NUMBER 8

NOTICE OF GENERAL ELECTION.

TO THE ELECTORS OF WASHINGTON COUNTY:—

OFFICE OF COUNTY CLERK, WEST BEND, WIS., Nov. 1, 1910.

Notice is hereby given that a general election is to be held in the several towns, wards, villages, and election precincts in the county of Washington on the 8th day of November, 1910, at which the officers named below are to be chosen. The names of the candidates for each office to be voted for, whose nominations have been certified to or filed in this office, are given under the title of the office and under the appropriate party or other designation, each in its proper column, together with the question submitted to a vote, in the sample ballot below.

INFORMATION TO VOTERS.

The following instructions are given for the information and guidance of voters: A voter upon entering the polling place and giving his name and residence, will receive a ballot from the ballot clerk which must have endorsed thereon the names or initials of both ballot clerks, and no other ballot can be used. Upon receiving his ballot, the voter must retire alone to a booth or compartment and prepare the same for voting. A ballot clerk may inform the voter as to the proper manner of marking a ballot, but he must not advise or indicate in any manner whom to vote for.

If a voter wishes to vote for all the candidates nominated by any party he shall make a cross or other mark under the party designation printed at the top of the ballot in the circle made for that purpose. A ballot so marked and having no other mark will be counted for all the candidates of that party in the column underneath, unless the names of some of the candidates of the party have been erased or a name shall be written in or a cross mark be placed in the square at the right of the name or names of candidates in another column. If the voter does not wish to vote for all the candidates nominated by one party, he shall mark his ballot by making a cross or mark in the square at the right of the name of the candidate for whom he intends to vote or by inserting or writing in the name of the candidate.

A voter may vote upon a question submitted to a vote of the people by making a cross (X) or mark in the square at the right of the answer which he intends to give.

The ballot should not be marked in any other manner. If the ballot be spoiled, it must be returned to the ballot clerk, who must issue another in its stead, but not more than three in all shall be issued to any one voter. Five minutes' time is allowed in booth to mark ballot. Unofficial ballots or memorandum to assist the voter in marking his ballot can be taken into the booth, and may be used to copy from. The ballot must not be shown so that any person can see how it has been marked by the voter.

After it is marked it should be folded so that the inside cannot be seen, but so that the printed indorsements and signatures of the ballot clerks on the outside may be seen. Then the voter should pass out of the booth or compartment, give his name to the inspector in charge of the ballot box, hand him his ballot to be placed in the box, and pass out of the voting place.

A voter, who declares to the presiding officer that he is unable to read, or that by reason of physical disability he is unable to mark his ballot, can have assistance of one or two election officers in marking same, to be chosen by the voter; and if he declares that he is totally blind, he may be assisted by any person chosen by him from among the legal voters of the county. The presiding officer may administer an oath in his discretion as to such person's disability.

VOTE FOR SHINNERS

Shinners' Election Will Mean a Representative From This District Who is Well Qualified.

Wm. Shinners, Democratic candidate for state senator in the 33rd Senatorial District, comprising the counties of Waukesha and Washington needs no introduction to the voters of Washington county. He has twice served the people of this county as sheriff. It is a well known fact that Mr. Shinners performed the duties of this office to the entire satisfaction of the people of Washington county. If you cast your ballot for Mr. Shinners you will make no mistake, as his past record shows he is a man of sound judgment and good common sense. His integrity has never been questioned. He is broad and liberal in his views on public questions. There is no better way of judging a man than by his past record. As a token of respect from Washington county, every voter should go to the polls on election day and cast his ballot for Mr. Shinners, the candidate for state senator of the 33rd district. If elected he will represent his district ably in the state legislature.

Death of Mrs. K. Maier.

Mrs. Catherine Maier (nee Roden) died at the home of her mother, Mrs. A. M. Roden, on Friday, Oct. 28, at 4 a. m. of pulmonary tuberculosis. Deceased was born in the town of Auburn, Fond du Lac county, on March 18, 1873. In 1903 she married John Maier of Port Washington. One child was born to them. Mr. Maier died May 29, 1906, and since then Mrs. Maier made her home with her mother. Beside her little son and her mother she is survived by the following brothers and sisters: Nic Roden of Calott, Mrs. John Krueger of Milwaukee, Mrs. Gerhard Fellenz and Adam Roden of the town of Kewaskum, Mrs. Stephen Matzner of the town of Barton, and Margaret at home. The funeral was held at 9:30 Monday morning, the services being conducted by Rev. Rossbach. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery.

Wealthy Man Weds Domestic

Ernst H. Haentze, a wealthy florist of Fond du Lac, was married secretly October 29th at Philadelphia to Miss Louise Klimknecht, aged 21, former domestic in his son's home, according to a statement of Robert Haentze, his son. Mr. Haentze, was credited with having been spirited away in October by his son in order to prevent his marriage. He escaped in Chicago and went to Philadelphia to claim his bride.

POLITICAL MEETINGS HELD

Republicans and Democrats Hold Rallies to Large Crowds.

The first cannon for the political campaign in this village was fired last week Friday evening by the Progressive Republicans when T. L. Trotman of Milwaukee spoke in German to a fairly good sized audience in Groeschel's hall. Mr. Trotman was introduced to the attentive audience by Postmaster A. G. Koch. Mr. Trotman spoke chiefly on the issues of the party claiming that the Progressive Republicans were alike, but that the Progressive Republicans had the best organized party. He also stated that if the Progressive Republicans were elected they would regulate the affairs of the Corporations, Trusts and Special Interests. He said that the Progressives were in favor of a law limiting a candidate's expenses when seeking an office. One special point which Mr. Trotman spoke upon was urging all Progressives to vote for Bancroft, independent candidate for Attorney General and not for the nominated candidate as for the decision of the Supreme Court. He also endorsed the whole Republican county ticket as he stated they were all Progressives. The meeting ended with three cheers for the speaker and for the whole Republican ticket.

The Democratic Rally held in Groeschel's hall last Wednesday evening was fairly well attended about 75 voters listening to Hon. M. K. Reilly of Fond du Lac, who was the principal speaker. Mr. Reilly was introduced by N. J. Mertens, who presided as chairman.

Mr. Reilly not only appealed to all voters, especially the Democrats, to turn out at the polls next Tuesday, but also attacked the Republican party as stealing the Democratic principles. He stated that Democrats were only fortunate in getting into office twice within the past 50 years, but every campaign has been a triumphal victory for them as the Republicans and public at large were beginning to see that the Democratic ideas are the only ideas. He also attacked Mc Govern in making his speeches throughout the state denouncing the measures he has been advocating the past few years. He also gave a lengthy talk on the reduction of tariff. Mr. Reilly in his speech also spoke on county option and wants Mc Govern to express himself before election day, whether he is for or against county option. He stated the Democrats were always against county option. Nearly all the Democratic county candidates were present.

Wolves at Eden.

The forest fires in the northern part of the state during the past several months has resulted in hundreds of timber wolves seeking new homes, and in consequence, Eden is infested with the animals. Two immense specimens, gaunt and ferocious, were killed Sunday morning by two rabbit hunters. On the farm of Henry Jaeger, thirteen sheep were killed by wolves in one night, while neighboring farmers report losses to their stock. Norman and Charles Odekirk, northeast of Eden station, were hunting rabbits Sunday morning when they came upon some wolf tracks. Their fox hounds took up the scent and later in the morning the wolves were run to cover in a slump of alders. A sharp fight ensued between the wolves and the hounds, in which the former were victorious. The hunters came up just at the close of the fight and fired the contents of two shotguns into the wolves. Farmers in the southern part of the county report seeing a number of the timber animals prowling in the hills.

Barton Mail Carrier Resigns.

Andrew J. Kapfer of Barton has resigned his position as carrier on rural route No. 2 after having faithfully served his patrons in all kinds of weather for many years. His resignation was handed in for the purpose of enabling him to branch out into a new business venture. Mr. Kapfer took a post graduate course in the Eckel School of Embalming and Undertaking of Philadelphia, Pa., the past summer and is now a full-fledged licensed embalmer and undertaker. Modern up-to-date embalming and undertaking parlors will be fitted out in his residence opposite the North-Western depot in that village, where he will at all times carry in stock a complete line of caskets. Frank Zwasehka, the well-known undertaker of Kewaskum, will assist Mr. Kapfer. Mr. Kapfer is well known in the northern part of the county and being a hustler, ought to be able in a short time to establish a good business. We wish him success.—West Bend Pilot.

DRAINAGE PLAN TO SAVE 66,000 ACRES

Dredging in Operation in Big Horicon Marsh at Present.

Operations for the draining of the Horicon marsh are well under way and if the plans of the promoters are carried out this part of the state will be benefited by the reclamation of about 66,000 acres. The drainage was started this summer but was delayed by the dry weather.

A main ditch, twenty feet wide and ten feet deep, starting at the north end of the marsh on the town line between the townships of Oakfield and Waupun, is being dug southward through the marsh to the southern extremity.

This ditch is being dug by a large dredge, constructed especially for this project and on the site of the beginning of the work. The dredge is equipped with modern machinery, including an electric lighting plant to provide illumination for night work. To date the ditch has been dug to a point about a mile from the north end of the marsh.

The point beginning the operations is almost directly north of the center of the marsh and on almost a direct line north of Horicon. The proposed route, after entering Dodge county will be along the line between the towns of Le Roy and Chester and thence south on a continuation of that line to a point about half way between sections 36, town of Burnette, and 31, town of Williamsburg and from thence irregularly to Horicon and Hustisford.

In order to provide water for floating the dredge, a well was sunk at the head of the ditch and a powerful pump, throwing a four inch stream, pumps water from the well into the ditch.

It is believed that when the dredge has progressed another mile a sufficient quantity of water will flow into it from the marsh to eliminate the necessity of operating the pump. The main ditch will be intersected by cross ditches, at intervals of a mile.

It is estimated that the work of cutting the main ditch and intersections will require about two years' time.

First Snow Storm.

The first real snowstorm of the season struck this village Tuesday afternoon when a drizzling rain suddenly turned into a heavy snow. It was a case of an Indian summer to the biting effects of a blizzard and winter. Within a short time the ground was covered with the wet snow. The snow fall stopped early in the evening with a sudden drop of temperature, which lasted until the end of the week. Sidewalks had an icy coat making walking difficult and dangerous. About three and a half inches of snow fell.

WILLIAM H. FROELICH'S CANDIDACY.

Mr. Wm. H. Froelich is receiving a great deal of encouragement in his campaign from people without distinction of party in his district. His definite attitude with regard to contemplated progressive legislation, and the confidence the public has in Mr. Froelich, who will carry out his promises to the letter, are factors which work strongly in his favor and they should.

