OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

Schools to Celebrate Farm Life

So fundamental is the upbuilding of rural life that in the opinion of Dr. P. P. Claxton, United States Commissioner of Education the observance in the schools of one day each year as "Agriculture and Rural Life Day" should become a national custom, instead of being confined to a few states as at present. "We can do without some of our anniversaries if need be," says Dr. Claxton, "to have time for this most fundamental of all. The children in our schools should be given an opportunity to pause in their regular work and consider the significance of agriculture and rural life; the worth and worthiness of the soil, and the beauty and glory of simple and sane life in the open country."

Dr. Claxton points out that in several states agriculture and rural life day, has already been introduced into the schools, at the suggestion of the Bureau of Education. In other states exercises appropriate to the purpose are held in connection with Arbor Day, Thanksgiving Day, or the Harvest Home celebration. In order to aid in the proper observance of the day under whatever name it may be celebrated, the Bureau of Education has just issued a bulletin containing material that can be used by teachers and others in arranging an interesting program.

Fittingly connected with the "Country Boy" Creed, the bulletin includes sections on man's struggle for food; the application of science to agriculture; men influential in improving agriculture our domestic animals; and a study of forests.

How vegetables have been used as medicines among different peoples; breadmaking through the ages; the mysteries of mother earth; the origin of food plants; cooperation among farmers; wonders of a single acre—these and other topics are treated with special reference to glorifying country life. Following each discussion there is a list of suitable poems and songs on farming and farm life.

This valuable bulletin may be secured by schools on application to U. S. Bureau of Education, Washington, D. C.

High School Notes

Miss Loretta Schaefer was a Cream City caller on Friday.

Miss Elvira Morgenroth was absent from school two afternoons of last week.

Herman Laedter of Milwaukee was a high school visitor Monday afternoon.

History Teacher: Name some products obtained from pine trees. Student: Olive Oil.

Miss Elinora Heilmann of Tomah was a high school visitor on Monday afternoon.

Some of the K. H. S. students attended the speech given by Francis E. McGovern on Tuesday morning.

The Senior class issued invitations for a Halloween party to be given in honor of the Junior class Saturday evening.

Ancient History Teacher: Why are the rivers of Greece small? Pupil: There are so many seas around Greece that there is no water left for the rivers.

The girls held their heads high on Tuesday morning. Perhaps it was due to the praise of our able coach, Miss Oppenorth, who claims we girls did splendid playing on Monday evening.

Death of Mrs. William Kleinke

Mrs. William Kleinke, nee Scheleuter, died suddenly at her home in New Fane on October 17, 1914, of apoplexy. Deceased was born in Maldenine, Germany, on January 1, 1845, and came to this country in June 1851, settling in the town of Scott. Later she came to the town of Auburn, settling in New Fane in 1913, where she had since resided. May 8, 1867, she was united in marriage to William Kleinke. Of this union eight children were born, three of them dying in infancy. Those who survive are Alma, Mrs. Edward Ferber, of Auburn; Richard of Michigan; Charlie of Oscoda, Rheinhold of Fond du Lac; Willie of Shawano, and one sister, Mrs. August Behling, Milwaukee. The funeral was held on October 21, from the Ev. St. John's church, New Fane, Rev. C. J. Gutekunst officiating. Burial took place in the congregation's cemetery. The sorrowing relatives have our heartfelt sympathy.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to thank all those who aided us during our recent bereavement, the death of our beloved wife and mother, Mrs. William Kleinke, and to all those who showed their last respect by attending the funeral.

William Kleinke and children.

Amusements

Sunday, Nov. 1—Grand duck and goose tournament at John Tunn's place, New Prospect. Everybody invited.

Wednesday, Nov. 4—Grand farewell dance in Schrauth's River Bank hall, near Elmore. Everybody invited.

Wednesday, November 4—Grand Threshers' dance in Herman Jaeger's hall, St. Kilian given by the Foerster and Kuehl Threshing Crew. A good time is in store for all.

Sunday, Nov. 8—Grand Threshers' dance in Groschel's hall, given by the Bath threshing crew. Music by John Roden's orchestra.

OCTOBER MARRIAGES

Popular Young People of This Locality Are Joined in Wedlock

FROHMANN-DETTMAN.

On Tuesday, October 20th, at high noon, one of the prettiest weddings ever performed in Boltonville, took place. When Rev. Bernd of Batavia performed the ceremony that made Dr. Arthur J. Dettman of Bonduel and Miss Lela Frohman of Boltonville, man and wife.

Promptly at the appointed hour the bridal party arrived at the church and moved up the aisle to the strains of the Bridal chorus from Lohengrin. The bride, robed in a gown of white messaline shadow lace and carrying a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley, was given away by her father.

Mrs. Willard Deierdorf, dressed in pink messaline and carrying a train of white tulle, was maid of honor, while Olive Boetscher, in yellow chiffon and carrying white chrysanthemums, Edna Altenhufen in blue crepe de chine carrying white carnations and Leta Wood in pale green messaline carrying red carnations, acted as bridesmaids. The groom wore a suit of dark blue serge and was attended by his brother, Albert as best man and William Dix, as usher. The church was prettily decorated with autumn leaves and flowers. Rev. and Mrs. Bernd sang an appropriate song. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride which was tastefully decorated with autumn leaves, bitter-sweet, and a profusion of cut flowers. A sumptuous wedding dinner was served to about sixty invited guests.

The event being further celebrated during the afternoon by the christening of the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Frohmann. The young couple were the recipients of many beautiful and useful presents. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Frohmann and is one of Boltonville's most popular and accomplished young ladies. Her pleasing manners and sunny disposition winning friends on every hand. She is well qualified to preside over her home and will be a true helpmate to her husband. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dettman, is a young dentist with bright prospects before him. He is a graduate of the Great Bend high school and of Marquette University. At present he is practicing dentistry at Bonduel, where they will reside.

The young couple left on Wednesday evening for their future home. The Statesman joins with their many friends in extending congratulations.

VOLM-HRON.

The marriage of Frank Hron of West Bend and Miss Katherine Volm of the town of Kewaskum was performed at the St. Bridget's church last Tuesday morning, Rev. Ph. Vogt of this village tying the nuptial knot.

The bride was attended by Misses Mamie Volm and Frances Hron, while William Hron and Ben Volm acted as groomsmen. The little Misses Sylvia and Milda Marx, nieces of the bride, were flower girls.

After the ceremony at the church the bride party repaired to the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Leonard Volm, where numerous relatives and friends awaited them and where the event was celebrated. The West Bend City Band, of which the groom is a member, was also present.

Mrs. and Mrs. Hron will reside in West Bend, where the groom is employed in the aluminum factory. The Statesman extends hearty congratulations wishing their happiness and prosperity.

JANDRE-NORRIS

At 10 o'clock Wednesday morning at St. John's Lutheran church, New Fane, occurred the marriage of Miss Marie Jandre, daughter of William Jandre, New Prospect and Charles F. Norris, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Norris of Eden. Rev. C. Gutekunst performing the ceremony. They were attended by Miss Mathilda Jandre, a sister of the bride and Boreen Backus.

The bride was beautifully gowned in white satin, trimmed with white silk shadow lace. She wore a veil and carried a bouquet of bridal roses. Miss Mathilda Jandre was attired in blue silk poplin and carried pink and white carnations.

The bridal couple left on the noon train from Kewaskum for Madison, Bigstone, Minn., points in South Dakota and Nebraska.

They will reside on the groom's farm four miles south of Eden.

Gov. McGovern Speaks Here

Gov. F. E. McGovern, and Republican candidate for United States Senator, accompanied by former Governor J. O. Davidson, were in the village last Tuesday morning and addressed a large gathering of voters in Groschel's hall.

Both distinguished men discussed the political issues of the day. Arthur Koch presided over the meeting. The Governor and former Governor arrived in the village on the 9 a. m. train and left for West Bend via auto soon after the address, where they delivered an address before the voters of West Bend. From West Bend they went to Jackson thence to Fond du Lac. The main topic talked on by the Governor was in defense of the tax question. He also touched upon National issues, especially the tariff.

A REAL NEWSPAPER

The Fond du Lac Daily Commonwealth Publishes All the State, General and Local News—Market and Farm Pages Are Strong Features

If you want to keep in constant touch with all the big telegraph news of the day; if you want all the state news when it occurs; if you want the news of your own county; if you want the news of your own vicinity, then you should have the Fond du Lac Daily Commonwealth.

The Daily Commonwealth prints from eight to sixteen pages daily except Sunday. It is a member of the United Press which maintains correspondents in all the principal news centers of the world and is served with the world's latest news over its own leased wire, up to the time of going to press. The Commonwealth maintains a special correspondent at Madison and also maintains more than ninety correspondents in Fond du Lac and adjacent counties, giving it news of its own leased wire, up to the time of going to press.

Recognizing the large interest in poultry, dairying and agriculture the Commonwealth maintains a poultry department, a dairy and agricultural department, publishing on an average three pages devoted to the various branches of agriculture each week.

The Commonwealth makes a special feature of its market page publishing the Chicago, Milwaukee and local markets which are corrected daily. The Chicago and Milwaukee markets being received over its own leased wire each afternoon.

The Commonwealth is delivered in Fond du Lac, Waupun and Ripon by carrier at 10 cents per week. It is sent by mail to all points within the Fond du Lac Trade Zone, an area within a radius of fifty miles of Fond du Lac at $3.00 per year or 25 cents per month. A trial order for a month will convince you of its merits.

Postal Savings on Increase

The war in Europe is proving a big boom to postal savings in this country. From the very day hostilities opened across the seas postal-savings receipts began to increase by leaps and bounds and withdrawals fell off, a result quite contrary to the prediction of many well informed persons who in their imagination, saw lines of feverish depositors at postoffice pay windows anxious to again return their savings to the boot-leg and body-belt depositories whence they came being insisted to Uncle Sam. But the forecasters failed to reckon on the absolute confidence of the American citizen regardless of the flag that first met his eyes, in the ability and purpose of the Government to carry out its obligations, not only among the nations of the earth, but with the humblest citizen of our land.

Two important results have followed; thousands of people, largely of foreign birth, accustomed to carry their savings abroad, are now putting their savings in the system; and enormous sums of actual have been released for commercial uses among our own people at a time when the need for every available dollar is pressing.

The growth of postal savings in the United States has been steady and healthy and the system has filled an important gap between the tin-can depository and the factory paymaster. On July 1, when affairs were running smoothly here and abroad and the transmission of money across the Atlantic was safe and expeditious, there was approximately $13,000,000 of postal savings standing to the credit of about 338,000 depositors. Since then over $10,000,000 more has been added and the number of depositors has increased enormously. This unprecedented gain is the more striking when it is considered that the net gain in the last three months is larger than the gain for the entire fiscal year 1914.

Scores of offices have done more postal savings business since the war has been going on than was done by them during the previous existence of the service. The increases are confined to no special localities, but have been felt in every nook and corner of the country. New York City alone made a gain in September of more than a million, while Brooklyn showed a relatively big increase. Chicago reported a larger gain in the past three months than for the previous twelve months. More than 7,000 new accounts were opened during the period, bringing the number of depositors in that city up to over 21,000.

The unexpected increase in postal savings business has not only added greatly to the general and added duties of the system, but has brought up many new and interesting problems which called for the careful personal consideration of Postmaster General Burleson and Governor Doerker. Their Third Assistant Postmaster General. But their task has been lightened somewhat by the promptness of depository banks in furnishing additional security to meet the abnormal deposits. A number of the very largest banks in the country which have heretofore declined to general depositories for postal savings funds, are now among the eager applicants for them.

The booster dance given by the local basket ball team in Groschel's hall last Sunday evening, was largely attended.

BURKE AND HUSTING NEEDED IN CONGRESS

No occupant of the White House since the time of Abraham Lincoln, has had the confidence of countrymen generally like President Wilson.

