Irrigation Project Great Success--Government Engineers Inspect Great South Dakota Project.

It is said that the Board of United States Engineers that recently visited the Government Irrigation project at Belle Fourche is apparently very much interested in the advantages which the project of ers, and it is believed that they will recommend to Congress additional expenditures for this devel-

The cost figures for the Belle Fourche project are among the lowest the Government Reclamaion Service has been able to secure. Over 100,000 acres of land have been reclaimed, and the Chicago & North Western Railway has opened an extension of its Black Hills line from Belle Fourche to the government town site at Newell.

Settlers are taking farms as soon as they are placed over the ditch, and the Belle Fourche Valley, which has heretofore been strictly a cattle range country, promises to become densely populated at an early date, and a region with splendid crops. Belle Fourche is nearer the eastern markets than many of the other Government projects. The C. & N. W. Ry. maintains two direct lines to Chicago and the east.

The party consists of Brigadier General Marshall, retired (who was until recently at the head of the U. S . Engineers), Col. Biddle, Co. Longfitt, Major Harts, Major Kutz, Major Burges, Mr. F. H. Newell, Director of the Reclamation Service, and Mr. R. F. Walter, Reclamation Service Engineer who was in direct charge of the work being done by the Government at Belle

Mr. Chafin, who was presidential candidate of the prohibition party has all along been bitterly oppos ed to U. G. Humphrey, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, and in the recent state convention of his party denounced the purpose of hitching the county option issue to the party platform.

Last week Saturday while at Colby, Wis., he said a large number of circulars signed by Mr. Humphrey were received there through the mails which aligned the antisaloon league with the county option supporters. He considered it a good joke that these circulars arrived to late to do any good along the rural routes to whose patrons they had been addressed.

A Good Position.

A good position can be had by ambitious young men and ladies in the field of "Wireless" or Railroad telegraphy. Since the 8-hour law became effective, and since the Wireless companies are establishing stations throughout the country there is a great shortage of telegraphers. Positions pay beginners from $70 to $90 per month, with good chance of advancement. The National Telegraph Institute operates six official institutes in America, under supervision of R.R. and Wireless Officials and places all graduates into positions. It will pay you to write them for full details at Davenport, Ia., Cincinnati, O., Portland, Ore., or Memphis, Tenn.

FOND DU LAC COUNTY LAND IS RECLAIMED

Half of the County.

(Milwaukee Free Press) A drainage project at Eden which will reclaim hundreds of acres of heretofore useless marsh land has just been completed, by the digging of the last link of a ditch which now extends through fully one-half the county.

The project was started by a few wealthy farmers of this vicinity about a year ago in an effort to rid their land of marshy spots, and a crew of experts was engaged for the work. So successful was the outcome that when the season opened last spring a general movement for extending the ditch was inaugurated.

By the terms of the agreement each farmer was to bear a share of the expense proportionate to the amount of land which would be reclaimed. The work was started in the vicinity of Campbellsport and was later extended north through Eden township, having a total length of about fifteen miles.

Besides the main ditch which empties into the Milwaukee river near Campbellsport, each farm has a system of smaller contributory ditches effectively covering the territory necessary. The main ditch has an average width of twelve feet and is about six feet deep while the contributory ditches are six feet wide and about three feet in depth.

On some of the farms where the work was started last year crops | Steve Wollensak, Wm. Schaub, were planted on the drained land Chas. and Louisa Breseman, Wm. this season and have proved among the best raised in this vicinity, despite the drouth of the past summer. Much of the drained land has been used for grazing pasture land to be found this sum-

Beware of Clothing Swindlers

We are informed that clothing swindlers are in this neighborhood and especially want to warn cur farmer readers, for whom it seems they have thrown out their nets. The swindlers claim to be agents for large clothing firms and take orders for ready-made clothing, which is sold far below cost. They carry with them several samples of cloth and after a note is signed for a suit or whatever it may be, depart. The article ordered generally arrives in due time, but not at the original cost, but almost Jacob Schlosser, Herman Falk and double the price as agreed upon; the making of the suit, lining butvear, when the marsh land of the Laughlin, Robert Mc Cullough and tons, etc., is charged extra and the purchaser is out from $5 to $10. DEMOCRATS SWEEP STATE AND ELECT COL. F. W. PLAISTED GOVERNOR.

PROBABLY WIN LEGISLATURE

Four Republican Congressmen Are Defeated-State Issues Are Given as Cause for Change of Political Complexion of State.

Augusta, Me.-Col. Frederick W. Plaisted, mayor of this city, was elected governor at the election held in this state Monday. The Democrats have probably elected four congressmen and it is likely that they will have a majority in the state legislature.