As assemblyman from this county, and as secretary of state, Mr. Froelich's record commends itself to the people of this district. The Journal of the Assembly for the years 1895-1897, being the years in which Mr. Froelich was a member of the legislature, shows that he attended every session and gave his undivided attention to the consideration of legislation. His work was of such a character that he earned the respect and confidence of the people of the state and of his fellow members of the Legislature. His work paved for him the way to one of the highest offices in the state, which he held for four years. He discharged the duties of that important office in a manner which leaves no room for the slightest criticism. While secretary of state he inaugurated a system of book keeping which greatly simplifies the accounting of the various incomes and disbursements of the state and places it on a strict basis, and the people's interests were never better conserved than during his administration of that office.

One of the main characteristics of Mr. Froelich is that he is straightforward and plainly outspoken. He has neither the time nor the inclination to stoop to tactics calculated to prejudice the minds of people against men who differ from him politically or otherwise. He stands upon his merits solely and alone, and sees no need nor occasion to attack those who oppose him. He considers it below dignity of a candidate for congress to empty to prejudice the minds of the voters against his political opponent by untimely and unwarranted aspersions upon what he might conceive to be his attitude regarding public policies.

Mr. Froelich makes his campaign on the issues which have been promulgated by the progressive republicans of this state with whom he is in full accord, and has been for years. He realizes that his district has always been a democratic stronghold, but that does not deter him in the least for he also realizes that there is an awakening of public sentiment in favor of progressive legislation, a sentiment that is gaining strength day by day, and it is upon that issue that he comes before the people and solicits their support.

JOHNSTONE BREAKS WORLD'S ALTITUDE RECORD AT CLOSE OF AVIATION MEET.

IS WINNER OF $2,000 PRIZE

Lack of Fuel Prevents Daring Aviator Going Still Higher—Moissant Captures Another Prize—Englishman Falls in Speed Event.

New York.—The international aviation meet was brought to a close in a blaze of glory Monday when Ralph Johnstone, flying in a Wright "baby" biplane, a craft which he drove for the first time in his aerial flights, broke the world's altitude record by ascending to a height of 9,714 feet.

For his daringly spectacular feat he received a prize of $2,000. If he had been able to soar just 287 feet higher he would have won an additional prize of $5,000 offered on the condition that the altitude record be over 10,000 feet. He was prevented from reaching this height because his machine would not climb and more on account of lack of fuel. The previous record was 9,186 feet.

It took Johnstone about one hour and twenty-six minutes to reach his highest point in the sky. For an hour he was utterly beyond the sight of the naked eye. He made his descent from the perilous height of almost two miles in the air in less than six minutes.

A great air race from Belmont Park around the Statue of Liberty in New York bay and return for a bet of $10,000 a side probably will result from a challenge issued by Claude Grahame-White to John B. Moissant. The challenge is the result of Sunday's race over the same course in which Moissant defeated the Englishman by forty-three seconds.

Grahame-White issued the formal challenge and the Chicago aviator said he would accept it.

Moissant, flying the Bleriot in which he captured the Statue of Liberty prize, won the Aero Club of America's distance prize of $2,000. In two hours he made the course fifty-six times, a total distance of about eight-seven and one-half miles.

Moissant made a sensational landing in front of the grand stand, smashing his propeller and breaking one wheel of his monoplane. He climbed out of the machine, however, uninjured. Latham was second in the race with thirty-five laps.

Grahame-White, who was flying in the speed race against McCurdy, overturned in front of the grand stand and was buried under the machine. Helpers lifted the machine off him and he walked out limping slightly, waving his hand to the crowd to let them know he was not seriously injured. His machine was damaged.

OVERRULES LINE DEMURRER

State of Illinois Is Victor Over Illinois Central Railroad Under Decision by High Court.

Springfield, Ill.—A decision of the supreme court of Illinois was handed down Friday in the tax case of the state against the Illinois Central Railroad company.

The state won every important contention with the exception that the opinion holds the accounts prior to 1905 have been accepted by the state and payment made thereon, and that therefore they are not subject to further inquiry.

But for the future settlements and for the settlement of all accounts since Governor Deneen came into office, the court lays down hard and fast rules for accounting by which the state will reap a reward of $2,000,000 a year more in taxes than it has been receiving from the Illinois Central Railroad company.

When the Illinois Central tendered its first payment under Governor Deneen's administration he accepted the money with the understanding the accounting upon which the money was tendered was subject to revision. This act on the part of the governor, the court holds, makes all transactions with the road during his administration subject to further accounting.

The court remands the case to the circuit court of La Salle county, with instructions to proceed in accordance with the views in its opinion. Unless the railroad accepts the court's decision as final, the circuit court of La Salle county will no doubt appoint a master to go into all the details of the accounting since 1905, and the case may be prolonged indefinitely.

The suit against the Illinois Central was filed early in December, 1907, by the attorney general, following a message from Governor Deneen to the legislature, declaring that the road had been so manipulating its accounts as to credit millions of its earnings to the non-charter lines, not subject to the tax of 7 per cent. Later accounting swelled the amount which Governor Deneen declared the road owed to the state from $5,000,000 to $15,000,000.

AWARD MINE HEROES MEDALS

FIFTY-EIGHT PERSONS ADDED TO CARNEGIE FUND.

Thirteen Brave Fellows at Cherry Disaster Receive Recognition—Widows and Children Remembered.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Fifty-eight names were added to the Carnegie hero list in the United States by the Carnegie hero fund commission at its fall meeting. For acts of heroism thirty silver and twenty-eight bronze medals were awarded the life savers or their families in cases where death resulted.

While heroes and heroines come from the Atlantic coast to the Pacific, the greatest number (sixteen) come from Illinois.

The Cherry mine disaster has been considered and thirteen heroes are named from its rescuing parties. First of all is Isaac Lewis, liverman, who rescued so many miners and then lost his life. His widow is given a silver medal and $40 per month pension, with $5 additional for each of three children until they become sixteen years of age.

Other heroes of the Cherry mine extended medals and pecuniary rewards are Dominik Ferment, Andrew McLuckie, Alexander Norburg, Henry Stewart, Robert Clark, James Speir, John Bundy, John Szabinski, Charles Walte, John Flood, Walter Walte and George Eddy.

Allen S. Blood, a school boy of Grayville, Ill., is awarded a bronze medal for saving three young men from drowning. James L. McFarland of West Frankfort, Ill., gets a bronze medal for saving Ruby Cantrell, a fifteen-year-old girl, from being run over by a train.

Henry P. McCoy of Tucson, Ariz., tried to save Frank L. Sherrer at Mendon, Ill., from suffocating by gas. He gets a bronze medal and $1,000 as needed. Charles Evans of Mendon, Ill., almost lost his life in the same attempt at rescue and gets a bronze medal and $1,000.

STRIKERS AND POLICE CLASH

Garment Workers at Chicago Stone Shops—Thousand More Walk Out—Society Women to Aid.

Chicago.—Policeman Edward Engel meyer was injured and six men and a seventeen-year-old girl were arrested in a riot of striking garment workers in front of Tieson & Co.'s tailor shop in West Division street Tuesday.

Bricks were thrown by the crowd, which numbered over a thousand men and women, and windows in the first floor of the tailoring plant and in adjacent dwellings were shattered.

Another riot occurred in Market street, near Adams, when a band of 500 strikers invaded the loop district. Mounded policemen, caring not where they drove, spurred their horses upon the sidewalk and into the crowd. The action was greeted with hisses from the crowds thronging the streets and in windows.

For a time a clash between the workers and the uniformed men was imminent, but the appearance of more policemen on foot, who forced the marchers to disperse, prevented more serious trouble.

While the police were battling with the paraders, 1,000 more workers walked out in the various shops in the loop district and joined the ranks of the union. The walkout, however, had been expected, and before the strikers could form in line to parade the streets a squad of policemen, summoned by a riot call, dispersed them.

A dozen tailoring establishments signed union agreements. Workers who had quit at the strike order returned to these shops.

Becoming desperate at the progress of the strike, officials of the firm of Hart, Shaffner & Marx, whose shops are practically closed as the result of the general walkout, are said to have appealed to Sheriff Strassheim for aid. They requested, it is declared, that the sheriff swear in the employes now in their shops as deputies and permit them to carry revolvers and "bills."

Fifty prominent society women are said to have offered their assistance in picketing, doing other aid work in the strike, following a meeting in the headquarters of the Women's Trade Union league.

BATTLES WITH THIEF, DIES

Insurance Man Is Shot by Burglar While Wife and Children Look On.

Chicago.—After a desperate hand-to-hand encounter with a burglar who had entered his home at 2138 Fulton street, Sunday night, Guy Williams, a solicitor for the Prudential Life Insurance company, was shot and killed by the intruder.

Williams' wife and two young sons, cowering behind a door but a few feet distant, saw in the dimly lighted room the struggle of the husband and father with the burglar. They saw the two men fight for mastery. They saw the flash of the revolver shot.

TRAP BRIBE TAKER

JURYMAN IN NEW YORK MURDER CASE ACCUSED OF ACCEPTING $500.

WEALTHY MAN IS ON TRIAL

Architect Who Figured in Sensational Nan Patterson Suit Is Charged With Accepting Money to Bring in Verdict for Defendant.

New York.—George W. Yeandle, an architect, drawn as a juror in the trial of Edward T. Rosenheimer, a wealthy manufacturer, charged with the murder of Grace Hough by running her down with his automobile, was arrested Tuesday, charged with accepting $500 to acquit Rosenheimer, and taken before Chief Justice O'Gorman.

The $500, it is charged, formed a part of $2,000 which was asked, and was paid by one of Rosenheimer's attorneys on the advice of Justice O'Gorman, who had been advised of the alleged bribe demand and arranged for the payment of the money and the arrest of the juror. Dagebert Tiemendorfer, alleged to be the "go-between" in the case, also was arrested.

According to James W. Osborne, chief of Rosenheimer's attorney, Tiemendorfer visited him in his office after the Rosenheimer jury had been selected and made the blunt proposition that for $2,000 Yeandle would vote for Rosenheimer's acquittal no matter what the evidence might be. To prove Yeandle's value, Mr. Osborne says, Tiemendorfer told him that Yeandle had been one of the jurors in the first "Nan" Patterson murder trial and had "hung" the jury after holding out against a verdict of guilty for 17 hours.

Mr. Osborne asked for time to think the proposition over. He then laid the matter before Justice O'Gorman, who advised that a trap be set for the juror. A meeting was arranged through Tiemendorfer, Mr. Osborne said, and George A. Knoblock of the Osborne law firm kept the appointment. The money, $500 "on account," it was alleged, was paid over at a street corner on Madison avenue. Both Yeandle and Tiemendorfer were there, Mr. Knoblock stated. The actual payment the attorney declared, being made to Tiemendorfer, for whom Yeandle made to take the roll of bills.