With unwearied perseverance he has stood for the faithful performance of every pledge made by his party to the people. Inspired by a sincere love for his fellow beings and intense sympathy for suffering humanity, he has kept this nation at peace with the world and beyond the roar of cannons and the rain of bullets, a stout heart held him always at the post of duty when men of less courage might have faltered. Seizing the course with clear vision he piloted the ship of state with steady hand and unerring judgement over perilous waters, when the slightest mistake might have plunged this nation into a deadly war.

These are the things that have endeared Woodrow Wilson to the American people. Men without regard to their political affiliations honor and respect him. He is and deservedly so—the most popular president since the civil war.

The representatives of the Democratic parties in Congress have at all times co-operated heartily with the president to serve the nation. The result is that at no time in the history of the country has there been enacted within so short a period so much useful and beneficial legislation. The people will have the opportunity on election day of expressing their confidence in President Wilson. An approval can be clearly manifested by electing Congressman Burke and by sending Paul O. Husting to the U. S. Senate.

Mr. Burke as our present member of the House of Representatives, has stood steadfastly with the president and for the welfare of the country and the best interests of the masses. He needs no other guaranty than his record. His re-election by a decisive majority would be only a just reward for faithful service. But it would also give encouragement to a great and just president to continue the good work he has begun.

Paul O. Husting can be relied upon to act in harmony and concord with the president. His record as a man, a Democrat, and a member of the State Legislature, leaves no room for doubt on that subject. He is a Democrat of the Wilson type; big, broad-minded and in thorough sympathy with the people.

The nation needs both Burke and Husting in Congress. The president wants them both at his side. They should be elected by overwhelming majorities.—Hartford Times.

More War News

Here is the latest from the front: The Germans have taken Pilsener and are now surrounding Delicetessau, where the worst is expected.

The Belgian Hares have had a falling out with the Welsh Rarebits, and the Swiss Cheese is hot full of holes.

This will make the Irish Stew and the English Mustard hot, and if the Russian Caviars the French Pastry, it may start a Swiss Movement Watch on the Rhine.

Wake Up Mr. Voter or the special interests will "put over" their political trick as planned for next Tuesday---by means of the PINK BALLOT.

The stage is all set—you are the actor—next Tuesday the curtain goes up—when it comes down you will either pay more taxes or less.

Which do you want to do? It's up to you.

Twelve years ago the taxes in Wisconsin were three million dollars—today they are eighteen millions—you have paid your share and the trusts sit by and smile—and smile at you—and unless you vote NO on the Pink Ballot you will pay more and a plenty

Shun the Pink Ballot as a Serpent!

Let's analyze one of its fangs. In the initiative and referendum amendment is found this clause:

"No law making any appropriation for maintaining the State Government or aiding any public institution not exceeding the previous appropriation for the same purpose shall be subject to rejection or repeal under this section."

What does this mean—it means another trick—it means that the interests have carefully arranged so that you may have a voice in small matters, but have as carefully provided that you have nothing to say on the big things—it means that you can't curb the big leaks—they will remain open and you keep them supplied—you are to be their easy mark unless you vote Tuesday and vote NO ten times to prevent all kinds of freak legislation and the creation of useless offices by which you suffer, and for which, you pay. Follow the advice of the Home Rule and Tax Payer's League:

Vote Tuesday Vote NO on the Pink Ballot KILL IT---IT'S MALICIOUS!

GET YOUR TAX RECEIPTS

Compare These Receipts And You Will Vote For a Change in The State Management

What does the Republican platform say about the TAX QUESTION? It is perfectly silent. THE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM promises relief, by reducing the TAXES to the lowest minimum consistent with good government to pay the EXPENSES of the STATE GOVERNMENT out of the income from corporation tax, and income tax license fees. This means the abolishing of the STATE TAX. Every VOTER in you are up in arms against HIGH TAXES, cast your ballot for Judge Karel, and then vote for the DEMOCRATIC TICKET. By casting your vote for this ticket you are going to enter a protest against the HIGH TAXES. When going to the polls take your TAX RECEIPTS along, look them over, and then vote. Ask yourself the question, Am I in favor of endorsing the present state management, thereby endorsing HIGH TAXES? If you are in favor of high taxes, then vote the Republican ticket, but if you are up in arms against HIGH TAXES, cast your ballot for Judge Karel, and the entire DEMOCRATIC ticket. We also appeal to every DEMOCRATIC voter to go to the polls on election day, next Tuesday, November 3rd, and cast his vote for the entire Democratic ticket, thereby endorsing the present democratic administration, with President Wilson at the head. Be sure and urge your friends to support such men as Paul Husting, candidate for United States Senator, and Hon. E. Burke seeking re-election as Congressman of the second congressional district. If both these men are elected, it will be shown that this state endorses the present administration, as both of these men are needed by Wisconsin. E. Burke seeks re-election as Congressman of the second congressional district. If both these men are elected, it will be shown that this state endorses the present administration, as both of these men are needed by Wisconsin. E. Burke seeks re-election as Congressman of the second congressional district. If both these men are elected, it will be shown that this state endorses the present administration, as both of these men are needed by Wisconsin.

As to legislative ticket, we have Byron Barwig of Mayville, a candidate for state senator. He is a man very well known throughout Washington and Dodge counties. The counties which comprise this senatorial district. He is a man of business capability, and if elected to the senate will attend to his duties in a businesslike manner. Then we have Jos. S. Schindler of Schindlerville, who is seeking re-election to the assembly from Washington County. He is a man of Washington County. He is a man of business capability, and if elected to the senate will attend to his duties in a businesslike manner. Then we have Jos. S. Schindler of Schindlerville, who is seeking re-election to the assembly from Washington County. He is a man of Washington County. He is a man of business capability, and if elected to the senate will attend to his duties in a businesslike manner.

Now going to the state ticket, we must say that we do not believe in party tickets, but non-partisan, but we have one who is all of the men on this ticket we cannot help but speak a good word for all. First of all we will go to the county clerk, for which Mr. Anton Theilmann is a candidate. Mr. Theilmann has held this position for two years, and always proved to the people of Washington county that said position was taken care of in a very businesslike manner. Mr. Theilmann on the strength of his record is entitled to re-election. For county treasurer, Anton Mueller, being the candidate, who seeks re-election, we believe he ought to be given another term, as he only occupied said position only one term, and it being customary that every holder of this office should be entitled to two terms. A vote for Mr. Mueller will be cast with good intentions. For sheriff we have a man, known to all voters, a man who if elected will attend to his duties in a very satisfactory manner. For two years ago he was the candidate, but was defeated by the present incumbent this time he is entitled to this office. The name of the candidate is Oscar Lemke. Be sure and cast your vote for Mr. Lemke, when voting for sheriff. For coroner, one who is also seeking re-election, this party is William Kippenhan of Wayne. He is a man that is very well known in this locality and deserves the support of everyone. Next is C. P. Mooers, for clerk of the circuit court also seeking re-election. Mr. Mooers is a man well experienced in this office and has always made a very faithful servant. He should by all means be re-elected. For district attorney we have Frank Bucklin. Mr. Bucklin needs no introduction, being well known and liked by all, he neither has any opposition. For register of deeds, one of the main offices of the county we have John W. Gehl. He is seeking re-election. Mr. Gehl has always been a very faithful servant, tending to his duties in a very satisfactory manner. His records are so kept that it takes only a few minutes to find anything that is sought. His experience as register of deeds has been very good. Why remove Mr. Gehl at this time. It is not necessary. Your vote for Mr. Gehl is urged. For one of the minor offices, county surveyor, we have Harrison Laubenthaler, a young man from Richfield. Mr. Laubenthaler, if elected, and when called upon, will be able to perform his duties in such a way that there will be no cause for

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

A man claiming to be Leslie Dietz has been making a big splash in the newspapers of Cleveland, Pittsburg and New York of late claiming to have gathered the names of 3,000,000 people to a petition to President Wilson, asking for the pardon of his father, John F. Dietz. The young fellow secured an immense amount of free advertising but he is not the real Leslie Dietz, but an imposter. He is very likely the same fellow who was reported arrested twice at Pittsburg for drunkenness, the publication of which story has been the means of starting a libel suit by the real Leslie Dietz against several Wisconsin newspapers.—Horicon Reporter.

It is reported that some persons, or persons, who evidently have but a small spark of humanity in them, if they have that, have been engaged in the ghastly occupation of stealing things from the Union cemeteries. Two artificial wreaths, ribbons and a number of flowers have been stolen and it is a foregone conclusion that if the culprit is caught, he will be given the full extent of the law which is severe yet none to severe for the punishment of such a crime.—Plymouth Reporter.

Ed. Hecker had the pleasure of picking ripe strawberries last Sunday from plants which were set out seven months ago.

Alfred Eckersley also exhibited to us a branch of wild raspberries this week, which were fully matured and delicious and no one seems to remember of having a season this late without a frost.—Plymouth Reporter.

Vote for Mr. Guidice

Here, of late, just before the general election, the Home Rule and Tax Payer's League has been sending out letters supporting Mr. Jacob Aulenbacher for member of assembly from Washington county, for the reason that he comes out against all Commissions and that especially the Railroad and Tax Commission should be abolished. Mr. Guidice wishes to announce that he does not feel that the people of Wisconsin are ready to overthrow every Progressive measure enacted in late years, but were satisfied to regulate and combine the same in such a way as to give to the people value received in all the departments of the state. Mr. Guidice is a progressive, no tax waster, and believes the economy should be in excess in the management of public affairs in the state. He is a man that is today, let us send you one or two current issues free, that you may thoroughly test the paper's quality. We will send also the Forecast for 1915.

complaint. Last, but not least we appeal to all to go to the polls on Tuesday, November 3rd, take their receipts along and judge for themselves, whether the management of the state should be continued with such assurance of still higher taxes than has been paid the past years, or that the taxes should be reduced, if the latter is the case, then be sure and cast your ballot for the entire Democratic ticket a ticket with a platform that promises lower taxation.

UNABLE TO BREAK LINES OF ALLIES

Berlin and Paris Reports Agree That Positions are Practically Unchanged.

WITNESS TELLS OF FIGHTING

Battle in the Northwest Described by Correspondent of London Paper—Destruction Wrought by Armored Trains—Russian Claims Are That Germans Have Been Forced Back From Warsaw—De Wet, Famous Boer Leader, Joins Uprising in South Africa.

London, Oct. 28.—The official reports given out in Paris and Berlin agree that the Germans have been unable to break through the line of the allies drawn up in Belgium west of the Yser canal between Neuport and Dixmude.

The French statements makes the further claim that the violent attacks of the Germans in the district between La Bassée and the Somme river also have failed, but the German statement says that southwest of Ypres and west and southwest of Lille the army of the kaiser is going forward after having inflicted heavy losses on the British troops.

The Germans also assert that their artillery has driven the British fleet away from the shore line between Neuport and Ostend, where the warships have been bombarding the trenches of the Germans. Three vessels are said to have been hit by shells from the shore batteries.

Nieuport is Bombaraded. The big guns of the Germans bombarded Nieuport and the allies had to withstand constant attacks of masses of troops.

On the line from Solsoons to Craonne the allies are said to have obtained a slight advantage in the fighting, while on the eastern wing the French are credited with a gain which, it is claimed, placed the German lines of communication in difficulty. The French here pushed well forward and left only a narrow outlet 12 miles wide for a possible German retirement.

The French are said to occupy every position of importance in the Vosges.

The French have become more active in the East along the Alsatian border and are said to be making preparations and securing advanced positions. In view of possible attacks by the Germans with their big howitzers on the Belgian fortress. It now seems to be realized that no fortress has any chance of holding out when once these big German guns are brought into action against it.

Germans Bring Great Guns. It is reported from Amsterdam that the Germans are bringing their 43-centimeter guns to the coast to use against the allies' warships, but the British sailors are credited with saying that their vessels can prevent these guns from being put in position.

