CUPID IS KEPT BUSY
 The Past Week was a Busy Week for Cupid. One Wedding in This Village and One at St. Kilian
WELL KNOWN AND POPULAR
 Miss Minnie Beisbier Wedded to Frank Fleischman in this Village and Miss Adelaide Straub Bride of Joseph Opgenorth. Married at St. Kilian
STRAUB-OPGENORTH
 A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Kilian last Tuesday morning, when Rev. Father Falbisoner performed the marriage ceremony of Miss Adelaide Straub of St. Kilian and Joseph Opgenorth of this village.
 The bride was attired in a white crepe de chine gown, wore a veil and carried a prayer book. Miss Rose Straub, a sister of the bride was bridesmaid and wore a pretty gown of silk and carried a bouquet of white flowers. Opgenorth, brother of the groom, acted as bestman.
 After the ceremony the bridal party repaired to the home of the bride's parents where a wedding dinner was served, only the nearest relatives being present.
 The young couple left on the evening train from this village for a honeymoon trip to Utah and Oklahoma.
 The bride, who is the second oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Casper Straub of St. Kilian is a most charming young lady. She is one of the most popular young ladies of St. Kilian. She has always lived in that vicinity and has a large host of friends. She is also well known in this community.
 The groom, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Opgenorth of this village, is a very industrious young man. He at the present time holds a very responsible position with the C. & N. W. R. R., having charge of the second track work at the local station.
 Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Opgenorth will be at home to their many friends in the former Edw. Miller residence on Fond du Lac Ave., in this village after July 1st.
 The Statesman together with its many readers extends to the happy couple its congratulations and wish them a very happy and prosperous married life.

BEISBIER-FLEISCHMAN
 At the Holy Trinity church last Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock Rev. Ph. Vogt pronounced the words that made two hearts beat as one. The young people, who enlisted in each others' happiness were Miss Minnie Beisbier of this village and Frank Fleischmann of Ashford.
 The bride who was prettily gowned in a white silk dress with embroidered net and carried a bouquet of sweet peas and lilies of the valley, was attended by her sister, Miss Gretchen Beisbier as maid of honor, who was attired in a flowered silk mull and carried a bouquet of yellow tea roses. Peter Greiten of Grafton acted as bestman. Miss Josephine Ulrich, a niece of the groom, and Master Herbert Beisbier, a brother of the bride, both carried bouquets of carnations.
 After the ceremony the bridal party repaired to the home of the bride's parents, where a sumptuous wedding breakfast was awaiting them. The reception was attended by only the nearest relatives. The house was very beautifully decorated with greens and in white.
 The newly weds boarded the 8:28 P. M. train here in the evening for a short wedding trip to Duluth, Minn., and the Dells. They expect to return some time next week and will then go to house-keeping on the groom's farm near St. Kilian.
 The bride, who is the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Math. Beisbier of this village, is a young lady of pleasing personality and charming manners. Her pleasant disposition and winning ways have made friends for her wherever she is known. She is very popular both among the young and old.
 The groom, who is a highly respected citizen of the town of Ashford, is a young man of courteous manners and good habits. He is also very popular.
 The newly married couple will make their future home at Ashford. The Statesman together with their many friends extend to them all the best wishes for success and happiness in their married life.

Raccoons to be Protected.
 A bill has been introduced for the protection of raccoons. What is more it has been passed and gone to Gov. McGovern for his signature. The bill provides that no one can disturb any "coon" trees for the purpose of hunting the animals, except under the direction of the game warden. Just what the game warden is to do unless it be to say "when" is not stated in the bill.
 Bonano will give you a clear eye, calm nerves, rosy cheeks and a feeling of "go". It makes red blood, an active brain and vigorous muscles.

