RICHTER GIVEN BACK HIS SEAT

Supreme Court Rules Law Doing Away With Fond du Lac County Court is Void

Judge A. E. Richter will go back on his bench in the county court in Fond du Lac county.

The supreme court on Tuesday granted a writ of certiorari against F. W. Chadbourne. Justice Vinje in the opinion of the court said: "We think the title of Chapters 518 and 539 of the laws of 1915, though liberally construed, fail to meet the requirements of the basic law. Hence, they are declared invalid. They are void not only insofar as they affect the county court but in toto because we cannot assume the legislature would have created a superior court in Fond du Lac county without abolishing the county court. The two are so interrelated that the said office must stand or fall together. Statutes void in their main purpose or void as to a substantial or close interrelation with their substantial parts thereof are void in toto.

Chadbourne is Ousted

"By the court it is considered, ordered and adjudged that the defendant F. W. Chadbourne has not a right to the office of county judge of Fond du Lac county or to the exercise of the functions or duties thereof and that he be ousted and excluded therefrom; and that the relator, A. E. Richter, is and has been since the first day of September, 1915, entitled to the said office by virtue of the election and qualifications alleged in the complaint and to the franchise, privileges and emoluments thereof and that he have and recover of the defendant, F. W. Chadbourne, his costs of this action, to be taxed by the clerk.

Many Decisions Affected

The decision of the supreme in the Fond du Lac county court case holding the law unconstitutional under which Judge Chadbourne was appointed and holding Judge Richter as the legal county judge of Fond du Lac county is of far reaching importance because of the effect it may have on the business which has been done by Judge Chadbourne since his appointment Sept. 1.

Orders involving property running up into the hundreds of thousands have been issued and it is a question in holding the court void from its very beginning if all these orders have not been rendered void.

May Go Up Again

If so all this work will have to be done over again and new orders issued. It is likely that a specific opinion will be asked on some matter upon which Judge Chadbourne has passed and that the question of the validity or invalidity of court orders issued by him can be decided by supreme court decision.

Married Last Tuesday

A very pretty wedding took place in the St. Bridget's church at St. Bridget's last Tuesday morning, February 22nd, when Rev. Ph. Vogt, united in holy bonds of matrimony, Miss Mary Scheid and James Emmer, both of the town of Wayne.

The bride, who was attired in a suit of blue cherviot, with a blue picture hat to match, and carried a corsage bouquet of white carnations, was attended by Miss Rose Emmer as maid of honor, who was attired in a tan suit with hat to match and carried a corsage bouquet of white carnations. The groom was attended by Edward Scheid as best man.

After the ceremony the bridal party repaired to the home of the bride's parents, where a wedding dinner was served with only nearest relatives in attendance.

The young couple boarded the noon train the same day for a honeymoon trip to Merrill, Neillville and Minneapolis. They will reside on the groom's father's farm in the town of Wayne, where they are at home to their many friends after April 1st.

Both of the contracting parties are young people well known in this locality. They also have a large circle of friends who join with the Statesman in extending congratulations with best wishes for a very happy and prosperous married life.

FOR CHILDREN'S COUGH

You cannot use anything better for your child's cough and cold than Dr. King's New Discovery. It is prepared from Pine Tar mixed with healing and soothing balsams. It does not contain anything harmful and is slightly laxative, just enough to expel the poisons from the system. Dr. King's New Discovery is antiseptic—kills the cold germs—raises the phlegm—loosens the cough and soothes the irritation. Don't put off treatment. Coughs and Colds often lead to serious lung troubles. It is also good for adults and the aged. Get a bottle today. All druggists.

A woman worries until she gets wrinkles, then she worries because she has them. Every woman should take Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea. Improve your looks. Bright eyes, clear complexion help a woman wonderfully.—Edw. C. Miller.

THAT BIG PRIZE MASQUERADE BALL

Everything is in Readiness for the First Prize Masquerade Given Under the Auspices of the Local Modern Woodmen

The Dance—Prize Masquerade The Dance—Wednesday, March 1st The Place—Opera House, Kewaskum.

The Music—Kewaskum Quintette The above is the synopsis of the first Prize Masquerade dance to be given under the auspices of the local Modern Woodmen. The arrangement committee has completed final arrangements for the affair. They promise that this will be the big social affair of the season. From reports received a large attendance can be expected.

For the benefit of the masqueraders the committee wishes to announce that all maskers are requested to be on the floor at 9 p. m. Masks will be removed at 10 P. M., after which dancing will be resumed. During the time that Masqueraders occupy floor, no other dancer will be allowed to make use of the space.

One of the big features of the evening will be that of a chicken supper served by Adolph Backhaus, proprietor of the Opera House. In order that no confusion will take place, arrangements have been made to sell supper tickets by number at the door. Price for each supper ticket will be 35 cents.

The music for the occasion will be furnished by that popular and well known local orchestra, the Kewaskum Quintette.

The Judges who will award the prizes are members of neighboring M. W. A. Camps, and who are as follows:

Ray Wenzel of Campbellsport
John Kleissig of Boltoville.
Louis Kuester of West Bend.

The committee on arrangement consists of Geo. Kippenhan, Chas. Guth, Geo. H. Schmidt, Fred H. Buss and Peter J. Haug.

The prizes will be awarded as follows:

For the best group of three or more $5.00.
For the best couple $3.00.
For the best comical couple $2.00.
For best lady mask $1.00.
For best gent mask $1.00.
For most comical mask $1.00

The admission will be 25 cents for each person.

The local Modern Woodmen extend a cordial invitation to the general public in patronizing this affair. It will also be the last affair held in this village before Lent.

AMUSEMENTS

Sunday, Feb. 27—Grand ball in Wm. Hess' hall, New Fane. Music will be furnished by the Schmitz Harp orchestra of Fond du Lac. All who attend may be assured of a good time.

LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL WINS OVER BRILLION

Visitors Are Defeated by Overwhelming Score. First Girls' Team Defeats Second Team

At the double header of basket ball at the Opera House last week Friday evening, the local high school team had an easy time of it, defeating the Brillion High School team by a score of 39 to 9.

The result of the game between the first and second girls teams resulted in a victory for the former by a score of 12 to 2.

The lineup of the high school teams as follows:

Kewaskum	Brillion
F. Schnoll	F. Bilgo
Meyer	F. Schaefer
Seybold	C. Bron
Peters	G. Opgenorth
Arens	G. Koerbie
Ryan	Sub.
Field Goals, Kewaskum, Bilgo 5, Schaefer 8, Bron 6; Brillion, Meyer 2, Seybold 2. Free throes, Kewaskum, Brown 1; Brillion, Seybold 1.