The two prisoners were held in $10,000 bail each. Neither was able to furnish the amount and they were sent to prison.

LAWYER IN HOBBLE SKIRT

Woman Attorney in New Style of Dress Causes Stir in U. S. Supreme Court.

Washington.—Miss Adelina H. Burd, a lawyer of New York, threw consternation into the attaches of the Supreme court by appearing in a hobble skirt. At first there was an attempt to prevent Miss Burd from seating herself at the lawyers' table, but she explained her employment in a Kentucky land case and she was permitted to pass.

VICTORY MEANS HIGH RATES

RAILROAD HEADS ADMIT INTENT TO ADD TO INCREASE.

Burlington Vice-President and Counsel Qualify Statement With Higher Cost Argument.

Chicago.—The hope that a victory in their fight for increased freight rates will give them an opportunity to make still further advances is the reason given by the western railroads for the tenacity displayed in the battle they are waging before the interstate commerce commission.

This was admitted by C. G. Burnham, vice-president of the Burlington railroad, in charge of traffic, and by Attorney Dawes, counsel of the road, at the hearing.

The admission was qualified, however, by statements that the increase asked for in the present hearing would only offset reductions that had been made by the commission in recent cases and that the further advances would furnish the roads the money declared necessary to meet ever-mounting expenses and the cost of needed improvements and equipment.

The advances asked at once would bring the Burlington about $400,000, Mr. Burnham stated, while the further increases would raise the amount to about $800,000. The position of the Burlington is the same as that of all the other roads involved, according to Mr. Burnham. He said that no increase in class rates, the broader field, was sought, the roads desiring only to increase the commodity rates. J. S. Peabody, statistician of the Santa Fe, testified that state traffic cost the road from two to five times as much to handle as interstate.

DEPUTIES STIR UP TUMULT

Disorder in French Chamber During Strike Debate Rivals Turbulence of Revolution.

Paris.—The debate on the railway strike in which the government has been bitterly attacked in the chamber of deputies by the Socialists, has taken a new and dramatic turn.

During Saturday's session, which was not only the most violent in the history of the French parliament, but rivaled in disorder and turbulence the sessions of the national convention during the French revolution, Premier Briand, smarting under the repeated attacks of M. Jaures, the leader of the Socialists, and others, leaped to his feet and, defending the cabinet's suppression of the strike as a revolutionary outbreak, exclaimed: "If the actual laws had been insufficient we would not have hesitated to resort even to illegality for the purpose of preserving the fatherland."

An uproar followed these words. The Socialists jumped up and were joined by a number of radicals. With shouts of anger they moved towards the tribune, crying "Resign! Dictator, resign!"

Finally, M. Brisson, president of the chamber, amid cries from the Socialists, adjourned the debate.

HOSPITALITY OF THE WEST

Host Always at Home, and Help Yourselves, Whether the Folks Are There or Not.

We were in the sand hill country and lost, says Ella W. Peattie in the Youth's Companion. Noon found us wandering hungry and tired among those pale yellow hillocks and chased by flocks of tumbleweeds, which, dried, globular shaped and of the least possible weight, scurried up and down the "draws."

One of our number, although not a resident in that county and ignorant of the roads, was perfectly familiar with the customs of the people. "We'll be coming across a house somewhere in here," he told us. "We'll find folks all right enough if we keep on."

"But they may not be willing to serve three hungry travelers," one of us said. He turned a look of simple wonder upon the speaker and made no reply.

Presently a habitation lifted its low roof in the wilderness. Our leader was soon hallooting to the inmates, but he had no response.

"The folks are out," said he with no diminution of cheerfulness, although the rest of us were feeling afresh the pangs of hunger.

The western man drove to the barn, unhitched the team and put the horses in the stalls, giving them feed from the bag which we had carried with us, and then went to the house and calmly walked in. We followed with some timidity.

"What are you going to do?" we asked.

"Do?" said he with ill concealed irritation. "What should I do but get dinner?"

"In another man's house—and he absent!"

"Well," said the western man with heat, "I guess he'd think we were about as near fools as they make 'em, if we didn't feed ourselves if we were hungry. And what's more he wouldn't thank us for going by his place under the circumstances. We're complimenting him, that's what we are."

We said nothing more but helped get the dinner. There were prune sauce, stewed, and a great loaf of gingerbread. We ate heartily, and so far as two of us were concerned with a sense of excitement something like that which a burglar must feel.

The excellent meal finished, our leader gave it as his opinion that he had better wash the dishes and not leave them for the women folks to do. We agreed, and with some awkwardness but excellent results put the dishes, clean and dry, back in their right places.

Our leader took a fifty cent piece from his pocket and laid it on the table.

"They'd be mighty mad if they knew who was leaving that," he remarked, "but as they're not likely to find out it can't do you hurt."

A curious country we thought where the offense lies in paying for what one has taken and not in the taking of a thing uninvited.

We learned afterward that our leader had not overstated the case. It was the custom for the hungry to feed themselves at any man's board and for the weary to rest on any man's bed. Not to have done so would have been to give affront to those who had the food and the bed.

SYNOPSIS.

Lawrence Blakeley, lawyer, goes to Pittsburgh with the forged notes in the Bronson case to get the deposition of John Gilmore, millionaire. In the latter's home he is attracted by a picture of a young girl whom the millionaire explains is his granddaughter. A lady requests Blakeley to buy her a Pullman ticket. He gives her lower eleven and retains lower ten. He finds a drunken man in lower ten and lower seven and finds his clothes and bag missing. The man in lower ten is found murdered. Circumstantial evidence places both Blakeley and the unknown man who had exchanged clothes with him, under suspicion of murder. Blakeley becomes interested in a girl in blue. The train is wrecked. Blakeley is rescued from the burning car by the girl in blue. His arm is broken. They go to the Carter place for breakfast. The girl proves to be Allison West, his partner's sweetheart. Her peculiar actions mystify the lawyer. She drops her gold bag and Blakeley puts it in his pocket. Blakeley returns home. He finds that he is under surveillance and hears of strange doings in the house next door.

As we turned the corner I glanced back. Half a block behind us Johnson was moving our way slowly. When he saw me he stopped and proceeded with great deliberation to light a cigar. By hurrying, however, he caught the car that we took, and stood unobtrusively on the rear platform. He looked fagged, and absent-mindedly paid our fares, to McKnight's delight.

"We will give him a run for his money," he declared, as the car moved countryward. "Conductor, let us off at the muddest lane you can find."

At one o'clock, after a six-mile ramble, we entered a small country hotel. We had seen nothing of Johnson for a half hour. At that time he was a quarter of a mile behind us, and losing rapidly. Before we had finished our luncheon he staggered into the inn. One of his boots was under his arm, and his whole appearance was deplorable. He was coated with mud, streaked with perspiration, and he limped as he walked. He chose a table not far from us and ordered Scotch. Beyond touching his hat he paid no attention to us.

"I'm just getting my second wind," McKnight declared. "How do you feel, Mr. Johnson? Six or eight miles more and we'll all enjoy our dinners." Johnson put down the glass he had raised to his lips without replying.

The fact was, however, that I was like Johnson. I was soft from my week's inaction, and I was pretty well 'one up. McKnight, who was a well-spring of vitality and high spirits, ordered a strange concoction, made of nearly everything in the bar, and sent it over to the detective, but Johnson refused it.

"I hate that kind of person," McKnight said pettishly. "Kind of a fellow that thinks you're going to poison his dog if you offer him a bone."

When we got to the car line, with Johnson a dragged and drooping tail to the kite, I was in better spirits. I had told McKnight the story of the three hours just after the wreck; I had not named the girl, of course; she had my promise of secrecy. But I told him everything else. It was a relief to have a fresh mind on it. I had puzzled so much over the incident at the farm-house, and the necklace in the gold bag, that I had lost perspective.

He had been interested, but inclined to be amused, until I came to the broken chain. Then he had whistled softly.

"But there are tons of fine gold chains trade every year," he said. "Why in the world do you think that the—er—smearly piece came from that necklace?"

I had looked around. Johnson was far behind, scraping the mud off his feet with a piece of stick.

"I have the short end of the chain in the sealskin bag," I reminded him. "When I couldn't sleep this morning I thought I would settle it, one way or the other. It was hell to go along the way I had been doing. And—there's no doubt about it, Rich. It's the same chain."

We walked along in silence until we caught the car back to town.

"Well," he said finally, "you know the girl, of course, and I don't. But if you like her—and I think myself you're rather hard hit, old man—I wouldn't give a whoop about the chain in the gold purse. It's just one of the little coincidences that hang people now and then. And as for last night—if she's the kind of a girl you say she is, and you think she had anything to do with that, you—you're added, that's all. You can depend on it, the lady of the empty house last week is the lady of last night. And yet your train acquaintance was in Altoona at that time."

Just before we got off the car, I reverted to the subject again. It was never far back in my mind.

"About the—young lady of the train, Rich," I said, with what I suppose was elaborate carelessness, "I don't want you to get a wrong impression. I am rather unlikely to see her again, but even if I do, I— I believe she is already 'bespoke,' or next thing to it."

He made no reply, but as I opened the door with my latch-key he stood looking up at me from the pavement with his quizzical smile.

"Love is like the measles," he orat-

"And There's Johnson Just Behind, the Coolest Proposition in Washington."

"The older you get it, the worse the attack."

Johnson did not appear again that day. A small man in a raincoat took his place. The next morning I made my initial trip to the office, the raincoat still on hand. I had a short conference with Miller, the district attorney, at 11. Bronson was under surveillance, he said, and any attempt to sell the notes to him would probably result in their recovery. In the meantime, as I knew, the Commonwealth had continued the case, in hope of such contingency.

At noon I left the office and took a veterinarian to see Candida, the injured pony. By one o'clock my first day's duties were performed, and a long Sahara of hot afternoon stretched ahead. McKnight, always glad to escape from the grind, suggested a vaudeville, and in sheer ennui I consented. I could neither ride, drive nor golf, and my own company bored me to distraction.

"Coolest place in town these days," he declared. "Electric fans, breezy songs, airy costumes. And there's Johnson just behind—the coolest proposition in Washington."

He gravely bought three tickets and presented the detective with one. Then we went in. Having lived a normal, busy life, the theater in the afternoon is to me about as far with ice cream for breakfast. Up on the stage a very stout woman in short pink skirts, with a smile that McKnight declared looked like a slash in a roll of butter, was singing nasally, with a laborious kick at the end of each verse. Johnson, two rows ahead, went to sleep. McKnight prodded me with his elbow.