PLAY IS WELL RECEIVED
 The Jack Trust Given in Groeschel's Hall Last Saturday Evening Well Received
FAIRLY WELL ATTENDED
 Attendance Not Very Large. Should Have Been Well Patronized
 The three act farce comedy, "The Jack Trust" given by the students of Ida Howie Walker's School of Dramatic Art, Milwaukee, assisted by Miss Priscilla Marx, Pianist, and Miss Lillie Schlosser, Soprano, at Groeschel's Opera House last week Saturday evening was a very pleasant event. The play was fairly well attended.
 The plot of the play was about how Lord Jack Townley, the Trust, who thinks himself irresistible, fell in love with a number of girls. The girls came to a hotel to claim him. It finally ended when an old lady who disguised herself and pretending to be deaf and dumb saved him as she appeared as his wife.
 Every one of the cast acted their parts in a most satisfactory manner. Their training in the dramatic art under Ida Howie Walker proved to be perfect.
 The piano solo given by Miss Priscilla Marx was well received by the audience. Miss Lillie Schlosser also entertained the audience with a vocal selection entitled "I used to believe in fairies."
 The Sacred Pantomime just before the close of the entertainment given by the Misses Adela Gottschalk, Irma Hake, Etta Teague and Gertrude Buckley was also very interesting.
 The dance after the entertainment was not so well attended, however, those who remained for same enjoyed themselves immensely. Music was furnished by Honcke's orchestra.
 That the play was well received by those in attendance can only be shown by the high praise given to Mrs. Ida Howie Walker for the splendid training she gives her students.
 Miss Adela Gottschalk of this village, who is one of the students gave a short reading entitled "He let her know." She often brought those in attendance to laughter. Miss Irma Hake another student, gave a very pleasing reading, "When the Folks am gone."

Game Wardens Make Arrests
 Game Wardens Gerhard and Johnson gave our lakes some attention last Monday and arrested six men at Cedar Lake for illegal fishing. One of the party had a snook bass in his possession while others had a fine mess of croppies or strawberry bass, which are protected by law until May 25. The game wardens were very lenient with the fishermen and prosecuted only two before Justice. Rix this morning and were fined twenty-five dollars and cost each.
 The game wardens visited the lakes on Sunday, they might have caught fifty fishermen doing illegal fishing, as many do not know that strawberry bass were protected and others thought it a farce to protect the one fish intended for spring fishing.—West Bend News.
 Deputy Game Warden H. Gruebner of Sheboygan was informed of game law violations in Washington county and went to Fillmore a few days ago and placed under arrest Erhardt Vork and Emil Seliger for illegal fishing in Lake Twelve, Sheboygan county. The warden also arrested John Mars and Herman J. Koehmpfer of Sheboygan county on the charge of dynamiting fish, and each was fined $25 and costs in court at Sheboygan last Friday.—West Bend Pilot.

THOUSANDS SEE FILMS IN HEALTH CRUSADE
 Anti-Tuberculosis Association's Picture Show Draws Big Crowds in Milwaukee—Will Tour State.
 Eleven thousand school children and their parents attended the moving picture shows and listened to the lectures of Dr. Harvey Dee Brown in the first two weeks of the big health crusade of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association in Milwaukee. The show will be kept in this city for four or five weeks, after which it will be sent on a tour of the state. Many requests of the show have been received from cities throughout the state, following the success of the Milwaukee exhibit. Officers of the association consider the show one of the most efficient educational factors in its work.
 It is probable that Dr. Brown will take the show to the state tuberculosis sanatorium at Waukesha on Decoration day, the patients having requested that the exhibit be given there.

 While not generally known, it is a fact that part of the new workmen's compensation act already has gone into effect. Immediately upon the signing of the bill by the governor, the provisions affecting any employees in state, county or municipal service, became operative. If such employees are injured in the course of their work they will receive compensation as provided by law; that is, 65 per cent of their wages will be paid while recovering from the injuries, or should they be killed the families or heirs will receive four years' wages.
 This section of the law regarding employees of cities, counties and villages, from that applying to general employees in that it is not necessary for the workers employed by the communities to elect whether they will or will not come under the law and it becomes operative immediately, instead of September 1.

SYNOPSIS.

