it. Why, crossing the Alleghany mountains has the gulf stream to Bermuda beaten to a frazzle."

So I gave him up finally and went home to pack. He came later in the evening with his machine, the Cannonball, to take me to the station, and he brought the forged notes in the Bronson case.

"Guard them with your life," he warned me. "They are more precious than honor. Sew them in your chest protector, or wherever people keep valuables. I never keep any. I'll not be happy until I see Gentleman Andy doing the lockstep."

He sat down on my clean collars, found my cigarettes and struck a match on the mahogany bed post with one movement.

"Where's the Pirate?" he demanded. The Pirate is my housekeeper, Mrs. Klopston, a very worthy woman, so labeled—and libeled—because of a ferocious pair of eyes and what McKnight called a buccanering nose. I quietly closed the door into the hall.

"Keep your voice down, Richey," I said. "She is looking for the evening paper to see if it is going to rain. She has my raincoat and an umbrella waiting in the hall."

The collars being damaged beyond repair, he left them and went to the window. He stood there for some time, staring at the blackness that represented the wall of the house next door.

"It's raining now," he said over his shoulder, and closed the window and the shutters. Something in his voice made me glance up, but he was watching me, his hands idly in his pockets. "Who lives next door?" he inquired in a perfunctory tone, after a pause. "I was packing my razor."

"House is empty," I returned absently. "If the landlord would put it in some sort of shape—"

"Did you put those notes in your pocket?" he broke in.

"Yes." I was impatient. "Along with my certificates of registration, baptism and vaccination. Whoever wants them will have to steal my coat to get them."

"Guard This with Your Life."

"Well, I would move them, if I were you. Somebody in the next house was confoundedly anxious to see where you put them. Somebody right at that window opposite."

I scoffed at the idea, but nevertheless I moved the papers, putting them in my traveling bag, well down at the bottom. McKnight watched me uneasily.

"I have a hunch that you are going to have trouble," he said, as I locked the alligator bag. "Darned if I like starting anything important on Friday."

"You have a congenial dislike to start anything on any old day," I retorted, still sore from my lost Saturday. "And if you knew the owner of that house as I do you would know that if there was any one at that window he is paying rent for the privilege."

Mrs. Klopston rapped at the door and spoke discreetly from the hall. "Did Mr. McKnight bring the evening paper?" she inquired.

"Sorry, but I didn't, Mr. Klopston," McKnight called. "The subs won, three to nothing." He listened, grinning, as she moved away with little irritated rustles of her black silk gown.

I finished my packing, changed my collar and was ready to go. Then very cautiously we put out the light and opened the shutters. The window across was merely a deeper black in the darkness. It was closed and dirty. And yet, probably owing to Richey's suggestion, I had an uneasy sensation of eyes staring across at me. The next moment we were at the door, poised for flight.

"We'll have to run for it," I said in a whisper. "She's down there with a package of some sort, sandwiches probably. And she's threatened me with overshoes for a month. Ready row!"

I had a kaleidoscopic view of Mrs. Klopston in the lower hall, holding out an armful of such traveling impediments as she deemed essential, while beside her, Euphemia, the colored housemaid, grinned over a white-wrapped box.

"Awfully sorry—no time—back Sunday," I panted over my shoulder. Then the door closed and the car was moving away.

McKnight bent forward and stared at the facade of the empty house next door as we passed. It was black, staring, mysterious, as empty buildings are apt to be.

"I'd like to hold a post-mortem on that corpse of a house," he said thoughtfully. "By George, I've a notion to get out and take a look."

"Somebody after the brass pipes," I scoffed. "House has been empty for a year."

With one hand on the steering wheel McKnight held out the other for my cigarette case. "Perhaps," he said; "but I don't see what she would want with brass pipe."

"A woman!" I laughed outright. "You have been looking too hard at the picture in the back of your watch, that's all. There's an experiment like that. If you stare long enough—"

But McKnight was growing sulky; he sat looking rigidly ahead, and he did not speak again until he brought the Cannonball to a stop at the station. Even then it was only a perfunctory remark. He went through the gate with me, and with five minutes to spare, we lounged and smoked in the train shed. My mind had slid away from my surroundings and had wandered to a polo pony that I couldn't afford and intended to buy anyhow. Then McKnight shook off his taciturnity.