"Look at the first box to the right," he said, in a stage whisper. "I want you to come over at the end of this act."

It was the first time I had seen her since I put her in the cab at Baltimore. Outwardly I presume I was calm, for no one turned to stare at me, but every atom of me cried out at the sight of her. She was leaning, bent forward, lips slightly parted, gazing raptly at the Japanese conjurer who had replaced what McKnight disrespectfully called the Columns of Hercules. Compared with the dragged lady of the farm house, she was radiant.

For that first moment there was nothing but joy at the sight of her. McKnight's touch on my arm brought me back to reality.

"Come over and meet them," he said. "That's the cousin Miss West is visiting, Mrs. Dallas."

But I would not go. After he went I sat there alone, painfully conscious that I was being pointed out and stared at from the box. The abominable Japanese gave way to yet more atrocious performing dogs.

"How many offers of marriage will the young lady in the box have?" The dog stopped sagely at "none," and then pulled out a card that said eight. Wild shouts of glee by the audience. "The fools," I muttered.

After a little I glanced over. Mrs. Dallas was talking to McKnight, but she was looking straight at me. She was flushed, but more calm than I, and she did not bow. I fumbled for my hat, but the next moment I saw that they were going, and I sat still. When McKnight came back he was triumphant.

"I've made an engagement for you," he said. "Mrs. Dallas asked me to bring you to dinner to-night, and I said I knew you would fall all over yourself to go. You are requested to bring along the broken arm, and any other souvenirs of the wreck that you may possess."

"I'll do nothing of the sort," I declared, struggling against my indignation. "I can't even tie my necktie, and I have to have my food cut for me."

"Oh, that's all right," he said easily. "I'll send Stogie over to fix you up, and Mrs. Dal knows all about the arm. I told her."

(Stogie is his Japanese factotum, so called because he is lean, a yellowish brown in color, and because he claims to have been shipped into this country in a box.)

The cinematograph was finishing the program. The house was dark and the music had stopped, as it does in the circus just before somebody risks his neck at so much a neck in the dip of death, or the hundred-foot dive. Then, with a sort of shock, I saw on the white curtain the announcement:

THE NEXT PICTURE IS THE DOOMED WASHINGTON FLIER, TAKEN A SHORT DISTANCE FROM THE SCENE OF THE WRECK ON THE FATAL MORNING OF SEPTEMBER TENTH, TWO MILES FARTHER ON IT MET WITH ALMOST COMPLETE ANNIHILATION.

I confess to a return of some of the sickening sensations of the wreck; people around me were leaning forward with tense faces. Then the letters were gone and I saw a long level stretch of track, even the broken stone between the ties standing out distinctly. Far off under a cloud of smoke a small object was rushing toward us and growing larger as it came.

Now it was on us, a mammoth in size, with huge drivers and a colossal tender. The engine leaped aside, as if just in time to save us from destruction, with a glimpse of a stooping fireman and a grimy engineer. The long train of sleepers followed. From a forward vestibule a porter in a white coat vested his hand. The rest of the cars seemed still wrapped in slumber. With mixed sensations I saw my own car, Ontario, fly past, and then I rose to my feet and gripped McKnight's shoulder.

On the lowest step of the last car, one foot hanging free, was a man. His black derby hat was pulled well down to keep it from blowing away, and his coat was flying open in the wind. He was swung well out from the car, his free hand gripping a small valise, every muscle tense for a jump.

"This way," I motioned to McKnight, and we wheeled into the narrow passage behind us, back of the boxes. At the end there was a door leading into the wings, and as we went boldly through I turned the key.

The final set was being struck, and no one paid any attention to us. Luckily they were similarly indifferent to a banging at the door I had locked, a banging which, I judged, signified Johnson.

"I guess we've broken up his interference," McKnight chuckled. Stage hands were hurrying in every direction; pieces of the side wall of the last drawing room menaced us; a switchboard behind us was singing like a tea-kettle. Everywhere we stepped we were in somebody's way. At last we were across, confronting a man in his shirt sleeves, who by dots and dashes of profanity seemed to be directing the chaos.

"Well?" he said, wheeling on us. "What can I do for you?"

"I would like to ask," I replied, "if you have any idea just where the last cinematograph picture was taken."

"Broken board—picnickers—lake?" "No. The Washington Flier."

He glanced at my bandaged arm. "The announcement says two miles," McKnight put in, "but we should like to know whether it is railroad miles, automobile miles, or policeman miles."

"I am sorry I can't tell you," he replied, more civilly. "We get those pictures by contract. We don't take them ourselves."

"Where are the company's offices?" "New York." He stepped forward and grasped a super by the shoulder.

"What in blazes are you doing with that gold chair in a kitchen set? Take that piece of pink plush there and throw it over a soap box, if you have not got a kitchen chair."

I had not realized the extent of the shock, but now I dropped into a chair and wiped my forehead. The unexpected glimpse of Allison West followed almost immediately by the revelation of the picture, had left me limp and unnerved. McKnight was looking at his watch.

"He says the moving picture people have an office downtown. We can make it if we go now."

So he called a cab, and we started at a gallop. There was no sign of the detective. "Upon my word," Richey said, "I feel lonely without him."

The people at the downtown office of the cinematograph company were very obliging. The picture had been taken, they said, at M—, just two miles beyond the scene of the wreck. It was not much, but it was something to work on. I decided not to go home, but to send McKnight's Jap for my clothes, and to dress at the incubator. I was determined, if possible, to make my next day's investigations without Johnson. In the meantime, even if it was for the last time, I would see Her that night. I gave Stogie a note for Mrs. Klopston, and with my dinner clothes there came back the gold bag wrapped in tissue paper.

Why Dickens wrote "Christmas Carol." I noticed a statement in one of the papers recently that Dickens wrote his "Christmas Carol" with the express object of rearing the popular interest in the Christmas season and its festivities.

This is a pleasing fiction which had often been previously met with. The fact is that Dickens wrote the "Christmas Carol" in the autumn of 1843 because he was short of money and in great need of $5,000. The most candid chapter in Forster's "Life" is the one (in the second volume) which relates the tale of Dickens' disappointment and despair when he received the "Carol" accounts, for instead of the $5,000 he "had set his heart and soul upon," the sum due to him was only $1,150. Dickens wrote: "My year's bills, unpaid, are so terrific that all the energy and determination I can possibly exert will be required to clear me before I go abroad." Dickens ultimately cleared $2,630 by the "Christmas Carol" on a sale of 15,000 copies.—London Truth.

Good Joke on Voter. An amusing story is told of what happened to a pluralist voter in the 1900 election in England. He was a keen politician and believing that the vote he possessed in a distant constituency would be of value to his candidacy engaged a special train to take him there. On entering the polling booth he found the engineer of the train at his heels. He then discovered that the engineer happened to be on the voting register of the same town and was taking the opportunity of his accidental presence there to record his vote—which was given for the other side.

Not Wanted in Calif. Perhaps the intending purchaser, who recently wrote a London book seller: "Please forward me a copy of Tennyson, but please not one bound in calf, as I am a vegetarian." Intended to employ the volume only as a foot for thought.—Christian Science Monthly.

RIOTING IN CHICAGO

GARMENT WORKERS CLASH WITH POLICE AND MANY ARE ARRESTED.

WELL KNOWN WOMEN AIDING

Roughly Handled by Policemen When They Attempt to Influence Others to Join Ranks of Striking Women—But Still Determined to Win.

Chicago.—Shoulder to shoulder with striking girls, brushing through crowds, rebuffed by police, women of Chicago who have espoused the cause of the striking garment workers appeared in the streets as escorts to pickets for the first time since the strike began.

Two parties left the headquarters of the Women's Trade Union league at 4 o'clock and boarded cars for the clothing factory district. Returning about 6 o'clock they were greeted with cheers by their associates who gathered about them with eagerness to hear the result of the first picketing by others than strikers. Each reported interesting experiences.

One party in charge of Miss Emma Stenhagen, secretary of the Women's Trade Union league, interrupted a meeting of strikers at 1212 Marion court. Miss Stenhagen mounted the platform and said:

"We want twenty girls to go out on picket duty with us. Let's see if we can't get others to join this strike. We shall see whether the police interfere with our rights."

Then she told them the same old story. "Miss S. M. Franklin, when she returned to headquarters, 'We told them not to molest anybody, but just walk along quietly. We said we would protect them. But I'm sorry to say that it is impossible for us to protect them.'"

With the girl pickets, after the rest of the audience had been requested to remain behind, the party marched to Milwaukee avenue and Robey street, arriving just when girls left the factories. In the party besides Miss Stenhagen and Miss Franklin were Miss Caroline Hunt, a representative of La Follette's Weekly, who is investigating the strike; Miss Edith A. Phelps and Miss Lillian Carr.

As they approached their destination they saw a squad of police dispersing a gathering of strikers. The women and girls were accosted. The police had seen them coming and taking them by the arms forced them to pass quickly.

"We attempted to loiter at the curb a bit where a group of men and women were waiting to take a car, but policemen shook us by the shoulder, shoved us into the street and used vile language," said Miss Franklin. "We saw five boys arrested just because they were strikers."

CONFERENCE TO END STRIKE

Strikers' and Employers' Committees Meet to Arbitrate All Points Not Conceded.

New York.—A committee representing the striking employees of all the express companies of New York city and vicinity will meet representatives of the companies in Jersey City, to discuss plans for ending the strike.

The plans contemplated concessions on all points possible and arbitration by an impartial board for a speedy settlement are very favorable, as the strikers have conceded that there shall be no closed shop demanded and further that the conference committee shall consist of former express employees.

The order taking the policemen off the wagons went far toward restoring strikers and their sympathizers to a reasonable frame of mind.

According to the schedule given out at police headquarters nearly 500 express wagons went through the streets delivering and collecting expressage. These went where policemen were numerous and each wagon was accompanied by one or two mounted policemen.

Despite all the police precaution there was some violence in the city and the strikers continued to receive accessions to their ranks. The organized chauffeurs of the city struck, and some railway terminals were left without taxicab service.

AFTER BALLOON RECORD

Aeronauts Start From England to Capture Title Now Held by Hawley and Post.

London.—With Gaudron as pilot, four passengers, aboard the Daily Graphic, the largest balloon ever built in England, left Crystal Palace for Russia in an attempt to make a new long distance record. The record they must surpass is now held by two Americans, Allan Hawley and Augustus Post, who flew from St. Louis to a point in northern Quebec, a distance of 1,255 miles.

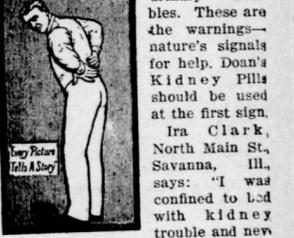

Eight Teams Still Tie.