James Wilson or Jimmy as he is called by his friends, Jimmy was rotund and looked shorter than he really was. His ambition in life was to be taken seriously, but people steadily refused to do so, his art is considered a huge joke, except to himself. If he asked people to dinner everyone expected a frolic. Jimmy marries Bella Knowles; they live together a year and are divorced. Jimmy's friends arrange to celebrate the first anniversary of his divorce. The party is in full swing when Jimmy receives a telegram from his Aunt Selina, who will arrive in four hours to visit him and his wife. He neglects to tell her of his divorce. Jimmy takes Kit into his confidence; he tries to devise some way so that his aunt will not learn that he has no longer a wife. He suggests that Kit play the hostess for one night, be Mrs. Wilson pro tem. Aunt Selina arrives and the deception works out as planned. Jim's Jap servant is taken ill. Bella, Jimmy's divorced wife, enters the house and asks Kit who is being taken away in the ambulance? Bella insists it is Jim. Kit tells her Jim is well and is in the house. Harbison steps out on the porch and discovers a man tacking a card on the door. He demands an explanation. The man points to the placard and Harbison sees the word "Smallpox" printed on it. He tells the guests he cannot leave the house until the quarantine is lifted. The guests suddenly realize their predicament; the women shed tears, the men consider it a good joke. The all important question arises as to who is to prepare the meals and perform the other household duties. Harbison finally solves the matter. After the lifting of the quarantine several letters are found in the mail box undelivered, one is addressed to Henry Lewellyn, Ingle, Chile, which was written by Harbison. He describes minutely of their incarceration, also of his infatuation for Mrs. Wilson. Aunt Selina is taken ill with a gripe. Betty acts as nurse. Harbison finds Kit sulking on the roof. She tells him that Jim has been treating her outrageously. Harbison fully believing that she is Mrs. Wilson, tells her that she doesn't mean the things she is saying about her husband. Kit starts downstairs, when suddenly she is grasped in the arms of a man who kisses her several times. She believes that Harbison is Jim and is humiliated. Aunt Selina tells Jimmy that her cameo, brooch and other articles of jewelry have been stolen. She accuses Betty of the theft. The following morning Jimmy was in a rage. The papers printed a story about the incarceration of the party, and that one of the guests had attempted to escape by means of laying a board across the roof to the adjoining house, but was frustrated by a detective who fired a revolver at him.

"I wish you would all go out," I said wearily. "If every man in the house says he didn't try to get over to the next roof last night, well and good. But you might look and see if the board is still lying where it fell."

There was an instantaneous rush for the window, and a second's pause. Then Jimmy's voice, incredulous, uttered:

"Well, I'll be—blessed! There's the board!"

I stayed in my room all that day. My head really ached and then, too, I did not care to meet Mr. Harbison. It would have to come; I realized that a meeting was inevitable, but I wanted time to think how I would meet him. It would be impossible to cut him, without rousing the curiosity of the others to fever pitch; and it was equally impossible to ignore the disgraceful episode on the stairs. As it happened, however, I need not have worried. I went down to dinner, languidly, when every one was seated, and found Max at my right, and Mr. Harbison moved over beside Bella. Every one was talking at once, for Flannigan, ambling around the table as airily as he walked his beat, had presented Bella with her bracelet on a salad plate, garnished with romaine. He had found it in the furnace room, he said, where she must have dropped it. And he looked at me stealthily, to approve his mendacity!

Every one was fascinated, and as they ate they discussed the board in the area-way, and pretended to deride it as a clever bit of press work, to revive a dying sensation. No one was deceived: Anne's pearls and the attempt at escape, coming just after, pointed only to one thing. I looked around the table, dazed. Flannigan, almost the only unknown quantity, might have tried to escape the night before, but he would not have been in dress clothes. Besides, he must be eliminated as far as the pearls were concerned, having been locked in the furnace room the night they were stolen. There was no one among the girls to suspect. The Mercer girls had stunning pearls, and could secure all they wanted legitimately; and Bella disliked them. Oh, there was no question about it. I decided: Dallas and Anne had taken a wolf to their bosom—or is it a viper?—and the Harbison man was the creature. Although I must say that, looking over the table, at Jimmy's breadth and not very imposing personality, at Max's lean length, sallow skin and bold dark eyes, at Dallas, blond, growing bald and florid, and then at the Harbison boy, tall, muscular, clear-eyed and sunburned, one would have taken Max at first choice as the villain, with Dal next, Jim third, and the Harbison boy not in the running.

It was just after dinner that the surprise was sprung on me. Mr. Harbison came around to me gravely, and asked me if I felt able to go up on the roof. On the roof, after last night! I had to gather myself together; luckily, the others were pushing back their chairs, showing Flannigan the liqueur glasses to take up, and lighting cigars.

"I do not care to go," I said telly.

"The others are coming," he persisted, "and I—l could give you an arm up the stairs."

"I believe you are good at that," I said, looking at him steadily. "Max, will you help me to the roof?"

Mr. Harbison really turned rather white. Then he bowed ceremoniously and left me.

Max got me a wrap, and every one except Mr. Harbison and Bella, who was taking a mass of indigestibles to Aunt Selina, went to the roof.