"For heaven's sake, don't look so martyred," he burst out; "I know you've done all the traveling this summer. I know you're missing a game to-morrow. But don't be a patient mother; confound it, I have to go to Richmond on Sunday. I—I want to see a girl."

"Oh, don't mind me," I observed politely. "Personally, I wouldn't change places with you. What's her name—North? South?"

"West," he snapped. "Don't try to be funny. And all I have to say, Blakeley, is that if you ever fall in love I hope you make an egregious ass of yourself."

In view of what followed, this came rather close to prophecy.

The trip west was without incident. I played bridge with a furniture dealer from Grand Rapids, a sales agent for a Pittsburg iron firm and a young professor from an eastern college. I won three rubbers out of four, finished what cigarettes McKnight had left me and went to bed about one o'clock. It was growing cooler, and the rain had ceased. Once, toward morning, I wakened with a start, for no apparent reason, and sat bolt upright. I had an uneasy feeling that some one had been looking at me, the same sensation I had experienced earlier in the evening at the window. But I could feel the bag with the notes, between me and the window, and with my arm thrown over it for security, I lapsed again into slumber. Later, when I tried to piece together the fragments of that journey, I remembered that my coat, which had been folded and placed beyond my restless tossing, had been rescued in the morning from a heterogeneous jumble of blankets, evening papers and cravat, had been shaken out with profanity and donned with wrath. At the time, nothing occurred to me but the necessity of writing to the Pullman Company and asking them if they ever traveled in their own cars. I even formulated some of the letter.

I was more cheerful after I had had a cup of coffee in the Union station. It was too early to attend to business, and I lounged in the restaurant and hid behind the morning papers. As I had expected, they had got hold of my visit and its object. On the first page was a staring announcement that the forged papers in the Bronson case had been brought to Pittsburg. Underneath, a telegram from Washington stated that Lawrence Blakeley of Pittsburg the night before, and that, owing to the approaching trial of the Bronson case and the illness of John Gilmore, the Pittsburg millionaire, who was the chief witness for the prosecution, it was supposed that the visit was intimately concerned with the trial.

I looked around apprehensively. There were no reporters yet in sight, and thankful to have escaped notice I paid for my breakfast and left. At the cabstand I chose the least dilapidated hansom I could find, and giving the driver the address of the Gilmore residence, in the East end, I got in.

I was just in time. As the cab turned and rolled off, a slim young man in a straw hat separated himself from a little group of men and hurried toward us.

"Hey! Wait a minute there!" he called, breaking into a trot.

But the caddy did not hear, or perhaps did not care to. We jogged comfortably along, to my relief, leaving the young man far behind. I avoid reporters on principle, having learned long ago that I am an easy mark for a clever interviewer.

It was perhaps nine o'clock when I left the station. Our way was along the boulevard which hugged the side of one of the city's great hills. Far below, to the left, lay the railroad tracks and the seventy times seven looming stacks of the mills. The white mist of the river, the grays and blacks of the smoke blended into a half-revealing haze, dotted here and there with fire. It was unlovely, tremendous. Whistler might have painted it with its pathos, its majesty, but he would have missed what made it infinitely suggestive—the rattle and roar of iron on iron, the rumble of wheels, the throbbing beat, against the ears, of fire and heat and brawn welding prosperity.

Something of this I voiced to the grim old millionaire who was responsible for at least part of it. He was propped up in bed in his East end home, listening to the market reports read by a nurse, and he smiled a little at my enthusiasm.

"I can't see much beauty in it myself," he said. "But it's our badge of prosperity. The full dinner pail here means a nose that looks like a flue. Pittsburg without smoke wouldn't be Pittsburg, any more than New York prohibition would be New York. Sit down for a few minutes, Mr. Blakeley. Now, Miss Gardner, Westinghouse Electric."