Schleisingerville Wins

Before a crowd that packed Rath's hall at Schleisingerville, to its capacity last Tuesday evening, the local city team was defeated by the strong aggregation of Schleisingerville in a game of basket ball.

The game was one of the cleanest and most exciting ever played at said place. Slinger led the first half by a score of 9 to 4, but the second half, the locals sprung a surprise when they played Slinger off their feet, but when the final whistle blew, Slinger was in the lead by score of 23 to 18.

The local team put up a very good game and took the defeat as every losing team should, that is, good naturedly.

Spatz Miller, as usual, led in scoring, getting all except two of the local points, while M. Rosenheimer's floor work kept the crowd in an uproar. For the rest of the team it must be said that they played in magnificent form.

After the game a dance was given, which was attended by a large crowd. The local players claim the treatment accorded them while at Slinger was very excellent. They also compliment the audience for being an orderly gathering.

The managers of both teams decided to play off the rubber, as each team has now a game to their credit. The date as yet has not been set. It is expected, however, that the game will be played at West Bend.

WHAT IS CHIROPRACTIC?
(Ki-ro-prak-tik)

It Is Not Medicine; Not Surgery; Not Osteopathy.

It is a scientific method of adjusting the cause of disease without drugs or instruments, based on a correct knowledge of anatomy, and especially the nervous system. The Chiropactic idea is that the cause of disease is the person's attitude and the adjustment in correcting the wrong that is producing it. The function of every organ in the body is controlled by mental impulses from the brain, which it transmits through the nerves. Any impingement of these nerves interfering with the transmission of mental impulses results in an abnormal condition called disease. This interference is produced by subluxated vertebrae pressing upon nerves as they pass out from the spinal cord. The Inverted Adjuster is able to locate the point of obstruction of interference and by means of adjusting the subluxated vertebrae corrects the cause, abnormal conditions or health is the result.

The Gay Deceiver

From Life

The only other passenger thumbed his tobacco into a melancholy pipe bowl.

"What's your line?" he asked. "Soap and Christmas candles," I said, and held out my cigar for his light.

"Married?" "Yes, You?" "Um-m-m." And he stretched his legs down up his elbows and looked worried.

"When I was making this territory about this time last year," he began, "I met a pretty, wifely little girl, and we were married before I left town. Tarascon wasn't on my regular trip then, but now I have to strike home once a month.

"You see I was raised in a family of sisters—all older than I, all unmarried. I could never bring myself to tell them about Edyth. They don't know it yet. Live in Cranford on the Vandals. My wife thinks I haven't any folks."

"Well?" He blushed. "There—it—we I'm going to be a father." Then he hid his blush.

I laughed, sympathetically. "You can't bear not to let your sisters know?" I ventured.

He nodded and gulped. "Tarascon," called the brakeman "Tarascon."

I was on the hot veranda of the Croxton House, at Croxton, some two weeks later when I felt a modest hand on my shoulder.

"Boy or girl?" were my first words with a grin.

"Girl," announced the father, with pride. "Sophronia Judith Rose. Named for my sisters."

He seated himself fished, in his pocket for his pipe, and smiled nervously.

"They knew it when I got home," he said. "I'd left Edyth's letter in my room. I believe they had been suspecting all along. Well, they never said a thing at supper, but when I went up stairs I saw a string of baby ribbon sticking out of my sample case. The girls had packed it full of things from their hope boxes. Baby things they were."

"I tried to bluff it out, but I—I couldn't do it, and I'd told them all about it five minutes after I came downstairs."

"We all took the train for Tarascon the next day. Edyth was tickled—said she'd suspected I had sisters. She hadn't thought of course."

"So I had to name the baby for them. Weighed eleven pounds too."

"My, I've got to catch that 9:32 for Tarascon!"

He pulled out his watch, then turned the dial to me, sheepishly. Under the crystal was a tiny slip of narrow ribbon, baby blue.

"So long," he said. "Mayn't see you again. This is my last trip. The firm's giving me a city job where I can be with the family."

His Wonderful English

An American gentleman got acquainted with a Frenchman who was very anxious to acquire the English language. The American in order to help him, said that if he would send his exercises to him he would willingly correct them.

Nothing was heard from the Frenchman for some time but finally a letter came caucched in the following choice English:

"In small time I can learn so many English from his textbook and her dictionary as I think I will to come at the America and to go on the scaffold to lecture."

She Wasn't Sure

A Chicago vegetarian engaged a German cook not long ago. His wife liked the appearance of the applicant; her references were good and the wages she demanded not exorbitant.

"I'd like to have you come," said the lady of the house, "but perhaps you won't like to live with us. We are vegetarians and never have any meat in the house. Would you be satisfied with a vegetable diet?"

The fraulein scratched her head. "Well," she said, dubiously, "iss beer a vegetable?"

Not So Easily Caught

Two holiday bakers in Devonshire caught a glimpse of Dartmoor Prison while strolling along.

One of them thought to take a rise out of his companion. So he said:

"There, look at that!" he exclaimed.

"I say, old chap, where would you be if the place had its due?"

"I'd be walking alone," he replied quickly.

Why He Looked Sad

It was the week before Christmas. Photographer (taking family group)

"Now, then, Mr. Houseful, the expressions are all right but yours. Try and look happy—remember Christmas is coming."

Mr. Houseful (despondently)—"Confound it man, that's just what I'm thinking about!"

No Wonder

"Is your neighbor a man of peace?"

"On the contrary I have reason to think that he believes in the mailed hand."

"What reason is that?"

"He's a postman."

THE KITCHEN

Rye Griddle Cakes.

Materials—Two cupsful rye flour, 1 cupful entire wheat flour, 3 teaspoonfuls baking powder, 1 teaspoonful salt, 2 eggs, 1 pint milk.

Directions—Sift together the two ingredients, salt and baking powder; add the milk and then the eggs well beaten. Beat thoroughly and cook at once on a hot, lightly greased griddle.

Creamed Eggs.

Boil six eggs twenty minutes. Make 1 pint of cream sauce. Have six slices of toast on a hot dish, put a layer of sauce on each one and then part of the whites of the eggs cut in strips. Rub part of the yolks through a sieve on the toast. Repeat this and finish with a layer of sauce. Place in the oven for about three minutes. Garnish with parsley and serve.

