Democratic Campaign Book.

The Democratic National Congressional Committee has issued its Campaign Book and is now distributing it. The Committee has no funds save as it obtains them through contributions and is selling the book at $1 per copy, or for 50c a copy in lots of ten or more.

The book is replete with valuable matter and is said to be the best Campaign Book ever issued. Every Democrat should have it and in this year of Democratic effort for supremacy should gladly contribute to the Committee by purchasing the book. The Committee did valiant service in Maine with notable results, and if Democrats everywhere will rise to the occasion, by their dollar contributions, the sun will rise triumphantly, not to set for fifty years to come. Send your orders or contributions to F. F. Garret, Treasurer, Democratic Campaign Committee, 521 15th Street, North-west, Washington, D. C.

A Good Position.

A good position can be had by ambitious young men and ladies in the field of "Wireless" or Railroad telegraphy. Since the 8-hour law became effective, and since the Wireless companies are establishing stations throughout the country there is a great shortage of telegraphers. Positions pay beginners from $70 to $90 per month, with good chance of advancement. The National Telegraph Institute operates six official institutes in America, under supervision of R.R. and Wireless Officials and places all graduates into positions. It will pay you to write them for full details at Davenport, Ia., Cincinnati, O., Portland, Ore., or Memphis, Tenn.

Who Can Vote.

It may be of interest to people of foreign births who have not taken out their full papers, to know that under the present law of Wisconsin, all foreigners who took out their first papers before December 1, 1908, may vote without second papers until December 1, 1912. All foreigners who obtained their first papers after December 1, 1908, can not vote until they get their second papers.

Beautiful Display of Vegetables.

One of the most beautiful displays of vegetables at the County Fair last week was that of Mrs. Chas. Techtman. The vegetables were grown in peat marsh ground, which is generally called worthless. Mrs. Techtman feels quite proud of the number of premiums she received which certainly goes to show what may be raised on such soil.

President Peters Encounters Pickpocket.

President Val Peters, while attending the County Fair at West Bend last Tuesday was nearly relieved of his pocket book containing some money, by a pick pocket. The thief was in the act of doing his job, when Mr. Peters boarded the train and felt that some one's hand was in his pocket. He at once thought it was a pick pocket, so he pushed him aside, but the thief fearing that he might be captured and arrested, took to his heels and made his escape through the crowd. Mr. Peters says that if it were not for missing the train he would have followed the thief and had him arrested. Too bad he was not arrested, as a man like this, when captured ought to be punished to the full extent of the law.

Struck by an Auto.

Henry Backhaus Jr. rural mail carrier on Route 2 had a narrow escape from being seriously injured last Wednesday noon, about 1/4 of a mile southwest of this village. Mr. Backhaus was returning to this village when a big touring car from the opposite direction came along at a high rate of speed and struck the rig in which Mr. Backhaus was, throwing the latter forcibly to the ground. With the exception of a few parts on the rig being broken, no damage was done. The auto was driven by Mr. O. F. Mayer of Chicago.

LETTER FROM NEW MEXICO

Edw. V. Engler Writes Interesting Letter About the Country in New Mexico.

We are just in receipt of a letter from Edw. V. Engler of Nara Visa, N. M. who is manager of the Western Land Co. at Nara Visa. Mr. Engler formerly was a resident of this community. The letter reads as follows:—Would like to say a few things to your readers, as that is my old home and have a number of old friends and relatives there, who might want to know how we are getting along. Will say this, that we are all getting along fine and while our crops in places are short, owing to a dry spring, we will have plenty of everything. We have a fine climate our water is all good, testing 98 per cent pure, and for a stock and dairy country, this is the best I saw. We do not need to feed the stock at any time, they run out and get feed the year around. Our grasses are the Buffalo and Crama grass, these are the richest grasses that grow. Cattle are fat the year around and their milk is rich and pure. There has been quite a little of wheat sowed this fall, and quite a little oats and spring wheat will be put in. Now as to our seasons, will say we have not the hot weather nor the cold winters as you have. Our summer during the day is warm, but the nights are cool, and the winter, except a few stormy days is the finest I saw anywhere.

Our land here can be bought cheap. Some 320 acre relinquement can be had from $500 up to $2000. Our deeded lands can be had from $8.00 to $25. per acre, according to the quality and the distance from town. Our land close around town is rolling, but further away it is level, the soil is rich. Our town is a good active town. We have two banks, four lumber yards, two hardware and furniture stores, two implement houses, two drug stores, four general stores, one meat market, two hotels, two restaurants, 3 saloons, four feed and livery barns, a good weekly newspaper, three real estate firms, two blacksmith shop, one doctor, (but in need of a good doctor here). We are also trying to get someone to start a cheese factory as they can run one the year around, we need one, it is a splendid opening for one, we have a good school, four churches, and a good class of people.

While we have a new country we have lots of good opportunities and anyone with a little means and energy is sure to make it go here, and as a speculation point it is the best place I know of, as the immigration in the southwest is strong, and one reason is that New Mexico has been admitted to the States. I think I said enough and more, and in closing will say my brothers Arnold and William and sisters are getting along fine and we are here to stay. Best wishes to our folks and friends.

MORE OCEAN TITANS

Germany to Produce a New 50,000-Ton Steamship.

The 45,000-Ton Liners of the White Star Line, Now Being Built, to Be Eclipsed—How the Struggle Goes Forward.

Hamburg.—Much is heard today about the race for naval supremacy. But the race is no less keen in the commercial contest and just now most of the great steamship lines are preparing fresh giants for the ocean struggle. Here again the rivalry is between the Germans and the British, both being eager to hold the blue ribbon of Atlantic transport, the chief shipping route in all the world.

When the Lusitania and Mauretania relegated the German Deutschland to a subordinate place as an ocean flyer the challenge was renewed, and today on both sides of the North sea there is a strenuous endeavor to create new records in tonnage and speed. The White Star line is well advanced with the construction of two new monsters, the Olympic and the Titanic, the Hamburg-American line answers with a still bigger vessel, the Hansa, to the great delight of the kaiser, and now the Cunard line gives hints of plans far beyond anything yet designed.

The Boston route must be considered first, because the latest ship to take the water is the Franconia, a new twin-screw vessel of the Cunard fleet, which will be the largest liner that has ever entered Boston harbor. It is just 70 years since the first Cunarder, the Britannia, opened up that route, and though the Franconia is far below the Mauretania in speed and tonnage, it demonstrates well enough the shipping advance that has been made in the span of a single human life.

For the Britannia was 207 feet long, its tonnage was 1,154, speed eight and one-half knots an hour and the cabins accommodated only 115 passengers. Now the Franconia's length is 625 feet, its gross tonnage 18,000 tons, displacement 25,000 tons; it can carry 2,600 passengers and its power is twenty times as great as that of the Britannia.

More than three thousand workmen labored on the liner for 12 months up to the launching at Wallsend-on-Tyne.

