AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

Fire at 2:15 o'clock last Friday morning threatened destruction of farm buildings on the Tony Berres farm on the Beaver Dam road a mile west of Barton. ANOTHER RUSSIAN STRONGHOLD CAPTURED

View of Grodno, just captured by the German forces. It was the last Russian stronghold on the Kovno-Brest-Litovsk defense line to give in to the invaders.

GALICIAN OIL WELLS FIRED BY THE RUSSIANS

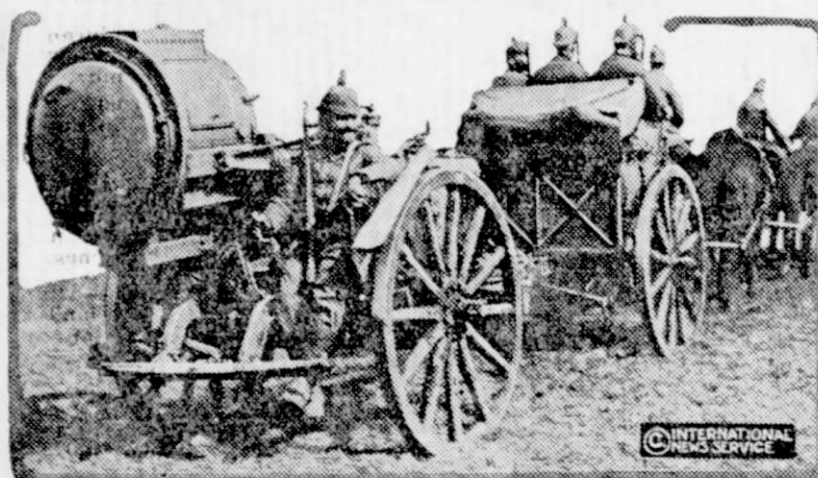

When the Russians captured part of Galicia, with the oil fields at Boryslav, their oil supply was at such a low state that they drew on the wells to their utmost capacity. The Austrians, cut off completely from their main supply of oil, fought desperately to drive the Russians out. This they succeeded in doing only to find on their return to Boryslav, the oil wells on fire. This remarkable picture of the progress of the fire was made shortly after they had been fired by the retreating Russians. The boring towers in the foreground were blown up by the czar's army.

AUSTRALIAN FIRING A TRENCH MORTAR

This remarkable looking weapon, which is being used with telling effect against the Turks in the Dardanelles campaign, is a trench mortar, one of the new engines of war which has been brought into play during the present European war. It is mounted on boxes, and judging from the way it is handled when fired there is considerable risk to the pointer or operator of the weapon, for while one arm directs the fire of the mortar the other arm pulls the slug which sets it off.

GERMAN SEARCHLIGHT CORPS

The armies in Europe regularly use searchlights in meeting night attacks. Part of a German searchlight corps is here shown on its way to a point of expected attack.

HYGIENIC RULES IN ARMY

Soldiers Are Well Instructed on Subjects Which Concern the Preservation of Their Health.

The modern soldier is instructed not to expose his head to the direct rays of the sun and never to sleep on damp ground if it is possible to obtain branches or straw to cover it. He is warned against drinking too frequently or too freely while on the march, and is given such useful hints as that of holding a leaf or pebble in the mouth when no water is available. In a word, he is instructed in the common-sense rules of hygiene which science has evolved. The modern idea of prevention rather than cure has also changed the position of the medical corps during the advance of an army. Formerly the surgeons remained in the rear to care for the wounded; now a number of doctors accompany the first advance to inspect the wells and test the drinking water which must be used

BUSY RECRUITING SERGEANT

Enlistments of late in England have not been as numerous as they should have been and Sergt. Jimmy Cash, mascot of the Fourth City of London battalion, is just downright peeved. And he holds out dire threats to the men he meets who have not yet volunteered their services for the front. "Why is it that no two scientists seem to agree on any subject?" "Perhaps if all agreed there would be no excuse for more than one to make himself heard."

Spring Her Feelings.
"Is there anything I can do to relieve your distress, my poor woman?" asked the stylishly-dressed visitor.
"Yes, ma'am," replied the emaciated tenement dweller. "When you go out you might tell the people in the hall that you're a friend of mine and not a charity worker."

A Possible Reason.
"Why is it that no two scientists seem to agree on any subject?"
"Perhaps if all agreed there would be no excuse for more than one to make himself heard."

by the troops. The drinking places are labeled in three ways, according to the results of the tests: "Pure drinking water," "Filter and boil before drinking," "Use for washing only, not drinking." Occasionally there will appear the sign, "Beware—Poison," which speaks for itself. But the triumphs of modern medical science do not eclipse the triumphs of modern surgery, both in preventing death and in bringing about the rapid healing of the wounded.

An Insuperable Objection.
Nell—I wouldn't marry the best man living.
Belle—But, you know, nobody ever expects the bride to marry the best man.

Use Much Cottonseed Oil.
Today the cotton fields of the United States have to a great extent replaced in our economic system the olive groves of the Mediterranean district. The oil is a first-class edible product and the cake after crushing the seed constitutes an equally valuable cattle feed.