Boston.—Although the average pace was unusually fast, the day's total showing better than twenty-two miles an hour, accidents prevented every effort by the several teams in the six-day bicycle race to make up lost time or gain the advantage by printing.

At 9 p. m., after eight hours' riding, the eight leading teams—Kramer and Moran, Folger and Collins, Wright and Palmer, Behr and Goulet, Wiley and Lawrence, the Bedelrothers, Demara and Williams, and Thomas and McCarthy, were tied at 634 miles.

NATURE'S SIGNALS.

The first indication of kidney disorder is often backache. Then comes pain in the hips and sides, lameness, soreness and urinary troubles. These are the warnings—nature's signals for help. Doan's Kidney Pills should be used at the first sign.

Ira Clark, North Main St., Savannah, Ill., says: "I was confined to bed with kidney trouble and never expected to be up again. A doctor said I had acute inflammation of the bladder, but he could not help me. How grateful was I for the prompt relief Doan's Kidney Pills gave me! Continued use removed every sign of kidney trouble."

Remember the name—Doan's. For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

One of the Best Rest Cures. Is a good story. To many women it is as good as a trip away from home.

When you are tired out and your nerves are on edge, try going off by yourself and losing yourself in some good story. You will, in nine cases out of ten, come back rested and invigorated.

One woman who has passed serenely through many years of hard work and worry that go with the managing of a house and bringing up of a large family of children, said that she considered it the duty of every busy housekeeper to read a certain amount of "trash," light fiction, for the rest and change to the mind that it would give.

Try it, you who lead a strenuous life, and who sometimes grow exceedingly weary of the same.

"That First Invented Sleep."

"Now blessings light on him that first invented this same sleep! It covers a man all over, thoughts, and all, like a cloak; it is meat for the hungry, drink for the thirsty, heat for the cold, and cold for the hot. It is the current coin that purchases all the pleasures of the world cheap; and the shepherd that sets the king and the shepherd, the fool and the wise man even. There is only one thing, which somebody once put into my head, that I dislike in sleep—it is that it resembles death. There is very little difference between a man in his first sleep and a man in his last sleep."—From Cervantes.

What About Him? The talk had gone back and fro, and the youthful socialist had been announcing that no man ought to get his living by cheating, and we all listened to him, and agreed that it was dreadful when men and women did not tell the truth, but tried to make their living by deceiving people. Millionaires, landowners, financiers, we scarified all of them who cheat the public. "No one should make a living by deception," said the young man. Then a quiet voice from a woman came from the corner of the sofa, "What about the conjurer?"—London Chronicle.

Planning a Desperate Revenge. The haughty, imperious beauty handed him back his ring.

"Now that all is over between us," she said, "I suppose you will buy a revolver and put an end to your wretched existence?"

"Worse than that!" he hissed, being careful to introduce the necessary sibilant; "far worse—see! I shall steal a revolver! And I shall shoot your measly little sore eyed poodle!"

A wild shriek burst from her lips. She fell upon her knees and— But he had gone.

THE FIRST TASTE Learned to Drink Coffee When a Baby. If parents realized the fact that coffee contains a drug—cafféine—which is especially harmful to children, they would doubtless hesitate before giving the babies coffee to drink.

"When I was a child in my mother's arms and first began to nibble things at the table, mother used to give me sips of coffee. As my parents used coffee exclusively at meals I never knew there was anything to drink but coffee and water.

"And so I contracted the coffee habit early. I remember when quite young the continual use of coffee so affected my parents that they tried roasting wheat and barley, then ground it in the coffee-mill, as a substitute for coffee.

"But it did not taste right and they went back to coffee again. That was long before Postum was ever heard of. I continued to use coffee until I was 27, and when I got into office work, I began to have nervous spells. Especially after breakfast I was so nervous I could scarcely attend to my correspondence.

"At night, after having coffee for supper, I could hardly sleep, and on rising in the morning would feel weak and nervous.

"A friend persuaded me to try Postum. My wife and I did not like it at first, but later when boiled good and strong it was fine. Now we would not give up Postum for the best coffee we ever tasted.

"I can now get good sleep, am free from nervousness and headaches. I recommend Postum to all coffee drinkers."

TO THE VOTERS OF WASHINGTON COUNTY.

I have been informed that my opponent, H. J. Falk, is circulating a campaign story to the effect that I supported him two years ago, in his campaign for County Treasurer. I desire to brand the aforesaid statement as absolutely and unqualifiably false. I not only voted for the Democratic candidate, Peter Gumm but I did all I could to secure his election.

Out of the Ginger Jar.
Those who are on pleasure bent, may soon lack funds to pay the rent. With horses as with married folks, it is desirable that when hitched they stay hitched. Some there may be who are unable to come back, but it is not the San Jose louse. Our friends are like our clothes unless they wear well we get satisfaction out of them. If a team of horses pull together they are sure to accomplish something; and the same is true of men. We put hobbles on a horse to keep them at home, but the hobble skirt is not intended for any such purpose. Too often instead of being sorry for our misdeeds we are merely ashamed that we have been found out. Did you ever stop to wonder what mischief you might get into if you didn't have to work so hard for a living? Farmers believe so thoroughly in the gospel of work that they even work their butter; and, like all else, it is the better for being worked. A writer complains of the tendency of seed to run out, and sometimes wives are heard complaining of a like tendency on the part of their husbands. Not every man is "charming" and a "good fellow" abroad is a modest husband at home. Many a hat tipping gallant compels his wife to split the kindling. Wiseacres advise us that there is always room at the top, and the average man when he comes to fifty is apt to find that there is more place at the top for more hair than he has. One of the greatest accomplishments is to be a good listener. By letting the other man do all the talking we acquire a reputation for wisdom far above that we may gain in the other way. One of our contemporaries writes instructively of "the dawn of agriculture." In this latitude the dawn of agriculture occurs about 3:30 A. M. in the summer and 5 A. M. in the winter. From November Farm Journal.

Quality--Service

These two words tell the whole story of our success. We've made this the leading store of its kind—a place where men can obtain clothes exactly to their liking. They like them when making their selection—like the way we wait upon them and like the clothes until they are threadbare. That means quality—intrinsic value in every purchase and lasting satisfaction. We never give a man an opportunity to even feel that he wants to trade elsewhere. The reason? Friend Made Clothes Make Friends.

DOUBLE INCOME OF WISCONSIN FARMS

UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN PROFESSOR HAS PLAN OF BENEFIT TO FARMERS.

WILL GIVE INSTRUCTION

Following Tabulation, University Will Show Scientific Manipulation of Soil to Benefit the Farmer.

La Crosse.—A system to make every farm in Wisconsin a paying proposition and to double and triple the income of at least three-fourths of the farms in the state is the plan of D. H. Otis, Madison, professor of farm management at the University of Wisconsin, who is in La Crosse.

The plan of Mr. Otis is a result of the realization of the fact that the increased population in this country will make the raising of a greater amount of farm produce to the acre a necessity.

Details of the plan, which is to get statistics from farmers on incomes and expenses, have been worked out and it is the plan of Mr. Otis to get the figures by townships. The La Crosse county agricultural school has been interested in the plan and J. L. Pettigill, one of the directors of the county institution, will call a meeting of the agricultural school board to lay plans for the students to assist in gathering the required figures.

The superintendent of the La Crosse county school, Prof. A. A. Johnson, thinks it to be one of the greatest moves for the betterment of the Wisconsin farmer ever started.

Every farmer in the state will soon receive blank sheets which they will be requested to fill out, showing the number of head of cattle, horses, hogs, etc., on their farms, just what receipts for each was during the last year and what they expect to realize from them this year and a detailed account of expenditures.

Just how much education affects modern farming is one of the important things Mr. Otis wishes to learn and every man working on a farm will be asked to tell how far he went in any school prior to starting farming.

All answers will be regarded as strictly confidential, and in publishing reports number will be used in place of names. Every farmer will be told his own number, however.

"The results that can be secured as the result of this information," said Mr. Otis, "are far greater than the average farmer or citizen will realize. For instance, if we find one man in one section with a hundred acre farm who is not making as much as a man with one the same size some place else, we will compare the two and find where the difference in the operation of the farm lies. By this method, we can tell the man who is not making enough money what to do to increase his income.

"On the other hand, if there is a farmer who is satisfied that his farm could be made to pay more, but who is in the dark as to how to make it do so, we will instruct him for one year what to do to increase his profits. In this case, of course, the farmer must agree to foot the bills and follow our instructions to the letter."

The profits of Wisconsin farmers could be increased more than 50 per cent under the new system, according to Mr. Otis, and there is no reason why every farmer should not give the required information.

"I think the plan will be indorsed generally by the farmers," said Mr. Otis.

PEARS ON MOUNTAIN ASH

Wizard Gardner of Marinette Astonishes Guests With Horticultural and Landscape Freaks.

Marinette.—Martin Pederson, 727 Menckauene avenue, Marinette, earned a reputation in the twin cities as a wizard gardener. Many Menominee and Marinette people have visited him to see the curiosity of pears growing in a mountain ash tree.

MAYOR HORLICK A REGENT

Appointed to State University Board by Governor. Came as a Surprise.

Madison.—Gov. Davidson appointed Mayor A. J. Horlick of Racine to be regent of the state university for the first district in place of Pliny Norcross, resigned.

The appointment of Mr. Horlick came as a surprise to him as he had no previous intimation that he was to be chosen. Mr. Norcross had tendered his resignation, in preparation, it is said, to departure for the winter to a southern climate, and Gov. Davidson, after a survey of the field, determined that Mr. Horlick was especially well equipped for the position.

Mayor Horlick will accept the appointment and after the expiration of his term as mayor next spring will devote much of his time to his duties as regent.

Gov. Davidson appointed Harry G. Bell to be municipal justice of the second court of Lincoln county to fill a vacancy resulting from the action of the circuit court of Lincoln county in ousting him from the office.

Mr. Bell was city attorney of Tomahawk and at the April election was elected judge of the municipal court. He was reappointed to the office of city attorney and was therefore holding the two offices. Complaint was made and the case was taken into the circuit court and that tribunal determined that he could not at the same time be city attorney and municipal judge and it was ordered that he vacate the latter office. He did so, thus creating a vacancy. Then he resigned the office of city attorney and now is again incumbent of the better office by action of Gov. Davidson.

CLARENCE HAS A TYPIST

Young Dietz Engages Stenographer and Sends Out Letters for Defense Fund.