The British fleet which did such execution in bombarding the German flank as they advanced along the coast seems to have withdrawn. The belief is expressed here that the fleet will be able to render untenable German occupation of any part of the Belgian or French coast.

The opinion also is expressed here that the operations of the allied vessels in the North sea, off the Belgian coast, and in the vicinity of the Straits of Dover may cause the German fleet to come out and give battle.

Armies Cannot Move Rapidly. The crossing of the Yser apparently had only a moral effect, as the Germans were confronted by solid lines of allied troops and were prevented from advancing without overwhelming efforts further toward the channel ports.

The character of the country prohibits a rapid movement, as the land is cut up by canals, and two strong series of defensive works separate them from Dunkirk.

The German infantry executed a number of night attacks, not only on the extreme wing, but also in the vicinity of Lille, where they encountered a most obstinate resistance. The allies are displaying wonderful energy in this region. The commanders are sparing their men many hardships and are able to give constant relief to the troops on the firing line.

Both sides speak of the heavy losses they have imposed on their adversaries, but say nothing of their own dead or wounded, to fill the places of whom reinforcements are being brought forward.

German Official Report. The latest Berlin statement in the form of a report from the general staff, is as follows:

"West of the Yser canal, between Neuport and Dixmude, which is still occupied by the enemy, our troops attacked the hostile positions, which are obstinately defended.

"The British fleet was forced back by the heavy artillery fire. Three ships were hit. During the afternoon of October 25 the fleet kept beyond the distance of sight.

"Near Ypres the battle is stagnant. Southwest of Ypres and west and southwest of Lille our attacks are progressing. During severe street fighting the English suffered great losses, leaving about five hundred prisoners.

INDIAN SOLDIERS IN WINTER

Little Doubt That British Allies Will Be Able to Stand the Rigors of European Weather.

How will the Indian troops stand the continental winter? The answer should not be in doubt. The martial regions of India come mostly from regions which have a very cold winter, some from highlands where the prevailing temperature for four or five months of the year is much lower

CZAR'S DAUGHTER INSPECTS HER REGIMENT

Grand Duchess Olga, eldest daughter of the czar, inspecting the regiment of cavalry of which she is the colonel, before its departure for the front.

"North of Arras a heavy French attack broke down, the French losses being severe."

French Official Report. The official communication issued by the French war office in Paris said:

"In Belgium, Neuport has been violently bombarded and the efforts of the Germans have continued on the front between Neuport and Dixmude without, according to the latest advices, any result whatever having been reached.

"All the front comprised between La Bassée and the Somme has been equally the object of violent attacks at night, all of which have been repulsed.

"On the remainder of the front there is nothing to report."

Tells of Hard Battle. The correspondent of the Daily News, who has been in an armored train to the banks of the Yser, gives a description of the battle in the northwest:

"The battle rages along the Yser with frightful destruction of life," he says. "Air engines, sea engines, and land engines death-sweep this desolate country vertically, horizontally, and transversely. Through it the frail little human engines crawl and dig, walk and run, skimming, charging, and blundering in little individual fights and tussles, tired and puzzled, ordered here and there, sleeping where they can, never washing, and dying unnoticed. A friend may find himself firing on a friendly force, and few are to blame.

"On Thursday the Germans were driven back over the Yser; on Friday they secured a footing again, and on Saturday they were again hurled back. Now a bridge blown up by one side is repaired by the other; it is again blown up by the first or left as a death trap till the enemy is actually crossing.

Feats of Armored Trains. "Actions by armored trains, some of them the most reckless adventures, are attempted daily. Each day acquires an unwritten record of daring individual feats, accepted as part of the daily work. Day by day our men push out on those dangerous expeditions, attacked by shell fire, in danger of cross fire, dynamite, and ambuscades, bringing a priceless support to the threatened lines.

"Now we are near the river at a flat country farm. The territory is scarred with trenches and it is impossible to say at first who is in them, so incidental and separate are the fortunes of this riverside battle. The Germans are on our bank, enfilading the lines of the allies' trenches. We creep up, and the Germans come into sight out of the trenches, rush to the bank, and are scattered and smashed. The allies follow with a fierce bayonet charge.

"The Germans do not wait. They rush to the bridges and are swept away by the deadliest destroyer of all, the machine gun. The bridge is blown up, but who can say by whom? Quickly the train runs back."

DRIVEN BACK FROM WARSAW

Advices From Petrograd Are to the Effect That Retreat of the Germans Continues.

London, Oct. 28.—There has been no slackening of the retreat of the German armies from before Warsaw, according to the best information here. Apparently the kaiser's troops have been driven from position after position and have been forced to continue their hurried marches toward the frontier without getting a moment's rest from the pursuing armies which the Grand Duke Nicholas is pushing forward at top speed.

An official statement from Petrograd regarding the operations in Poland says:

"The precipitate flight of the Germans continues. They are evacuating Lodz, 75 miles west southwest of Warsaw. They made an unsuccessful attempt to arrest the offensive Russian movement by clinging to positions at Sokhatchoff, from which, however, they were dislodged with heavy losses.

"We have progressed along the routes from Nova to Alexandria, where we captured numerous prisoners and cannon.

Break Down Austrian Resistance. "The stubborn resistance of the Austrians in Galicia is weakening and our troops are making vigorous progress in the region south of Sambor and Staromisto, where we took 11 cannons and many caissons.

"The entire valley of the River Spryme is covered with bodies of the enemy, estimated to aggregate at least 5,000.

"All attempts by the Germans to resume a partial offensive on the East Prussian front have been repelled."

VIENNA MELANCHOLY AS A SEPULCHER AS WAR GOES ON AND NEWS IS BARRED

Vienna—Vienna is a city of lost hope, of gloom, of gray despair. The once gayest and most beautiful capital of Europe is today the saddest, the most distressed. Silent, hopeless protests against the horrors of war which have turned this wonderful, joyous city into a melancholy sepulcher for the living, permeates every stratum of society.

I have seen a procession of 4,000 mothers, whose husbands have died in Galicia, carrying in their arms their fatherless babes. They filed past the great cold palace of the ministry of war. It was their mute appeal for peace.

I have seen a procession of little children, plaintive and futile emissaries of life, silently protesting against needless death.

Dazed by War Horrors. I have seen trains arriving, every one crowded to suffocation with the wounded and dying. From the midst of these maimed and mutilated, sickened and suffering men, I have seen uncomprehending soldiers, dazed by the horrors of war, crazed with joy at being home again, dragged from their companions and placed under arrest.

GERMANS NEAR AUGUSTOWO

A dispatch from Berlin says the following German official communication has been issued:

"In the eastern theater of the war our offensive on Augustowo is progressing. The battle near Ivangorod is favorable, but there has been no decision."

According to a dispatch from Rotterdam, the Vossische Zeitung of Berlin says that the Russians, who had withdrawn most of their troops from Lemberg, have now sent 80,000 men there who are strenuously fortifying the town. The Russians, the paper says, are clearly determined to keep Lemberg at all costs.

DE WET JOINS BOER REVOLT

Famous Leader, With General Beyers, in Armed Rebellion Against British Rule.

London, Oct. 28.—What is unmistakably a grave revolt against the British government in South Africa has broken out.

The colonial office issued officially a dispatch from the government of the commonwealth of South Africa stating that the famous Boer general, Christiaan De Wet, who gave the British so much trouble in the South African war, is leading the revolt in the Orange free state. Another well-known Boer general, Beyers, heads a similar revolt in western Transvaal.

Gen. Louis Botha, premier of the union of South Africa, has left for a front in an attempt to quell the rebellion, an official Pretoria dispatch announced late tonight.

Rebels Seize a Town. According to an official report received today, armed rebellious commandos are already in existence; the town of Heilbron, in the northern part of the Orange river colony, has been seized and the government officials have been taken prisoners, while a train has been stopped and armed citizens of the defense force have been taken from it and disarmed.

The union government has issued a proclamation to the people, announcing these events and explaining that, although it was aware of these rebellious preparations, it had been taking steps to preserve peace without bloodshed.

BRITONS TO LEAD RUSSIANS

London, Oct. 28.—A dispatch received tonight by the Marconi Wireless Telegraph company from Berlin says that the Vienna Reichspost reports that several days ago a new Anglo-French-Russian naval convention was concluded under which the chief commands of the Russian Baltic and Black sea fleets are placed in the hands of British admirals.

More Canadians for War. Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 28.—It has been decided to send 15,000 more Canadian soldiers to Europe in December instead of 10,000, the number specified in the announcement of Premier Borden two weeks ago. The ready response to the call for volunteers and speedy delivery of rifles and other equipment have enabled the government to increase the size of the second expeditionary force.

CARRANZA AID KILLS AMERICANS

Executed by Herrera's Forces at Town of Paral.

VILLA REJECTS NEW TERMS

Peace Convention Will Likely Renounce First Chief Because of Action—Mexican Priests May Start Holy War.

El Paso, Tex., Oct. 28.—James Breudenstein of El Paso and Edward P. Baker of Philadelphia were executed by Herrera's forces when they succeeded in capturing the town of Paral, says a telegram to Carranza's consulate here.

The two Americans were a part of the Villa garrison who were defending Paral when the Herrera forces attacked. They were executed with the 150 men who were captured by Herrera's crowd.

The Villa consulate and officers in Juarez say that the town was not taken by Herrera's men, but that after they had taken the two other carrels they were driven away and routed by General Chao, who is in command of Villa's forces at Paral.

From Aguas Calientes came information that Carranza had made three impossible conditions as the basis for his retirement. The first is that Villa relinquish control of any part of the country; second, that Villa relinquish his command to a man named by Carranza; third, that the plan of Guadalupe be revised.

These were promptly refused, and Carranza retorted that he would drive Villa and Zapata out of the country. The next step at Aguas Calientes is expected to be the renouncement of Carranza by the conference and a declaration for Villa, backed by Zapata.

A "holy war" in Mexico as a counter-revolution against the Carranza-Villa embroglio has been threatened, according to reports brought here by Americans and Mexicans from Guadalupe. They told of uprisings against the constitutionalist authorities led by Mexican priests.

Washington, Oct. 28.—Indications that General Carranza had agreed to retire in deference to the wishes of the Mexican national convention at Aguas Calientes were contained in official dispatches to the state department.

It is generally understood that Carranza informed the committee that he would not submit his resignation a second time, leaving it to the convention to reconsider if it chose the action taken at the recent Mexico City convention.

Officials of the Washington government had no doubt that the two conditions which Carranza was reported to have stipulated as necessary before he would retire—namely, that the terms of the provisional government be brief and that he be permitted to be a candidate for the presidency in the elections to be ordered—would be satisfactorily met by the convention.

TO REPAIR STOCK BREEDERS.

To Reimburse Farmers for Animals Killed in Fight on Disease.

Indianapolis, Oct. 27.—Responding to a demand from live stock breeders of the state, Governor Ralston agreed to a proposition of the department of agriculture on Saturday that the state and federal governments shall share in the expense of compensating farmers whose diseased stock is killed in the effort to stamp out the contagious foot and mouth disease.

The department of agriculture has agreed to advance the money to meet the expense, depending upon the general assembly of Indiana, which meets in January, to make an appropriation to reimburse the federal department.

It is estimated that the live stock which must be killed is valued at $100,000.

JURY ACQUITS PFANSCHMIDT.

New Trial on Writ of Error Reverses Verdict in Adams County Case.

Macomb, Ill., Oct. 27.—Ray Pfanschmidt of Quincy was found not guilty of the murder of his father, mother, sister and a schoolteacher, Emma Kaempfen, a crime which shocked Adams county over a year ago and for which the youth on his first trial was convicted and sentenced to two days, returned a verdict on the twelfth ballot.

The Pfanschmidt family was murdered in cold blood, following which the farm home was burned to the ground.

ONE BURNED, FIFTY INJURED.