"Where is Tom?" Anne asked, as we reached the foot of the stairs. "Gone ahead to fix things," was the answer. But he was not there. At the top of the last flight I stopped, dumb with amazement; the roof had been transformed, enchanted. It was a fairy-land of lights and foliage and colors. I had to stop and rub my eyes. From the bleakness of a tin roof in February to the brightness and greenery of a July roof garden!

"You were the immediate inspiration," Dallas said. "Harbison thought your headache might come from lack of exercise and fresh air, and he has worked us like niggers all day. I've a blister on my right palm, and Harbison got shocked while he was wiring the place, and nearly fell over the parapet. We bought out two full-sized florists by telephone."

It was the most amazing transformation. At each corner a pole had been erected, and wire crossed the roof diagonally, hung with red and amber bulbs. Around the chimneys had been massed evergreen trees in tubs, hiding their brick-and-mortar ugliness, and among the trees tiny lights were strung. Along the parapet were rows of geometrical boxwood plants in bright red crocks, and the flaps of a crimson and white tent had been thrown open, showing lights within, and rugs, wicker chairs, and cushions.

Max raised a glass of benedictine and posed for a moment, melodramatically.

"To the Wilson roof garden!" he said. "To Kit, who inspired; to the creators, who perspired; and to Takahiro—may he not have expired?"

Every one was very gay; I think the knowledge that tomorrow Aunt Selina might be with them urged them to make the most of this last night of freedom. I tried to be jolly, and succeeded in being feverish. Mr. Harbison did not come up to enjoy what he had wrought. Jim brought up his guitar and sang love songs in a beautiful tenor, looking at Bella all the time. And Bella sat in a steamer chair, with a rug over her and a spangled veil on her head, looking at the boats on the river—about as soft and as chastened as an acetylene head light.

And after Max had told the most improbable tale, which Leila advised him to sprinkle salt on, and Dallas had done a clog dance, Bella said it was time for her complexion sleep and went downstairs, and broke up the party.

"If she only gave half as much care to her immortal soul," Anne said when she had gone, "as she does to her skin, she would let that nice Harbison boy alone. She must have been brutal to him tonight, for he went to bed at nine o'clock. At least, I suppose he went to bed, for he shut himself in the studio, and when I knocked he advised me not to come in."

I had pleaded my headache as an excuse for avoiding Aunt Selina all day, and she had not sent for me. Bella was really quite extraordinary. She was never in the habit of putting herself out for any one, and she always declared that the very odor of a sick-room drove her to Scotch and soda. But here she was, rubbing Aunt Selina's back with chloroform liniment—and you know how that smells—getting her up in a chair, dressed in one of Bella's wadded silk robes, with pillows under her feet, and then doing her hair in elaborate puffs—braiding her gray switch and bringing it, coronet-fashion, around the top of her head. She even put rice powder on Aunt Selina's nose and dabbed violet water behind her ears, and said she couldn't understand why she (Aunt Selina) had never married, but, of course, she probably would some day!

The result was, naturally, that the old lady wouldn't let Bella out of her sight, except to go to the kitchen for something to eat for her. That very day Bella got the doctor to order ale for Aunt Selina (oh, yes; the doctor could come in; Dal said "It was all a-coming in, and nothing going out") and she had three pints of Bass, and learned to eat anchovies and caviar—all in one day.

Bella's conduct to Jim was disgraceful. She snubbed him, ignored him, tramped on him, and Jim was growing positively flabby. He spent most of his time writing letters to the board of health and playing solitaire. He was a pathetic figure.

Well, we went to bed fairly early. Bella had massaged Aunt Selina's face and rubbed in cold cream, Anne and Dallas had compromised on their bed-room, and the men had matched to see who should look at the furnace. I did not expect to sleep, but the cold night air had done its work, and I was asleep almost immediately.

Some time during the early part of the night I awakened, and, after turning and twisting uneasily, I realized that I was cold. The couch in Bella's dressing room was comfortable enough, but narrow and low. I remember distinctly (that was what was so maddening: Everybody thought I dreamed it)—I remember getting an elderdown comfort that was folded at my feet, and pulling it up around me. In the luxury of its warmth I snuggled down and went to sleep almost instantly. It seemed to me I had slept for hours, but it was probably an hour or less, when something roused me. The room was perfectly dark, and there was not a sound save the faint ticking of the clock, but I was wide awake.