Milwaukee.—Clarence Dietz now has a stenographer in the headquarters established to collect funds for the defense of the Dietz family, and letters are being sent out. Contributions are coming in satisfactorily, said the son of the Cameron dam defender. He has received word that the condition of Myra, his sister, is more serious and may necessitate an operation. W. C. Zabel, member of the firm of attorneys which is defending John F. Dietz, was in Hayward in the interests of the defense.

At a meeting of the Dietz defense fund committee, held in Freie Gemeinde hall, $157.05, which has been collected during the last week, was turned over to John Reichert, treasurer. This will be placed on account with $558.83 already raised. It was decided to canvass Milwaukee and Wisconsin by sending circulars giving a short history of the case to every telephone subscriber in the state.

Every one who subscribes will be given a receipt signed by Clarence Dietz.

HOLD CHURCH CONFERENCE

State Meet of Many Denominations at Madison to Consider Religious and Social Work.

Madison.—A state interdenominational conference, for the discussion of national, state and local co-operation in religious and social work, will be held in Madison on Dec. 5 to 7, under the auspices of the Wisconsin Federation of Churches. Five hundred delegates are expected.

The churches represented are the Baptist, Methodist Episcopal, Congregational, Free Methodist, German Methodist, United Brethren and Presbyterian. These have been federated with a committee of adjudication which determines the location of new churches with the purpose of adopting all the religious forces to the needs of the state.

This is the third interstate interdenominational conference to be held in the United States.

55 Divorces in Pacific.

VOTERS TO PASS ON THREE AMENDMENTS

COSTITUTIONAL CHANGES ARE PROPOSED AT ELECTION THIS MONTH.

DOUBLE PAY OF LEGISLATORS

New Apportionment Method and Provision for Internal Improvements by State to Be Considered by Citizens.

Madison.—Three proposals to amend the constitution of Wisconsin will be submitted to the voters of the state on the ballot at the November election.

They are as follows:
No. 1—Relating to pay of members of the legislature.
No. 2—Relating to apportionment.
No. 3—Relating to internal improvements.

Amendment No. 1 provides for the amendment of section 21 of article 4, raising the pay of members of the legislature from $500 to $1,000 per annum. The original constitutional provision was for the payment of members of the legislature, senators and assemblymen, at the rate of $2.50 per day for each day's attendance during the session and ten cents per mile for every mile he shall travel in going to and returning from the place of meeting.

That was the provision until 1881 when the constitution was amended by making the sessions of the legislature biennial instead of annual and fixing the compensation of members at $500 for the biennial term with the original provision for mileage. From that time the compensation of members has remained as so fixed.

The purpose of amendment No. 2 is really to provide a way to abandon the state census and accept the decennial census of the national government as the basis of apportionment of members of the legislature. The proposal now submitted will require an apportionment only once in ten years. The amendment submitted on the ballot is as follows:

"Section 3. At their first session after each enumeration made by the authority of the United States, the legislature shall apportion and district anew the members of the senate and assembly, according to the number of inhabitants, excluding Indians not taxed, soldiers and officers of the United States army and navy."

The third proposition to be submitted is for the purpose of permitting the legislature to appropriate money for certain specified internal improvements now forbidden by the fundamental law.

The constitution now provides that the state shall never contract any debt for works of internal improvement or be a party in carrying on such works. The legislature, having in mind the conservation of natural resources, proposed an amendment which will do away with this obstacle as it relates at least to the class of internal improvements or betterment.

"Provided that the state may appropriate moneys for the purpose of acquiring, preserving and developing the water power and the forests of the state; but there shall not be appropriated under the authority of this section in any one year an amount to exceed two-tenths of one mill of the taxable property of the state as determined by the last preceding state assessment."

These amendments all are submitted on the big ballot for the November election and must be voted for separately by "yes" or "no" in squares printed on the ballot for that purpose.

UNIVERSITY TO PAY LESS

In Condemnation Suit for Land Jury Reduces Amount First Awarded.

Madison.—The university regents defeated the English Lutheran congregation in a jury trial on the condemnation of the property which the congregation bought at Park street and University avenue. The jury fixed the value of the property at $16,500. The congregation paid $15,000 for it and the regents brought condemnation proceedings in the county court. The price fixed in that suit was $18,500. Both sides appealed. The retrial in the circuit court resulted in fixing the value at $16,500, or $2,000 less than in the county court.

Sheboygan Plans to Awaken City.

Sheboygan.—A new movement has started here, to be known as the "People's Sunday Afternoons," similar to the union movement for moral, spiritual and social uplift in Rochester, N. Y. Non-sectarian meetings of Christian character are to be held at 4 o'clock each Sunday afternoon. Abundant high grade music will be featured, there will be addresses on religious, social and general improvement lines, dramatic readings and other features. People of all churches and no churches are appealed to unite and awaken a city spirit.

Sell Car Line at Auction.

Janesville.—The Janesville Street Railway company property was sold at public auction to satisfy outstanding obligations amounting to $175,000. Attorney T. S. Nolan, representing the bondholders, bid it in for $125,000, subject to receivers' certificates amounting to $10,000. The receiver, W. H. Lemons of Rockford and Supt. William Murphy of Janesville, were authorized by the court some time ago to borrow $10,000 to be used in fitting out the system with new rails, wiring and poles.

BADGER BOARD SELECTIONS

Walter Buschen Elected Chairman of 1912 Badger Supervisory Committee.

Madison.—The tentative appointment of twenty-five members to the 1912 Badger board, in addition to the seven appointed last spring; the adoption of a system of apprenticeship for sophomores with aspirations for Badger positions next year, and the election of Walter Buschen as chairman of the 1912 Badger supervisory committee, were the principal features of the committee's meeting with the general chairman, Morris Mitchell.

The entire Badger board as tentatively appointed is:
Literary committee—R. K. Ballard and H. H. Barker, joint chairmen; W. E. Farnham, W. K. Braasch, G. W. Dresbach, Elizabeth D. Perry, Ada Hopkins and Merle Pierson.
Art committee—(No chairman)—Miss Hattie J. Wakeman, Arthur C. Runzler, Harold S. Crosby and Werner P. Wolf.

Illustrating committee—W. L. McKillopp, chairman; Mildred Carson, W. J. Meuer, Frank Jenks and Flint H. Jones.

The following committee chairmen were tentatively appointed:
Faculty and regents—George D. Bailey; classes—Hal Kadish; platform—Pete C. Kolinsky; press—Marc C. Boguslewsky; drama—Harry J. Meissner; music—Joe Mercer; military—Lewis K. Wilson; society—William K. Sullivan; major athletics—C. E. Howard; minor athletics—F. M. Cardenas; girls' athletics—Bertha Kitchell; fraternities—Bryan S. Reid; sororities—Mary M. W. Bunnell; societies—Dana J. Hogan, and clubs—Edwin C. Austin.

GIVES MISSIONARIES CREDIT

Wisconsin Professor Declares Them Largely Responsible for China's Moral and Social Progress.

Madison.—In an address recently, Prof. Edward A. Ross, sociologist of the University of Wisconsin, who recently returned from a trip to China, said: "China would not be anywhere near her present condition of moral uplift and social progress were it not for the steady and patient labors of the missionaries."

"The trans-continental railroad construction of China will have an ill effect upon the import trade of the empire is my firm belief," said Prof. Ross. "The acquisition of cheap transportation will open up a wide area of what fields in the interior provinces. The coast cities, which are now importing a large per cent of their wheat and flour, will be able to draw from the interior, and the price of flour, which is now about one cent a pound, will be reduced materially."

LA FOLLETTE IS HOME

Returns From Rochester, Minn., After Operation and Goes to His Farm.

Madison.—Senator Robert M. La Follette, accompanied by his wife, has arrived home from Rochester, Minn., where he recently underwent an operation for gall stones.

He stood the trip well and said when alighting from the train that he was feeling well.

He was met at the train by Dr. Phillip Fox, his family physician, and driven to his farm home at Maple Bluff. He will remain there while recuperating, and if he follows the advice of his physicians will not do any work.

ENDOWS MEMORIAL HOME

Edwin Rutledge, Chippewa Falls, to Establish Home for Aged in Wife's Memory.

Chippewa Falls.—Articles of incorporation have been filed at Madison with the secretary of state for the Hannah M. Rutledge Home for the Aged in this city. The founder of the home is Edwin Rutledge, the miller vire lumber king of this city and partner and friend of Frederick Weyerhaeuser. The founder is establishing the home as a memorial to his wife, Hannah M. Rutledge, who died last October. Mr. Rutledge is 76 years of age and has been in poor health the past five years.

Mr. Rutledge will endow this memorial home for the aged with $2,500,000. He plans to make it a permanent institution. It is also reported that he intends to make his home on West Grand avenue the nucleus of the home.

Badger Girl a Candidate.

Oshkosh.—Miss Kate Gordon, daughter of the late Dr. W. A. Gordon, for many years superintendent of the northern Wisconsin hospital for the insane, is a candidate for superintendent of schools on the Republican ticket in Monroe county, Col.

Although young, she has made a brilliant record as an educator and scientist, both in America and abroad.

By the death, in rapid succession, of her mother, brother and father, she has been thrown on her resources and her success therefore is the more to be commended.

Students Adopt Platform.

Madison.—Not to allow themselves to be outdone by the two great national parties, the representative student party ticket of the junior class has adopted a platform which it promises to carry out in case of election. The party pledges itself to assist freshmen athletics by appointing a committee to look after their scholastic work. It also asks that a uniform system of conducting elections be adopted by the student conference and to discourage smokers as inducements offered by candidates for election.

WRONG IN THAT DIAGNOSIS.

Physician's Method May Have Been All Right, but Here He Was at Fault.

We are told that the latest sensation in the medical world is the assertion of a doctor that he is able, by looking into a patient's eye, to make an accurate diagnosis of the complaint which the patient is suffering. But is this really as novel as it is supposed to be? I recollect hearing some time ago of a doctor who said to a patient who was under examination: "I can see by the appearance of your right eye what the matter with you. You are suffering from 'liver.'"

"My right eye?" asked the patient. "Yes," returned the doctor. "It shows me plainly that your liver is out of order."

"Excuse me, doctor," said the patient, apologetically. "My right eye is a glass one."

Why the Boy Gave Thanks.

Alan had played the entire day with little brother without an impatient word. After saying his customary prayer that night, his mother suggested that he add: "I thank God I was not impatient with little brother to-day." This he did with much fervency; after which he remarked that there were some other things he would like to thank God for, and forthwith he closed his eyes and said: "I thank God I offered my candy to father before taking any myself."

"I thank God I offered my candy to mother before taking any myself."

"I thank God I offered my candy to little brother before taking any myself."

"And I thank God there was some left."—Lippincott's.

Lovemaking and Practice.

The only way to become an expert at lovemaking is to practice. This was the information handed out to a handful of hearers by the Hindu philosopher, Sakharan Ganes Pandit, in a lecture on "The Science of Love."