That state issues, notably the drastic enforcement of the prihibitory law by the party in power, have been chiefly responsible for the election of Plaisted is freely admitted on both sides and this result is not much of a surprise to close observers, but that the political complexion of Maine representation in congress should be changed is regarded as the verdict of the voters on the questions which are uppermost in the Insurgent west.

Should the legislature prove to be Democratic it is altogether likely that the question of maintaining the prohibitory law will be submitted to the people and of course a Democrat will succeed Eugene Hale in the United States senate.

Returns from the state received on Tuesday from all but twenty-one towns in the state give Plaisted (Dem.), for governor, a plurality over Fernald (Rep.) of 8,551 votes.

Hinds and Guernsey, Republicans, and McGillicuddy and Gould, Democrats, are elected to congress.

Big Car Ferry Fere Marquette Goes Down Off Ludington-Twentynine Perish.

Milwaukee.-Twenty-nine lives were lost in Lake Michigan when the Pere from unknown cause twenty miles off Sheboygan, Wis., Friday.

It is declared one of the worst marine disasters in the history of Lake Michigan navigation. The boat was valued at $400,000, and the cargo. which included thirty-two loaded cars, and George T. Buckingham.

estimated to be worth $150,000. At the sacrifice of two of her own seamen, and after terrible hours of quette No. 17, which went to the assistance of No. 18, reached this port | bonds of the ten packers $300,000. with three dead, and twenty-nine sur-were clinging to the wreckage or five years ago. floating about buffeted by the debris.

The catastrophe occurred approximately thirty miles off from Port Washington. No. 17, bound from Milwaukee for Ludington, reached the wreck just as the No. 18 sunk out of sight. Several miles away a lone boat was floundering in the surge and swell of the waves, and on all sides were the shrieks and screams of the poor wretches soaked through and through with the almost ice-cold water and gripped by the strong winds.

The Pere Marquette No. 20, out from Ludington bound for Milwaukee and manned by a crew most of whom come from the same city as those on the sunken vessel, was the third craft to reach there. Just prior to its arrival the fishing tug Tesler, out from Port Washington, had picked up six dead, among them Capt. Kilty, which were transferred to the No. 17 and taken back to Ludington.

In marine circles it is believed that the string of twenty-eight cars became loose as the ferry was buffeted about and that the water rolled into the vessel's stern, which is wide open. This seems plausible in view of the fact that the sea was rolling from the north, the most dangerous on Lake Michigan, while the steamer was heading southwest by south.

TEN IN THE TOILS OF THE FED-ERAL GRAND JURY.

Five Presidents of Packing Companies Charged With Having Violated the Sherman Anti-Trust Law.

Chicago. - Ten men, five of them presidents of the most extensive packing companies in the world and all of them directors of the National Packing company, which has been the special object of recent governmental investigation, were indicted by the federal grand jury on a charge of having violated the Sherman anti-trust

Three indictments, the first one containing five counts and the others one each, were returned before Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, who empaneled the grand jury two months ago.

The maximum penalty for each violation of the Sherman act is a fine of $5,000 or imprisonment for one year, or both.

The indictments charge that all of the defendants have engaged in a combination in restraint of interstate trade in fresh meats, that they have engaged in a conspiracy in restraint of trade and that they have monopolized the trade in fresh meats by unlawful means.

The indictments cover 125 pages of typewritten matter. They go into every angle of the packing industry in this country and contain the allegation that 85 per cent. of the fresh meat consumed in the eastern, western and middle southern states comes directly from the companies controlled by the defendants. The proportion of each concern in this trade is given as follows: Swift group of houses, 47 per cent.; Armour group, 40 per cent.; Morris group, 13 per cent.

BROWNE FOUND NOT GUILTY ILLINOIS LEGISLATOR FREED OF BRIBERY CHARGE.

Jury Out Over 21 Hours and Verdict Is Greeted With Cheers-Emotion Overcomes Defendant.

Chicago.-The jury in the second trial of Lee O'Neil Browne, leader of the minority in the Illinois legislature. charged with bribing Representative Charles A. White to vote for Senator Lorimer, returned a verdict of not guilty in the criminal court Friday. In the first trial of Browne the jury disagreed.

The speedy verdict was a surprise to the many who had watched the progress of the second trial and had feared that a repetition of the tedious deliberations of the first jury would close the case. The verdict was returned before Judge Kersten after the jury had deliberated a little over twenty-one hours.