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 26.—W. Denkamp, an upholsterer, was incinerated, several guests slightly injured, and 50 others, including members of a theatrical company, were driven to the streets in their night clothes when fire partially destroyed the Terminal hotel here.

RECEIVER FOR RAILROAD APPOINTED.

Columbus, O. Oct. 26.—Federal Judge Killeet appointed W. L. Ross receiver of the Toledo, St. Louis & Western railroad.

ORDERS TROOPS TO PANAMA.

Washington, Oct. 27.—To protect the Panama canal adequately, the Fifth regiment of infantry has been ordered to hold itself in readiness to move from Plattsburgh barracks, New York, to the canal zone without loss of time. The transport Buford, now at Vera Cruz, will be utilized to carry the regiment from New York to Panama. The movement of the Fifth regiment, which will augment the Tenth infantry, and three companies of coast artillery now in the canal zone, is to be made in order to repel any attack.

BIG COTTON CROP GINNED.

Washington, Oct. 27.—A report issued by the census bureau shows 7,610,682 bales, counting round as half bales, ginned from the growth of 1914 to October 18, compared with 5,973,518 for 1913, 5,874,206 for 1912, and 7,758,621 for 1911.

WINTER IN MICHIGAN.

Cadillac, Mich., Oct. 27.—Northern Michigan was visited by the first snowstorm of the year Monday, the temperature dropping from 70 to 30 degrees in less than twelve hours.

DOES NOT WANT EXTRA SESSION OF CONGRESS

Conditions Improving—Thinks All That Can Be Done is Now Being Accomplished.

Washington, Oct. 28.—President Wilson has no intention at this time of calling a special session of congress to precede the regular one in December, it was stated at the White House. He will consult with senate and house leaders directly after the November elections and his plans will be based on their advice.

The president recognizes that not all the important measures now pending in congress, including the Jones Philippine bill, the conservation measures, the seamen's bill, the ship purchase bill and others can be taken up at the regular session, which concludes its labors on March 4 next.

For this reason, a selection from the bills will have to be made and only the most important will be taken up.

The president states that he had not changed his attitude relating to the ship purchase bill, but that it might be pushed out of the way at the short session.

Optimism still is maintained by the president regarding the cotton situation. He said he was certain conditions would improve steadily in the South, and that all that can be done for the relief of the cotton growers is being done. He did not indicate that he believed further legislation would be required.

Cotton heads the list of noncontroversial articles President Wilson said, and for that reason probably will be admitted to all the belligerent nations. Reports have come to the administration that Great Britain will not place any obstacle in the way of cotton going to Germany. The president, however, said he had not heard officially of this declaration by Great Britain.

He made it plain that he did not think there was any money lacking in the South, but that the great trouble was in finding the exact basis of the security

Corporal Cruant of the French Infantry was discovered trying to sell to the enemy documents regarding the wireless installation on the Eiffel tower. He was discharged from the army with ignominy, publicly degraded and sentenced to life imprisonment. The photograph shows the traitor being marched out of the barracks after the ceremony of degradation.

LONDON INSURING AGAINST ZEPPELIN BOMBS

London.—Some well-known Americans in London are among those who have secured insurance against bombs. There is such a rush here for bomb insurance that the rates at Lloyd's took a decided upward leap, the highest being for properties near government buildings and the water front. Around such places the rate rose from five shillings to seven shillings six pence and even to ten shillings, which is a decided advance as the rate has been two shillings six pence per cent. One well-known broker said: "We have been swamped with requests for insuring houses against bombs. It is natural that in certain districts the rate should be higher than in others, because such points are considered objective points of the German attack, should they invade this country." One big firm offered a policy for

WAR TO COST TEN BILLIONS

French Authority Thinks It Will Last Seven Months and Check Economic Progress.

Paris.—Paul Leroy-Beaulieu, the economist, estimates that each of the greater belligerents is spending an average equivalent to $200,000,000 monthly.

In presenting these figures to the Academy of Moral and Political Sciences he said that he considered it probable that the war would continue seven months from August 1.

Accordingly the five greater powers engaged were committed to an expenditure of $7,000,000,000. Each of the smaller states, including Japan, will have expenses of $600,000,000 to $800,000,000 to meet.

M. Leroy-Beaulieu continued: "One might say that the war will cost the fighting powers roughly $9,000,000,000 to $10,000,000,000."

"These figures, which do not take into account the losses of revenues during hostilities, will be met, first, by the issuance of notes against the accumulated gold in the government banks; second, by the issuance of short term treasury bonds to which all governments are having recourse during the war, and third, by delaying payments for military necessities. "The larger part of the savings of the world will be absorbed by the taking up of national loans and economic progress will be seriously checked."

HOW GENERAL VON BUELOW WAS KILLED

One of the special correspondents of the Chicago News, learned the exact circumstances surrounding the death of General von Buelow at the battle of Haelen. At this battle a lad of eighteen, standing alone in a mass of dead, saw about one thousand yards distant an officer studying a map. The youngster crawled quickly amongst the corpses of his comrades until he was within 100 yards of the officer. Then he took careful aim and fired. The officer fell dead. Rushing up to the body the Belgian discovered to his surprise that it was that of General von Buelow. Taking off the general's boots and donning his uniform, he managed to pass through the German lines. As he approached the Belgian army he discarded the German helmet and put on his own cap in fear that he might be shot.

Maxims for German Soldiers.

According to Harry Hansen, correspondent of the Chicago News, these ten maxims have been laid down for the German soldiers:

No soldier can lead who has not first learned to obey.

The character of the discipline in an army augments or weakens its numerical strength.

A soldier insufficiently fed may be overcome without recourse to the sword.

Courage is worth more than cohorts.

The bravery and resourcefulness of an officer inoculates a thousand men. A soldier should wish to teach the enemy, not learn from him.

A good soldier defeats rather than reviles the enemy.

The soldier's worst enemies are presumptuousness and pride.

Subsequent examination of Von Buelow's garment led to German notes to the value of 135,000 francs being found in the vest pocket, and this money King Albert has turned over to the Red Cross organization.

In his jacket was a secret pocket containing memoranda full of interesting details. On hearing of the lad's brave deed King Albert, after presenting him with the dead general's horse and pocketbook, gave him on the spot the Order of the Knights of Leopold.

John Barleycorn gets his again.

Their heads are solid bone; but shoot the facts at 'em anyhow.

The Roosevelt administration increased appropriations $105,000,000 in a single year.

They've voted for all the other Democratic bills, but absolutely can't stand for a tax on beer and whiskey.

What the old guard Republicans really want and hope for is a return to tariff graft, wholesale. Any tax which doesn't pass along a little something on the side doesn't suit them.

The Democratic candidates, from Judge Karel down, are not making any explanations, but are making just a clean, open fight on extravagance and high taxes. Madison Democrat.

Total cash appropriations the last year of the Taft administration—$1,095,000,000. Total the first year of the Wilson administration—$1,109,000,000. Increase—$14,000,000. Horrible in view of the wise purposes for which the money has been allotted.

If this country were at war with Mexico, the cost would probably exceed $100,000,000. If we were drawn into war with another first class power, Congress would be compelled to give at least a billion as a starter. As it is a light tax on beer and whiskey foots the bill

Bob LaFollette, who stands at the head of the Progressives says that Philipp is unfit to be governor, yet the Milwaukee Journal (Alleged Progressive) keeps right on boosting for the president of the Union Refrigerator Co.

From $1,000,000 to $10,000,000! That is the jump that the state taxes have made under Republican misrule. Isn't it about time to give the Democrats an opportunity to look at the books at Madison.

Senator LaFollette, after telling of Philipp's activities around the legislative halls when the railroad commission bill was up, concludes with these words: "Can the people of Wisconsin trust the man to execute the law which as a lobbyist he opposed?"

If you want to reduce the cost of state administration, get rid of a useless lot of salary eating appointees whose heavy work is cashing state treasury warrants. Vote for Judge Karel and the Democratic state ticket in November—Fond du Lac Reporter.

Crying extravagance on the one hand, the Republican Congressional Committee on the other hand is out with a statement denouncing the Postmaster General Burleson's proposal to put the rural delivery service on a contract basis at a saving of $20,000,000 a year. Can you beat it?

The man who asserts that emergency taxation is unnecessary—imports are normal at a time when the principal nations of the world are unable to export anything—ought to be subjected to examination by a commission of inquiry to ascertain whether he is a fool, or a liar, or both. This paragraph has all the force of moderate statement.

"Harmony prevails everywhere" sweetly sings Alvin P. Kretsch, the new and trusting chairman of the Republican state committee, and after saying "goodby" to the interviewer he sits down, picks up his copy of the Free Press and learns that the Sentinel is again McGovern and is not playing fair with Philipp.

The Sheboygan Herald says Mr. Philipp if elected will not be able to reduce the taxes or abolish the commissions. It is evident Editor Gaffron is relying on the legislature being adverse to Mr. Philipp. Another good reason why the tax payers should vote the Democratic ticket this fall, thereby assisting in a thorough house cleaning.—Sheboygan Press

Judge Karel is consistent. Two years ago he advocated tax reduction. He occupies the same position today and in the two years that have passed since the last campaign the people have learned by bitter experience that the Republican victory in 1912 meant just what Judge Karel said it would mean—more extravagance and higher taxes.

Here is what is reported to have happened in a near-by city recently. Inspection of apothecary and jeweler scales by a state inspector. Small job, quickly finished. One day's work, salary and expenses. Four days later, inspection of grocer's scales by another state employee. Also small job, one day's work, one day's salary and expenses. Net result: Three employees, three day's work, three day's salary and expenses. All of which would have made one day's work, one day's salary and expenses for one man. Any connection between the apothecary and jeweler's work and the grocer's work, or the growth of your taxes, Mr. Voter?—Port Washington Star.

War Tax in Brief

In order to meet the deficit in the Government's income caused by a decrease in revenue receipts from importations, due to the European war, the Democratic party plans to raise temporarily $107,000,000 a year by direct taxation. More than one-half of this tax is to be raised from intoxicating beverages—beer, whisky, cordials, and so forth. Two-fifths of the other half is to be raised from financial transactions, such as bonds, debentures, stock, certificates, transfers and so forth.

promissory notes, conveyances and so on, which of the remaining $3,000,000 is to be raised from cosmetics and chewing gum, and another $3,000,000 is to be raised from tobacco.

The Republican party is opposing this tax, and by so doing would stifle the Government in its purposes by refusing it adequate money to meet its legitimate expenses.

THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY STANDS FOR THE GOVERNMENT.

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY STANDS FOR THE DISTILLERS, THE BREWERS, THE FINANCIAL INTERESTS AND THE TOBACCO TRUST.

FOR WHOM DO THE VOTERS STAND?

FARM ANIMALS

NOTES FOR SWINE BREEDERS

Excellent Ration for Sows Suckling Pigs is Found in Bran and Shorts—Corn Causes Thumps.

Shorts and bran make an excellent ration for sows that are suckling pigs. Of course they should always have clover or cowpea pasture if possible.

It is bad policy to wean young pigs suddenly and put them on cow's skimmed milk. The milk should be fed them very gradually at first and several times a day.

Once more we want to urge farmers not to feed too much corn to their young pigs, as thumps will surely result.

The best way to market corn is to first put it through a sifter and then sell it in the shape of fat animals.

Corn meal and skim milk will make greater gain in feeding hogs than anything else.

It is easier to insist on the other man carrying out our best ideas than it is to do the little things ourselves, but we can all do much better than we do if we take an interest in our work and keep close watch of every little detail that will promote the comfort of our animals. It is the comfortable animal that makes the best gains every time.

Do not be afraid to give the fall pigs plenty of range during the fall and winter time, providing that they have a comfortable feeding yard and a good, warm sleeping place.

Go slow on feeding new corn, better hold over a supply of old corn and gradually get them accustomed to the new corn before feeding them full rations.