The nurse resumed her reading in a monotonous voice. She read literally and without understanding, using initial and abbreviations as they came. But the shrewd old man followed her easily.

As the nurse droned along, I found myself looking curiously at a photograph in a silver frame on the bedside table. It was the picture of a girl in white, with her hands clasped loosely before her. Against the dark background her figure stood out slim and young. Perhaps it was the rather grim environment, possibly it was my mood, but although as a general thing photographs of young girls make no appeal to me, this one did. I found my eyes straying back to it. By a little finesse I even made out the name written across the corner, "Allison."

Mr. Gilmore lay back among his pillows and listened to the nurse's listless voice. But he was watching me from under his heavy eyebrows, for when the reading was over, and we were alone, he indicated the picture with a gesture.

"I keep it there to remind myself that I am an old man," he said. "That is my granddaughter, Allison West."

I expressed the customary polite surprise, at which, finding me responsive, he told me his age with a chuckle of pride. More surprised, this time genuine. From that we went to what he ate for breakfast and did not eat for luncheon, and then to his reserve power, which at 65 became a matter for thought. And so, in a wide circle, back to where we started, the picture.

"Father was a rascal," John Gilmore said, picking up the frame. "The happiest day of my life was when I knew he was safely dead in bed and not hanged. If the child had looked like him, I—well, she doesn't. She's a Gilmore, every inch. Supposed to look like me."

"Very noticeably," I agreed soberly.

I had produced the notes by that time, and replacing the picture Mr. Gilmore gathered his spectacles from beside it. He went over the four notes methodically, examining each carefully and putting it down before he picked up the next. Then he leaned back and took off his glasses. "They're not so bad," he said thoughtfully. "Not so bad. But I never saw them before. That's my unofficial signature. I am inclined to think—he was speaking partly to himself—to think that he has got hold of a letter of mine, probably to Allison. Bronson was a friend of her rascal father of a father."

I took Mr. Gilmore's deposition and put it into my traveling bag with the forged notes. When I saw them again, almost three weeks later, they were unrecognizable, a mass of charred paper on a copper ash tray. In the interval other and bigger things had happened: The Bronson forgery case had shrunk beside the greater and more imminent mystery of the man in lower ten. And Allison West had come into the story and into my life.

WORKING FLOOR OF A MARBLE QUARRY

CUTTING GRANITE WITH A PNEUMATIC DRILL

IN THE minds of most people marble and granite, two stones of widely different characteristics, are inherently symbolical of beauty, strength and permanence. They preserve the tradition of something stable and enduring. Man's use of marble and granite has, of course, dated from the days of antiquity; indeed, of all components of the earth's crust, no two, perhaps, have been more universally pressed into the service of construction and decoration.

The world's yield of the finer classes of marble proceeds from many countries, Italy, France, Belgium, Norway, Sweden and America being especially prolific in deposits.

Apart from the British Isles, where, in particular, the gray Aberdeen and red Peterhead varieties are justly famed, granite occurs in Sweden, the Tyrol, Italy, Sardinia, North America and other districts.

Qualities of Marble and Granite.

In chemical composition marble is essentially calcium-carbonate, or carbonate of lime. As a consequence, the stone is very sensitive to the action of chemical agents present in the atmosphere. On the other hand, while marble is in this way more rapidly attacked than many other stones, its power to resist the mechanical agents of weathering, which are generally the most destructive, makes it a comparatively durable substance. The great variety of colors shown by marble is due mainly to the presence of companion minerals. Iron, when present in the ferrous state, produces color varying from light to dark green; manganese and cobalt involve pinkish hues. Accessory minerals, in short, give rise to an almost endless association and blending of colors, shades, veins and patterns.

Granite is a crystalline-granular aggregate of quartz, felspar and mica, and comprises all varieties of texture. Generally it is the constituent felspar which gives the ruddy or the gray appearance differentiating the rock. Unlike marble, granite cannot be split up with saws, and hence the expense and labor of quarrying and preparing the latter material for building and other purposes is relatively much greater.