"Love is a divine discontent," said the philosopher, "and if you want to arouse love in others it can be done only by giving them love. How to develop the emotion of love in another is the great question of today—the art of making love. It needs a great deal of study and a great deal of practice."

Not Easy.

Pat was a married man—a very much married man. He had married no fewer than four times, and all his wives were still in the fore. According to Pat's own account before the court where he was tried for bigamy and found guilty, his experiences were not altogether satisfactory. The judge, in passing sentence, expressed his wonder that the prisoner could be such a hardened villain as to delude so many women.

"Yer honor," said Pat, apologetically. "I was only tryin' to get a good one, an' it's not easy!"—Lippincott's Magazine.

Deserved the Shoes.

The weary wayfarer leaned over the fence and watched the housewife doing her chores.

"Ah, lady," he said, tipping his hat. "I used to be a professional humorist. If I tell you a funny story will you give me an old pair of shoes?"

"Well, that depends," responded the busy housewife; "you must remember that brevity is the soul of wit."

"Yes, mum, I remember that, and brevity is the sole on each of me shoes mum."

Getting a Reputation.

There is a desk in the senate particularly convenient as a place from which to make speeches. It is next to the aisle and almost in the center of the chamber, and affords an opportunity for the speaker to make everybody hear.

At least a dozen senators, according to the Washington correspondent of the St. Louis Star, have borrowed this desk when they had special utterances to deliver to the senate. This led, not long ago, to a mild protest from its legitimate occupant.

"I am perfectly willing to give up my desk," said he, "but I am afraid people will think that the same man is talking all the time. I don't want to get the reputation of constantly filling the senate with words."—Youth's Companion.

AFTER SUFFERING ONE YEAR

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Milwaukee, Wis.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me a well woman, and I would like to tell the whole world of it. I suffered from female trouble and fearful pains in my back. I had the best doctors and they all decided that I had a tumor in addition to my female trouble, and advised an operation. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman and I have no more backache. I hope I can help others by telling them what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. EMMA IMSE, 833 First St., Milwaukee, Wis.

The above is only one of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which prove beyond a doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, actually does cure these obstinate diseases of women after all other means have failed, and that every such suffering woman owes it to herself to at least give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation, or giving up hope of recovery.

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health and her advice is free.

Weak Heart

Many people suffer from weak hearts. They may experience shortness of breath on exertion, pain over the heart, or dizzy feelings, oppressed breathing after meals or their eyes become blurred, their heart is not sufficiently strong to pump blood to the extremities, and they have cold hands and feet, or poor appetite because of weakened blood supply to the stomach. A heart tonic and restorative should be taken which has no bad after-effect. Such is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which contains no dangerous narcotics or alcohol.

The ingredients, as attested under oath, are Stone root (Collinsonia Canadensis), Bloodroot (Sanguinaria Canadensis), Golden Seal root (Hydrastis Canadensis), Queen's root (Stillingia Sylvatica), Black Cherry bark (Prunus Virginiana), Mandrake root (Podophyllum Peltatum), with triple refined glycerine, prepared in a scientific laboratory in a way that no druggist could imitate.

This tonic contains no alcohol to shrink up the red blood corpuscles; but, on the other hand, it increases their number and they become round and healthy. It helps the human system in the constant manufacture of rich, red blood. It helps the stomach to assimilate or take up the proper elements from the food, thereby helping digestion and curing dyspepsia, heart-burn and other troubles; fortifies symptoms, stops excessive tissue waste in all cases, and restores vitality for the run-down, anemic, thin-blooded people, the "Discovery" is refreshing and vitalizing. Stick to this safe and sane remedy, and refuse all "just as good" medicines offered by the druggist who is looking for a larger profit. Nothing but Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will do you half as much good.

TELLS OF VETERANS

Col. J. A. Watrous Writes of Wisconsin War Officers.

Incidents of 50 Years Ago Recalled and Names of Many Men Who Took Active Part in Electing Abraham Lincoln.

There are many in Wisconsin who can easily fix their eyes and minds upon scenes and incidents in Wisconsin of 50 years ago and recall many of the men who took an active part in the political campaign which made Abraham Lincoln president.

Without going into details, I want to present the names and the work of some of those men, as well as some who had a part in opposing Mr. Lincoln's election, writes Col. J. A. Watrous in an exchange. If a military tint is given, I am sure that not many will find fault.

Within five years from that eventful year for the American republic, Wisconsin had sent 91,000 to take part in the most memorable of civil wars. I wish it were possible to mention, if no more than by name, all in that Wisconsin contribution to the country, who deserve it. It would mean many thousands of names, and if the stories of their good service, of their heroism, were added, the product would fill many books. As that cannot be done, I must content myself with a mention of Wisconsin's commanders of regiments and batteries. The thought of such a task brings up a flood of memories. Who were the commanders? What of them?

John C. Starkweather of Milwaukee went out with the First Wisconsin, both when it was a three months' and a three years' regiment. George B. Brigham of Milwaukee became the colonel when Starkweather was made a brigadier general.

S. Park Coon, a Milwaukee lawyer, Wisconsin's second attorney general, was the first colonel of the Second regiment. His successors were Edgar O'Connor, Lucius Fairchild and John Mansfield. O'Connor was killed in battle and Fairchild and Mansfield were wounded at Gettysburg.

Charles S. Hamilton was the Third's first colonel. Thomas H. Roger second and William Hawley the third. Hamilton and Roger became major generals and Hawley a brevet brigadier. Hamilton and Roger were West Pointers. All served in the regulars. Roger was one of Wisconsin's four major generals of the regular army; John P. Story, George M. Randall and Arthur MacArthur, afterward promoted to lieutenant general, being the others.

Amasa Cobb was the Fifth's first colonel and Thomas S. Allen the second. Cobb was a Wisconsin congressman eight year and chief justice of Nebraska. Allen was one of Wisconsin's best soldiers and secretary of state for four years.

The Sixth's first colonel was Lyander Cutler, Edward S. Bragg the second, Rufus R. Dawes the third and John A. Kellogg the fourth. All became generals. Bragg, 83 past, is the only one living. Cutler was breveted a major general of volunteers. Joseph Vandor, W. W. Robinson, Mark Finnicum and Hollon Richardson were colonels of the Seventh. Finnicum lives at Paris, Tenn., and Richardson at Seattle, Wash.

R. C. Murphy, George W. Robbins, John W. Jefferson and W. B. Britton were colonels of the Eighth. Britton is a resident of Janesville.

Frederick Salomon, Charles E. Salomon and Arthur Jacob were the Ninth's colonels. All are dead. The Salomons were brothers of Gov. Edward Salomon. Frederick was breveted a major general.

The Tenth had three colonels, A. R. Chapin, John G. McMynn and Duncan McKeercher. All are dead.

The Eleventh had but one colonel—Charles L. Harris, who was breveted a brigadier and resides at Omaha, Neb.

The Twelfth had George E. Bryant, recently dead, and James K. Proudft, who lives at Kansas City. Both were breveted brigadiers. Gen. Proudft was the first department commander of the Wisconsin G. A. R.

The Thirteenth had three colonels, Maurice Maloney, a captain of regulars; William P. Lyon and A. H. Kummel. Gen. Lyon was chief justice for many years, a member of the board of control and now resides in California, past 84.

The Fourteenth's were Col. David E. Wood, John Hancock and Lyman M. Ward. Wood died in 1862 and Hancock 19 years ago. Gen. Ward died last year.

Hans C. Heg and Ole C. Johnson were colonels of the Fifteenth, the Norwegian regiment. Heg was killed in battle and Johnson died 24 years ago.

Benjamin Allen and Cassius Fairchild were colonels of the Sixteenth. Both are dead. John L. Doran and A. G. Mallory led the Seventeenth. Doran died long ago and Gen. Mallory lives in Texas. Col. J. S. Alban, Gabriel Bouck and Charles H. Jackson were of the Eighteenth. Bouck died five years ago and Jackson several years ago.

Horace T. Sanders, a former state senator from Racine, and Samuel K. Vaughan of Portage were colonels of the Nineteenth. Both are dead.

Col. Bertine Pinkney, a state senator for Fond du Lac, and Henry Bertram of Dodge county, both dead, commanded the Twentieth. Bertram commanded a brigade most of the time he was in service.

Benjamin J. Sweet and Harrison C. Hobart were colonels of the Twenty-first. Both have served in the state senate, both served in other regiments before going to the Twenty-first; both became brigadiers; both were from Calumet county. Gen. Sweet died 25 years ago and Gen. Hobart eight years ago.

William Utley of Racine, a former state senator and adjutant general, was the Twenty-second's first colonel, and Edward Bloodgood, the second. Gen. Utley died some years ago. Col. Bloodgood resides in Milwaukee. He served in the regular army after the war, reaching the rank of captain.

The late judge Joshua J. Guppy of Portage was the only colonel of the Twenty-third had. The late Senator W. F. Vilas was lieutenant colonel of the Twenty-third.

The Twenty-fourth had Col. Charles H. Larrabee, a former circuit judge and congressman from Dodge county; Theodore S. West and Arthur MacArthur, though the latter did not muster as such.

Milton Montgomery of Sparta was the only colonel of the Twenty-fifth had. He lost an arm and died at Omaha a few years ago. The late Gov. Rusk was lieutenant colonel of the Twenty-fifth.

W. H. Jacobs and Fred C. Winkler were colonels of the Twenty-sixth, a German regiment. Gen. Winkler commanded a brigade most of the time the last two years of the war and is still one of Milwaukee's good citizens.

Conrad Krez was the Twenty-seventh's only colonel. He was city attorney, assemblyman and collector of customs, dying 15 years ago.

Dr. J. M. Lewis and E. B. Gray were colonels of the Twenty-eighth. Col. Gray was an educator of distinction and had a large experience with the Grand Army.

Charles A. Gill, state senator, attorney general and United States pension commissioner; William A. Green and Bradford Hancock were colonels of the Twenty-ninth. All are dead.

Daniel J. Dill was colonel of the Thirtieth. He is a resident of Prescott, where he has resided for more than 50 years.

Isaac E. Messmore, F. H. West and George D. Rogers were colonels of the Thirty-first. Gen. West was United States marshal of the eastern district under President Cleveland. He died 13 years ago. Col. Rogers, the only survivor, resides at Minneapolis.

James H. Howe, a former attorney general, and C. H. de Groat were the colonels of the Thirty-second. Gen. de Groat died six years ago and Col. Howe 24 years ago.

Jonathan H. Moore was the only colonel of the Thirty-fourth.

Fritz Annecke was colonel of the Thirty-fourth, made up of drafted men.