And then came the incident that in its ghastly, horrible absurdity made the rest of the people shout with laughter the next day. It was not funny then. For suddenly the elderdown comfort began to slip. I heard no footstep, not the slightest sound approaching me, but the comfort moved; from my chin, inch by inch, it slipped to my shoulders; awfully, inevitably, hair-raisingly it moved. I could feel my blood gather around my heart, leaving me cold and nerveless. As it passed my hands I gave an involuntary clutch for it, to feel it slip away from my fingers. Then the full horror of the situation took hold of me; as the comfort slid past my feet I sat up and screamed at the top of my voice.

Of course, people came running in in all sorts of things. I was still sitting up, declaring I had seen a ghost and that the house was haunted. Dallas was struggling for the second arm-hole of his dressing gown, and Bella had already turned on the lights. They said I had had a nightmare, and not to sleep on my back, and perhaps I was taking gripe.

And just then we heard Jimmy run down the stairs, and fall over something, almost breaking his wrist. It was the elderdown comfort, half-way up the studio staircase!

"Lord! the cook next door—"

CHAPTER XIII

He Does Not Deny It.

Aunt Selina got up the next morning and Jim told her all the strange things that had been happening. She fixed on Flannigan, of course, although she still suspected Betty of her watch and other valuables. The incident of the comfort she called nervous indigestion and had hours.

She spent the entire day going through the storeroom and linen closets, and running her fingers over things for dust. Whenever she found any she looked at me, drew a long breath, and said, "Poor James!" It was maddening. And when she went through his clothes and found some buttons off (Jim didn't keep a man, and Takahiro had stopped at his boots) she looked at me quite awfully.

"His mother was a perfect house-keeper," she said. "James was brought up in clothes with the buttons on, put on clean shelves."

"Didn't they put them on him?" I asked, almost hysterically. It had been a bad morning, after a worse night. Every one had found fault with the breakfast, and they straggled down one at a time until I was frantic. Then Flannigan had talked at me about the pearls, and Mr. Harbison had said, "Good morning," very stiffly, and nearly rattled the inside of the furnace out.

Early in the morning, too, I overheard a scrap of conversation between the policeman and our gentleman adventurer from South America. Something had gone wrong with the telephone and Mr. Harbison was fussing over it with a screw driver and a pair of scissors—all the tools he could find. Flannigan was lifting rugs to shake them on the roof—Bella's order.

"Wash the table linen!" he was grumbling. "I'll do what I can that's necessary. Grub has to be cooked, and dishes has to be washed—I'll admit that. If you're particular, make up your bed every day; I don't object. But don't tell me we have to use 33 table napkins a day. What did folks do before napkins was invented? Tell me that!"—triumphantly.

"What's the answer?" Mr. Harbison inquired absently, evidently with the screw-driver in his mouth.

"Used their pocket handkerchiefs! Wash clothes I will not."

"Well, don't worry Mrs. Wilson about it," the other voice said. Flannigan straightened himself with a grunt.

"Mrs. Wilson!" he said. "A lot she would worry. She's been a disappointment to me, Mr. Harbison, me thinking that now she'd come back to him, after leavin' him the way she did, they'd be like two turtle doves. Lord! the cook next door—"

Speaking of the Divorce Evil

Trying to succeed in business without advertising is like the case of the man who, trying to cut expenses, divorced his wife and alone attempted to keep house and raise his children. It cost him more money for doctor bills and funeral expenses in a year than he gave his wife in a lifetime.

When advertising is divorced, business success becomes failure.

This paper is building your neighbor's business. He has reasons. He tried advertising and it helped him. It is not an experiment—this paper brings results. Good, hard, convincing results—dollars.

ELEVEN YEARS OF HEALTH.

Kidney Trouble Never Returned.

Mrs. Everett Griffith, 2345 E. Indiana Ave., Evansville, Ind., says: "I was certainly in bad shape from kidney disease and it is really a wonder that I am alive today. The kidney secretions passed irregularly and were abnormally thick; I had bad spells with my head and at times could hardly stand. My left limb below the knee became so badly swollen that I began to treat myself for dropsy and my back was so sore and lame I could not raise my arms above my head. I was finally induced to take Doan's Kidney Pills and in six weeks I was well. My cure was made in 1899 and I have enjoyed excellent health ever since."