The sister ship, the Laconia, has just been laid down in the same shipyard and will be launched next year. Next in point of readiness are the White Star liners, Titanic and Olympic, two ocean giants under construction at Belfast. Already they are immense in bulk and when they are completed they will be 45,000 tons each, or more than 13,000 tons bigger than the Mauretania. They are each 850 feet long and it is understood they will be fitted with turbine engines.

The Mersey dock and harbor board has commenced the construction of a huge new dock at Liverpool, but as it will not be fully completed for three years, it may be guessed that the provision is mainly intended for the still bigger Cunarder, that, report says, will run to 60,000 tons. Definite information is not forthcoming at the Cunard offices on this latest plan, but it is not denied that the news that has come from Germany of the new Hamburg-American liner Hansa has roused the Cunard directors to a determination to produce something that will lick creation for some years to come.

The big German liner Hansa's tonnage will be almost 50,000, or 18,000 more than the Mauretania and 5,000 more than the Titanic. The Hansa will not, according to present accounts, aim at ocean speeding. It will have turbine engines designed to run it at 22 knots an hour, but the cargo and passenger accommodation will be immense. So carefully is it to be constructed that it will not be in commission before the beginning 1913.

Apart from the natural rivalry of two great maritime nations in the American passenger and freight trade there is another influence on the American side of the Atlantic that has made for shipping developments. Since the Armbrose channel and other New York harbor improvements were carried out shipping men have found the limitations to the dimensions of their vessels removed. The biggest liners they have ever dreamed of can now gain ready access to New York, and the difficulties at present lie more in the harbors of the old world than the new.

CLEAN AND HEROIC SOLDIER

Gen. Nelson A. Miles is Today Considered the Foremost of American Militarists.

Washington.—By such wonder-ways of wisdom and warfare as are instilled by the rod of iron circumstance and the wallpings of worldly experience, Gen. Nelson A. Miles has traveled past his seventy-first birthday to a place among the nation's large and conspicuous characters. Today he is enviably the foremost of American militarists. Massachusetts bred, he has waxed vigorous under the smoke-reek of many battles and lives to tell a tale of hard fighting through many campaigns and of victories aplenty. He has seen the now vanishing red man at his best and worst. He has matched the cunning of copper-colored savagery with the knowledge and instinct of the born defender, says the Cosmopolitan. In the saddle he is an animated and heroic sculpture. In the drawing-room he is a Chesterfield. Retired since 1903, he has kept in close touch with the world events, and were a conflict to burst upon the country tomorrow General Miles would, on his own admission, be among the first to offer his sword and strength for the defense of his motherland.

Largely self-instructed, ambitious, forceful, well read, wide-traveled, General Miles is of the type that can face no problem and leave it unsolved. His record is as clean as it is heroic. Man and soldier, he has side-stepping no duty nor whined in its fulfilling. He is one of our genuine American heroes, and though he megaphones none of his virtues to a press-avid public, he stands for the truly Olympic in our present-day life.

IN MR. CLEVELAND'S MEMORY

Only $25,000 More Needed for the Big Tower to Be Erected at Princeton.

Newark, N. J.—The erection of a lofty tower at Princeton, N. J., to be known as the Nation's Memorial in Perpetuation of the Memory of Grover Cleveland, is now definitely assured.

In an announcement to "all those who appreciate the unselfish, patriotic and courageous work of Grover Cleveland," John F. Dryden, chairman of the Cleveland Memorial association, sets forth the progress and scope of the work. He shows that $75,000 of the $100,000 required for that purpose has already been pledged, and a final appeal is made for the prompt subscription of the remaining $25,000, so that the actual work of construction may begin.

This tower will be erected upon the tract known as the old golf links—a site commanding a wide sweep of country, from which the tower will be distinctly visible to the many millions of people passing yearly over the public highways and the Pennsylvania railroad.

The tower itself will be about 150 feet high by 40 feet square, of a silvery gray stone, and of great architectural strength and beauty, with interior accommodations for memorial purposes, including personal and national relics associated with Mr. Cleveland's life work. It will form the central shaft in connection with which will be erected other buildings in the future, to form what is known as the graduate school, with which Mr. Cleveland was so closely identified during the last years of his life and for which the Wyman and other bequests, aggregating several million dollars, have recently been made. The contributions to this memorial have come from all parts of the country and range in amount from $1 to $5,000.

Soft-Shell Egg Is Extra.

Altoona, Pa.—F. A. Winters, a music dealer and chicken fancier, has a freak of nature in a Leghorn hen that has been laying two eggs a day for seven months.

The double turn occurs regularly every third day, the only difference being that the morning egg had a hard shell and the afternoon egg a soft shell.

Hats for Mourning

THREE hats of excellent design are shown for those who are wearing mourning. It will be noticed that the shapes are small or moderate in size, that the designs are simple but the workmanship intricate and beautiful. These characteristics are what the wearer should look for when purchasing mourning millinery.

The first hat, a small round turban with rolling brim, is made of tiny folds of crape laid in parallel rows or circles about them or four inches in diameter. These are applied to the crown and brim which have previously been covered with crape laid on plain. The wire frame is covered and lined with silk and the hat is finished with a wired bow of taffeta. A rolled border of crape sometimes binds the edges of such bows and makes a very handsome finish for the ornament.

Fig. 2 shows a moderately large flat brimmed hat in which the underbrim is faced with chiffon and the upper brim and crown are of crape fitted to the shape wings made of folds of chiffon are used for trimming. They are even more effective when made of folds of crape in hats for first mourning. The veil of point de esprit, is bordered with crape and dull jet ornaments hold it to place. Cabochons of the same are sewed to the wings.

No. 3 is a turban made of uncut velvet which is one of the richest materials used in mourning millinery. A soft crown and puffed rim are arranged by shirings in the material. The role trimming is a full bunch of black-fancy feathers in aigrette effect, at the right side. A net veil of fine Brussels is finished with a simple embroidery design in silk. Such veils bordered with a two-inch band of crape, or with three narrow crape folds, are very elegant. Black lynx furs are worn and black suede gloves.

NEW SHIRT-WAIST MODEL.

This new model is of tussah silk or drap de soie. It is trimmed in an original way with applique bands of the material and with straps of passementerie.

COMBINING LACE AND BEADING

Slight Carelessness or Lack of Preparation Sufficient to Mar the Result.

When lace and beading are to be sewed to thin materials, such as muslin dresses or underwear of any kind, it must be carefully and thoroughly done to produce good results. Lace edging nearly always has a stout thread in the selvage which serves admirably as a gathering thread. Pull this thread and stroke the gathers to make them even. Roll the edge of the material and, holding the lace and edge together with the thumb and forefinger of the left hand, with the lace nearest you, overcast the two together with firm even stitches. When sewed to a straight edge insertion can be sewed in exactly the same manner, but to let insertion in, to form a design, first baste the material on the right side to form the desired design, and hem it down on both edges. Cut the material from underneath the insertion, leaving a narrow strip on each side of the insertion. Crease this strip back from the insertion toward the material and turn as for a hem. Overhand this, taking stitches close to the line of the hemming.

FASHION EASY TO FOLLOW

Additions in Dress Accessories That Are Well Within the Reach of All.