Black Bean Soup.

Materials—One cupful black beans, 1 1-2 tablespoonfuls drippings, 1-2 onion, 1-2 lemon, 1 quart stock or water, 1 stalk celery, 1 hard-cooked egg, 3-4 tablespoonful flour, 2 cloves, 1-2 tablespoonful Worcestershire sauce, salt, pepper, red pepper and mustard to taste.

Directions—Wash beans and soak overnight; in morning drain, cover with boiling water and boil thirty minutes; drain, throwing away water. Slice onion, dice celery and cook five minutes in half of drippings in soup pot; add beans, stock or water and cloves. Simmer until beans are soft.

Add more water as stock or water boils away. Rub through sieve, add remaining drippings and flour rubbed together, then heat to boiling point, add seasonings. Cut lemon in thin slices, removing seeds, and cut eggs in thin slices. Put them into a hot soup tureen and strain soup over them.

Grilled Sweet Potatoes.

Plan for these by baking a sufficient quantity of potatoes on Sunday to have some left over. Peel, cut in rather thick slices, brush over with lard or butter and grill under the gas flame or over the fire, according to the fuel which is being used.

Fruit Pancakes.

Materials—One cupful cooked fruit—peaches, apricots, apples; 1 egg, flavoring to suit fruit, 1 cupful flour, 1 teaspoonful baking powder, 1 cupful fruit juice or water, sugar to taste, butter or marmalade, lemon rind.

Directions—Pass the fruit through a sieve, add the egg, flavoring, flour, baking powder and fruit juice or water, also sugar to taste. Cook as pancakes. Spread with butter or with marmalade. Roll up, sift sugar and lemon rind over and serve hot.

Au Gratin Potatoes.

Materials—Two tablespoonfuls butter, 1 quart peeled and diced potatoes, 2 cupsful milk, 1 tablespoonful flour, 1 cupful grated cheese, 1 teaspoonful salt, 1-4 teaspoonful white pepper, few breadcrumbs.

Directions—Cut potatoes in about 1 1-2 inch pieces, then boil carefully in boiling salted water. When done, drain and pour into buttered fireproof dish. Blend butter and flour in saucepan over fire, add milk, stir until boiling, then add cheese and seasonings. Pour over potatoes; grate a little cheese over the top, sprinkle with breadcrumbs and bake five minutes in hot oven.

Baked Eggs With Cheese.

Materials—Four eggs, 1 tablespoonful cheese, cream sauce, hot water, seasoning.

Directions—Make a cream sauce, season and pour half into a baking dish. Break in the eggs; stir the cheese into remaining sauce. Pour over the top and bake standing the dish in another containing hot water. Bake twelve minutes. Individual dishes are nice.

Macaroni Soup.

Cook down the bones of the roast beef which have been chopped small, with an onion, a carrot, a bunch of sweet herbs, a little celery and any other vegetable obtainable, with the exception of turnip. Strain through a sieve, thicken with a little cornstarch and cover with caramel. Add a beef cube or a little beef extract to this stock to give it a richer flavor, season highly and cook in it about 2 ounces of macaroni broken into very small pieces.

Baked Stuffed Eggplant.

Materials—One eggplant, cold cooked meat, breadcrumbs, seasonings and flavorings.

Directions—Parboil the eggplant, whole, then cut it into halves, scoop out most of the flesh, mash or chop this finely and add to it minced cold meat together with half as much breadcrumbs as you have meat. Season with a little stock or gravy, fill the shells of the eggplant with the mixture, dot with butter or drippings and bake half an hour in a moderately hot oven.

Colonial Rice Pudding.

Materials—Two cupsful cold boiled rice, 1-4 teaspoonful vanilla, 1-2 cupful cream, 1 cupful apple sauce.

Directions—Sweeten the cream as liked, add the vanilla and a very little salt and whip it. Mix this with the rice and place in a pudding dish in alternate layers with the apple sauce, having rice on top. Serve cold.

Baked Corn and Peppers.

Materials—One can corn, 1-2 can peppers (chopped), salt, pepper, butter, buttered crumbs.

Directions—Blend all except crumbs. Turn into individual bakers and cover with buttered crumbs. Bake half an hour.

Walnut Custard Pie.

Materials—Two eggs, a scant half cupful sugar, salt, 2 cupsful hot milk, 1-2 teaspoonful vanilla, 1-2 cupful finely ground English walnuts or pecans and almonds.

Directions—Beat the eggs, add the sugar and salt, pour on the hot milk, strain and add the vanilla and nuts. The nuts will rise to the top and form a tender crust to the custard. Bake in one crust.

Corn Muffins.

Materials—One cupful flour, 2 tablespoonfuls butter, 1 cupful yellow cornmeal, 3 tablespoonfuls sugar, 1 cupful milk, 2 eggs, 1 teaspoonful salt, 3 teaspoonfuls baking powder.

Directions—Cream the butter and sugar thoroughly together, add the eggs, well-beaten, and milk. Then turn in slowly the dry ingredients which have been sifted together three times. Divide into greased gem pans and bake in a moderately hot oven twenty-five minutes. Sufficient for 12 muffins.

Toad-in-a-Hole.

Materials—One cupful flour, 1 egg, 1 rounding teaspoonful baking powder, 1-3 teaspoonful salt, milk to moisten, sausages or lamb's kidney's.

Directions—Sift together the flour, salt and baking powder, add the egg and the milk, using enough of the latter to make, a rather stiff batter. Turn into a well-greased baking pan or biscuit pan. Parboil the sausages or kidney's, whichever are being used; cut these in halves lengthwise and lay them in among the batter. Bake about twenty-five minutes. Serve with or without gravy.

Beef Olives.

Materials—Two pounds round steak cut thin, 1-4 pound salt pork, 4 tablespoonfuls powdered crackers or stale bread, 1 teaspoonful sage, 1-2 teaspoonful summer savory, pepper and salt.

Directions—Mix crackers, sage and other seasonings. Cut the meat into small strips, two or three inches wide and four inches long. Spread the mixture on the strips, roll up and tie with twine. Fry the pork and into the hot fat put the olives rolled in flour. Turn until slightly brown; take out and put into kettle. Into the fat left, put 4 tablespoonfuls flour. If not enough fat is left to thoroughly moisten the flour, add enough butter. Then pour in 1-2 quarts cold water, stirring all the time until it boils. Season with salt and pepper and strain over the olives. Cover and cook slowly four or five hours. Remove the twine before serving.