According to the state geologist of Georgia, probably no building stone in the United States has in recent years met with such universal favor and given greater satisfaction than Georgia marble. It is, however, curious to learn that, notwithstanding the enormous quantity of native marble capable of being quarried, and the large number of undeveloped deposits which the United States as a whole possesses, considerable supplies of the material are imported (mostly from Italy) for statuary purposes and interior decoration. The growth of the use of Georgia marble for public buildings in America is, however, proceeding on satisfactory lines, and its merits are becoming generally known. The imposing Minnesota state capitol was built of white marble from the Amicalola quarries, Pickens county; the Rhode Island state capitol, the Carnegie public library, Atlanta, and the Corcoran art gallery, Washington, are stone from the quarries of a southern marble company.

Greek Marbles.

In recent years the extensive quarry of Mount Pentelicus, a range situated eight miles northeast of Athens, have been re-explored, and are being worked by a British company. From this classical center came the material used in the erection of some of the world's most famous buildings, among them the Parthenon and the Propylaea. Pentelikon marble is almost pure carbonate of lime. Owing, however, to the presence of minute grains of pyrites, the marble, which is a clear white on being worked, assumes a soft ivory tint after exposure, a feature which materially adds to its value for decorative purposes. Blocks of immense size, up to 1,000 tons, in fact, are frequently dislodged from the quarry bed, and, with suitable machinery, may be cut to any required dimensions. The private railway of the company extends over a distance of 15 miles, and meets at one end the inclined plane of Mount Pentelicus. The quarries in the island of Paros, which yielded the beautiful Parian marble—translated into the highest form of artistic presentation by the genius of the ancient sculptors—are under the same control. Other varieties which the company excavates comprise the many-hued Cipollino, Skyros, Tinos and Rosso Antico.

In spite of our smoke-laden atmosphere, not a few distinguished architects have waxed enthusiastic over the claims of marble for the exteriors of great city buildings. Mr. G. F. Bodley, R. A., declared that London should be rebuilt with white marble. "Time would," he said, "tone the material and touch it with mellowing tints; moreover, a marble building could be cleaned down in a few hours with a water-jet." But the caustic comment was made in connection that it was not a matter of prettiness and poetry, but of the solvent action of acids upon calcium-carbonate. Undoubtedly, however, high-class marbles, particularly the Greek varieties, are finding distinct and increasing use in the buildings of London's newer and imposing business edifices.

Marble and Granite Quarrying.

The principal methods of marble extraction that modern experience and practice have evolved are those of sawing and channelling. The former system is used largely in France, Italy and Belgium, and almost exclusively on the Marmor properties in Greece. The saw itself is an endless steel rope of three strands, loosely twisted together. This cutter is passed round a driving-wheel and carried on guiding pulleys from a power house at a high speed. The wire saw enables stone not only to be cut from the rock bed, but sawn on the spot into blocks of a handy size for export.

What is known as the channeler, or channelling machine, is in operation at all important quarries in the United States. A locomotive machine, feeding on a railed track and driven either by steam or electric propulsion, it consists of a row of long vertical chisels set in a strong traveling frame. The gang of chisels vibrate up and down, rapidly cutting a channel in any direction in the face of the solid marble ledge or floor.

In Aberdeenshire, granite areas reach their maximum. The Rubislaw and Kemnay quarries are the largest granite quarries in the United Kingdom, and have each a depth of 300 feet. The rock is removed by boring and blasting, and as the material is blasted out the blocks are lifted from the working face by cranes and cables, masses beyond the power of the lifting appliances being further broken up as they lie. Rock drilling is carried out by power drills, either by steam or compressed air. At the Rubislaw quarry a complete new air-compressing plant, driven by a 100-horse power electric motor, is installed for working rock drills, the pressure being 100 pounds per square inch.