There is a late fancy among some Parisian costumers for making the belts of the more elaborate gowns of a color in contrast to the whole color scheme of the garment.

This girdle, though differing in its tone, is of like material, and is merely a new touch—a little oddity—and more evident because of the attention bestowed on the waist line at present.

A dinner gown of sapphire blue, trimmed with crystal embroidery, is given an old rose girdle, and the combination could win its way anywhere, so knowing and artistic was the choice of shades.

Not in years has there been a season when small accessories could add so much to the general style of a costume as do the neck and wrist frills worn with the tailor-made suits of every color, design and material. Such frills may be developed of wide lace, plain or fancy net, chiffon, tulle and even sheer lawn. And the best feature of the fashion is that every woman may, if she wishes, be her own frill maker.

Chiffon, tulle and lawn are undeniably perishable, but then frills of these materials are inexpensive, if homemade, and quite as becoming as those of lace or net.

The art of fine needlework is more in favor now than it has been for many years past, and where children's frocks are concerned remnants of lawn, muslin, lace and embroidery that have been secured at reduced prices during the summer sales can be made up into fascinating little garments at a nominal cost.

To Hold Her Veil Tight.

One girl has conceived the idea of running narrow beading around the bottom and threading it with baby ribbon, which she pins at back. Both beading and ribbon are, of course, of the color of the veil, and fasten under the chin, so as to be inconspicuous. She finds this a solution of the veil problem with a low-necked blouse, as her veil never looks either untidy or bulky.

New Combinations.

The latest in color combinations is a dark red and a rather bright blue, so combined as to give the effect of the modish purple. This is very smart indeed, but be careful not to trim with either of these colors; black is the best, or some neutral shade.

RECIPT FOR JELLY

NOT NECESSARY TO REMOVE STEMS OF CURRANTS.

Black Currants Is Good Throat Remedy and Can Be Used as Beverage—Don't Peel the Rhubarb, as the Skin Gives it a Good Color.

In making currant jelly it is not necessary to stem the currants. Pick over carefully, removing all leaves and poor fruit, then if gritty or if they have been exposed to the ravages of the disgusting and rapacious currant worm, wash thoroughly and drain in a colander. Transfer to a granite kettle or stone jar set in a large pan two-thirds full of tepid water. Heat slowly, mashing meanwhile with a wooden pestle. As soon as pulpy, which will be in a few moments, pour into the jelly bag, preferably flannel, and suspend over a bowl or earthen jar to drip over night. Do not squeeze, or the jelly will be cloudy. In the morning, measure the juice and allow to each pint of juice a pound of sugar. Turn the sugar on plates and set in the oven to heat through, stirring often to prevent its turning yellow. When the juice has boiled just 20 minutes from the time it commenced to boil—being well skimmed in the meantime—pour in the sugar and stir until it is dissolved—no longer. Boil from two to three minutes, test by pouring a few drops in a cup and exposing to the air to see if it begins to thicken, then pour at once into glasses which have been rolled in hot water. To prevent cracking, keep the glasses, while being filled on a hot damp cloth. Fill to the brim, as the jelly shrinks in cooling.

When white currants are used for the jelly, less sugar will be required, three-quarters of a pound of sugar sufficing for a pint of juice.

Black currant jelly is one of the best household remedies for sore throat. Stem large, ripe black currants, and, after washing, put in the preserving kettle, allowing a cupful of water to each quart of fruit. This is essential, because the black currants are a drier fruit than either the red or white. Mash with a wooden spoon or pestle, then cover and cook until the currants have reached the boiling point. Drain. To each pint of juice allow a half pound of loaf sugar. Stir until well mixed, then cook just ten minutes from the time it begins to boil. Overcooking makes it tough and stringy. Pour in sterilized glasses and cover with paraffin when cold. Black currant jelly is delicious served with game. A teaspoonful dissolved in a glass of cold water makes a refreshing drink for the sick room or can be used for a family beverage on a hot day.

For rhubarb jelly wash the rhubarb; drain it well, but do not peel it, if you wish your jelly to have a fine color. Simply cut it into small pieces, and never mind if it be stringy. To every pound of rhubarb add one-half of a cupful of water and let it stew slowly in a granite or porcelain pan until the fruit is all in shreds. Then strain it through a cheesecloth and press out all the juice. Let the juice stand till the next day; then carefully pour it off from the sediment. Measure the juice and allow one pint of sugar to one pint of juice. Let the juice simmer ten minutes, or until it begins to thicken on the edge of the pan; then add the sugar, which has been kept hot in the oven, and let the mixture simmer until it jellies on the spoon or when dropped on a cold plate. Remove the scum carefully as it forms, and when ready pour the jelly into glasses, which have been rolled in a shallow pan of hot water and are still standing in it. When the jelly is cold and firm pour melted paraffin over the top. Cover with paper and keep it in a dark room. Be careful not to tilt the glasses or in any way break through the edge of the jelly, which seals the mass to the glass and keeps out the germs as effectually as the paper or paraffin.

Washing Crepe de Chine.

Washing crepe de chine is no more difficult than to wash a frock of colored muslin. If tepid water and good soap are used with care it will come from the laundry as triumphantly as a piece of white linen. Do not let it lie in the water longer than is absolutely necessary, rinse thoroughly, and when half dry press on the wrong side with a medium hot iron. If of a delicate color, the garment must be dried in a shady place and must be placed in a sunless place after pressing.

Pickled Parsnips.

Take nice parsnips, peel them and cut in any shape liked. Boil tender in salt water (not too soft) then drain and put in a gallon jar. Take six sticks of cinnamon, boil in a pint of water for 15 minutes and strain them, add half a pint of good vinegar, a cup of sugar and the peel of half a lemon. Heat this and pour over pickles.

Delicious Pudding.

Here is a very simple and inexpensive one. Into a quart of scalded milk put a cup of sugar, four tablespoonfuls of flour and two tablespoonfuls of cocoa and a bit of salt. Stir until it thickens. This is fine with whipped cream.

Tomato Toast.

Fry a few slices of bacon, take from the pan and in the fat fry thick slices of tomatoes that have been dipped in the same fat, fry as many eggs as there are slices and place on the tomato. Nice for a breakfast dish.

TWO KINDS OF FROSTING

Boiled Icing, Cup of Sugar, Half Cup of Water or Lemon Juice.

One cup sugar, one-half cup water, whites two eggs, one teaspoon vanilla or one tablespoon lemon juice. Put sugar and water in sauce pan, and stir to prevent sugar from adhering to sauce pan, bring gradually to boiling point, and boil without stirring until sirup will thread when dropped from tip of tines of silver fork. Pour sirup gradually on beaten whites of eggs, beating mixture constantly, and continue beating until of right consistency to spread, then add flavoring and pour over cake, spreading evenly with back of spoon. Crease as soon as firm. If not beaten long enough frosting will run—if beaten too long it will not be smooth. Frosting beaten too long may be improved by adding a few drops of lemon juice or boiling water. This frosting is soft inside and has a glossy surface. I use a deep plate and silver fork to beat egg whites and sirup. If you wish boiled chocolate frosting add one and one-half squares melted chocolate as soon as sirup is added to white of eggs. The sugar used is granulated.