A FAVOR

Here is the way in which a very clever woman solved the favor problem for a luncheon which she planned rather hurriedly for a friend out of town. Because of illness and lack of help, she was kept rather closely tied to the house the week before the luncheon, and while she could order mostly anything she needed by phone she was dubious about favors which might not suit her at all.

Her heart had been set on small embroidered vanity bags, but she did not have time for that either. Then she remembered an extra set of madder tumbler doilies, which did not match any other linen in her chest. Out came the doilies, and in scarcely no time the whole dozen had eyelets worked in them, ribbon run through and a ribbon-tied bit of cotton incased in them to show their use. They were greeted by "ohs" and "ahs" of appreciation on the day of the luncheon.

Sweaters will be as important during the coming summer as they were last year.

ALL AROUND THE FARM

Every farm should be named. Every farmer ought have a printed letterhead and return envelopes.

RUTABAGAS GROWN WITH CORN

We have found it quite profitable and very good practice to grow some rutabagas in a part of the corn field, preferably where the ground is fairly low and moist so that they will be reasonably sure to make a nice growth.

Five years ago I was on a little visit in a good farming district and it was pointed out plainly to me the value of rutabagas for the stock. At first I was a little doubtful whether it would really pay me to plant them among the corn, but after considering the matter more fully, I decided to give them a fair trial and planted about half an acre among the corn and half an acre out on the open ground.

The rutabagas on the open ground were a failure, due partly to a different kind of seed sown, as I wished to grow the best. Those sown in the corn were fine and of excellent quality.

Rutabagas are a good feed for hogs during the winter. We have found them very valuable as a feed for our brood sows since they are a succulent food, and therefore add greatly to the regular ration.

A great quantity of rutabagas can be grown among the corn each year and at a very small cost, without very little extra labor, and without extra ground.

A pound of good seed, sown under favorable conditions between the corn rows, will plant an acre at a cost of not over $1.50, this including labor and cost of seed.

There is no further work needed until fall, when they are matured and ready to be pulled and stored away somewhere for use during the winter months.

Beginning sometime in October we pull and top the rutabagas and store them away.

Light freezing will not hurt them while yet in the ground, but after they are pulled and topped they must be put somewhere so there is little danger of them freezing, as this will cause them to get soft and they will not be valuable as a feed.

If stored away in the proper manner they will keep in a good condition all winter and until late the following spring.

If the rutabagas grow very large, as they will if conditions are favorable, we cut and mash them up somewhat before feeding along with other grain.

Rutabagas are good for cattle also, and will take the place of silage where one has no silo.

Boiled and mashed up and mixed with other grain, rutabagas give good results with the chickens, and they are eaten with relish. My experience has been, however, confined to feeding them to the hogs and cattle, and with good results.

The variety we sow is somewhat similar to a turnip and white, and of a good size. We also use them in preference to the turnip for home consumption, as the root is more fine and tender than that found in most varieties of turnips.—H. W. Swope, Danville, Pa.

CO-OPERATIVE CHERRY PICKING

High school girls from Milwaukee, clad in overalls, spent a part of their summer vacation picking cherries, gooseberries and currants in Door county, the little thumb of Wisconsin land which extends out into Lake Michigan.

Milwaukee teachers marketed the product and within another year these same Milwaukee teachers expect to divide a profit on their venture, for the Peninsula Fruit farm, near Sturgeon Bay, is a co-operative venture in which the majority of the seventy-odd stockholders are principals and teachers in the Milwaukee public schools.

By direct marketing an elimination of the middle man, these teachers expect to build up demand for the entire product of their 240 acre fruit farm among their personal friends and acquaintances. By securing pickers from the Milwaukee schools and taking the entire crop from the city, another of the most serious problems of the fruit picking season seems fairly sure of satisfactory solution.

The idea of the Peninsula Fruit Farm originated with Thomas W. Boyce, principal of the Cal street school, Milwaukee, as the outgrowth of several summers spent in the summer resort country of Door county. His attention was attracted by the remarkable success of some experimental fruit orchards planted by experts from the University of Wisconsin and of commercial orchards which had followed the experimental ones.

He began studying the growing of cherries, apples and small fruits and the peculiar adaptability of soil and climate in Door county to the fruit industry. He talked it over with two of his most intimate friends, Principal E. L. Cooley, and Assistant Principal W. F. Siecker of the Central Continuation school, and four years ago these three men decided to organize a company. The result is the Peninsula Fruit Farm, incorporated at $50,000. There are over seventy stockholders, the majority of them school teachers, although there are a few business men and representatives of other professions than teaching. No stockholder has over a $3,000 interest and the holdings are mostly in small blocks of $100 shares.

The company owns 240 acres, 220 of which are planted. Cherries and apples are the main crops, although there are several acres in gooseberries and currants, these small, quick-bearing fruits being relied on to help out on expenses until the cherries and apples come into full bearing. By dealing direct with the consumer, the company guarantees that fruit picked one day will be delivered in Milwaukee the next. Mr. Boyce, president of the company, takes personal charge of the picking, although the company employs an experienced farmer and fruit-grower the year around.

The securing of pickers in sufficient numbers to take care of the fruit is always a problem in the cherry districts. Last summer two High School girls who were spending the summer in Sturgeon Bay, joined a group of cherry pickers for the fun of the experience. They thought it a lark to earn some spending money and instead of keeping at the work a day or two, as they had expected, they picked through the entire season.

They returned to Milwaukee and told some of their friends about it and the result is that this summer Mr. and Mrs. Boyce chaperoned a camp of High School girls who earned their own vacation and enjoyed a unique camping-out experience. They were boarded at cost and camped on the farm. The plantation came into active bearing this summer, and about 2,000 cases of fruit were marketed.

USING AN OLD BLANKET

No housewife likes to feel that the blankets on her bed are so shabby that she would be mortified to have an outsider see them. It will, therefore, sound pleasing to any one owning a blanket which shows wear to hear of a way in which to utilize the cover. The coverlet for the crib or for the coach can be very easily made from the discarded blanket. Cut the blanket to the proper size. Buy enough silkoline to cover both sides of the discarded blanket. Select a dainty pink-and-green flower spray on a blue ground and use solid blue for the border. Pink or blue zephyr should be used for tufting the material together.