CURED ITCHING AND BURNING

"I was taken with the itch in April, 1904, and used most everything. I had a friend pay me a visit from Cumberland, and she advised me to use Cuticura Remedies which I did. The cure was certainly quick, and I use them to this day. I had it terribly under my knees. I only used one box of pills, but two boxes of Cuticura Ointment, and I use the Cuticura Soap all the time. I hope this will benefit others, as it has me, after Dr. — and others could do nothing for me." (Signed) Miss Lu Johnson, 1523 Ninth St., N. W., Washington, D. C., April 3, 1910.

In a later letter Miss Johnson adds: "The trouble began with an eruption under my knees, and extended upwards toward my waist, until I was not able to sit down. It kept a constant itching and burning all the time, night and day. I went to my doctor, but he could do me no good after I do not know how many medicines he gave me, and then told me I should be compelled to go to a skin specialist, which I positively refused to do. I cried all the time. Finally I made up my mind to try Cuticura Remedies, and tried Cuticura Pills, Ointment and Soap, and was entirely cured of the itching three days after I started using them. The healing took about eight days. I consider Cuticura Remedies marvelous, and would recommend them everywhere." Cuticura Remedies are sold throughout the world. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Boston, for free book on skin afflictions.

IF YOU HAVE A SICKLY YOUNGSTER TRY THIS FREE

The family with young children that is without sickness in the house now and then is rare, and so it is important that the head of the house should know what to do in the little emergencies that arise. A child with a serious ailment needs a doctor. It is true, but in the majority of instances, as any doctor knows, the child suffers from some intestinal trouble, usually constipation.
There is no sense in giving it a pill or a remedy containing an opiate, nor is flushing of the bowels to be always recommended. Rather give it a small dose of a mild, gentle laxative tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which, by cleaning out the bowels and strengthening the little stomach muscles, will immediately correct the trouble.

This is not alone our opinion but that of Mrs. N. H. Mead of Freeport, Kansas, and of Mrs. J. R. Whiting of Lena, Wis., who gives it to her children and takes it herself. It is sold in fifty-cent and one-dollar bottles at every drug store, but if you want to test it in your family before you buy it send your address to Dr. Caldwell and he will forward a supply free of charge.

Union Bravery Praised by Confederates

HERE is what Confederate Colonel Whitfield says about the splendid bravery of the Eleventh Ohio battery in the battle of luka in his report: "On the afternoon of Friday, September 19, we formed in line of battle about one mile south of luka on the Bay Springs road, the enemy appearing in large force. Soon after getting in position I was ordered to move my command in the direction of the enemy, which was then about three hundred yards off. After having advanced about one hundred paces the enemy opened a very heavy fire with grape and caulster from their artillery, besides a shower from their small arms. Under this galling fire my command moved on and, when within about one hundred and fifty yards of the enemy, I discovered that unless the battery was immediately silenced the result might be most disastrous, and gave command to charge, which was responded to by loud cheers from my command and the Third Texas cavalry—being then dismounted—and at a double quick they moved up and captured the six-gun battery, which I am informed by one of the lieutenants, had been charged eight times before in different fights unsuccessfully."

Mark the balance of Colonel Whitfield's report, to-wit: "In this short but hotly contested charge I sustained a loss of 106 officers and men, most of whom fell at or immediately about the battery." As we shall see presently, the loss in this charge of the Third Texas dismounted cavalry is not included in this 106, for a Confederate correspondent writing to the Confederate Mississippian under date of September 24, 1862, says of Price's Third brigade in this fight: "They charged and took the battery, which was doing so much damage, after a desperate struggle, piling the ground with the dead. The Third Louisiana regiment of this brigade entered the fight with 238 men and lost 108 in killed and wounded. The Third Texas fared about as badly." And, as we shall show, we had repelled two charges before this was made in which, doubtless, we had done the state some service."

This from the report of General Rosecrans, commanding the Army of the Mississippi:
"The enemy's line of battery now moved forward on the battery coming up from the woods on our right on the Fifth Iowa, while a brigade showed itself on our left and attempted to cross the road toward Colonel Purcell. The battle became furious. Our battery poured in a deadly fire upon the enemy's column advancing up the road, while the musketry concentrated upon it, soon killing or wounding most of the horses. When within one hundred yards they received a volley from our entire line and from that time the battle raged furiously. The enemy penetrated the battery, were repulsed, again returned, were again repulsed, and finally bore down upon it with a column of three regiments (doubtless the Colonel Whitfield charge), and this time carried the battery. The cannoneers were, many of them, bayoneted at their pieces. Three of the guns were spiked. In this last charge the brigade of Texans, which had attempted to turn our left, having been repulsed by Purcell, turned upon the battery and cooperated in the charge. The

The Enemy Penetrated the Battery.