As the words "not guilty" fell from the clerk's lips a cheer went up. Scenes of confusion followed. It was with difficulty that the bailiffs restrained the crowd. It was then that Browne jumped from his chair, seized Attorney Erbstein around the dent of Baldwin university, said, in neck and they embraced each other. A moment later Browne was torn from his counsel by his friends. They pushed him around the room in almost a frenzy to offer their congratulations. Browne then tried to reach the jury box to thank the jurors.

"I thank-" he began, but he did not finish, his emotions overcoming him. Tears ran down his face.

Red Cross Christmas Seals. Arrangements for the sale of Red Cross Christmas Seals for 1910 have been announced by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis and the American Red Cross. "A Million for Tuberculosis" will be the slogan of the 1910 campaign. Two features of the sale this year are unique and will bring considerable capital to the tuberculosis fighters. The American National Red Cross is to issue the stamps as in former years, but this organization will work in close co-operation with the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, which body will share in the proceeds of the sales. The charge to local associations for the use of the national stamps has been reduced also from 20 per cent. to 121/2 per cent., which will mean at least $50,000 more for tuberculosis work in all parts of the United PRESSED HARD. Coffee's Weight on Old Age.

When prominent men realize the injurious effects of coffee and the change in health that Postum can bring, they are glad to lend their testimony for the benefit of others.

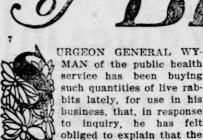

A superintendent of public schools in a Southern state says: "My mother, since her early childhood, was an inveterate coffee drinker, had been troubled with her heart for a number of years and complained of that 'weak all over' feeling and sick stomach.

"Some time ago I was making an official visit to a distant part of the country and took dinner with one of the merchants of the place. I noticed a somewhat peculiar flavor of the coffee, and asked him concerning it. He replied that it was Postum. I was sopleased with it that, after the meal was over, I bought a package to carry home with me, and had wife prepare some for the next meal; the whole family liked it so well that we discontinued coffee and used Postum entirely

"I had really been at times very anxious concerning my mother's condition, but we noticed that after using Postum for a short time, she felt somuch better than she did prior to its use, and had little trouble with her heart and no sick stomach: that the headaches were not so frequent, and her general condition much improved. This continued until she was as well and hearty as the rest of us. "I know Postum has benefited myself and the other members of the family, but in a more marked degree in the case of my mother, as she was a-victim of long standing." Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genvine, true, and full of humas interest.

animals are wanted not for vivisection, but for the manufacture of serums and antitoxins. They are dosed with small quantities of disease germs again and again until, having been "hyperimmunized" by this means, their blood contains an anti-poison utilizable as a cure for the malady, whatever it may be, in human beings.

Mithridates of old, the celebrated king of Pontus, was so afraid of being poisoned, that he dosed himself constantly with small quantities of various kinds of poisons in order that he might become in a measure proof against them. Practically the same method is adopted by the public health service, which, in the manner described, "hyperimmunizes" such animals as sheep, horses, cows and rabbits, with a view to the subsequent employment of their blood for the cure or prevention of disease. It is by this means, for instance, that diphtheria antitoxin is obtained.

By the same means it is hoped to secure a satisfactory serum for the treatment or prevention of the bubonic plague. Already, in India, the plague "vaccine" has been obtainedmade by breeding the germs of the disease in beef soup, and then killing them by heat, the resulting fluid being administered by hypodermic injection. This is a matter of extreme importance, inasmuch as the malady in question is at the present time threatening to ravage our own country.

Our government, during the last fiscal year, spent $650,000 in fighting the plague on the Pacific coast, and within the next twelve months it will expend about $1,000,000 for the same purpose. From this fact it may be judged that the situation in regard to the bubonic disease-or black death, as it used to be called-in the United States just now is far from cheerful, notwithstanding the efforts of the health authorities to minimize alarm on the subject.

The truth is that this most dreaded and destructive of all human maladies seems to have obtained a secure foothold on the Pacific coast, where small epidemics of it have broken out in sevthree years. But the most serious feature of the situation lies in the circumstance that the bubonic infection among the rats of the towns and the ground squirrels of the rural districts in that region.