The colonels of the Thirty-fifth were Henry Orff and George H. Walters.

The Thirty-sixth had for colonels Frank A. Haskell, John A. Savage, Harvey M. Brown and Clement E. Warner. Haskell and Savage were killed in battle, Warner lost an arm and Brown was severely wounded. All dead but Warner, who resides at Windsor, Dane county.

Gen. Samuel Harriman and John Green were colonels of the Thirty-seventh. Dead.

Gen. James Bittif and C. K. Pier were colonels of the Thirty-eighth. Dead.

E. L. Bittrick was colonel of the Thirty-ninth, W. A. Ray of the Fortieth, George B. Goodwin of the Forty-first. All are dead.

Ezra T. Sprague was colonel of the Forty-second. Amasa Cobb of the Forty-third, George G. Symes of the Forty-fourth, Henry F. Beltz of the forty-fifth, Fred S. Lovell, Forty-sixth; George G. Ginty of the Forty-seventh, all of whom are dead.

Gen. N. B. Pearsall and Henry Shears were colonels of the Forty-eighth, now dead. Gen. Bishop Samuel Fallows was colonel of the Forty-ninth.

Col. John G. Clark, a Lancaster lawyer, was colonel of the Fiftieth; Leonard Martin of the Fifty-first. He died soon after the war. W. C. Webb was colonel of the Fifty-second and D. C. Johnson of the Fifty-third.

The colonels of the First cavalry were Edward Daniels and Oscar H.

La Grange. Daniels is dead. The colonels of the Second cavalry were C. C. Washburn, ten years in congress and one term governor; Thomas Stephens and N. H. Dahl.

Gov. W. A. Barstow and Thomas Derry were colonels of the Third cavalry.

The Fourth cavalry had six different colonels—Halbert E. Paine, S. A. Jean, F. A. Boardman, Joseph Bailey, Webster P. Moore and Nelson F. Craige. Moore and Craige are still living.

The only colonel of the First heavy artillery regiment was Col. C. C. Messervy, a former Milwaukee newspaper man, who is dead.

Only a dozen of the 108 colonels of Wisconsin regiments are still living. Of the 91,000 soldiers and sailors who responded from Wisconsin, it is safe to say that not exceeding 20,000 are living, and a majority of these reside in other states. There still live in Wisconsin about 20,000 veterans of the war, and in their ranks are men from all of the north and some of the southern states.

Where were these men who led batteries, regiments, brigades and divisions in the big war of 1860—half a century ago, and who were they? Some of them were then known for their service to the state and nation, but most of them were comparatively unknown outside of their own cities, villages and neighborhoods. Some of them were in school, some teachers, a number on farms, in law offices; some were merchants or clerks, but all were more or less marked men where they lived, showed evidence of fitness for the leadership which they afterward displayed in commanding as good soldiers as ever enlisted. Most of them were leaders on one side or the other in that never to be forgotten presidential campaign of 50 years ago, when the four candidates were Abraham Lincoln, Stephen A. Douglas, John C. Breckenridge and John Bell.

Those were days of intense excitement—the days of that campaign; days of smashing things. And from the day after election until the final smashing of the confederacy under an apple tree at Appomattox, there was no lack of excitement. The like was not to be repeated in this country.

AN OFFER OF CEMETERY LOTS

Circular Gives Mr. Glimmerton a Little Jolt, But He Is Going to Think It Over.

"In the midst of life we are in death, I know," said Mr. Glimmerton, "and yet it does jog me a little to get this circular from a cemetery offering lots for sale.

"We know we've got to go some time, but we really don't expect to go soon. Building lots we might have some use for; but burial lots! Well, we don't expect to be buried right away.

"At the same time here is a proposition to sell me a burial plot at a moderate price and on favorable terms. I might want it some day; most people do have need for such a place sooner or later. Several hundred people in New York die every week; all have to be buried somewhere. I wonder sometimes where they all are buried. Big as the cemeteries are you'd think that by this time they must be pretty nearly filled, so that it would be impossible to buy a good plot in them at a moderate price. And that in fact is just what this circular that I'm speaking of, of the new cemetery, sets forth.

"It comes to me this morning by mail along with the letters and with the circulars about soap and coffee and millinery and that sort of thing, all quite in the usual way, and though it is quite different from all these it is businesslike and straightforward throughout.

"It does give me a little jolt because it offers me an opportunity to buy a place to be buried in. And yet I really don't know why it shouldn't do that, and I guess I shall have to think it over, take the proposition under consideration. Maybe I shall not buy a lot right away because I don't really expect to die soon; don't you know how it is always the other fellow we think is going to die and not ourselves? But I like the way the proposition is put and I shall keep this cemetery in mind.

"We don't buy cemetery lots as we do soap and coffee and millinery, but we've all got to have one some time."

He Only Got Car Fare.

"I understand that a pickpocket went through you on your way home from work last pay day?"

"Yes."

"Gee! That was tough luck!"

"Yes, but the joke was on the pickpocket, my wife had called at the office."

A Biased Opinion.

"Do you think buttermilk will prolong one's life, Colonel Soakaby?"

"Ahem! I have no doubt, Miss Plummer, that if a person had to drink buttermilk every day it would make life seem longer."

SWELLING THE HOTEL BILL

Hotel Keeper's Method of Taxing Traveler Had at Least the Method of Novelty.

One of the things which help swell the traveler's expenses, both in this country and abroad, is the "extra." It may or may not be charged in the bill, but it is sure to be paid for. Probably even the most generous traveler, however, will have some sympathy for the gentleman in the following story who was made to pay liberally for a certain annoying privilege.

During his stay at the hotel the weather had been very hot. "Charles," said the landlord to the clerk who was making out the bill to be presented to the departing guest, "have you noticed that the gentleman in number seven has consulted the thermometer on the piazza at least ten times every morning during his stay here?"

Charles replied that he had. "Well," said the landlord, "charge him the price of one dinner a day for the use of the thermometer."—Youth's Companion.

AWFUL BURNING ITCH CURED IN A DAY

"In the middle of the night of March 30th I woke up with a burning itch in my two hands and I felt as if I could pull them apart. In the morning the itching had gone to my chest and during that day it spread all over my body. I was red and raw from the top of my head to the soles of my feet and I was in continual agony from the itching. I could neither lie down nor sit up. I happened to see about Cuticura Remedies, and I thought I would give them a trial. I took a good bath with the Cuticura Soap and used the Cuticura Ointment. I put it on from my head down to my feet and then went to bed. On the first of April I felt like a new man. The itching was almost gone. I continued with the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment and during that day the itching completely left me. Frank Gridley, 325 East 43rd Street, New York City, Apr. 27, 1909." Cuticura Remedies are sold throughout the world; Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props, Boston, Mass.

Mutual Expectations.

A notoriously close-fisted man was taking his golfing holiday in Scotland, where he hoped to improve his game, and by driving a hard bargain, had managed to secure the exclusive services of a first-class caddy, who was known to be a very good player. "Mind, now," said the ambitious southerner, "I expect to receive some really good tips from you during my stay here, you understand?" "Aye," replied the Scotsman, hitching up the heavy bag, "an' Ah'm expectin' the like frae ye, ye ken."—Golf Illustrated.

"As to how?"

"I'd have her look after my touring car."

All About It.

To appreciate fully this scrap of dialogue quoted from London Punch, one should see the two odd characters engaged in it. Apparently they parted satisfied, one that he had imparted some real information, the other that he had received some. Said one man: "D'you recollect old wot's-is-name?" "Im' with the collar?" "Aye!" "Wot about 'im?" "E'ad to go down"—jerk of the head—"you know—they give im wot you call it—didn't arf git it, I don't think!" "Reely!" "Adn't you 'eard, then?" "I did 'ear somefink, but no details, not afore now."—Youth's Companion.

OUR POSITION CONFIRMED

Progress vs. Reaction, the Issue in this District.

M. E. Burke, Democratic Nominee, Represents Progress

The standpat Republican candidate for Congressman from this Congressional district has issued a platform upon which he pretends to stand in this campaign. This platform does not contain anything, nor has any statement been issued, which in any manner denies the facts concerning this Republican candidate as published in an article by us on the congressional situation that appeared in our issue of September 30th.

At that time we asserted, as the fact is, that the Republican candidate for Congressman has always been opposed to the progressive movement in the state, and has always fought the progressives even within his own party. Silence now as to his past record admits the facts as published. But even if there should be a denial by him it would be of little consequence; because here in Washington County, where he resides, he is known to have always been a pronounced and at times a very bitter factionist of the stalwart or standpat persuasion.

The platform now given out is a complete contradiction of everything which he has said and done politically in the past. The platform did not appear until after the primary election and then not until with in a very short time before the general election. While the primary contest was on in this state between the progressives on one side, and the Cannon forces under the leadership of W. D. Connor on the other side, our Republican candidate for congressman remained supremely silent. That the platform as now constructed is the product of an over ruling passion for office and not the result of honest convictions on public questions is too apparent to admit of doubt.

In our previous article we contended that there is no argument whatever or even a respectable pretense or excuse to be offered in favor of the Republican candidate. That conclusion is not only warranted by his political course in the past but it finds justification in the incidents which have arisen since his nomination. His ludicrous antics as a political opportunist in his desire to get office are extremely amusing; and he has thereby made himself too ridiculous to merit serious consideration by any one whether he believes in progressive legislation or not.

The Republican candidate has by his own acts insured and made necessary his own defeat. How can you, conservative Republicans who have stood your ground in politics because of your convictions, approve of this affront to your intelligence and integrity? You may not agree with Mr. Burke, the Democratic nominee, on the policies for which he as a progressive Democrat has always stood and fought. His sincerity and consistency must, however, merit your respect; while the hypocrisy of the man nominated upon your ticket deserves nothing more than your contempt. No Progressive Candidate for Congressman from this district, because it will not be safe to trust him to act upon progressive measures.

Mr. Burke, the Democratic nominee seems certain of election. His Republican opponent has forfeited the respect of his stalwart associates; the progressives will not take a chance and vote for him because they know they cannot trust him. Democrats are opposed to him on fundamental principles; and the district has no use for him in Congress. But let us make the victory decisive. Roll up a victory for the Democratic candidate of such proportions that sham, hypocrisy and deceit will never dare to show themselves again in the politics of the Sixth Congressional District.—The Hartford times.

FOR THE Stomach's Sake
You are particular about the kind of food you place in your stomach. Are you equally careful about what you drink?
Many people are not. They forget that the burden is upon the stomach in both cases.

Drink Lithia Beer
A pure beer is the most healthful beverage obtainable, and Lithia beer is strictly pure. We use the choicest materials to be had and all our products are well aged before leaving the brewery.