If you want something more elaborate, use real silk covered with a richly colored design. Lacking a child of your own, you can make the coverlet for some small relative or friend. The idea is too good to waste.

INVENTED TO HELP MOTORISTS

Alfred Reeves, general manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, asked what was the present need of the automobile industry, said:

"Of all the problems that we find nothing is of greater importance than the question of a fuel supply at a moderate price. There has been ample fuel for our needs up to this time, with a wonderful distribution, so it is obtainable almost anywhere, yet of late the price has been increasing at a rate which is a menace to the growing use of motor cars and of internal-combustion engines generally, such as those used on farms and in boats.

"If there continues to be a shortage in gasoline and the price increases, we must look for some new fuel. Its arrival is certain, because there never has been a crying demand for anything without an answer from engineers and inventors. Such new fuel may come from crude oil, but more than likely it will be a chemical. Hail to the man who will deliver us from the need of gasoline in motor cars! Just think of the time when chemicals will furnish us with tablets, one of which, in a gallon of water, will provide fuel for your motor."

The Reward of Persistency

The earth is full of rivers running far beneath the top, and when the western farmer wants to raise himself a crop, he drills a hopeful hole through all discouragement and stone for that artesian fluid which is well and widely known through very frequent mention in the lectures that we hear upon the foolishness of wine and wickedness of beer.

The world is full of forces which the energetic chap is constantly and carefully endeavoring to tap; and when it coldly tells him that it never heard of him, he simply advertises with persistency and vim, until he penetrates its outer surface, tough and hard, and ultimately gathers in a suitable reward.

But he who digs for water and the man who bores for biz must keep on drilling grimly till he gets to where it is. The one who is discouraged with a few initial knocks can never hope to penetrate a thousand feet of rocks; and all the fine prosperity by nature kindly stored will flow for other folks and fill some other fellow's gourd.

GOVERNOR GETS SHOCK WITH EACH HANDSHAKE

Iowa Executive Puzzled Over the Reputation of Sensations—Discovery Is Made.

Des Moines, Iowa — Governor Clarke's dynamic personality was much more so than usual the other day, so much more so that the Governor shocked himself and kept on shaking without knowing what was the matter.

As visitors came and went during the afternoon, every time one received the gubernatorial handshake, the executive winced a bit and drew back his arm. Finally he decided to see what was wrong.

"Say, Gus, what's going on here?" he demanded of A. C. Gustafson, his secretary. "Every time I shake hands with somebody I get a shock."

A brand new thick velvet carpet had just been placed on the floor in the Governor's office.

"Ah," exclaimed the secretary, "I'll bet that's it."

Gustafson dragged his feet over the heavy carpet as children used to do in the evening in the parlor before the gas was lighted. From the ends of the secretary's fingers the sparks of static electricity shot out.

"That's it," the secretary announced. "This new carpet is dried thoroly now with the radiator heat and all you have to do is walk across it to stir up the current."

Visitors in the office experimented and succeeded in making vivid electric flashes come from their fingers on contact with some other individual or with something leading to the ground. In the course of an argument arising from the governor's experience, one man in a downstairs office succeeded in lighting a gas jet with a spark which came from his fingers after dragging his feet over a heavy carpet.

The man who boasts of being able to spell every word correctly may not be much good at anything else.

The soft green shades will be popular for spring.

Shoulder capes and sleeve caps are among the new features.

THE HORSE AND THE AUTO

That early motor car manufacturers looked upon the horse as a chief competitor is evidenced by some of the claims made by pioneers in the first catalogues issued years ago.

One section of an old catalogue, describing "the Apperson four and six horse-power motors," deals with economy as follows: "If we were desirous of contrasting the cost of maintaining a horse with that of maintaining a motor carriage, we could not do so in a more striking manner than by taking the actual figures obtained in practice and comparing them. The contrast would be especially prominent if neither was used more than one-half of one-third of the time.

"Considered under the circumstances, the cost of keeping a motor carriage while not in use would be almost nothing, while that of keeping a horse would continue about the same. The slight cost of travel by our gasoline motor carriage seems almost incredible until proven by actual test.

"Journeys may be accomplished with our carriages, provided the roads are in good condition, at a much lower rate than one can travel on the train. If the roads are in good condition our carriages will travel at a cost of less than one-half cent per mile for gasoline, carrying four passengers, which reduces the cost per passenger per mile to about one-eighth of a cent.

"Of course, this estimate does not include the wear and tear of the machinery, which is a factor, depending largely upon the solidity and construction of the carriage, the condition of the roads, and the care of the driver. Moreover, for journeys of moderate distance, one can often take a 'short cut' and thus reach his destination more quickly by motor carriage than by train, thus saving both expense and time."

There is simply no end to the usefulness of ribbon for frock trimming.

SLAYING FILMED TO AID CAPTURE

The motion picture theaters of Chicago and the United States will present what is regarded as the greatest news film scoop in the history of news presentation by means of the motion camera.

This feature, which also is the first use of the motion picture in the search for criminals, is produced by the Selig-Tribune service with the co-operation of Chief Healey and the Chicago police department.

It is the reenactment of the robbery of the Thomas Cook & Son Tourist agency and the murder of Policeman Eror Johnson.

"I regard the Selig-Tribune film of the robbery and murder in the light of an achievement in cinematography," said Chief Healey. "I only wish that every criminal could be so photographed. It would be a vast step toward the capture of criminals, as it would bring to the notice of the public peculiarities in gait, the pose of the body, and other features that are impossible of description even by the best Bertillon measurements."

When Chief Healey asked the Selig-Tribune to undertake the picture it was with the idea that the capture of the slayer of Policeman Johnson is of vast significance.

"Criminals must not get the idea that they can kill policemen and go scot free," said the chief. "For this reason I urge the capture of Johnson's murderer. Every method should be used, and I think the motion camera is a huge asset."

"Not only is the picture valuable from a point of identification, but it will teach the public the hazards that a policeman encounters in the performance of his duty."

The complete story of the crime is told faithfully, with a view to giving the public proof of the vigilance and devotion of policemen. It is the hope of men high in the police department that several needed reforms be made soon, and the Selig-Tribune film is an exact corroboration of their claims.

WALLACE REID IS NEW "MATINEE IDOL"

Hundreds of thousands of women are now lost in admiration of their newest screen "matinee idol," Wallace Reid. Following is an excerpt from a striking interview with this rising star in the current issue of Photoplay Magazine:

If you have seen some of the more mildly censored editions of The Birth of a Nation, doubtless you recall the husky young white hope, who, labeled "the village blacksmith," juggles a bunch of Africans something terrible.