The WORLD'S CONCERT HALL

ONE of the sweetest, most elevating and consoling gifts of heaven to man is music. Who has not rejoiced at the singing of fresh children's voices! With music the young man woos the maiden of his choice. With song the bride or young wife expresses her longing for the absent one. Our meetings in the house of God are accompanied by devotional songs. Sad and somber music ascends in the house of mourning, and yet, what a relief this music is to sorrowing hearts! With the sound of drum and trumpet and the clang of the cymbal the soldier plunges into the smoke and carnage of battle, and even the trained horse dance and curvet in time with the music and strain at the reins which restrain them and learn the meaning of the different bugle calls. Love, anger, sorrow, enthusiasm, pain—all the passions and emotions of the human soul can be, and are, expressed in music.

The progress which has been made in the composition of music and in the building of musical instruments of every kind is enormous. The primitive instruments of the ancients and their monotonous music, or the instruments of barbarous or semi-civilized people and the intolerable noise which they call music cannot be compared with the expressive harmony of our music or with the multitude of beautiful and powerful musical instruments and in the execution of musical pieces our age has doubtless advanced further than any preceding time. In composition, however, in the art of producing musical pieces, the past century undoubtedly had greater masters than the present.

At the opening of the nineteenth century the musical leadership, which Italy had enjoyed for a considerable period, had passed to Germany, and in the twentieth century it appears as if Germany would also lose this exalted position in its turn, for in the field of art no nation can long hold the leadership. Perhaps the industrial and commercial development of Germany may be one of the causes why the number of its great composers is decreasing; for though prosperity is no obstacle to the enjoyment and cultivation of art, yet it does not seem to form a specially favorable soil for the growing masters of this noble art.

When the nineteenth century dawned Bach, Haendel and Mozart had raised German music to a pinnacle of glory, and Beethoven and Haydn were at the zenith of their splendid powers, while Liszt, Weber, Kreutzer and Schubert had begun their immortal careers. Before Beethoven died, Mendelssohn, Schumann and Wagner had been born. This was therefore a golden age of music with an unexampled array of peerless masters and unequalled musical works. Comparing the present age with that glorious time, we are compelled to admit that today there are no giants in musical composition, for the three greatest composers of the present, Edward Grieg, Anton Dvorak and Richard Strauss, only the last named a German, do not reach up to the standard of the heroic age.

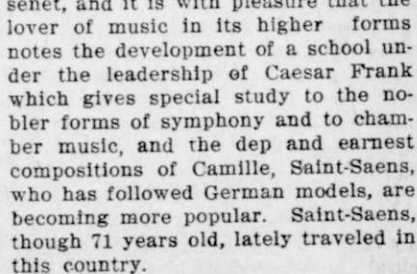

But though there are today no German composers of commanding genius, yet there has never been a time when their works were so highly esteemed and produced with such perched the highest stage of development in Germany.

In England also musical education has reached a high degree of perfection, but England never produced many composers and none of commanding genius. Richard Elgar has, however, succeeded in meeting with so much approval that he is being reckoned among the great composers. The majority of British and Irish composers, however, are content to follow in the footsteps of German masters; the later ones, though following their own ideals, love to walk abroad in the mantle of Wagner or Brahms.

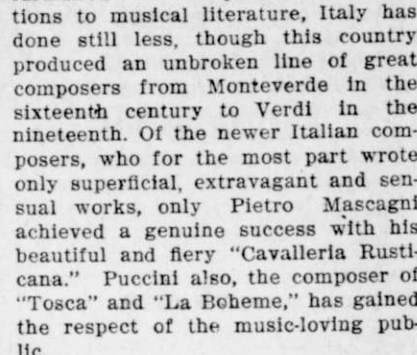

France has for three centuries occupied a prominent place on the musical stage and her great masters, Boieldieu, Auber, Herold, Adam and Chopin offer much that is interesting and valuable. Yet it must be admitted that here the tendency was mainly to write for the opera and for the production of light and frivolous music. Of a more serious and nobler character are the modern musical dramatists Berlioz, Gounod and Massenet, and it is with pleasure that the lover of music in its higher forms notes the development of a school under the leadership of Caesar Frank which gives special study to the nobler forms of symphony and to chamber music, and the deep and earnest compositions of Camille, Saint-Saens, who has followed German models, are becoming more popular. Saint-Saens, though 71 years old, lately traveled in this country.