A good sow should not be bred until she is reasonably well matured and generally a safe rule to follow is to let her be at least a year old when she farrows her first litter.

The Ambition of Mark Truitt

By HENRY RUSSELL MILLER

Author of "THE MAN HIGHER UP," "HIS RISE TO POWER," Etc.

CHAPTER XXIV—Continued.

Together he and Mark dragged Piotr to the cab and forced him within. Piotr, dazed by Mark's appearance, related but feebly.

Before the grim majesty of approaching death, even Piotr's madness was abashed. The supreme consciousness received back the atom that, when imprisoned in flesh, had been Roman. It was Kazia who saw.

"He is dead." The Matka uttered a low moan, then became silent again, resumed her rigid gazing at the not less still body. Piotr's hand passed over his eyes in a bewildered gesture. The woman who kept the door made the sign of the cross and went quietly out.

Kazia bent over to kiss Roman's forehead. Then Piotr came out of his daze. He caught her roughly and drew her back.

"No!" "Piotr!" "You're not fit to touch him." She wrenched and went slowly into the kitchen. Piotr followed.

He confronted her and Mark. "You can go now, both of you." "Oh, Piotr, not now!" Kazia began pleading. "The Matka needs me."

"We need nothing from you. We weren't good enough for you once. You left us to be a fine lady. Now we don't want you."

"But I came back and you wouldn't let me stay." "Yes, when you found that Jim Whiting could give you what you wanted. You thought you could use us then—as he did." He nodded toward Mark. "How," his teeth bared in an ugly accusing leer, "how did the Hunky girl get to be such a fine lady?"

"Be still!" Mark stepped close to him, sternly. "Isn't there any decency in that cracked mind of yours? Remember she came to me," he pointed toward the little bedroom, "when they needed some one. You were out filling the streets with your blackguardly rant. And whose money do you think had to keep them alive because you wouldn't do a man's work?"

"A man's work?" Piotr laughed, a horrible startling cackle. "To a cracked brain that isn't to betray and gouge and drive—" He broke off. "Do you mean it was her money?"

"Who else would have cared?" Piotr went back into the death room, clutched his mother by the shoulder and shook her cruelly. "Tell me," he cried in her tongue, "have you taken money from her—that woman—when I told you what she was?"

The Matka shrank back from his vehemence. "I had to—to buy things to keep him alive." Piotr, releasing her, stared, his mouth working queerly. "Even you're against me."

He went again slowly into the kitchen, taking up his hat from the table. He did not stop until he reached the door. There he turned, facing Kazia.

"You can have her now, I'm going." "He's crazy," Mark muttered. "Don't mind him." With an effort she recalled herself to the situation. "You had better go now. I must take care of the Matka. Will you please telephone to the hospital that I shan't be back tonight?"

"But I can't leave you alone here, while Piotr's at large. I'm going out to arrange for tomorrow. Then I'll come back here."

"It may be best," she agreed. Two hours later he returned and rapped lightly. Receiving no answer, he tried the door. It opened and he entered quietly.

Hanka lay on a narrow cot, in the sleep of exhaustion. In a chair by the table, head pillowed on one arm, Kazia, too, slept. She stirred uneasily as he entered, then became still. He tiptoed to another chair and began his lonely watch.

The night seemed endless. To sit motionless, looking at the relaxed form figure she made, became impossible. He rose and crept silently into the room where Roman lay. A single candle was burning low in its socket. By its faint flickering glow the waxen face and folded hands seemed not dead, but only at peace. Mark looked long at him, as though Roman held the answer to his questions. Once he leaned over, whispering.

"What have you found, Roman? Is it simple there? Is there a new birth in which mistakes can be paid for? . . . I want to pay."

CHAPTER XXV.

Payment. It was two days after the funeral. Mark had seen Kazia but for a few minutes, merely long enough to learn her new plans, and then Hanka had been present. Kazia proposed to take care of her, and that they might not have to be apart, to give up her fine position at the hospital; she thought she could obtain a new one that would take up only her days. She had, of course, to find a new apartment.

All day Hanka had been alone in the dismantled flat, thinking not of him who had come but of the woman who had assumed her protection. Often her head shook in troubled gesture. Hanka had not lost the habit of seeing and understanding many things from her shadowy corner. Not out of grief for the dead, she knew, had the look that haunted her come into Kazia's eyes.

The dinner was over, the dishes washed and put away; this being part of Hanka's share in the new division of labor. She went into the little bedroom whither Kazia had gone to dress. But at the door she stopped, motionless and face downward on the bed she started to steal away, then turned again and went timidly to the bedside.

She laid a gentle hand on Kazia's hair. "Little Kazia," she murmured, half frightened at her boldness, "what is troubling you?"

"Nothing, Matka," came the muffled answer. "Is it because of me? I don't want to be a burden. I can go."

"No, no! You mustn't leave me. I'm just tired." "Heart tired. Is it because of him—your lover?"

"I have no lover." Kazia rose wearily, and going to the mirror, began to take down her hair. The thick soft tresses fell tumbling around her. Hanka, in troubled wonder, watched the round arm that wielded the comb, the smooth firm shoulders. At Kazia's age Hanka had already begun to wither into an uncomeliness that men passed by undressing. She went over to the dressing woman and touched timidly the firm, still youthful flesh.

"You are like your mother." "What was she like?" "She was like you." Kazia did not smile. "Men saw her and wanted her."

"Did she love my father?" "Such a love I have never seen." It had been dark almost an hour when the bell rang. Hanka heard Kazia going to the door and a startled exclamation answered by a mellifluous voice Hanka did not know. The visitor was admitted and taken into the sitting room. To the kitchen came the murmur of Kazia's voice and his, chiefly his.

He had been there but a few minutes when his voice changed. It became eager, with an undertone that perturbed Hanka strangely. Once Kazia uttered a low hurt cry. Hanka rose and crept along the little hall. She crouched in the darkness near the sitting room door, listening intently and wishing she had not been so stupid about English.

"Am I an ogre?" the mellifluous voice was saying. "I do not love you."

"It is not a question of love. I am not old, but I have lived long enough to prick that illusion. We scientists know what love is."

"I don't care for you in any way," Kazia answered coldly. "Mr. Quinby, you oughtn't to be here. A man in your position—"

"My dear lady, let me remind you that the interest of a man in my position is not to be rejected lightly. With a word I gave you the best position your profession offers a woman. With a word I can take it away. I can remove you of the necessity of working at all. I can make it impossible for you to find work in this city."

"Threats—" "My dear lady!" the stranger's voice protested. "I would not do that. I would harm no one. I am a tender-hearted man. I, too, suffer, if by chance others suffer through me." The voice, vibrant with emotion, would have wrung tears of sympathy from a stone. But Hanka, as we have seen, could not weep. "I am only trying to show that those who enlist my interest do not lose by it."

"So you think I am for sale?" "Porgive me, my dear," said Quinby, "but that is gross. Say rather that, since you have struck a responsive chord in my breast, it will be my pleasure to be guardian of your welfare, to lift you out of the sordid struggle for existence. And have I not proved that? You lay in the hollow of my hand. With a breath I could have destroyed your reputation. But I kept silence. I advanced your interests, I held you tenderly in my heart. Woman, you have bewitched me. I want you."

Hanka understood at least his last words and she understood his tone. She crept closer and through the crack of the sitting room door saw Kazia elude Quinby's outstretched arms.

At the same moment she heard a halting step on the stairway. She opened the outer door and went out to meet Mark Truitt, whispering excitedly to him in Polish. When he, astonished by her appearance and emotion, would have spoken, she clapped a hand over his mouth, and clutching him by a sleeve, drew him into the hall. She pointed through the crack.

Again Quinby reached toward Kazia and again she recoiled. "Don't—don't touch me." "Why do you rebuff me? You're not an ignorant child. You must have known what my interest in the hospital and in you this year has meant. You wouldn't have taken my whip unless you were willing to give me what I want."

"What is it—what is it you want?"

"I want you to be to me what you have been to Truitt." "Am I—if I refuse?" "I have never yet told that I caught Truitt and a sun-browned woman alone in an Ottawa hotel under circumstances—I have no reason to love him. I have refrained from telling only for your sake. I—Why do you force me to say this? I have no wish to be brutal to you. Seeing you has turned my head. But you will not—surely you can not refuse."

She dropped back into a chair, covering her face with her hands. When she looked up, she wore again the strange rapt expression. "You said," she whispered chokingly, "you said—you would pay." "Yes, yes!" he cried eagerly. "You are trying to rob Mark Truitt—to force him out of the company. Will you—give that up?" Still in the same broken whisper.

"Even that. You are worth everything." "And will you give me time—to send him away—and never let him know?" "It is for you to make conditions. Ah! my dear—" In triumph Quinby stepped toward her and bent over to take her hand. "Don't do that!" said a voice behind him.

Quinby whirled. For a long silent minute the trio faced one another. Then Mark, white of face, hands working convulsively, went slowly to the stupefied Quinby, who seemed turned to stone. He did not resist even when Mark's hand leaped up and caught him cruelly by the throat. He was pressed back until his back met the wall. The grip tightened. Quinby's face grew purple. He squirmed and tried to cry out, but only a hoarse gurgle resulted.

Kazia came to herself. She sprang for her feet and caught Mark's arm, breaking his grip. "Don't hurt him. He's not worth it."

Gently, without taking his eyes from Quinby, Mark freed his arm from her clasp. But he did not touch Quinby again. The first murderous impulse died. He turned contemptuously away from him.

Quinby, released from the cruel hand and eyes, started across the room. Mark whirled upon him once more. "Stop!"

Quinby stopped. "This," he said weakly, "is a trap." "Set by yourself," Mark turned to Kazia with a helpless mirthless laugh. "What is my cue? Shall I kick him down stairs—or spring his dirty trap?"

"Let him go," she answered listlessly. Mark shook his head. "Not without paying. He said, grimly, 'he was willing to pay.'"

"I'm not afraid of you." "What can you say of me that isn't true of you?" "Ah!" Mark drew a sharp whistling breath. Quinby shrank back, his hands going protectively to his aching throat. "Now you shall pay. You—He broke off with a gesture of disgust. "I find I've no stomach for blackmail just now. He'll telephone Henley to come over. He'll know how to handle this situation."

Then Quinby was indeed fear-struck. He clutched Mark's arm tightly. "Don't tell him!" he quavered. "We can settle this ourselves. I didn't really intend to force you out of the company, only to—to frighten you a little."

Mark jerked his arm free. "So you're a coward as well as a fraud! But I knew that before. This is too sickening. You'd better go."

Quinby started again to go. "Wait!" Quinby waited. "You seem to be afraid of Henley. You have reason. Tomorrow at ten-thirty you have an engagement to meet him at his office—I have just made it for both of us. At eleven I will meet him. You know best what Henley in his present mood will do if he gets wind of your latest adventure in philanthropy. Now go."

Quinby went. The next morning, prompt on the hour, he kept his engagement with Henley.

A weakness for epigrams has defeated more than one fair project. After a discreet interval—long enough, as he thought, for the interment of the dead past—Jeremiah Quinby sought to revive the paleontological propaganda. He found that for once the public memory was long and laid more stress on the fatuous twins of production than on ichthyosaur and kindred monsters. The air was darkened with poisoned bars of satire and derision. There fell a great philanthropic, pierced to the heart. That is to say, Quinby retired from the realm of beneficence and his rival regained absolute once more.

A heavy troubled silence was in the little room. Kazia stood passively by the table, waiting for Mark to speak. After a long while he raised his eyes to hers.

"Kazia, you poor romantic fool! Did you think any amount of money was worth that—even if he had kept his word? When I think what—oh, how could you think of it?"

"I wanted," she answered in a queer lifeless voice, as if benumbed by this circle into which they had stumbled, "I wanted to do one thing for you—and your happy city."