If you have seen the Farrar Carmen you should have no difficulty in recalling "Don Jose," who finally and fatally carves Carmen after she has made a "boob" of him.

Fists or foils; bottles or brickbats—it's all the same with "Wally" Reid, respectively horseshoer and Spanish dragon.

In addition to being an adept at the right-cross, half-Nelson, rapier rattling and bottle-busting, Mr. Reid is also one of the thrilliest film lovers and "girl-grabbers" in our nightly midst.

He went to college—Lafayette—and then Pullman west to grow up with the country.

"I landed in Cody, Wyo., with 15 cents in my pocket," says our hero. "The next day I went to work as night clerk in a hotel."

From this humble position "Wally, the Wonderful" meteorized into vaudeville, newspaper work and through motion pictures until he landed, very recently, near the top of the golden stairway of film fame.

"I got into pictures more from curiosity than anything else," says Reid, "although I landed my first job because I could swim. It was with the Selig Co. in Chicago. I saved the heroine from the icy burning building in the same picture, The Phoenix."

PLAYFUL 'DAWG' PUTS END TO REAL FIGHT

Running around the Gaumont (Mutual) studios at Jacksonville, Fla., is a roly polly, inquisitive little dog, a black and white mixture of big brown eyes and funny little legs, that answers the name of Gaumont starrick. He is the particular pride and concern of General Manager and Director Richard Garrick. Gaumont all but started a riot recently.

Haddock was directing the final scenes of As a Woman Sows, a Mutual masterpiece, de luxe edition. In one scene was shown a fist fight. It was a fight to the finish—or would the set from bric-a-brac to heavy have been. But just when the gore was about due, and everything in table, had been smashed up, young Gaumont, evading a dozen hands that started to catch him, made one funny little spring for the scene and landing just within the camera sight started barking.

QUITE A SALARY

The question as to what Mary Pickford will do, now that her contract with the Famous Players Co. has expired, is answered in the current issue of Photoplay Magazine. She will continue with Famous Players for another year, the deciding factor in the negotiations being the offer of 50 per cent of the stock of a new company, the Famous Players-Pickford Co. Adolph Zukor, president of Famous, will hold one-half the stock and Miss Pickford the other, and their films will be offered through the Famous Players Film Co. Under last year's contract, which included a percentage of receipts as well as her much advertised salary, Miss Pickford cleared in the neighborhood of $200,000.

MOVIE "WILLUNS," BEWARE

In the old days of melodramas, it was not unusual for some absorbed member of the audience in the gallery to call out and tell the hero that the villain was hiding behind a near-by rock. It was not believed that degree of wrapped attention would ever develop at a picture play, however. Yet, this is just what occurred in a Los Angeles house recently, where The Red Circle, Balboa detective story, was showing. As Ruth Roland was about to step into a trap, someone shrieked a warning to her, just as if she had been there to hear. More and more, the illusion of the films is becoming complete.

Pearl White returns to pictures in The King's Game, with Arnold Daly as director.

Pathe is featuring Lois Meredith in a new Gold Rooster play, The Precious Packet.

Robert Edeson will make his initial appearance with Pathe in The Light That Failed.

Thomas Ince has just purchased 200 saddle horses for use in western productions.

Tsurn Ooki, talented Japanese actress, co-stars with Henry Woodruff in Triangle's The Beckoning Flame.

Lillian Drew, Essanay player, is a strict vegetarian. She says a vegetarian diet guarantees a beautiful complexion.

Daniel Gilfeather, the grand old man of Balboa films, recently received a letter of appreciation from friends in Somerville, Mass.

"Fatty" Arbuckle, Mable Normand and Mintie Durfee (Mrs. Arbuckle) have commenced work at the new Keystone studios at Fort Lee, N. J.

Henry Walthall, premier Essanayite, studied law in Birmingham, Ala., but gave it up to enlist in the Spanish-American war. After the war he decided to become an actor.

Marguerite Clayton, Essanay star, is learning to skate at the Chicago studio. Having spent the greater part of her life in a warm climate, ice skating is a novel and thrilling recreation.

Sir Herbert Beerholm Tree, who is to star in Griffith's production of Shakespeare's plays, was given a royal welcome by the mayor and city officials of Los Angeles upon his arrival at the studios.

Hollywood was recently shocked at a company of Universal girls in ballet costume who appeared on one of its busiest corners and capered about before the camera, in a scene of Love Laughs at the Law.

The Balboa company spent $5,000 in dispensing Christmas cheer among its workers. Fifty of the finest Swiss watches were distributed among employees who had been with the firm over two years. No discrimination was shown. Stars and janitors were treated alike.

The Lincoln, Dixie and other notable motor highways have been nearly completed in 1915. They will offer a perfect highway from the Atlantic to the Pacific oceans and almost from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico for the motorist. They will vastly increase the number of tourists, their pleasure and health and add unknown millions to the value of land.

Notes and Comment

Of Interest to Women Readers

KITCHEN BOXES OF DELFT WARE

It is possible to have the kitchen as attractive in its own way as the living room, especially when the woman does the greater part of her work and takes pride and pleasure in having the reputation of being a good housewife.

The display of quaint delft ware kitchen boxes on view in one hardware department is enough to tempt any housewife to refit a dingy kitchen. These boxes which are made to hold sugar, salt and spice, are labeled and have quaint dutch scenes in blue and white on them.

Half a dozen of these boxes on the kitchen shelf with a background of clean paint or tiling, present an attractive appearance, as well as a very convenient way of having these articles close at hand. The newest bread boxes have rounded glass windows in the lid, so that the contents may be inspected without raising the lid and admitting the air.

Home Helps.

Cocoanut matting should be well scrubbed with hot water and soap.

Clean fire iron, brass and nickel ornaments with rotten stone and sweet oil and polish with a chamois skin.

Carbonate of soda will remove the most obstinate of mud stains. Rub off with a cloth or flannel dipped in the soda, then press well on the wrong side of the material with a warm iron.

If the seats of cane chairs are sagged down, wash well on the bottom side and when nearly dry rub the bottom over with water in which a little glue has been dissolved. Let them dry bottom side up.

When washing new curtains you will generally find that they are full of lime. A great deal of trouble may be saved by soaking the curtains overnight in water in which a little salt has been dissolved. The salt draws out the lime and makes the curtains easy to wash.