One teaspoon butter, 5 teaspoons hot water, teaspoon vanilla and enough confectioners' sugar to spread. The butter takes off that sugary taste.

FISH TOAST FOR BREAKFAST

Delicious Dish Can Be Prepared in Fifteen Minutes for the Early Morning Meal.

Half a pound of cold cooked fish, one tablespoonful of butter, one tablespoonful of flour, one gill of milk, half a teaspoonful of anchovy paste, half a teaspoonful of pepper, quarter teaspoonful of salt, a little paprika, and one hard-boiled egg. Remove all skin and bone from the first and place it on a plate. Add the salt, pepper and paprika and mix all well together. Place the butter in a saucepan, allow it to melt, add the flour, mix well together until smooth, add the milk and stir the mixture till it boils. Take the saucepan from the fire, add the anchovy paste and again stir well, add the fish and place the mixture on a plate. In the morning, fifteen minutes before breakfast, toast a slice of bread, spread on it the mixture, chop the white of the hard-boiled egg, sprinkle it over and place the toast on a plate in the oven for ten minutes. Serve nice and hot.

Parmesan Cheese and Sea Kale.

One pound of sea kale, two ounces of grated Parmesan cheese, half a small cucumber, one-half pint of milk, the juice of half a lemon, pepper and salt. Wash and dress the sea kale and cut it up into even lengths and tie in bundles. Place in sufficient boiling milk to cover it; cut up the cucumber and boil it in a little of the milk until tender. When both are done take out the sea kale and lay it flat in a fireproof dish. Lay the cucumber on the top and add the milk, pepper, and salt as required and the lemon juice a few drops at a time. Cover the top with the grated Parmesan cheese and bake in the oven until golden brown.

Dill Pickles.

Strain into cold water salt until the brine will float an egg on the surface. Measure the liquid and add to it half as much clear water as you have brine. Lay small cucumbers in cold water for an hour, then put in a stone crock in layers, covering each layer with one of grape leaves and one of dill. When the jar is full pour in the brine mixture and cover with a piece of muslin, and on this lay a weighted cloth. Leave for several months. Every fortnight remove the cloth, wash well, and replace it.

Magic Sponge Cake.

Put in your flour sifter one cup unsifted flour, one cup sugar, two round-teaspoons baking powder (or two teaspoons cream tartar and one teaspoon soda), one-half teaspoon salt, and sift all into mixing dish. Break two large (or three small) eggs into a cup, beat with an egg beater until foamy, then fill cup with cold water until the egg rises above the top. Mix with the other ingredients. Flavor. Bake until it leaves the sides of the tin.

Boiled Apple Pudding.

Pare five apples, core them and chop rather finely. Add two cupfuls of breadcrumbs, a cupful of sugar, three ounces of currants, a saltspoonful of salt, the grated rind of half a lemon and half a nutmeg grated. Beat three eggs, yolks and whites separately, stir together and beat into the apples. Mix thoroughly, add a wineglass of sherry. Pour into a mold and boil for an hour and a half. Serve hot with hard sauce.

Old Virginia Waffles.

Mix one quart of milk with three-quarters of a cupful of flour and one-quarter cupful of corn meal. Add one teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of melted butter and three eggs, beaten until very light. Bake immediately in well-greased waffle irons.

Gingerbread Without Eggs.

Two cupfuls of molasses, one cupful of sour cream, two teaspoonfuls each of soda and ginger; four and one-half cupfuls of flour; bake slowly. It may fall slightly, but will still be light, and we like it better than to add flour enough to make it dry.

Yet you may cough tomorrow! Better be prepared for it when it comes. Ask your doctor about keeping Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house. Many spectacular plays were made on both sides. Double plays were common in the last four innings. Next Sunday the local team will play Batavia at New Prospect.

BIG POWER PLANT AT MARINETTE

WILL FURNISH ELECTRICITY FROM MENOMINEE RIVER RAPIDS.

AID TO NORTHERN CITIES

Low Rate Asked Has Brought Manufacturing Companies to Marinette and Others are Looking for Sites.

Marinette.—With the turning on of the power from the new electrical plant at Grand Rapids, eighteen miles north of Marinette, the first big power of the Menominee river was diverted from waste into what it is believed to be a source of revenue for those that own it and a chief factor in the development of Marinette and Menominee as manufacturing cities.

It is estimated that the Menominee river and its branches are capable of furnishing 18,000 horsepower. The waterpower which has been developed was estimated at 6,000 horsepower, and in reality has developed about 6,750 horsepower. It was turned on and is now running the Marinette & Menominee Light and Traction company's street cars, and furnishing all electrical power for the two cities. The company now claims to offer the lowest rate for heavy users of electrical power of any plant in the entire country. This fact has already resulted in several new manufacturing institutions locating here, and others are negotiating for sites. The company prefers to offer this rate and get manufacturers to use electrical power rather than to have a part of the power they are able to generate at little expense be unused.

The power plant property occupies a building of concrete and steel 60 feet wide and 120 feet long and is a marvel of solidity and efficiency. Its equipment embraces water wheels, electric generators and auxiliary power apparatus. The generators are four in number with a rated capacity of 6,500 horsepower, but they are capable of producing far more than this is necessary. Adjacent to the power house, is the transformer house, also of concrete and steel construction, in which are located the transformers which raise the generated current of 2,200 volts to 33,000 volts. From the transformer house the current is transmitted by means of three copper wires to Marinette and Menominee, where the voltage is reduced to 2,200 and the current is distributed at the strength for the production of the light and power for two cities.

LA FOLLETTE SPENT $5,266

Crownhart Says This Does Not Include Amounts Incurred by Committees in Counties.

Madison.—C. H. Crownhart, chairman of the La Follette campaign committee, in a statement said that the total of Mr. La Follette's primary campaign expenses was $5,266.

The statement is as follows: "The expense account of the committee that conducted the primary campaign in behalf of Senator La Follette has not been fully completed. In detail, but the same will be itemized and filed according to law.

"Roughly stated, the expense was as follows: Printing and stationery, $1,875; labor at headquarters, $1,299; hotel and traveling expense, $780; telephone and telegraph, $311; freight and express, $120; postage, $773; miscellaneous, $98; total, $5,266.

"All the bills are not in yet, but this is believed to be substantially correct.

"This does not include expenses incurred by local committees in various counties. Such expenses were cared for by the localities on their initiative and not reported to headquarters."

PERFECTS A NEW ENGINE

Gasoline Traction Engine Invented by George W. Morris, Racine, Declared Best Ever Built.

Racine.—George W. Morris, formerly superintendent of the J. I. Case Threshing Machine company, has perfected a four-cylinder gasoline traction engine which is declared by manufacturers of farming implements to be the best ever built.

To operate the engine for a day, only a small quantity of gasoline is required and there is no danger of sparks setting fire to the crops. The engine was given a test and pulled ten John Deere plows, each fourteen inches wide, turning over a strip of land 140 inches wide and from six to eight inches deep. It is believed that a corporation will be organized here for the manufacture of the new engine.