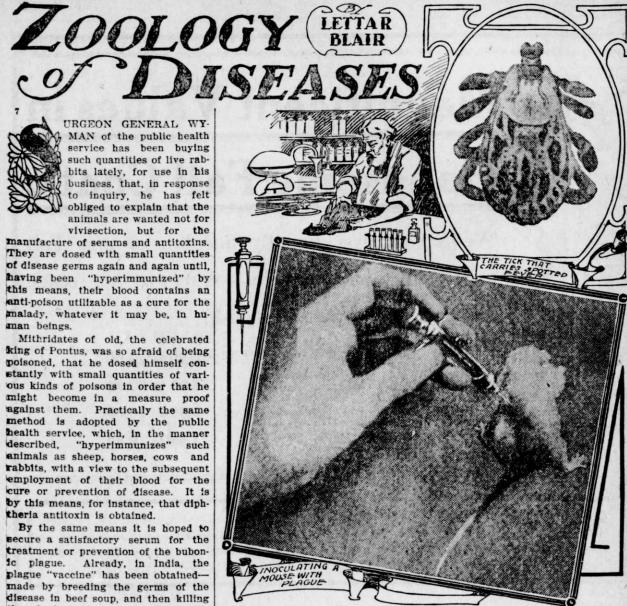

The plague is a rat disease primarily. It is conveyed to human beings (as well as to ground squirrels) by the flea. A flea bites a plague-sick rat and, later on, it bites a man, thus inoculating the latter with the deadly infection.

good luck that the malady has not already made its appearance at our principal Atlantic seaports. This may well happen, and the public health service (which has its headquarters at Washington) has had for some time past a complete plan of campaign mapped out to meet such an emergency.

Immense quantities of grain and other merchandise are constantly being shipped from San Francisco and other Pacific coast ports to the East. Rats are often transported with such merchandise, as involuntary passengers, hidden in grain sacks, or otherwise. Let one or two plague-stricken specimens be delivered in New York and the metropolis would be likely soon to have an epidemic on its hands-the first warning of the outbreak being afforded by the finding of large numbers of dead and dying rats about the wharves and in the streets.

To fight the mischief, if it once got. started in New York, the municipality would be obliged to wage a war of extermination against rats. This would involve an expenditure of many millions of dollars-much money being required not only for the wholesale trapping and poisoning of the animals, but also for the ratproofing of sewers. houses and particularly buildings used for the storage of food supplies. Experience has shown that the only way to get rid of such vermin is to deprive them of food and hiding places. tribution among human beings on two tribution among human being on two animals-the rat and the flea. serves very strikingly to illustrate what might be called the modern zoological aspect of diseases. The working laboratory of the public health service in Washington is today, indeed, a sort of station for natural history research, and an official zoologist Dr. Charles W. Stiles, is in charge of one of its most important departments.

Nowadays, when the study of a disease is begun, suspicions are always entertained against one or more animals, as possibly accountable for the trouble directly or indirectly-just as. for example, the African crocodile is charged with maintaining in its blood the parasite of "sleeping sickness," biting the saurian, as is alleged) conveys to human beings. Similarly, in taneousness most distressing. The our own country, the malignant anemia, which afflicts hundreds of thousands of people in the south, has been nute "hookworm" that bores through peared, was naturally suspected.

Such problems keep the government health authorities moving. As soon as one is solved another turns up-as, for instance, in the case of the mysterious "spotted fever," which has been making so much trouble lately in the mountainous regions of Montana and adjacent Rocky Mountain states. It is an entirely new complaint, but extremely fatal, four out of every five persons attacked by it in the Bitter Root valley (where it assumes its most virulent form) passing speedily from the sick bed to the burying ground. A characteristic symptom is an eruption of pimply red spots all over the body.

Investigation has proved that this disease is due to a "germ" of some sort-presumably a bacterium, but so eral of the larger cities within the last | minute as not to be visible under the microscope-which is carried by a certain species of wood tick. There is no question of the accountability of has already become widely spread the tick, for the malady has been successfully transmitted, in an experimental way, through the medium of its bite, from guinea pig to guinea pig, from monkey to monkey and even from human being to human being (in two (volunteer) instances. Some of the insects were brought to Washington and encouraged to lay eggs, which were duly hatched by Dr. Stiles; but it does not appear that more than a very small minority of them, in a science at the present time is engaged state of nature, are infected. These exceptional individuals probably acquire their infection by biting some animal which harbors the germ, but what animal that is, nobody knows.

Speaking of volunteers, there seems never to be any lack of them, where risks have to be run in the experimental study of diseases. It does not matter how deadly the malady may be, there are always men ready to take their lives in their hands for such purposes, often without reward. Such was the case when a call was issued in Cuba, in 1900, for soldiers willing to expose themselves to the bites of mosquitoes carrying the infection of yellow fever. It was the case again recently, when Capt. Charles F. Craig. of the army medical corps, wanted men in the Philippines for a practical test of his theory that dengue, or "breakbone" fever owes its distribution to a mosquito of another species -the night-flying culex fatigans, an insect already positively known to be the carrier of the parasite threadworm which causes elephantiasis.