But if France has in modern times furnished few important contributions to musical literature, Italy has done still less, though this country produced an unbroken line of great composers from Monteverde in the sixteenth century to Verdi in the nineteenth. Of the newer Italian composers, who for the most part wrote only superficial, extravagant and sensual works, only Pietro Mascagni achieved a genuine success with his beautiful and fiery "Cavalleria Rusticana." Puccini also, the composer of "Tosca" and "La Boheme," has gained the respect of the music-loving public.

The newest field of musical composition and virtuosity has been opened by Scandinavian and Slavic composers and virtuosi. This field is, like the new Siberian and Manchurian wheat fields, producing immense results. Both the Scandinavians and the Slavs have, greatly to their own advantage, made the folk-song the starting point of their compositions, a full, bubbling, exhaustless spring.

Of the Slav peoples two nationalities have of late done great things in music; the Russians and the Bohemians. Both have only in the nineteenth century begun to make a reputation for themselves. Since Glinka in 1840 produced musical treasures from the Russian folk-song, musical taste has developed in Russia and is now bearing abundant fruit.

FELIX MENDELSSOHN-BARTHOLDY

ican music is more and more making a way for itself. A good deal of this music, it is true, is still composed of "Coon Songs" and "Rag Time" pieces, and very often an insult to an educated ear. But good music is also coming to the front. Ten years ago it was not considered possible in Europe that a musical composer could be born in America. American inventive genius, American machinery, American farming methods, American commerce and trade—those were undeniable facts of respectable proportions, but American music? The day of really great and distinctively American musical composition is still in the future. American composers have attempted symphony and oratorio, but their works rest on dusty shelves. As a matter of fact only one American firm has undertaken to publish these works.

The rendering of musical compositions, however, in America also, is on a very high plane. In instrumental music the masters of the Teutonic and Slavic races predominate, though there is no lack of American performers also. Instrumental music has reached such a high degree of perfection that the beginner, striving to reach the pinnacle of fame, finds almost insuperable difficulties. Thus far American performers seem to be most successful in vocal music. The time when Italian singers monopolized the field is past. German and American singers, male and female have of late gained great reputations in this field. Orchestral music likewise has reached a high degree of perfection and is liberally patronized by all classes of the people, and as might be expected under the circumstances, the building of musical instruments of all kinds has here reached a stage of perfection exceeded nowhere else. But in the field of musical composition, especially in popular song, there is still a wide and virgin field awaiting cultivation and development.

What we Americans need and wherein we differ from continental European nations to our disadvantage is the social, school and congregational cultivation of music. At social gatherings of young Americans you seldom hear good part singing in which all, or the majority, join. Bringing a serenade with really good singing is a rare thing. Not so in Europe. There one can, of an evening, often hear good quartet singing and will be surprised to learn that the singers are workmen. Our public schools and academies also have not fostered vocal music as they should have done, though it seems that in this particular things are changing for the better. When music shall be appreciated and understood in the home, school and church, then may we hope to see composers and great artists in our midst, and when we have them they will be valued.

On one occasion two stones became lodged and I could not pass the urine for two days. I spent hundreds of dollars without relief. At last I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills. WESTERN CANADA'S 1910 CROPS

Wheat Yield in Many Districts Will Be From 25 to 35 Bushels Per Acre

Land sales and homestead entries increasing. No cessation in numbers going from United States. Wonderful opportunities remain for those who intend making Canada their home. New districts being opened up for settlement. Many farmers will net, this year, $10 to $15 per acre from their wheat crop. All the advantages of old settled countries are there. Good schools, churches, splendid markets, excellent railway facilities. See the grain exhibit at the different State and some of the County fairs.

Letters similar to the following are received every day, testifying to satisfactory conditions; other districts are as favorably spoken of:

THEY SENT FOR THEIR SON. Maidstone, Sask., Canada, Aug. 5th, 1910. "My parents came here from Cedar Falls, Iowa, four years ago, and were so well pleased with this country they sent to Cochrane to come for me. I have taken up a homestead near them, and am perfectly satisfied to stop here." Leonard Douglas.