CORN SHOW AT MOSINEE

Marathon County Farmers to Hold Exposition Showing the Value of Their Maize Crop.

Mosinee.—Plans are being laid to hold a corn show or exhibition here during the early part of the winter for the purpose of bringing to the attention of farmers and prospective farm seekers the adaptability of this section as a corn-growing center. The arrangements thus far are in an embryo stage, but it is expected that all plans will be completed within a short time.

The object of this exhibit will be to interest farmers more generally in corn growing. Competitive prizes will be given for the best samples of different kinds of corn raised here the past year. It is planned to secure one or two experts on corn growing and stock feeding who will give practical talks from their observations and their experience, gained by scientific study along the lines laid out by experimental stations.

CHINESE AT UNIVERSITY

Ten Have Just Arrived in Addition to Those Already There.

Madison.—The enrollment of Chinese students at the University of Wisconsin has been materially increased by the recent arrival of ten students direct from the orient. There are now some thirty men from that country over the sea who are pursuing courses in the Badger institution, many of them being in the engineering college.

The newcomers, including some of the most intelligent young men in China, come to America as a result of the boxer indemnity, and have as their mission the acquisition of modern methods for introduction into the progress of their own country. The recent arrivals are members of a group of 400 students who are educated by the United States every year. The fund from which the expenses of the young men are paid is the indemnity due the United States as a result of the boxer rebellion. The government at Washington set aside the indemnity fund for the education of Chinese students in American universities.

Every year competitive tests, similar to the Rhodes Oxford examinations are held, and thousands of young men compete. The tests are so severe that only a very capable student ever reaches the United States. The students come from all ranks, the majority from the middle classes and the lesser nobility, although some of the representatives of the lower classes are able to get in by enduring privations which would baffle any except the most ambitious.

In the American universities the young Chinese take all sorts of courses. Perhaps the majority take the engineering work, but an almost equal number are entered in the schools of economics and the social sciences.

Those students who have been at Wisconsin during the last few years are very keen over the progress which is reported from their fatherland. They find that great and significant changes are taking place. Most of all, perhaps, is the way the national spirit of China is growing—China for the Chinese. China as a strong nation is the new hope and effort of the young men, although only the higher classes so far have awakened to this spirit.

SHAWNEE COMPANY QUILTS

Kansas Insurance Concern Transfers All of Its Business to National Company.

Madison.—The Shawnee Fire Insurance company of Topeka, Kas., has notified Insurance Commissioner Beedle that it has reinsured its entire outstanding liability in the National Fire Insurance company of Hartford, Conn., and withdraws from the insurance business in Wisconsin. The company retires from the insurance business entirely, placing all of its risks with the Hartford company.

The Shawnee company had a capital stock of $1,000,000 and a surplus of $2,840,000, and was entirely solvent. The re-insurance has no effect in Wisconsin except to transfer the liability for taxes to the reinsuring company. The National company at the beginning of 1919 showed assets of $9,328,707.

PIONEER 105 YEARS OLD

Madison.—Mrs. Ellen Glennon, town of Fitchburg, a few miles south of here, will celebrate the 105th anniversary of her birth. ## STATE LAW VIOLATION ALLEGED

LAW WHICH PROHIBITS MORE THAN EIGHT HOURS WORK.

STOP CONSTRUCTION WORK

Litigation is Started By M. E. Waldschaky, President of the Madison Federated Trades Council.

Madison.—Alleged violation of the state law which prohibits workmen employed in the construction of any public building from working more than eight hours a day caused the issuance of a temporary injunction against the continuance of the work upon the addition to the engineering building at the University of Wisconsin.

The litigation was started by M. E. Waldschaky, president of the Madison Federated Trades council, follows the alleged discovery that T. C. McCarthy, the contractor for the addition, is working some of his men ten hours a day.

The defendants in the action are the board of regents of the university, W. D. Hoard as president of the board, Secretary of State James A. Frear, State Treasurer A. H. Dahl and Contractor T. C. McCarthy. The temporary injunction not only orders that construction work be stopped, but President Hoard and Secretary Frear are restrained from auditing and State Treasurer Dahl from paying anything to McCarthy on his contract.

It is not known whether any attempt will be made by any of the defendants to resist the injunction on the ground that the 8-hour law is unconstitutional, but this is doubted. It is more likely that the board of regents will seek to uphold its form of contract, holding that it is incumbent upon the contractor to see that the law is obeyed. The work alleged to be going on on the ten-hour basis is being performed by a sub-contractor under McCarthy.

SCHWITZAY WOULD RETRACT

Wants to Retract His Charges Against Attorney Martineau. Cases Postponed.

Marinette.—Telling friends that he is on the verge of nervous prostration from his two years of strenuous warfare, Albert E. Schwitzay, the deposed Marinette county district attorney and disbarred lawyer, has left Marinette for an extended period of time, and Mrs. Schwitzay is now editing the Searchlight, the Schwitzay publication. Schwitzay is the Republican nominee for sheriff, but before leaving gave out an interview saying he expects to spend but little time in the sheriff's office, and will devote his labor to his publication, leaving the sheriff's office in the hands of a deputy. He says he wants the office only to secure funds to carry his disbarment suit to the supreme court.

Before leaving, Schwitzay held a conference with P. A. Martineau, a Marinette county lawyer upon whom Schwitzay has made violent warfare. Mr. Martineau has commenced three criminal suits, and it was agreed at the conference that by stipulation they will go over the term of court in October. At that meeting it is said Schwitzay intended to retract certain of his statements, if Mr. Martineau would drop the cases. It is said Schwitzay would not agree to admit that these stories were printed maliciously, but that he would admit that he learned they were not true.

Since the Searchlight has been in the hands of Mrs. Schwitzay its character has changed and its utterances are mild, the columns being devoted chiefly to news.

FORMER STATE SENATOR DIES

A. B. Whitman, Long Time Resident of Appleton, Passes Away After Long Illness.

Milwaukee.—A. B. Whitman, former state senator, whose home was at Appleton, Wis., for many years, died at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Warren B. Bullock, after an illness of several months. He had been interested in mining for several years past with headquarters at Chicago, but was taken sick in the spring and was brought to Milwaukee, where his condition gradually became worse.

He was born in Maine in 1854, but came to Wisconsin when a boy and worked in the pine forests of Wisconsin and in lumber mills to complete his education at Lawrence university. He was admitted to the bar in 1882, and previous to that time was city superintendent of schools in Appleton eight years. He was district attorney of Outagamie county in 1887 and 1888, and his work as chairman of the Republican county committee finally resulted in his becoming a member of the Republican state central committee with Hod Taylor and Henry C. Payne.

He leaves a wife and three daughters, Mrs. Warren B. Bullock of Milwaukee, Mrs. George F. Blood, Spokane, and Mrs. Edward Wilde, Milwaukee.

THIRD SUIT IS STARTED

Madison.—The Western Union Telegraph company served papers on the attorney general in an action to recover $10,761.34 in taxes paid the state. The company alleges that the assessment should have been $7,525.17 instead of $18,286.51. This is the third suit of the kind started by the company, the others having been filed in 1908 and 1909. The suits have not been pressed, but have been filed in order that the company might retain its right to protest.