Wherever one looks, in the study of diseases, one finds animals of various kinds acting as the carriers of the germs which make the mischief. Science as yet has made only a beginning in this sort of investigative work. The Anopheles mosquito is known to be the sole conveyor and distributor of the malaria microbe; but where did the microbe of malaria come from originally? It is, as everybody knows, a protozoon-that is to say, an animal head over my acting.-Youth's Comorganism of a low form; but its or- panion. igin is a puzzle.

The same thing might be said of the bacterial parasites that cause yellow fever and dengue. It is thought they are closely related, the symptoms they produce being somewhat similar. but nobody ever saw either of them. Like the gerras of measles and scarlet fever, they are so minute as to be invisible, even under a high-power microscope.

As for dengue, to find some way of combatting it was of special importance from the viewpoint of the war department, because it was of very troublesome in the Philippines, breaking out in "explosive epidemics." which the dreaded tsetse fly (after and incapacitating entire companies for fighting purposes with a simul manner of its spread was such as obviously to suggest an insect agency, and culex fatigans, always most plenabsolutely proved to be due to a mi- tiful where and when dengue ap-

To test the theory, Captain Craig e1 posed a number of soldiers (volunteer ing for the purpose in response to an offer of $200 apiece) to the bites of mosquitoes of this species which had already bitten men sick with dengue. Twenty or thirty of the insects, hatched from eggs in the laboratory, were first liberated under the mosquito bar of a dengue-sick soldier, in order that they might attack him and become infected, and, a few hours later, they were removed and placed beneath the mosquito bar of a well man. In every such instance the malady was successfully reproduced; and, as a result, dengue patients are now treated in the wards of ordinary hospitals, no fear of contagion being entertained so long as mosquitoes are prevented from getting at the sufferers and thus acquiring the infection for distribution among other people.

The greatest of all medical puzzles at the present time is cancer. Mortality from other diseases is steadily diminishing, owing to improvements in sanitation and in methods of treatment, but this dreadful malady is killing people faster every year. Out of every eight women who pass the age of forty, one dies of cancer. In all likelihood the reason why the germ has never been discovered is that, like the microbes of yellow fever and measles, it is so tiny as to be ultra-microscopic. Probably it is carried by one or more of the lower animals, and in a far-reaching inquiry with a view to solving this branch of the problem. Mice have been accused, and fishes likewise, but no near approach seems to have been made to a solution of the mystery. If only the secret, doubtless a simple one, were known, the discovery of a cure for cancer would not be long postponed.

A Good Retort.

It is told of a successful comedian that his first bit of popularity was gained in a rough mining town where he was giving "impersonations" in a hall to a large but unpleasantly critical audience

He was young, and not exactly at his ease, and the freely-delivered comments which greeted him on his appearance were not reassuring; but he kept on, and gained in confidence. Some of the audience, however, had come prepared to amuse themselves, and did not propose to be balked.

After one really commendable impersonation there was a round of applause, but in the midst of it a great cabbage landed on the stage at the actor's feet.

He picked it up, examined it, and then gazing out over the audience with the bland and innocent expression which has since become one of his assets, he said:

"Thank you. This is more than I had any reason to expect. It is the first time any one has ever lost his

We remember grim quietness against an enemy that the Dutch proverb: "God made the may be repulsed but that can never be destroyed. It was by no mere chance that the country's hero was William the Silent.

The Dutch landscape reflects the national character in a singularly vivid manner. Narrow roads set with small red bricks, trimly ordered gardens, the little carts drawn by dogs, the cottages with their little rows of bowls set outside to sweeten in the sun, the poles erected to attract the storks at nesting time, the miniature windmills for domestic use, the people themselves in their bright blouses and aprons and white sabots, the scrupulous tidiness that prevails everywhere, all combine to make up the impression of a toy country where everything is well ordered and mellow. Nowhere is the traveler brought up in sudden and breathless wonder before any gorgeous spectacle, nowhere awed by any sense of feverish activity. Desolation and grandeur are alike absent. all pomp of riches makes one forgetful of the inequality of things. And then in the midst of all this pretty unconcern is the everlasting symbol of the Dutchman's strength-the sails.