To Carve Mutton.

Carving a leg of mutton is an easy and graceful task when you know how.

With the left hand take hold of the bone end and with a firm stroke of the knife first cut away the portion not to be eaten. Then cut thin slices down to the bone and loosen each slice by putting the knife flat on the bare bone and cutting through. The slicing should gradually change direction, so as to cut always across the grain.

After the upper portion is gone proceed in a similar manner to carve the under cut.

Raisin Candy.

Two cupsful of sugar and one cupful of water boiled together until the syrup is brittle. Test a little of it in cold water. Then add one teaspoonful of butter and one cupful of seeded chopped or whole raisins, mix with a fork quickly and remove from the fire at once. Have ready a plate greased with butter, drop with a spoon small pieces of the candy on the plate. Set in a cool place to harden.

Laying Hems.

A friend who offered to lay the hems of my curtains astonished me by calling for mullage. Cutting a guide card the width desired for the hem, she passed it to her left thumb. "No picking up and putting down of the guide," she said, and her needle flew after the card at an astonishing rate of speed. It has proved a great time saver.

For Cleaning Silver.

Precipitated chalk is excellent for cleaning tarnished silver. Place a little in a saucupan and add just enough liquid ammonia to moisten it. Rub this lightly over the silver and the stains will quickly disappear. Then wash in hot suds, dry carefully and polish with a clean chamois leather.

Nothing Sticks.

Before using my tins for cooking I always fill them with cold water, adding a handful of salt, and allow them to stand several hours, then rinse well in clear, cold water, says a New York Press contributor. You will find this well worth the trouble, for nothing sticks to them.

Books in Oilcloth.

When packing books line the boxes with table oil cloth. You will preserve the volumes in this way from damage during long journeys or from mold and mildew if left in a damp storage house.—Good Housekeeping.

Sponge in Jar.

A sponge in a porcelain umbrella stand will keep the umbrellas from striking the bottom of the jar, which is often broken in this way, and will also absorb the rainwater from the wet umbrellas.

Worth Knowing.

Milk will not turn sour if a teaspoonful of fine salt be added to every quart. To make glassware clear and sparkling, add a little washing blue to the suds when washing.

Recipes.

Sweet Cream Cake—One cup sugar and three eggs creamed together, one half cup sweet cream, one cup flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one teaspoon lemon extract.

There is something wrong when January plagiarizes April's best lines.

Redingotes of extreme length are said to be coming, with short cutaway fronts.

Black velvet and chiffon are very successfully combined in afternoon dresses.

The little child's hat may have a soft, not very full ruffle of lace around the face.

South America is at last beginning to struggle up to Uncle Sam in a most fetching way.

The winter gown may be freshened by the addition of a straight little over jacket of chiffon or lace.

If the alibi hurry up they ought to be able to save at least a sample of heroic Serbia—but not if they don't.

A striking evening dress has the low-cut bolice of black velvet, and the full skirt in three tiers of brocade.

A surprising combination is green satin, skunk fur and pink and gold embroidery. This is for a semi-evening frock.

A novel and becoming way to trim a child's straight dress is to pretend to button; it straight down both sides, from shoulder to bottom of hem, and set buttons close together with imitation buttonholes made of braid.

Sleeves are an interesting feature of the gown, and there are sleeves pointed sleeves which fit closely all the way down to the hand, full sleeves rather small at the top and full at the bottom; and some of the newest sleeves are puffed at the top, fitting the arm down to the wrist where they spread into a flaring ruffle.

Suit jackets are somewhat shorter. They have belts and pockets; also flaring tails.

The spring turbans are not worn straight on the head, but tipped slightly on one side.

Tiny armlets to hold up the frock sleeves, which are usually too long, are fashioned out of bits of ribbon and lace, shirred over the narrowest elastic and finished with a small rosette of lace or ribbon with a center of a few tiny ribbon roses. A cross stitch design is also used effectively on these useful little gifts.

The motor coat may be brightened by adding plaid ribbon on the edges.

No hat, no matter what the shape, dares to have much trimming.

DAINTY HATPINS ARE MADE OF SEALING WAX

Here is an idea for the inventive girl. It comes from London, and proves that the hatpin can be something besides a relic of the inquisition. She who likes an odd touch of color and of originality in her own handiwork can now mold "sealing wax" hatpins. Lovely new colors are now found in sealing wax—sticks of exquisite "hortensia" pink, emerald green, lizard green, gemlike purples—which are captivating. These, softened and cunningly modeled by the wearer's own fingers, produce beautiful results, and, too, are puzzling to the looker-on who wonders of what substance the hatpin heads are produced.

TOUCHES OF LACE

Most of the more elegant blouses to match the tailored velvet suit skirt have a dainty touch of white lace in their decoration. A black blouse to go with a velvet skirt has a black velvet skeleton blouse, with underblouse and sleeves of black chiffon. This underblouse descends below the belt in narrow ripple flare, overbound on the edge with a narrow fold of black satin. The neck frill, of Bruges lace, also overbound with satin, is held up about the ears by a satin neckband. Bruges lace falls in jabot surplice fashion at each side of the front. The loose sleeves have deep cuffs with a little overbound black satin frill.

PUMICE GOOD CLEANER FOR DIRTY WINDOWS

A bag filled with powdered pumice stone is an excellent window cleaner. Make a bag of unbleached cotton cloth of a soft quality, not too firm. When finished, the bag is six inches wide and twelve inches long. Into this put about one-eighth of a pound of pumice stone. To prevent soiling this bag, it is slipped into a cheese-cloth case that can be removed and washed. No water is used on the window, but it is rubbed first with a piece of tissue paper, then polished with the bag.

NEW DELICACIES MADE OF CRISP POP CORN

Pop corn wafers are a novelty for the children to try. For these wafers prepare some boiled white sugaring, just as for a cake. Keep this soft and do not let it become brittle like candy. Stir into it some popped corn that has been buttered and salted, and flavor the mixture with either lemon or vanilla. This is to be spread on plain crackers. Pop corn balls may also be varied by making them with maple sugar. The quantities required are two cups of sugar, three-fourths of a cup of water, and butter the size of an egg. Cook this all together until it candies. For the balls, pick out only perfect grains of popped corn. Turn this corn into the cooked sirup and stir in all it will take. One's hands should be buttered while forming the hot corn into balls and the mixture is best handled after it has been turned out on warm plates.