PAINS FROM TIGHT BANDS

Prof. Ross Says Foot Binding is Still Inflicting Torture on Females of China.

Madison.—Prof. Edward A. Ross, head of the department of sociology in the University of Wisconsin, who has just returned from a trip in China and Japan, gave additional details of his observations.

"I passed through several Chinese provinces where a desperate fight is being made against the poppy culture and the opium industry," continued Prof. Ross. "Poppy raising was legislated against three years ago, but the government is having a difficult time stamping it out on account of its remunerative returns to the growers. Gradually, however, it expects to see it wiped out entirely."

He said that in other provinces he passed through, foot binding was still in vogue. The sights, he said, were terrible. Many women were forced to crawl around on their hands and knees as a result of the terrible pains coming from the tight bands.

Prof. Ross, in the seven months that he was gone, spent most of his time in China, traveling over 10,000 miles in that country. He made one land trip of over 1,200 miles by mule and sedan chair. He cruised down the Yang Tsal is a rowboat for a distance of 900 miles.

The missionaries, he said, are doing great work in relieving the distressed condition of the Chinese.

Prof. Ross says that he believes he is the first person interested in modern sociology who has been in China. Much of his attention was spent in a study of the Chinese family, and he will write the deduction on the cause of China's enormous birth rate and dense population for one of the monthly publications.

He visited Count Okuma and Marquis Katsuri in Japan; exchanged calls with the viceroy in Tokio, and was lunched by the viceroy of Sze Churu, besides interviewing Wu Ting Fang.

LARGEST HAUL EVER MADE

Seineers at Lake Kegonsa Make Haul of Obnoxious Fish Valued at $3,000.

Stoughton.—J. B. Converse, Fox Lake, and his force of carp seiners at Lake Kegonsa made a haul of 4,504 carp, weighing about 50,000 pounds and valued at about $3,000. It is the largest haul they have made at this lake.

Full carloads of fish were shipped to New York where they are "salted." One day's haul filled two carloads.

One pike, six silver bass and two blueheads were all the game fish with the 4,500 carp.

CAPT. SCHECKEL IS DEAD

Old River Man Who Navigated Between Mississippi and Headwaters Dies at Age of 73.

Eau Claire.—Capt. Philip Scheckel died here aged 73. He was one of the old river men who navigated from the Mississippi to the headwaters when navigation was opened on Chippewa river.

Capt. Scheckel began his river career by rafting for the lumber concern of Carson & Eaton, near this city. He built the boat, Golden Star, and later the Chippewa. Few understood navigation better than Scheckel. He was the originator of the "Jimmy hole," which proved useful in manipulating rafts.

He was a personal friend of Senator Stout, having spent the last summer at Stout's cottage.

ALLEGE UNCOLLECTED TOLL

Toll Money Asked For in Action Which May Involve $40,000 Before Its Close.

Marinette.—A question involving nearly $50,000 in tolls for the use of booms and river driving improvements, will be settled by a suit brought by the Menominee River Boom company, Marinette, against the A. Spies Lumber and Cedar company, Menominee, for $7,000.

The alleged uncollected tolls from other companies amount to more than $40,000.

During the years the boom company has been operating, several millions of dollars have been collected from lumber interests on the Menominee river for tolls under a charter of the boom company, which is a Stephenson interest.

Cary, Upham & Black, Milwaukee, represent the plaintiff, and Eastman & Martineau, Marinette, are for the defendant. Papers in the action have been filed.

WILL TEACH IN TURKEY

Beloit.—When the Rev. Darwin Leavitt of this city goes to Marsh, Turkey, next month, it will be as the missionary of the First Congregational church, which has decided to support him in his work in Marsh.

Mr. Leavitt is a graduate of Beloit college and Yale Divinity school. He is the son of Dr. George R. Leavitt, many years pastor of the First Congregational church. He will teach in the Christian school in Marsh. He has served the Gridley church of this city as pastor for the last year.

WILL CURTAIL COST

DR. FREDERICK A. CLEVELAND, NEW YORK, IS TO HEAD THE SERVICE.

SQUARE DEAL FOR RAILROADS

President Taft Tells Visiting Labor Leader He Will See They Get It in Pending Rate Revision Proceedings.—Talks on Postal Banks.

Washington.—President Taft announced the appointment of Dr. Frederick A. Cleveland, director of the bureau of municipal research of New York, to head a federal staff of experts to investigate the expenditures in the executive departments. Mr. Cleveland has entered on his duties.

Each cabinet officer will employ three experts to improve the efficiency and to promote economy in his department, and Mr. Cleveland will investigate every department to see what results are being obtained.

The president hopes by this method to reduce the running expenses of the government and at the same time to improve the efficiency. It is not the purpose to get rid of any of the old employees, but merely that those now employed may work to better advantage.

"The president told me that he could be depended upon to give the railroads a square deal regardless of the clamor of political influence, and that furthermore he was going to see that they get it," said T. J. Nolan, general secretary and treasurer of the International Brotherhood of Steam Shovel and Dredgers.

Mr. Nolan called on the president relative to the proposed increase in freight rates, which his organization opposes.

Mr. Nolan said that labor organizations had reached the conclusion that the proposed increases were right and should be allowed; that unless they were made the railroads would be compelled to reduce expenses, in which event labor would be the first to suffer.

At a cabinet meeting the president and his advisers received a report from the postal savings banks trustees regarding the putting of postal banks into operation.

The matter was under discussion for several hours, and it was announced that the cabinet probably would be compelled to have another session.

Estimates for the several departments also were under discussion.

Archbishop Ireland called at the Whitehouse and saw President Taft. He remained but a few moments and announced on leaving that he had merely called to pay his respects.

STRIKERS RIOTING IN BERLIN

Officers and Strikers in Fierce Pitched Conflict—Four Journalists Attacked.

Berlin.—A sensational attack was made by the police on four newspaper correspondents.

Six policemen with swords leaped on an automobile in which were seated correspondents of the New York World, Reuter's Telegraph agency, the London Daily Mail and New York Sun, and slashed all four so badly that they had to seek surgical aid. All had regularly signed police passes authorizing them to go where they liked.

The newspaper men had been watching the police attacks on the rioters.

For two days the Moabit section has been the scene of riots. Hundreds have been injured and pitched battles between strikers, their sympathizers, and the police have been fought.

Before daylight disorder was renewed in the Moabit section. A force of 4,000 policemen marched through the streets in darkness, fired on frequent intervals, and returning the fire, aiming at the points whence came the pistol flashes. More than a hundred policemen are said to have been wounded. About fifty workmen were taken to hospitals.

FOR HOME RULE CAUSE

Convention Delegates Indorse Work of Parliamentary Party and the Leadership of Redmond.

Buffalo.—A pledge to raise $100,000 within two years for the cause of home rule in Ireland was enthusiastically made by the 885 delegates at the convention of the United Irish League of America.