Guided by Instinct.
If a chimpanzee is wounded it stops the bleeding by placing its hand on the wound, or dressing it with leaves and grass.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS

Pessimists are misfortune tellers.
However, lovers should never be too good to be true.
There is a lot of sentiment in the squeeze of the hand by the right person.
Many an otherwise truthful man lies about the good time he had while camping out.

ENGLISH WOMEN MAKING HAY LIKE THE MEN

MAKING GERMANS OUT OF THE POLES

In the wake of the German armies in Poland there are being established German schools for the instruction of the conquered people. Evidently the powers that be in Germany believe that by getting the younger generation at the right time, they will Germanize them thoroughly. A group of Polish children are seen here in one of the open-air schools receiving instruction from their German schoolmasters.

BERSAGLIERI WITH BICYCLES

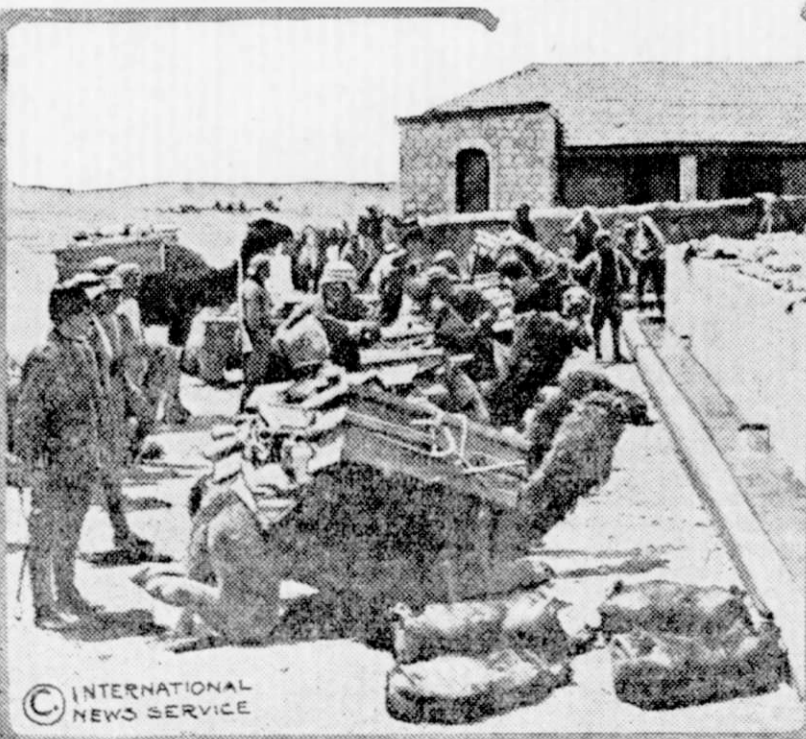

Despite the mountainous nature of the country in which they are fighting, the Italian troops find much use for the bicycle. Two men of the Bersaglieri are here shown equipped with folding cycles, which are carried on the back when not in use.

MASCOT UNDER ARREST

Michael, the mascot of the Second and Sixth battalions of the Royal Fusiliers, put under arrest for misbehaving himself. On his forehead is the silver shield presented to him by the marquis of Anglesley.

VICTIM OF NATURE'S RAGE

Lighthouse on Louisiana Coast So Badly Damaged It Will Have to Be Abandoned.

Undermined by one of the terrific hurricanes of the Mexican gulf, the Chandeleur lighthouse on the Louisiana coast is endeavoring to rival the gravely-defying performance of the leaning tower of Pisa, in Italy. Driven many feet out of plumb by the tornado, the tower is being swung farther and farther from the perpendicular by the action of the tides on the foundations, which rest upon nothing more stable than sand.

Despairing of ever restoring the lighthouse to its original upright position, the station has been abandoned by the United States lighthouse service and another established elsewhere. Aided by the action of the restless tides, the irresistible "pull" of gravity will soon complete its work and the tower will scatter its stones upon the sands. Already the strain is beginning Tells Fish Story.

Henry Weller tells one on Toke Bonner, popular clerk at the courthouse, who is running for the board of revenue.

"While on a fishing trip on Turkey creek with Mr. Bonner," said Mr. Weller, "I was not having any luck, so kept moving up stream in an effort to land something, when, to my surprise, Bonner called out to me to come and look at the long string of sardines he had caught. I immediately went to see this marvel of marvels—sardines from Turkey creek.
"When I got down to where the proud Toke stood holding his string of fish in one hand and his pole bobbing up and down in the other, what should I see but the very selfsame spot talls that I had been moving up stream all day to avoid. Still Mr. Bonner continues to boast of his string of sardines."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Accounting for It.
"What a flow of spirits your friend has!"
"No wonder. He's in the liquor business."

Stimulating Contempt of Court.

A case was appealed to the United States Supreme court because in one of the necessary papers in a murder case the clerk had made the date 1903 instead of 1913. He had used an old blank with the "190—" printed, which accounted for the mistake. This is a sample of legal technicalities carried to absurd ends.—Pittsburgh Sun.