There is nothing small about these. They are liberal and work anlike, full of dignity. Greedy for every preath of wind, they bear the heavily laden barges, beautiful from water-line to masthead, down the great canals from sea to sea. They move with a measured dignity which deepens the sense of calm which is over the whole landscape, and adds to it strength and nobility of character. Everything that the Hollander does under the spell of the waters is informed by a large and generous spirit of power and fitness. If he has to build a house, he attempts to achieve beauty, and becomes ornate and wholly undistinguished; but when he turns his hand to the great windmills which girt the ty and rightness in the canal life of the country that gives to the wonderful calm of the landscape its crowning glory. Flat pastures sweep out on all sides to a far horizon where lines and colors stand out with singular clearness and brilliance. Sleek black and white cattle are confined to their rightful meadows by smaller canals which serve as hedges, for the people have put their mastery over the water to practical uses at every turn. We are shaded by tall trees that are set along either side of the road, and we know that we are in a land of peace, where hurry and clamor would be unseemly. To look burnished copper and brass pans and at one of their portrait groups of, say, a body of hospital governors, is to understand at once that these men conducted their business thoroughly and well, but scornful of undignified haste, and for untroubled repose Van der Meer's picture of Delft in the gallery at The Hague could not well be surpassed. In the great Dutch paint ings we do not find the tranquillity of the open places and luxuriant haunts of nature, but the deep calm of strong life, sober and not highly imaginative but entirely satisfying in its degree.

Holes in the Atmosphere Often Cause Disaster.

Aviator Flies Into Empty Space and Without Warning Falls Like a Stone-Dangers of Aerial Whirlpools and Collisions.

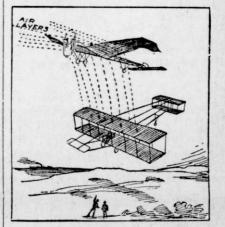

Paris.-In regard to flying accidents in general, they may be roughly divided into those due to (a) faults in the machine; (b) atmospheric difficulties and dangers; (c) "e "human equa-Lion."

As to (a), the aeroplane may be faulty in principle and construction, or the materials may be to blame. As a rule, where the aeroplane is at fault the engine is the root of the evil, and one great danger to aviators is overheating of the engine or some part of it. You see, an aeroplane engine has practically to work at full pressure the whole time the aviator is in the air. A railway engine driver who gets a hot bearing can slacken or send his fireman to put things right.

The aviator's greatest safety lies in maintaining a high speed-to slacken may mean disaster; he cannot attend to the affected part himself and he has no one to help him. The practically unavoidable overheating of the engine, with the result of a sudden stoppage or loss of power, followed by a headlong dash to earth, is a frequent cause of disaster.

Turning to (b), the sea, with all its known and charted currents, tides, rocks, and so on, still wrecks ships, but the air is a thousand times more baffling than the sea. Its density and its pressure are constantly changing; the aviator may at any moment fly into an aerial whirlpool, a gust of wind, the configuration of the land over which he is flying may introduce sudden dangers not previously encountered, upset all his calculations and experience and send him smashing to the earth.

Personally I have a theory which may explain one or two hitherto inexplicable flying acicdents, says a writer in Pearson's Weekly. I believe that there are, so to speak, "holes" in the air, that through causes . I have not yet made sure of a vacuum is created in the atmosphere. The aviator flies into this empty space, and without any ball. A aeroplane may weigh half a ton or more-imagine that, if you can, dropping through a "hole" in the air. Now we come to the "human equation," in other words, mistakes on the part of the aviator as a cause of disas-

A frequent cause of accident, more especially in the earlier days of aviation, was the airman's taking the air at too steep an angle.

It is a little difficult to explain on paper, but please imagine a man trying to climb up a perfectly smooth inclined plank or surface which affords him neither hand-hold nor foot-hold. So long as the plank is at a moderate angle there will be sufficient friction between it and his body to enable him to stay on it, even to wiggle his way along. But tilt the plank upward, and at a certain angle nothing can save him he must fall backward. Now, in aviation the air is the plank, the aeroplane being on it. If the aviator rises too sharply it is like trying to climb up the smooth plank tilted upright. He cannot do it- the machine must drop to earth. Similarly in descending, if the aviator comes down at too sharp an angle the machine must fall to the ground as inevitably as a man lying on a smooth plank head downward must drop when it is tilted upright.

So far I have only dealt with the risks of flying due to the machine, the air, the man, but in conclusion there is he danger that aviators cause to each other by flying too close to another nachine. The recent terrible accident o the Barones de la Roche is said to ive been caused by another aerolane flying near her. I do not know hat truth there is in this charge, but an aeroplane is not constructed to stand sudden pressure from above, and real point of danger arises when one nachine is below another.

There is still one cause of flying acidents that I have not yet mentioned. hat is the growing tendency of the public at aviation meetings to expect he air men to fly, whatever the condiions. That brutal spirit should be ternly suppressed.