The pledge followed unanimous adoption of the report of the committee on ways and means, which indorsed "the great work done for the amelioration of the Irish people within the last year by the Irish parliamentary party."

"Believing this work is to be crowned in the near future by the realization of the Irishman's fondest dream, home rule," the report of the committee continues, "and having the fullest confidence in the continued leadership of John E. Redmond, we pledge $100,000 to be raised before the next convention."

HUNTS DEER AND KILLS FRIEND

Marinette.—William Pontow, 40, of Menominee was shot and killed while hunting deer.

Otto Schwartz, aged 30, a graduate of Michigan Agricultural college, who shot him, gave himself up and is now in jail awaiting examination on the charge of manslaughter.

Pontow, Schwartz and two other men were hunting with headlights. The headlight on Pontow's cap became very dim and Schwartz mistook it for the eyes of a deer and fired. The bullet passed through Pontow's heart, killing him instantly.

"My little son, a boy of five, broke out with an itching rash. Three doctors prescribed for him, but he kept getting worse until we could not dress him any more. They finally advised me to try a certain medical college, but its treatment did no good. At the time I was induced to try Cuticura he was so bad that I had to cut his hair off and put the Cuticura Ointment on him on bandages, as it was impossible to touch him with the bare hand. There was not one square inch of skin on his whole body that was not affected. He was one mass of sores. The bandages used to stick to his skin and in removing them it used to take the skin off with them, and the screams from the poor child were heart-breaking. I began to think that he would never get well, but after the second application of Cuticura Ointment I began to see signs of improvement, and with the third and fourth applications the sores commenced to dry up. His skin peeled off twenty times, but it finally yielded to the treatment. Now I can say that he is entirely cured, and a stronger and healthier boy you never saw than he is to-day, twelve years or more since the cure was effected. Robert Wattam, 1148 Forty-eighth St., Chicago, Ill., Oct. 9, 1909."

SYNOPSIS.

Lawrence Blakeley, lawyer, goes to Pittsburgh with the forged notes in the Bronson case to get the deposition of John Gilmore, millionaire. In the latter's house he is attracted by the picture of a girl whom Gilmore explains is his granddaughter, Alison West. He says her father is a rascal and a friend of the forger. A lady requests Blakeley to buy her a Pullman ticket. He gives her lower eleven and retains lower ten. He finds a man in a drunken stupor in lower ten and goes to bed in lower nine. He awakens in lower seven and finds that his bag and clothes are missing. The man in lower ten is found murdered. His name, it develops, is Simon Harrington. The man who disappeared with Blakeley's clothes is suspected. Blakeley becomes interested in a girl in blue. Circumstantial evidence places Blakeley under suspicion of murder. The train is wrecked. Blakeley is rescued from the burning car by the girl in blue. His arm is broken.

CHAPTER VIII—Continued.

Her voice and my arm were bringing me to my senses. "I hear," I said. "I'll sit up in a second. Are you hurt?"

"No, only bruised. Do you think you can walk?"

I drew up one foot after another, gingerly.

"They seem to move all right," I remarked dubiously. "Would you mind telling me where the back of my head has gone? I can't help thinking it isn't there."

She made a quick examination. "It's pretty badly bumped," she said. "You must have fallen on it."

I had got up on my uninjured elbow by that time, but the pain threw me back. "Don't look at the wreck," I entreated her. "It's no sight for a woman. If—there is any way to tie up this arm, I might be able to do something. There may be people under those cars!"

"Then it is too late to help," she replied solemnly. A little shower of feathers, each carrying its fiery lamp, blew over us from some burning pillow. A part of the wreck collapsed with a crash. In a resolute endeavor to play a man's part in the tragedy going on all around, I got to my knees. Then I realized that I had not noticed before: The hand and wrist of the broken left arm were jammed through the handle of the sealskin grip. I gasped and sat down suddenly.

"You must not do that," the girl insisted. I noticed now that she kept her back to the wreck, her eyes averted. "The weight of the traveling bag must be agony. Let me support the valise until we can get it cut off."

"Will it have to be cut off?" I asked as calmly as possible. There were red-hot stabs of agony clear to my neck, but we were moving slowly away from the track.

"Yes," she replied, with dumfounding coolness. "If I had a knife I could do it myself. You might sit here and lean against this fence."

By that time my returning faculties had realized that she was going to cut off the satchel, not the arm. The dizziness was leaving and I was gradually becoming myself.

"If you pull, it might come," I suggested. "And with that weight gone, I think I will cease to be five feet eleven inches of baby."

She tried gently to loosen the handle, but it would not move, and at last, with great drops of cold perspiration over me, I had to give up.

"I'm afraid I can't stand it," I said. "But there's a knife somewhere around these clothes, and if I can find it, perhaps you can cut the leather."

As I gave her the knife she turned it over, examining it with a peculiar expression, bewildered rather than surprised. But she said nothing. She set to work deftly, and in a few minutes the bag dropped free.

"That's better," I declared, sitting up. "Now, if you can pin my sleeve to my coat, it will support the arm so we can get away from here."

"The pin might give," she objected, "and the jerk would be terrible." She looked around, puzzled; then she got up, coming back in a minute with a dragged, partly scorched sheet. This she tore into a large square, and after she had folded it, she slipped it under the broken arm and tied it securely at the back of my neck.

The relief was immediate, and, picking up the sealskin bag, I walked slowly beside her, away from the track.

The first act was over; the curtain fallen. The scene was "struck."

CHAPTER IX.

The Halcyon Breakfast.

We were still dazed, I think, for we wandered like two troubled children, our one idea at first to get as far away as we could from the horror behind us. We were both bare-headed, grimy, pallid through the grit. Now and then we met little groups of country folk hurrying to the track; they stared at us curiously, and some wished to question us. But we hurried past them; we had put the wreck behind us. That way lay madness.

Only once the girl turned and looked behind her. The wreck was hidden, but the smoke cloud hung heavy and dense. For the first time I remembered that my companion had not been alone on the train.

"It is quiet here," I suggested. "If you will sit down on the bank I will go back and make some inquiries. I've been criminally thoughtless. Your traveling companion—"

She interrupted me, and something of her splendid poise was gone. "Please don't go back," she said. "I am afraid it would be of no use. And—I don't want to be left alone."

Heaven knows I did not want her to be alone; I was more than content to walk along beside her aimlessly, for any length of time. Gradually, as she lost the exaltation of the moment, I was gaining my normal condition of mind. I was beginning to realize that I had lacked the morning grace of a shave, that I looked like some lost hope of yesterday, and that my left shoe pinched outrageously. A man does not rise triumphant above such handicaps. The girl, for all her disordered hair and the crumpled linen of her waist, in spite of her missing hat and the small gold bag that hung forlornly from a broken chain, looked exceedingly lovely.

"Then I won't leave you alone," I said manfully, and we stumbled on together. Thus far we had seen nobody from the wreck, but well up the lane we came across the tall dark woman who had occupied lower 11. She was half crouching beside the road, her black hair about her shoulders, and an ugly bruise over her eye. She did not seem to know us, and refused to accompany us. We left her there at last, babbling incoherently and rolling in her hands a dozen pebbles she had gathered in the road.