WANTS SETTLER'S RATE FOR HIS STOCK. Stettler, Alberta, July 25th, 1910. "Well I got up here from Forest City, Iowa, last Spring in good shape with the stock and everything. Now I have got two boys back in Iowa yet, and I am going back there now soon to get them and another car up here this fall. What I would like to know is, if there is any chance to get a cheap, nice back again, and when we return to Canada I will call at your office for our certificates." H. A. WILSON.

WILL MAKE HIS HOME IN CANADA. Brainerd, Minn., Aug. 1st, 1910. "I am going to Canada a week from today and intend to make my home there. My husband has been there six weeks and is well pleased with the country; so he wants me to come as soon as possible. He filed on a claim near Laidlaw, Sask., and by his description of it it must be a pretty place. Send for literature and ask the local Canadian Government Agents for Excursion Rates, best districts in which to locate, and when to go."

TAKES HIS BROTHER-IN-LAW'S WORD FOR IT. Taylor Falls, Minn., Aug. 7, 1910. "I shall go to Camrose this Fall with my cattle and household goods. I got a poor crop here this year and my brother-in-law, Axel Nordstrom in Camrose, wants me to come there. He formerly lived in Wilton, North Dakota. I am going to buy or take homestead when I get there, but I do not want to travel two times that far for my brother-in-law's word about the country, and want to get your literature." Yours truly, Peter A. Nelson.

WANTS TO RETURN TO CANADA. Vesta, Minn., July 26th, 1910. "I want to Canada nine years ago and took up a quarter section of railroad land and a homestead, but my boys have never taken up any land yet. I still hold the railroad land. I had to come back to the States on account of my health. Please let me know at once if I can get the checker in Ponaka, Alberta." Yours truly, Geo. Parkewitz, Vesta, Minn.

DR. GEORGE E. HOYT

For State Senator at the Primary Sept. 6, next.

DR. GEORGE E. HOYT.

Do you want to know for whom and for what the candidate you vote for stands?

If you do, vote for Dr. George E. Hoyt. He is the ONLY candidate for the Republican nomination for state senator who has openly and frankly declared his position. Dr. George E. Hoyt is no dodger. He believes you have a right to know his position.

Are you for the re-election of Senator Robert M. La Follette, or for the election of the nominee of the primary?

If you are, vote for Dr. George E. Hoyt. He is the ONLY CANDIDATE for state senator in your district who has PUBLICLY DECLARED he would vote for the NOMINEE OF THE PRIMARY for United States Senator.

Would you vote for a candidate for state senator who would not PUBLICLY DECLARE his position and who would try to keep from you his secret intentions or understandings?

Why should a candidate hide from you his intentions? Is it because he wants to fool you in the end?

Is it unfair to assume a candidate, who would tell you in private he agrees with your views, but refuses to make known in PUBLIC STATEMENT AND PLEDGE his position, is playing a double game, just to get your vote?

If such a candidate were on the square, would he object to making a public statement or pledge of his intentions?

Is it unfair to assume that he does it to get your vote and, if chosen to the legislature, he intends to vote as he pleases and not to represent you whom he is sent to?

THINK THESE THINGS OVER, then vote for the candidate who is open and above board with you, when he asks your vote.

A vote at the primary for the one you prefer for United States senator does not elect him. It only helps to nominate him. It is VERY IMPORTANT you vote for men at primary who will vote for him in the legislature or he may be defeated in the legislature.

Go to the primaries early and Adolph Habeck and wife entertained about 20 of their friends and relatives from West Bend on Sunday.

Mrs. W. H. Ludwig and children of De Pere are spending some time here with the former's sister, Mrs. Ig. Schiller.

The storm Monday night did considerable damage through here. About 25 trees in Mrs. L. Habeck's woods and over 60 trees in Drickens woods, which included some of the largest standing oaks, maples and hickory, were either broke off or torn by the roots. A large number of fences, corn and trees on other farms were also blown away. This was the worst storm that ever visited this section as long as can be remembered.