"My happy city! What happiness could it have had, built on that? And I—didn't you give me enough?" "Only—"

"It was all I had to give. It wasn't enough."

"I wish I could have given as much as you." The wistful words slipped out.

He stepped closer to her. "Kazia, this has got to end." "Yes."

"You must marry me tomorrow." "Life, and with it pain, flickered once more.

"You are trying to give something more. But I'm glad you said that." "I'm asking you to give something more. You will?"

"Because I've hurt you enough. I did hurt you when I let you—led you to sin, even though we kept it a secret from the world. I want to make you happy—you said yourself we've broken a law. I want happiness—and I can't have it, knowing that for all I've taken from you I've given nothing."

She tried to smile; the sight of it cut to his heart. "Every reason but the one. But I'm glad you wouldn't lie to me now." The smile faded. "You see, I can't."

"Kazia, dear," he pleaded, "we started wrong—let's begin over again. Let's give love a new birth."

His voice rang with a longing she could not understand, but he could not touch her. She shook her head spiritlessly. "There can be no new birth so long as there is memory. You could never forget that I—that I am not clean."

"Do you think me so small as to hold my own fault against you? It is my sin, too." He stepped closer, reaching out his arms to take her. "Come, dear, your poor little reasons aren't enough."

She shrank away from his clasp, trembling. Into the tired white face came a look of fear and despair. She glanced this way and that, as though she sought an escape. Her hands went to her face. Then she forced them down and her eyes to his.

"I thought—I thought you understood me. I—wasn't clean—before we started. The doctor who helped me, I—"

Suspicion had not prepared him for this. He stared foolishly at her, showing how he recoiled from the fact her broken words had revealed. He did not then think it strange that the shame of a woman he did not love should stab so deeply.

"Kazia, how could you—how could you?"

After a while he forgot his own pain a little in pity for the silent stricken woman. Again his arms reached out for her and would not be denied.

"It must make no difference." His sternness was all for himself. "What am I to blame you for? You sold your body to live. I gave my soul to feel others squirming under my feet. You hurt only yourself. I've hurt every one I touched. I hurt you. If I hadn't been a coward years ago when we were first loved, you would never have been tempted. Your sin is only a part of mine. It is you who have most to forgive."

Slowly she raised her head to look at him. "And you," came a broken incredulous whisper, "and you would marry me—even now?"

"All the more now!"

For an instant a faint pitiable hope, defying knowledge, shone in her eyes. "Have I been mistaken? Only love could ignore—ah! not lie to me now. It wouldn't be kindness. Is it just pay—or love?"

He tried to look away from her and could not. Her eyes held his, seeking through them to hunt out the last truth hidden in his soul. With a rough convulsive movement he drew her head down on his shoulder.

"How can I know what it is? It must be love, since I need you and want to make you happy. If it isn't now, surely love will come when we start right. Kazia, don't refuse me the chance to make up to you a little of the harm I've done you."

Her answer was a stifled sob. He felt her body relax; her head rested heavily on his shoulder.

She released herself. He did not try to hold her. They faced each other in a heavy throbbing silence.

His soul quivered with the cruelty of it; it would have been infinitely easier for him if she had been the unhappy one. His words echoed mockingly in his ears, torturing him with their hopeless futility.

"You will not?" "You couldn't say it—and I don't want pay."

The sight of her had become more than he could endure. He turned away and dropped into a chair, letting his head fall to the table.

After a little he felt her hand gently smoothing his hair. And soon she began to weep in a voice unsteady at first but gathering strength as she went on.

"You mustn't reproach yourself. I know you'd love me if you could. And you mustn't think I refuse just for your sake. I'd do what you want—since you want it so much—only it would be misery for me always. You wouldn't want that. . . . And this—it seems I've always known it would come. It was a chance I took for a few months' happiness. I've had my happiness. . . . You haven't harmed me—I beg you to believe you haven't harmed me."

"Kazia—" "But the hoarse cry died away. There was nothing to say. His humiliation was complete. Magdalen that she was, he looked up to her from depths of self-abasement she could never know.

The voice was growing unsteady again. "When I think how it might have ended—if you hadn't come to-night—I'm glad you came—to save me from that. . . . And now—I think you had better—go. . . ."

CHAPTER XXVI. The Penitent. It was a red sunrise, that Sabbath morning, and the ruddy glow lingered in the eastern sky long after the sun had swung clear above the hills. A slanting shaft found his window and fell upon him as he dreamed. He stirred restively.

He awoke slowly, reluctantly, drifting toward consciousness through a golden haze that vibrated with far-away dwelling harmonies, into an heroic strain, clearly defined, as an army marching with song into battle—fit accompaniment to visions such as he had long believed could never visit his slumbered again. The resonance died away. His eyes opened to the red glory of the morning, then, quickly closed. He lay very still, trying to call back the harmonies, they seemed strangely familiar. But fancy was not equal to the task.

"Where have I heard that before?" After a little he remembered—a youth, full of dreams and credulous, joyously facing his great adventure.

"And tomorrow I set out on a new adventure. It was a long way from there to here. . . . I wonder, would any man, given the choice, travel his road a second time?"

He rose and went to the window. Two years had passed, crowded with effort, crowned with achievement. From the window where he stood, still seeking to recover the lost harmonies, he could see the beginning of his happy city, all ready for the great experiment.

He Felt Her Body Relax—Her Head Rested Heavily on His Shoulder.

Only the eye of hope could have seen there the thriving community he had once visualized. It was then but an unimposing village of simple homes laid out on the southern slope of the valley and to the windward of the mills, in the matter of size even the old Bethel had no room for jealousy.

And only an expert, crossing the new bridge and studying at close quarters the compact little plant on the northern bank, would have found there a promise as well as the supreme triumph of a man whose constructive gift had not been unknown.

More than one expert had come to spy out the land, seeking reasons to scoff, and had departed shaking their heads wonderingly. All agreed that, mad though the builder might be when he stepped out of his own field, only genius strangely fired could have devised this mechanical masterpiece. Some, carried away by their admiration, refused to admit even a partial insanity.

But the man at the window took no pride in his achievement. The holy flame of inspiration, warming genius to a new life, had brought with it none of the joy of creation. Toil, tremendous and persistent, though measured to his carefully hoarded strength, could not kindle ardor. Not as the crusader fights had he begun to build his city, but as a sinner whose humbling soul requires at once a torturing penance and a refuge.

He saw with fainting hope, with an eye that beheld only the chances of failure. In a sense it had already failed for him. Penance could not lighten penance. The glamour of his "big idea," conceived in a romantic, sentimental mood, had departed; nothing, he now believed, could restore it.

He bathed and dressed—in the new bathroom that was his own concession to the luxuriousness of the old life—and descended to the kitchen. The pleasant odor of frying ham met his nostrils; there was a hotel in Bethel now at which the Truitts generally had their meals, but sometimes, of a leisurely Sabbath morning, Simon still served as cook.

But the bent old man at the south window had forgotten breakfast. For a little Mark watched him without salutation.

"Good morning, father," he said at last. "Good morning, Mark." Simon turned reluctantly from the window. "I was just thinking it'll be 20 years tomorrow ye went away—20 years there's that."

"Yes, your dream has come true. If you live until tomorrow night you'll have seen it all—steel made in Bethel." "I'd like to live that long," Simon answered simply.

Mark smiled gently. More than once, lately, he had noted in Simon signs of a growing childishness.

"Much longer than that, I hope. Are you content?" Simon hesitated. "I reckon ye think I'd ought to be. It's come easy to me. All I had to do was to think about it an' wait fur ye to build the mills. But I wish I could give some'ing to 'em."

"You gave the idea. That's something. I suppose a good idea is never lost. You failed but kept the idea alive. I caught it from you and built the mills, adding my own idea. And I suppose some day somebody will take up my idea and make something of it." He smiled again. "Pretty reasonable, anyhow."

"Ye say ye may fall?" But Mark had taken Simon's place at the window and did not seem to hear the question. Simon did not press it then. He resumed his slow, methodical setting of the table.

Breakfast ready, they sat down and began the meal in silence. Mark ate lightly, absently.

Ever since Mark had returned, Simon had been vaguely sensible of a suffering to which some soothing word might be said. But the word would not come to his unchooled lips.

"I wish," Simon thought, "I could give him something."

It was a real suffering Simon sensed, no day without its hour of torment, no hour so heavy as on that Sabbath morning.

From across the town came a mellow clamor, the voice of the new church bell calling the faithful.

The clamor ceased and after an interval resumed for a few fast taps before he rose and went into the house for his hat and cane. When he emerged again he found Simon sitting on the front stoop.

"Go in' to church?" "I guess I'd better."

"Yes, Courtney likes ye to. Do ye," Simon asked suddenly, "still believe what he preaches?"

Mark hesitated a moment. "I suppose I never did. I'd like to, but I can't. It takes a certain quality of mind, I suppose—or early habit. I can't quite see—" There was that in Mark's tone which made Simon look up quickly. "I can't see the logic of letting another's suffering pay for our sins."

"Ye'll be late," Simon suggested. Doctor Hedges, driving along the valley road, drew up at the station until the eleven o'clock train, having discharged its Bethel passengers, sped onward. The passengers were two, a man and a woman, strangers to the doctor and therefore alien to Bethel. The woman stood on the otherwise deserted platform, looking uncertainly around her. The man made directly for the doctor.

"Do you," he demanded, "know where Mark Truitt lives?" "Why, yes." The doctor bestowed a friendly smile on the stranger. "I guess I do."

"Can you show me how to find it?" "Yes," Hedges glanced toward the woman; she was entering the station. "I can do better. I can take you there."

"If you will." And the stranger promptly entered the buggy. The doctor clucked to his horse and turned hospitably, with conversational intent, to his guest. But the latter forestalled him.

"Live here?" "Between whistles." "Ha!" The stranger smiled, a brief wintry smile. "Doctor, I see. Do you know Truitt?"

"Well," Hedges spat ruminatively, "that's a pretty risky thing to say of any man, but I guess—"

"What do they think of him here?" "They think he's a great man—and it's his own—"

"He's a great mechanic," said the guest shortly. "I," drawled the doctor, "know more about men than mechanics, but—"

"What do you think of him?" the guest interrupted again. The doctor, hoping to complete at least one sentence, quickened his drawl. "He's a man who's either losing himself or finding himself. I'm not sure—"

"Meaning?" "You wouldn't," chuckled the doctor, "have time for the explanation." He drew up before the little cottage. "He lives here."

"Hardly!" the visitor retorted. "I take the three o'clock train. Much obliged." He sprang, more briskly than his rotundity promised, out of the buggy.

The doctor drove away still chuckling. The chuckle would not have died even had he known his passenger to be none other than that Henley whose star, flashing with comet-like swiftness and brilliancy above the horizon of speculation, had in two years achieved full planetary dignity and importance. But the doctor was not a student of Wall street astronomy.

"Humph!" The luminary surveyed the weather-beaten little cottage with its unkempt yard and near-by smithy. "So he lives here. Affectation of course!"

He strode up the path and saluted the old man on the stoop. "Mr. Truitt lives here, I believe?" "I'm Simon Truitt. But I reckon ye want Mark, Mr. Henley."

"Ha! You know me. His father, I suppose?" "Yes. I saw ye once, years ago, when he was in the hospital."

"I remember," said Henley, who had forgotten that incident completely. "Ye Truitt about?"

"He's at church." "Church! Surely not a habit?" "He goes generally, since he come back."

"Hm! Something new for Truitt." Henley frowned. "And my time's short. I suppose I may as well save some of it by going over the plant now. There's no objection, I suppose?"

"No; I," Simon ventured uncertainly, "I was just about to go over myself."

"I'll be glad of your company," Henley graciously replied. "Shall we start?"

An hour later Henley emerged from the shadowy finishing mill, blinking hard in the rodday's sunshine and trying to revise his estimate of the situation.