The girl shuddered as we went on. Once she turned and glanced at my bandage. "Does it hurt very much?" she asked.

"It's growing rather numb. But it might be worse," I answered mendaciously. If anything in this world could be worse, I had never experienced it.

And so we trudged on bareheaded under the summer sun, growing parched and dusty and weary, doggedly leaving behind us the pillar of smoke. I thought I knew of a trolley line somewhere in the direction we were going, or perhaps we could find a horse and trap to take us into Baltimore. The girl smiled when I suggested it.

"We will create a sensation, won't we?" she asked. "Isn't it queer—or perhaps it's my state of mind—but I keep wishing for a pair of gloves, when I haven't even a hat!"

When we reached the main road we sat down for a moment, and her hair, which had been coming loose for some time, fell over her shoulders in little waves that were most alluring. It seemed a pity to twist it up again, but when I suggested this, cautiously, she said it was troublesome and got in her eyes when it was loose. So she gathered it up, while I held a row of little shell combs and pins, and when it was done it was vastly becoming, too. Funny about hair: A man never knows he has it until he begins to lose it, but it's different with a girl. Something of the unconventional situation began to dawn on her as she put in the last hair pin and patted some stray locks to place.

"I have not told you my name," she said abruptly. "I forgot that because I know who you are, you know nothing about me. I am Alison West, and my home is in Richmond."

So that was it! This was the girl of the photograph on John Gilmore's bedside table. The girl McKnight expected to see in Richmond the next day, Sunday! She was on her way back to meet him! Well, what difference did it make, anyhow? We had been thrown together by the merest chance. In an hour or two at the most we would be back in civilization and she would recall me, if she remembered me at all, as an unshaven creature in a red cravat and tan shoes, with a soiled Pullman sheet tied around my neck. I drew a deep breath.

"Just a twinge," I said, when she glanced up quickly. "It's very good of you to let me know, Miss West. I have been hearing delightful things about you for three months."

"From Richey McKnight?" She was frankly curious.

"Yes. From Richey McKnight," I assented. Was it any wonder McKnight was crazy about her? I dug my heels into the dust.

"I have been visiting near Cresson, in the mountains," Miss West was saying. "The person you mentioned, Mrs. Curtis, was my hostess. We were on our way to Washington together." She spoke slowly, as if she wished to give the minimum of explanation. Across her face had come again the baffling expression of perplexity and trouble I had seen before.

"You were on your way home, I suppose?" Richey spoke about seeing you," I floundered, finding it necessary to say something. She looked at me with level, direct eyes.

"No," she returned quietly. "I did not intend to go home. I—well, it doesn't matter; I am going home now."

A woman in a calico dress, with two children, each an exact duplicate of the other, had come quickly down the road. She took in the situation at a glance, and was explosively hospitable.

"You poor things," she said. "If you'll take the first road to the left over there, and turn in at the second pigsty, you will find breakfast on the table and a coffee pot on the stove. And there's plenty of soap and water, too. Don't say one word. There isn't a soul there to see you."

We accepted the invitation and she hurried on toward the excitement and the railroad. I got up carefully and helped Miss West to her feet.

"At the second pigsty to the left," I repeated, "we will find the breakfast I promised you seven eternities ago. Forward to the pigsty!"

"If we are to get into Baltimore at all we must start," she said, rising. "You ought to see a doctor as soon as possible."

"Hush," I said warningly. "Don't mention the arm, please; it is asleep now. You may rouse it."

"If I only had a hat," she reflected. "It wouldn't need to be much of one, but—" She gave a little cry and darted to the corner. "Look," she said triumphantly, "the very thing. With the green streamers tied up in a bow, like this—do you suppose the child would mind? I can put $5 or so here—that would buy a dozen of them."

It was a queer affair of straw, that hat, with a round crown and a rim that flopped dismally. With a single movement she had turned it up at one side and fitted it to her head. Grotesque by itself, when she wore it it was a thing of joy.

Evidently the lack of head covering had troubled her, for she was elated at her find. She left me, scrawling a note of thanks and pinning it with a bill to the tablecloth, and ran upstairs to the mirror and the promised soap and water.

I did not see her when she came down. I had discovered a bench with a tin basin outside the kitchen door, and was washing, in a helpless, one-sided way. I felt rather than saw that she was standing in the doorway, and I made a final plunge into the basin.

"How is it possible for a man with only a right hand to wash his left ear?" I asked from the roller towel. I was distinctly uncomfortable: Men are more rigidly creatures of convention than women, whether they admit it or not. "There is so much soap on me still that if I laugh I will blow bubbles. Washing with rain water and home-made soap is like motoring on a slippery road. I only struck the high places."

Then, having achieved a brilliant polish with the towel, I looked at the girl.

She was leaning against the frame of the door, her face perfectly colorless, her breath coming in slow, difficult respirations. The erratic hat was pinned to place, but it had slid rakishly to one side. When I realized that she was staring, not at me, but past me to the road along which we had come, I turned and followed her gaze. There was no one in sight; the lane stretched dust white in the sun—no moving figure on it, no sign of life.

Cold and Aloof.

"Lord Curzon, during the visit that ended in his marriage to Miss Leiter, proved very interesting in his cold, proud way."

The speaker, a Chicagoan, smiled and resumed:

"Cold and proud as young George Curzon was, he regarded the house of lords as colder and prouder. He told me once that when he asked his father if his first speech in the house of lords had been difficult the old gentleman replied:

"Difficult! It was like addressing sheeted tombstones by torchlight!"

ting out of her mind something that obtruded now and then. It brought with it a return of the puzzled expression that I had surprised early in the day, before the wreck. I caught it once, when, breakfast over, she was tightening the sling that held the broken arm. I had prolonged the morning meal as much as I could, but when the wooden clock with the pink roses on the dial pointed to half after ten, and the mother with the duplicate youngsters had not come back, Miss West made the move I had dreaded.

"If we are to get into Baltimore at all we must start," she said, rising. "You ought to see a doctor as soon as possible."

"Hush," I said warningly. "Don't mention the arm, please; it is asleep now. You may rouse it."

Which Do You Like Worst?

This is the greatest known way for undecided people to make up their minds.

None but a strong minded woman can ever decide which of two or three hats she likes "the best," particularly if they are all comely. Popular belles have been known to have similar troubles with their sweethearts. Which do I like best is often a momentous question.

Why not try the other way? Decide which, of men, or hats, or attractive "dates" you like the worst, and then proceed to eliminate.

From there you can factor out in the grade of desirability, until you actually find yourself at a decision, because it, whatever it is, is the only one left.

The process is delightfully simple.

USED HYPODERMICS.

Only Relief From Terrible Suffering.

Thomas E. Vest, 1505 S. 12th St., Terre Haute, Ind., says: "I had no control over the urine and the pain when voiding it was so great I often screamed. I grew worse and lay in bed for weeks, the only relief being from hypodermics. I was treated by three physicians without help and the last one said an operation was necessary. At this time I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and passed a gravel stone as large as a pea. The next day I passed two more and from then on improved rapidly until cured."