SYNOPSIS.

Lawrence Blakeley, lawyer, goes to Pittsburg with the forged notes in the Bronson case to take the deposition of the chief witness for the prosecution. John Gilmore, a millionaire. In the latter's house the lawyer is attracted by the picture of a girl whom Gilmore explains is his granddaughter, Alison West. He says her father is a rascal and a friend of the forger. Standing in line to buy a Pullman ticket Blakeley is requested by a lady to buy her one. He gives her lower eleven and retains lower ten. He finds a man in a drunken stupor in lower ten and retires in lower nine. He awakens in lower seven and finds his bag and clothing missing. The man in lower ten is found murdered.

Some one was on the floor at our feet, face down, head peering under the berth. Now he got up without apology, revealing the man who had summoned the conductor. He was dusty, alert, cheerful, and he dragged up with him the dead man's suit-case. The sight of it brought back to me at once my own predicament.

"I don't know whether there's any connection or not, conductor," I said, "but I am a victim, too, in less degree; I've been robbed of everything I possess, except a red and yellow bathrobe. I happened to be wearing the bath-robe, which was probably the reason the thief overlooked it."

There was a fresh murmur in the crowd. Somebody laughed nervously. The conductor was irritated.

"I can't bother with that now," he snarled. "The railroad company is responsible for transportation, not for clothes, jewelry and morals. If people want to be stabbed and robbed in the company's cars, it's their affair. Why didn't you sleep in your clothes?

I took an angry step forward. Then somebody touched my arm, and I unin the law, I had been guilty myself of contributory negligence.

"I'm not trying to make you responsible," I protested, as amiably as I could, "and I believe the clothes the thief left are as good as my own. They are certainly newer. But my valise contained valuable papers, and it is to lower ten broke up, to reform in your interest as well as mine to find the man who stole it."

"Why, of course," the doctor said shrewdly. "Find the man who skipped out with this gentleman's clothes, and you've probably got the murderer."

"I went to bed in lower nine," I said, my mind full again of my lost papers, "and I wakened in number seven. I was up in the night prowling around, as I was unable to sleep, and I must have gone back to the wrong berth. Anyhow, until the porter wakened me this morning I knew of my mistake. In the interval the thief-murderer, too, perhaps he began cheerfully. "What is your my error, and taken advantage of it to further his escape."

The suit-case gave no clew. It contained one empty leather-covered flask of linen and some collars with the tag on the handle was a card with the name Simon Harrington, Pittsburg.

The conductor sat down on my un made berth, across, and made an entry of the name and address. Then, on an old envelope, he wrote a few words and gave it to the porter, who disappeared.

"I guess that's all I can do," he said. "I've had enough trouble this trip to last for a year. They don't need a conductor on these trains any more; what they ought to have is a sheriff and a posse."

The porter from the next car came in and whispered to him. The con-

I wanted to think, to try to remember the details of the previous night. But my inquisitive acquaintance had other intentions. He came up and sat down beside me. She had revived somewhat, and now she asked to have the window opened. The train had stopped again and the car was oppressively hot. People around were looking at their watches and grumbling over the delay. The doctor bustled in with a remark about its being his busy day. The amateur detective and the porter together mounted guard over lower ten. Outside the heat rose in shimmering waves from the tracks; the very wood of the car was hot to touch. A Camberwell Beauty darted through the open door and made its way, in erratic plunges, great wings waving, down the sunny aisle. All around lay the peace of harvested fields, the quiet of the country.

The porter had reported ada. no bag answering the description of mine on the train, but I was disposed to make my own investigation. I made a tour of the cars, scrutinizing every variety of hand luggage, ranging from luxurious English bags with gold mountings to the wicker nondescript of the day coach at the rear. I was not alone in my quest, for the girl in his plan for a revision of the tariff blue was just ahead of me. Car by car she preceded me through the train, unconscious that I was behind her, looking at each passenger as she passed. I fancied the proceeding was distasteful, but that she had determined on a course and was carrying it through. We reached the end of the train almost together-empty-handed, both of us.

The girl went out to the platform. When she saw me she moved aside, and I stepped out beside her. Behind us the track curved sharply; the early sunshine threw the train, in long black shadow, over the hot earth. Forward somewhere they were hammering. The girl said nothing, but her profile was strained and anxious.

Administration Will Avoid Possible Conflict With House by Submitting Treaty for Joint Congressional Resolution.

Beverly .- Formal steps looking to the opening of negotiations for the reciprocity treaty with Canada have been taken by President Taft, who has secured the consent of the British ambassador, Mr. Bryce, in the direct communication on the part of the United States with the dominion government.