He followed Simon out on a tiny cape that jutted into the river, whence they could see either evidences of Truitt's lucidity—the hospital, the bank, the store, the cluster of homes gleaming white on the hillside.

And Henley saw—not as the experts had seen, happy if they perceived all that had been reduced to fact—but with the eyes of one whose fastness was to see what might be, what could be. And as he looked part, at least, of Truitt's dream was unfolded before him. The valley a teeming, throbbing citadel of industry. The city clambering over the slopes, capturing the heights, reclaiming other slopes from the forest, until in length and breadth, in numbers and importance, it rivaled that other fastness where he, the master, had been known only as a lieutenant. The creator in him, not yet killed, but only obscured by the madness of exploitation, thrilled at the sight.

"He sees big," he muttered. "He sees big. I didn't think it was in him." He stood on the point, scanning thoughtfully the noble valley, forgetting his silent companion. "He's picked out a great site. . . ." And then to Henley came a vision of his own. That city and citadel his, creature of his genius and might, doing his bidding, yielding him homage and tribute, carrying forth his fame to the paling of lesser men's reputations, capital of an empire—his empire. "By God!" he breathed aloud. "By God!" And it's possible—how did the builders of cities overlook this place? It would be better than, doing faker's tricks with stocks and bonds. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

I Want Some of THE BLACK SHELLS

The primer of THE BLACK SHELLS is known as the non-mercuric primer, to distinguish it from the mechanical mixture of fulminate of mercury (which is heavy) and powdered glass (which is not heavy).

THE BLACK SHELLS primer is a strictly chemical combination and so is sure, quick and uniform—always uniform.

Our flash passage is double the usual size, allowing all of the fiercely hot primer flame to rush into the main charge. This develops the very utmost force from the powder and gives a long-distance killing power that will amaze you.

At the traps, and in the stubble-field, the man who begins to shoot THE BLACK SHELLS finds

MRS. THOMSON TELLS WOMEN

How She Was Helped During Change of Life by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I am just 52 years of age and during Change of Life I suffered for six years terribly. I tried several doctors but none seemed to give me any relief. Every month the pains were intense in both sides, and made me so weak that I had to go to bed. At last a friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to me and I tried it at once and found much relief. After that I had no pains at all and could do my housework and shopping the same as always. For years I have praised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for what it has done for me, and shall always recommend it as a woman's friend. You are at liberty to use my letter in any way." Mrs. Thomson, 645 W. Russell St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Change of life is one of the most critical periods of a woman's existence. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to carry women so successfully through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

LAUGHTER WILL COME BACK

World is Not Always to Stagger Under the Overwhelming Devastation of the War.

Some people wonder why theaters are running during the awful world tragedy which is being enacted in Europe. The reason why they ought to run is well stated by John Palmer in the Saturday Review.

"Let the theater still exist to remind us that the war will pass; that laughter will come back to the world; that art will one day be restored; that we shall not always stand at the edge of ruin; that it is not necessary to dwell forever with grave faces, self-consciously in the shadow of distress. Thereby we shall help to keep our country in sane mind and good heart in these coming days and destroy in its cradle the infant assumption of our entertainers that one theme alone is able at this time to possess us."

"This war will never, so long as it lasts, be in a less degree the commanding fact of our lives. But we need not, therefore, act like stunned creatures and play continually with one fixed idea. We have to keep our sense of proportion. We must hold on to our humor and keep it bright; and the theater is going to continue, must help us in this."

Designation Needed. Will not Professor Lounsbury, Ambrose Bierce, Mr. Herrick or some other watchdog of the linguistic treasury, invent some word to designate accurate an assemblage of persons who go to see a moving picture show. "Audience" is presumably taboo for such a company, and "crowd" doesn't sound right or natural, while "assemblage" and "company" are wide of the mark. Probably the scope of the commonly accepted and familiar "audience" will have to be extended for the purpose.

MASONS WILL OPEN CONCLAVE NOV. 16

ELABORATE PROGRAM OF DEGREE WORK TO BE STAGED IN MILWAUKEE.

TO CONFER MANY DEGREES

800 Members From Wisconsin Lodges Are Expected to be in Attendance—Closing Session to be Held Nov. 19.

Milwaukee.—The 51st annual reunion of the Wisconsin consistory of the Ancient Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry for the northern masonic jurisdiction of the United States, will be held in the Scottish Rite cathedral, Milwaukee, Nov. 16, 17, 18 and 19. Beginning Nov. 16, the Wisconsin Lodge of Perfection will confer the fourth, fifth, sixth and ninth degrees. In the evening, the fourteenth degree, grand elect mason, will be conferred. Music will be provided by the consistory choir.

On Tuesday the Wisconsin council, Princes of Jerusalem, will confer the fifteenth degree, Knight of the East or Sword, after which the sixteenth degree, Prince of Jerusalem, will be conferred. In the evening the Wisconsin chapter of the Rose of Croix will assemble, and confer the seventeenth degree, Knight of the East and West, followed by the eighteenth degree, Knight of the Rose of Croix.

On Wednesday the Wisconsin consistory, Valley of Milwaukee, will convene and confer the nineteenth degree, Grand Pontiff James E. Durgin; followed by the twentieth degree, Master of Vitan, Leo F. Nohl; followed by the twenty-first Prussian Knight or Noachite will be given, and the twenty-seventh degree, Knight Commander of the Temple, will be conferred in the evening.

The closing sessions will take place on Thursday afternoon, when the thirty-first degree Inspector Inquisitor Commander will be conferred. At 3:30 p. m. the thirty-second degree, Sublime Prince of the Royal Secret, will be conferred.

It is expected that more than 800 Masons from the state will attend the ceremonies.

FARMERS PLAN WOLF HUNT

Plan to Capture Band of Twenty Animals Near Haugen—Show No Fear of People.

Haugen.—A great wolf "roundup," one of the first to be held in northern Wisconsin in years, is planned by the farmers in this vicinity.

For several months a band of twenty or more wolves has been causing farmers considerable worry because of increasing losses from raids on their stock and poultry yards. Emboldened by their success on foraging trips the animals now show little fear of people.

If the whole band of twenty wolves is bagged the hunters will be entitled to bounty amounting to $400, half of which must be paid by the county and half by the state.

Start Timber Estimate. Sheboygan.—A crew of fifty men is engaged in estimating the timber on the Menominee reservation, according to information received here by manufacturers. There has been considerable dispute as to just how much timber there is on the reservation. Some time ago a sum of $10,000 was appropriated by the government to be used in ascertaining the amount. It probably will take six months to complete the work. Supt. Nicholson is in charge and has pitched camp in the woods to make a thorough job. It is estimated there is more standing white pine on the Menominee reservation than in any other place in the United States, and it is worth a fortune.

Lumberman Becomes Pastor. Sheboygan.—The Rev. George Bock, a former Lutheran minister of Wisconsin and Minnesota, who retired several years ago and engaged in business here with the Freyher Lumber company, was installed as pastor of the Evangelical churches of Tipton and Wittenberg.

Chinese Enters Beloit. Beloit.—C. Y. Tang, 16-year-old son of President Tang of the Imperial Institute of Technology at Shanghai, China, has entered in the freshman class of Beloit college. Tang is the first Chinese ever to enter college here.

Train Kills Pioneer Farmer. New Richmond.—Louis Christenson, 69 years old, a farmer, many years a resident of the town of Star Prairie and Stanton, was run down and killed by a No. 1 passenger train near St. Paul.

New Bank in Polk County. Madison.—The state banking commissioner has approved articles of incorporation of the Bank of Dresser Junction, Polk county. The bank is capitalized at $10,000.

Form Potato Club. Superior.—Farmers of the town of Superior, the portion of Douglas county adjoining Superior city on the south, will form a potato club, which later will affiliate with a county cooperative organization.

Will Make Paper Pails. Neenah.—The plant formerly occupied here by the Menasha Woolen Mills company has been rebuilt and machinery installed for the manufacture of paper pails.

KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Car Driven Over Fifty-Foot Bridge at Night—Fog Believed Responsible for Accident.

Madison.—One man was killed and another probably fatally injured when an automobile in which they were riding went over a fifty foot embankment and rolled onto the Chicago & Northwestern tracks, where it was struck by a train.

Carl Thorstad, proprietor of the Northwestern hotel of Madison, was pinned under the car and died instantly. Albert Lee, Marshall, who was employed in Thorstad's hotel, was dying in the General hospital here, where he was brought following the accident. Both his legs are broken and he is internally injured. Physicians hold out no hope for his recovery.

The accident occurred near Mendota, about a mile north of here. A thick fog is believed to have been responsible for the tragedy.

Apparently the machine was going at a high rate of speed. The road at this point is narrow, and after crossing a high bridge over the railroad tracks there is a sharp turn. The driver of the car was either unfamiliar with the road or was blinded by fog.

The accident was discovered by the crew of Northwestern train No. 502 when the engine struck the automobile. The train was stopped.

HEADS MISSIONARY SOCIETY

Methodist Society of Appleton District Names Mrs. C. R. Bulley President at Wausau Meeting.

Wausau.—The meeting of the Methodist Foreign Missionary society of the Appleton district elected officers as follows: President, Mrs. C. R. Bulley, Green Bay; vice president, Mrs. A. Newling, Green Bay; recording secretary, Mrs. Cora Martin, Green Bay; corresponding secretary, Mrs. H. S. Cooke, Kaukauna; treasurer, Mrs. C. F. Flook, Wausau; superintendent of young people's work, Miss M. Hart, Appleton; superintendent of children's work, Miss E. Herschleb, Grand Rapids; and superintendent of literature, Mrs. F. H. Brigham, Appleton.

River Clammers Quit. La Crosse.—The European war has struck rivermen in La Crosse a hard blow. Fall clamming on the Mississippi river, in which occupation a large number of men were employed, has entirely stopped. No Mississippi river shells are being exported and the home markets have a large supply on hand. Shells, which brought from $16 to $20 a ton are now selling from $5 to $10 a ton and the demand for them is so slight that clambers have been obliged to resort to other work.

Cannot Build Bridge. Madison.—The state of Wisconsin will not be permitted to pay $50,000 for the erection and maintenance of a wagon bridge across the Wisconsin river at Merrimac as authorized by Chapter 538 of the laws of 1913. The supreme court has held that that law is unconstitutional because it is a special law, relating to the subject of taxation.

May Surrender Charter. Grand Rapids.—The G. A. R. post of Marshfield, known as the James G. Blaine Post No. 110, will probably disband, according to an announcement made by Commander J. L. Hutton. The Marshfield post was founded more than thirty years ago. Former Gov. W. H. Upham was its first commander. Now there are so few members left that the general sentiment seems in favor of surrendering their charter.

Given $7,260 Damages. Green Bay.—Rasmus Tarcaak, a Russian Pole, 18 years old, whose right arm, with the finger of his left hand, was taken off when he fell under a Chicago and Northwestern passenger train at Suring, was awarded damages amounting to $7,260 by a jury in Circuit court. This is said to be the largest amount ever awarded in a personal injury suit in Brown county.

Heart Failure Proves Fatal. Berlin.—Joseph Schenner, 55 years old, a retired farmer living in this city, dropped dead on Monday of heart failure. He leaves a widow and grown children.

Animal Gores Farmer. Antigo.—Terribly gored by a Jersey bull, William Oldenberg, a farmer in the town of Antigo, is hovering between life and death. Physicians offer little hope for his recovery.

Reading Stimulated by War. Sheboygan.—The war has caused an increased demand at the library for all kinds of literature treating on Europe, especially military affairs in the warring countries.

Potatoes at Sixty Cents. Neenah.—It is estimated that 50,000 bushels of potatoes have been hauled through here this season, many of which were marketed in this locality. Farmers are getting a price of from 50 to 60 cents a bushel.

New Pastor at Wausau. Wausau.—The Rev. John Hauck, pastor of the St. James church at Menomonie, has been appointed pastor of St. Mary's church to succeed the Rev. Gasper.