Forty-eighth Indiana, which lay in its track, was obliged to yield about one hundred yards, where it was supported by the Fourth Minnesota.

"Said's Eleventh Ohio battery, under Lieutenant Sears, was served with unequalled bravery, under circumstances of danger and exposure such as rarely, perhaps never, has fallen to the lot of one single battery during the war."

The battle of luka was fought September 19, 1862, General Rosecrans commanding the Union troops and General Price the Confederate. It ended in a Union victory, although the enemy had a much larger force. And so the writer rejoices in recording the heroism of the command herein named, "The American Volunteer," whose equal as a soldier has never yet appeared on earth.

While at Dundee last week Friday evening Henry Spoerl left his auto for a short time. When he returned he found it in a ditch below a hill. Some one was mean enough to start the engine and leave the auto seek its own way. The car was considerably damaged.

Auto Races at Milwaukee. Real automobile racing, the sort that will smack the speedway at Indianapolis, will be conducted on the state fair grounds when the speed kings of the national circuit visit Milwaukee, June 13 and 14. It will be the first time that the motorists of Wisconsin have had an opportunity to see the big men of the automobile racing world. It will also be their first opportunity of seeing the wonderful machines with the mighty horse power behind them that have annihilated space and time and made the circuit of an ordinary mile track, a mere matter of seconds instead of minutes.

The state fair grounds will be arranged to accommodate an audience of 50,000 speed maniacs. There will be accommodations for no less than 3,000 machines inside and outside the track. From most of these vantage points spectators can view the races, while the grand stand and bleachers will be reserved for those who desire to view the events from those points.

The races will be conducted under the auspices of the contest board of the American Automobile Association, and electrical starting and timing devices will be used. This fact alone assures Wisconsin motorists and speed fiends of the character of racing that cannot be found except on the Indianapolis and Los Angeles speedways and the Jacksonville and Ormond ocean beach straightaway courses.

Among the drivers expected to compete in the Milwaukee national automobile races are: Strang, De Palma, Baldwin, Aitken, Disbrow, Fox, Knight, Jagresburger, Jones, Anderson, Wisbart, Turner, Geinaw, Pearce, Belcher, Chevrolet, Basle, Hearne, Grant, Mertz, Wilcox, Clemens, Adams, Ellis, Cobe, Tower, Delany, Bruce-Brown, Van Gorder, Frayer, Dawson, Harroun, Mulford, Tetzlaff, Lytle, Hughes, Bigelow, Beardsley, Bragg, Gibbons, Hall, Endicott, Walter Jones, and Kuliek.

PRAIRIE VILLA Do not forget June 18th is Father's Day.

Walter Kocher and sister Frieda of Barton spent Sunday with John Kocher Jr., and family.

The marriage of Fred Metzner and Miss Dora Schuppel will be solemnized to-day, Saturday.

Quite a few from here attended the Charity Ball given by the Ladies Court of Foresters at West Bend last Monday evening.

Miss Elsie Kocher closed a very successful term of school last Tuesday in District No. 3 with a splendid program and picnic in Johannes' grove. Miss Kocher did all in her power to make the affair an enjoyable one. All present had a very good time.

MAIL ORDER HOUSES.

A mail order house in Chicago or some other city may be able to sell you anything from a paper of pins to a house and lot, simply by referring you to their catalogues, but they can't sell you a GOOD WATCH that way. WATCHES are very delicate machines that may be put out of order in a dozen ways after leaving the factory. A JEWELER knows how to put the watch into shape, and he won't sell one without doing it. MAIL ORDER HOUSES DO NOT WANT TO BOTHER WITH THAT, AND AS A MATTER OF FACT, THEY CANNOT IF THEY WOULD. When you buy a WATCH go to a JEWELER, tell him what you want, and he will sell you a WATCH in good running order. Do not make the mistake of trying to buy by mail from any catalogue. You won't know what you are getting if you do. IF YOU BUY OF US YOU WILL MAKE NO MISTAKE.