Announcement was made here of the president's intention to open negotiations early in October. Important developments may grow out of the affair, having a direct bearing upon the general tariff of United States, particularly if the treaty that is finally negotiated should grant to Canadian exports to the United States a lower rate of duty than is provided for in the Payne-Aldrich

This is one of the problems that the president will be called upon to deal with. Suppose that the reciprocity treaty finally agreed upon makes these concessions to Canada, the effect loss of the notes meant was fast of its ratification by the senate would seemingly be to repeal the Payne-

There is a general belief also that the house as well as the senate is in a mood now to ratify a reciprocity treaty, even if it provided for lower rates than the Payne-Aldrich law. There is a splendid opportunity at hand, therefore, for the president to make an object lesson of the Canadian negotiations and give point to later on, schedule by schedule.

In New England and in all the states that border on the Canadian line there is an insistent demand for reciprocal trade relations. In fact, the successful negotiations of such a treaty would almost completely remove the objections to the Payne-Aldrich law in those sections of the country. It is therefore in line with his general tariff policy that the president now plans to go forward with his reciprocity plans

SCHOOL EXHIBITS FOR STATE FAIR

UNUSUALLY WELL APPOINTED EDUCATIONAL DETAILS TO BE SHOWN.

MUCH WORK IS COMPLETED

Pyrotechnical Display to Be One of Show's Big Features, and Many Are Now Asranging It-Pain's Men on Scene.

Madison.-John A. Hazelwood, superintendent of the educational department of the state fair, began tire installation of exhibits in that department. Mr. Hazelwood says that the exhibits are to be superior as to quality and variety.

The interest shown in the department by educators has already placed the building in the inadequate class. It is possible that an addition will have to be provided if the educational features of the fair are to be expanded with the other departments.

Mr. Hazelwood has been an indefatigable worker in this department and has had charge of it for the past five years. He has brought it to its high plane as a factor in the value of the state fair as an educational institution. He is one of the supporters of the movement advocating a larger and better adapted building for the needs of the present exhibits than the present one.

The regular educational building will be crowded to the doors with special and general exhibits of pupils' work in training schools, high schools, graded and village schools, and the country schools of the commonwealth. There will be special displays from the various counties as a class, as well as class displays from the normal schools, country training schools and city schools.

The rural school building, which is considered a mode for a one department school, has been more fully and completely supplied with the essential for the conducting of a country school. This building will not be given over for any exhibits from schools. The little building nestled in among the trees, furnishes a picturesque and attractive sight. For several weeks over a score of carpenters, under the direction of William Copritz, superintendent of construction, have been at work putting the finishing touches to the big fireworks spectacle. Pain's "Last Days of Pompeii," which is to be the night attraction at the state fair.

In the construction of this monster picture, which is more than 30 feet high and 450 in length, 15,000 feet of canvas was used, 30 poles, 35 feet high, are necessary to hold it in position. Towering in the distance rises Mount Vesuvius, belching forth smoke and lava.

employed nearly three months in building and painting this enormous picture, and 100 men are necessary to properly erect and handle it during the action of the spectacle.

Frank Oakes Rose, stage director, arrived in Milwaukee. Mr. Rose has been stage director of Pain enterprises for 30 years.

Tax Assessment Made.

The Wisconsin state tax commission announced the state assessment for all counties in the state for 1910. The total assessment for 1910 is $2,743,180,-404, of which $2,108,140,021 is on real estate and $635,040,383 is on personal property.

Wisconsin Fair Opens in Rain.

What the weather man could do to spoil the opening of the state he did. The hour of opening the gates saw the midst of a cold, chilly drizzle, which assumed for short periods the proportions of a driving rain. The morning drizzle was succeeded by a slight lifting of the clouds and a promise of sunshine, but hope was blasted by the cold, raw chill which began to reduce the few hardy spectators to gloom.

The opening, afternoon and night, scattering groups of people wandered here and there, pleased and proud, in spite of their discomfort, of the great collection of exhibits that make this year's fair the greatest Wisconsin has ever had.

The amusement features had to be postponed, with but few exceptions. The races, the aeroplane flight the fireworks display, all had to give way before the chill and gloom of the weather.

Secretary True was besieged by horsemen and various livestock owners seeking information and accommodation. Difficulty was experienced in placing the livestock exhibits owing to cramped quarters and it was with difficulty the various exhibits and entries were disposed of.

The races which were to have been called the first day were put over until the second day, owing to the heavy track. The program sceduled day.