Cascade Becomes Village. Cascade.—At the session of the circuit court held by Judge Kirwan here, an order was signed by the court for the incorporation of the village of Cascade. This place has a population of about 350.

Fiber Company Asks Receiver. Kaukauna.—Application for a receivership for the Kaukauna Fiber company has been filed. It has been requested that the court appoint F. J. Edmonds as receiver.

Pastor Dies Suddenly. Sheboygan.—The Rev. Calvin H. Schneider, 55 years old, who succeeded his father as pastor of the Immanuel church at Franklin a few years ago, died suddenly. He is survived by a wife and six children.

Downs in Cedar Lake. Sheboygan.—Joseph Thibien, 30 years old, drowned in Cedar lake when the rowboat in which he and several companions were crossing the lake capsized from the overload.

MADISON STUDENT HELD UP AND SHOT

M. L. SHEFFER REFUSES TO GIVE UP MONEY AND IS SERIOUSLY WOUNDED.

FIVE OTHERS ARE ROBBED

Highwaymen Make Escape After Bold Raid Near University Grounds—Secure Small Amount of Loot From Victims.

Madison.—M. L. Sheffer of Morganfield, Ky., a first year student in the University of Wisconsin, was held up and shot by two highwaymen a block from Dean H. L. Russell's house on the university grounds.

After being shot and robbed, Sheffer walked to Dean Russell's house and was later taken to the general city hospital, where surgeons performed an operation in the hope of saving his life. At the hospital it was said that Sheffer had only a slight chance of recovering.

The robbers took $11 and a gold watch from Sheffer and fled into the darkness. Earlier in the evening the highwaymen held up three other students and took small sums of money from them.

After shooting Sheffer, the highwaymen held up and robbed Frank E. Downs of Hurley and John C. Kyle of Menomonie, two students who happened to be walking on the lake shore drive near the place where Sheffer was attacked. The robbers wore black masks over the upper part of their faces.

BADGER ELEVEN WINS 7-6

Defeat Ohio State in Close Contest at Columbus—Both Score in Second Quarter.

Madison.—Wisconsin defeated Ohio State in the game at Columbus by the close score of 7 to 6. The Ohio eleven was in the best possible shape, while the Badgers were somewhat weakened by the absence of Mucks, Schmidt and Kreuse. The weather was ideal for the game, and a big crowd turned out to witness the conflict.

Several times during the first period Ohio State carried the ball within striking distance of the goal, but each time lost the ball. By a series of forward passes, State carried the ball from her own thirty-five yard line to Wisconsin's nine-yard line, where the ball went to Wisconsin on downs.

Both teams scored during the second period. On a punt formation, a short forward pass, Pickeler to Snyder, Ohio State got a touchdown. Immediately following an intercepted forward pass gave Wisconsin the ball on Ohio's 30 yard line. A forward pass for 18 yards and two line plays gave Wisconsin a touchdown, which converted into a goal. Score end of second period: Wisconsin, 7; Ohio State, 6.

Neither side scored during the third and fourth periods.

AUTO IS STRUCK BY TRAIN

One Killed and Three Injured in Accident Near Neenah—Engine Dies on Tracks.

Neenah.—George Meyer, 8 years old, is dead and a woman and girl may not recover from injuries received when the automobile in which they were riding suddenly "died" while going over the Soo line railroad crossing, five miles from the city, and was struck by an oncoming train.

Mrs. Rusk Brown and her daughter, Miss Gertrude Brown, occupants of the machine, are in a hospital and are not expected to survive. Mr. Brown, who drove the car, also is in the hospital, but his injuries were not considered serious.

The engineer said the collision was unavoidable, as he applies the airbrakes as soon as he noticed the automobile.

W. R. C. Select Tomah.

Portage.—Tomah was selected as the place of holding the next district W. R. C. convention and Mrs. Graham of Tomah was chosen president. Corps from Columbus, Fall River, Pardeeville, Mauston, Tomah, Kibbourn and Portage had delegates present. The department Commander Mrs. F. B. Noyes of Madison inspected the local corps during the convention.

Open Branch Library. Port Edwards.—A branch of the T. B. Scott library of Grand Rapids has opened here and for the present will be located in the postoffice.

Work for Idle Men. Racine.—Upon the understanding that only unemployed married men be given work, the city council has ordered the sale of enough bonds to pay the cost of laying three trunk sewers, work to begin at once.

May Lose Eyesight. Sheboygan.—While repairing a gas heater in a private residence, Fred Brand, a plumber, was badly burned about the face. It is feared he may lose the sight of an eye.

Pastor Dies Suddenly. Sheboygan.—The Rev. Calvin H. Schneider, 55 years old, who succeeded his father as pastor of the Immanuel church at Franklin a few years ago, died suddenly. He is survived by a wife and six children.

Downs in Cedar Lake. Sheboygan.—Joseph Thibien, 30 years old, drowned in Cedar lake when the rowboat in which he and several companions were crossing the lake capsized from the overload.

DAIRY FACTS

DO NOT CHANGE THE BREEDS

Some Good Cows May Be Obtained, But There Will Be Lack of Uniformity of Production.

To change breeds every now and then is poor practice. One should be very careful before the particular breed is chosen. To use a Holstein sire one year in order to obtain a large flow of milk, a Guernsey sire another year to secure richness of milk, and a Shorthorn sire the next time to obtain more beef in the offspring, is the wrong principle to employ in the breeding and raising of good cows.

Undoubtedly some good cows will be obtained in the herd from such methods of procedure, but there will be no uniformity of size, form, appearance and production, and the owner has no assurance of what he is going to get in the future. It is a case of too many in the mixture, and it is guess work as to which one will come to the top.

First, select the breed with great care, then stick to it. If a mistake is made the first time in obtaining poor specimens, and poor producers, then rectify the mistake as soon as possible by selecting the right kind of a sire belonging to the same breed to head the herd, or by selling the animals already bought, and purchasing better individuals belonging to the same breed.

It is usually safer to try to improve within the same breed than it is to improve by changing to a different breed. There are good individuals and good strains within any of the breeds intended for a particular purpose.

HOLSTEINS ARE IN DEMAND

Popular Among Dairy Breeds Because They Bring in Most Profit—Hardy and Profitable.

Holstein-Friesians are very popular among the dairy breeds. They produce great quantities of good milk at low cost, are hardy, healthy, handsome and prolific, and when one is through with the old cow as a milk machine there is plenty of meat for beef or hogs. The Holsteins have won their way on merit and good advertising, and they will stay to the front because in the estimation of practical farmers they bring in the greatest profit, says Farm and Home.

Of late there has been a tendency to unduly magnify certain lines of Holstein breeding and to push prices to high marks—in other words a boom, in which prices with four and five figures are common. It may be that bull calves are worth $10,000 to $20,000 each, but no one is justified by past experience in paying any such amount of real money unless he can afford to lose it. When cows sell for several thousand dollars, they become the rich man's plaything, rather than the poor man's support.

Agreement is Far Away. The pros and cons of dairying are likely to be discussed for a long time before an agreement is reached; and, in the meantime, the cow is pushing herself to the front in regions where she has not been highly esteemed.

Keeping Unprofitable Cows. If you had a hired man who was not earning enough to pay his board would you keep him long? Then why do you keep the cow that does not make enough milk to pay for her keep? Many farmers are doing just that thing.

DAIRY NOTES

Young calves must be given every opportunity for health and growth.

Avoid putting too many cows in one pasture to reduce the feed to the smallest quantity for each cow.

Don't neglect any broken wires in the barbed wire fence where the dairy herd is pastured. Cut udders are not profitable.

If there is the least idea in your mind that any of your cows are troubled with tuberculosis, use the test at once.

When possible test the cow's milk before buying her, and remember it does not pay to buy a cow whose milk tests much below three per cent.

The cow and calf should be gradually weaned from each other, and to that end their quarters, when separated, should be in proximity to each other.

There is no more sentiment about a cow than there is about a hen. Both are mere machines to turn out a delicious product and it devolves upon the person who runs the machine to get results.

We once saw a farm laborer hit a fan cow with a club because she broke through a light fence to reach an armful of green fodder. The next thing we saw was the man going down the lane toward the town carrying his grip.

BRITISH MEDALS OF HONOR

Coveted Decorations Awarded for Exceptionally Meritorious Work in Military Service.

We are so frequently confronted in the newspapers at the present time with General So-and-So, V. C., or D. S. O., or other cryptic combination of letters following the name, that it may be of interest to have the key to some of the medals. In the English army there are three principal decorations. The foremost and most coveted is the V. C. (Victoria Cross), which either officers or men can attain by a deed of unadorned gallantry or heroism. The D. S. O. (Distinguished Service Order) is a distinction conferred on commissioned officers who have been mentioned in dispatches for especially meritorious service in the field before the enemy.

The D. C. M., or Distinguished Conduct Medal, we hear less of, as it is a decoration awarded more to the non-commissioned ranks. As in the case of the D. S. O., it is given for personal distinction on the fighting line.

NEARLY CRAZY WITH ECZEMA. 354 Plum St., Youngstown, Ohio.—"Blotches like ringworms started to come out all over my face and neck. Later it took the form of white flakes and when I would rub them away it would come out again. I was ashamed to go out anywhere. It itched all the time and whenever I perspired or got my face the least bit wet, it would burn until I was nearly crazy. The more I rubbed or scratched the more it spread and it made me so restless I could not sleep at night."

"One day a friend prevailed upon me to get a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. They caused the itching to stop instantly and in a very few days my face and neck began to show a marked improvement. I used three cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment and my face and neck are completely cured."

Boils Biliousness Malaria Constipation. Perhaps this case may be similar to yours. J. Wesley Tilly of (Box 673), Salina, Cal., writes: "Gentlemen—It gives me much pleasure to be able to send you a testimonial, if by its reading some sufferer your medicines will do as much for him as they have for me. At the age of fourteen I was troubled with a great deal with malaria and biliousness, accompanied with the worst sort of large boils. I was persuaded by my parents, who have always been strong believers in Dr. Pierce's remedies, to try the Golden Medical Discovery. I took one bottle and the boils all disappeared, but I did not stop at one bottle. I took three and the malaria all left me and I have had no more boils to this day. Thanks to the Golden Medical Discovery for my relief."

Scrapple Season.

Dr. Cyrus Townsend Brady, the eminent novelist and divine, said in New York one brisk October day:

"This is the scrapple season, the scrapple season par excellence. It is, however, only in Philadelphia that one can really enjoy scrapple. For Philadelphia is the home of scrapple, and elsewhere the delectable dish is suspect."

Doctor Brady laughed. "For the perfect enjoyment of love," he said, "there must be perfect confidence—and this is also true of scrapple."

A NATURAL neighborly friendship and good-will leads your tobacco chewer to tell his friends about "Right-Cut", the Real Tobacco Chew.

And it's welcome news to the man who hears it—just as it was to you. "Right-Cut" gives the satisfying taste of rich, sappy tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough.

Take a very small chew—less than one-quarter the old size. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just nibble on it until you find the strength chew that suits you. Tuck it away. Then let it rest. See how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies without grinding, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

It is a ready chew, cut fine and short ahead so that you won't have to grind on it with your teeth. Grinding on ordinary caudled tobacco makes you spit too much.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up with molasses and horset. Notice how the salt brings out the tobacco taste in "Right-Cut".

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

Big Ben should be in every farmer's home

You men who live on the farm have got to be heavy workers. And if you are heavy workers you require heavy sleep and lots of it.

For heavy sleep is heavy work's reaction and it's not always easy for the heavy sleeper to get up without help.

That's where Big Ben comes in. He makes it easy every morning.

Big Ben is a truth-telling and reliable alarm clock.

He gets you up, he never fails. You're always up on the dot if he's in the sleeping room.

See him in my window next time you come to town. Hear him greet you Good Morning. He is well worth meeting, indeed.