Suit jackets are somewhat shorter. They have belts and pockets; also flaring tails.

The spring turbans are not worn straight on the head, but tipped slightly on one side.

Tiny armlets to hold up the frock sleeves, which are usually too long, are fashioned out of bits of ribbon and lace, shirred over the narrowest elastic and finished with a small rosette of lace or ribbon with a center of a few tiny ribbon roses. A cross stitch design is also used effectively on these useful little gifts.

The motor coat may be brightened by adding plaid ribbon on the edges.

No hat, no matter what the shape, dares to have much trimming.

A Powerful Bird

"No," said Mrs. Viddies, authoritatively, "the turkey is not appropriate for Christmas. The turkey is the Thanksgiving bird. At Christmas time the goose or young pig is the proper thing."

"I would consider the matter very carefully before I invested in a goose," observed Viddies. "Whenever I feel that I would like to invest in a goose I remember the experience of poor, dear, old Mutsky two years ago."

"A goose my dear, is mostly feathers. Mrs. Mutsky reminded Mutsky of that fact when he first proposed goose for the Christmas dinner. He wouldn't listen to her. He made up his mind to have one, and he did. He bargained with a farmer to bring it in alive as he said he would pick the feathers off it himself."

"Poor, dear, old Mutsky allowed himself lots of time, but not time enough. He told me afterward that there were nine barrels of feathers on that goose. They were light and airy feathers and as soon as they were plucked they soared in the air. People in the neighborhood thought it was snowing. But there were feathers still left on the goose after old Mutsky had worked hard harvesting them for eight hours."

"He finally gave up and sent the piece of resistance into the kitchen with plenty of feathers still ungathered. He had an awful backache."

"And that wasn't all. When the goose was brought onto the table there wasn't a knife on the place that could scratch the hide of it. So Mutsky gathered up all the knives and took them down into the basement, got out his tools and proceeded to sharpen them before making another attack."

"It so happened that Mutsky had had trouble with his neighbor the day before on account of their different opinions about the war—"

"There wasn't any war two years ago Christmas!" snickered Mrs. Viddies.

"Well—I allude to the Mexican war," explained Viddies. "As I was saying they had a misunderstanding or two and when the neighbors happened to glance thru Mutsky's basement window saw him sharpening all those knives so intently, he thought there was about to be an uprising or a massacre. Christmas day became a day of horror to that neighbor of Mutsky's."

"But altho Mutsky sharpened these knives to a razor like fitness, they made no more impression on the goose than water would have made on its back if it had been alive and well."

Hints.

"The magazines are full of Christmas hints," remarked the opulent woman patient.

"Yes, they are," remarked the trained nurse. "But for my part I prefer to publish my own hints. My two nieces purpose to have their pictures taken and give them away for Christmas presents. It seems to me that you ought as well send a person some of your own poetry for a present as a photograph of yourself."

"So when I heard the girls threatening to give me photographs I told them I didn't want anything to stand on a mantelpiece. I told them, too, that no one who sent me things to stand on a mantel would get any earrings or ornaments of any kind from me. I said that all photos were excess baggage and that people who distributed them were vain enough without any encouragement in the shape of gewgaws for their hair and necks."

"The people who get jewelry from me," I said, "will be the ones who give me sensible things. I have it fixed with the jeweler on the corner and he knows what to do as soon as I phone him."

"I have needed a new black silk petticoat for a long time," I said, "and they are on sale at Stillings' now for $3.75. I always need stockings, size 7. And next summer I will need a couple of light weight union suits, size 6, and you can get them at Dippy's for $1.25. He is having a sale now. And I need about six nurse's aprons."

"The only way you can get what you want is to let your wants be known. If you want a rocking chair say so. If you don't say so again. There is no need of getting what you don't want at Christmas time."

"I hated to be rough, but I would get photographs for Christmas sure, if I hadn't rebelled at the prospect. It was a severe blow to the girls, they did so want to have their pictures taken."

"Then why not give them photographs of themselves for your gift to them?" asked the opulent woman patient. "Let your nieces get their pictures taken and keep them all themselves. You could give them a half-dozen apiece for about $18."

Professional Advice.

The Lawyer—You really want a divorce?

The Wife—Yes.

The Lawyer—All right. What about the alimony?

The Lawyer—Eh! What is this—a practical joke? Take my advice, madam, and go back home and wait until he gets something fifty dollars please.

Wise Baby.

Knicker—Who does the baby look like?

Booster—"He is neutral!"

FOUR BURNED BY OIL AND FLAMES

LOMIRA LAD LOSES LIFE, WHILE BROTHER AND PARENTS ARE BADLY BURNED WHEN LIQUID CATCHES FIRE

Elmer Brinkman, aged 6, was fatally burned, his brother, Arno, aged 9, was burned about the arms and legs and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Brinkman, were also badly burned when a quantity of linseed oil that was being heated in a kettle on the kitchen range at the Brinkman home in Lomira suddenly boiled over at 9 o'clock Wednesday evening.

Elmer died from the effects of the burns on Thursday morning at 11 o'clock.

Mr. Brinkman, who is a painter, had placed the kettle of oil on the stove while he was engaged in mixing some paint. The two children were playing on the floor of the kitchen and Elmer, the younger boy, was attired only in his night clothing.

Suddenly the boiling oil poured over the top of the kettle on to the stove and immediately caught fire, the blazing liquid then running down to the floor, setting fire to Elmer's night clothing and badly burning Arno about the hands and feet as he endeavored to get out of the path of the liquid fire.

Mr. and Mrs. Brinkman hastened to the aid of their children and Mrs. Brinkman in endeavoring to tear the burning clothing off Elmer was badly burned about the hands and body. With his night dress ablaze the boy ran out of the house, his screams of pain and fright attracting neighbors who succeeded in quenching the fire in his night clothing.

In the meantime Mr. Brinkman managed to extinguish the burning oil, which threatened to destroy his home, and had the flames entirely quenched before the Lomira fire department, which had been summoned, reached the scene.

The Brinkman children were taken to the home of Emil Schultz, a neighbor, where they were given medical treatment by a physician while another doctor was dressing the burns of their parents at the family residence.

Mrs. Brinkman is a sister of Jacob Becker of this village.

NEW STATE HUMANE ORGANIZATION PLAN

RESOLUTION PROVIDING FOR FEDERATION ADOPTED AT MADISON CONFERENCE.

MEMBERS APPROVE IDEA

Madison.—The state conference of humane workers, which met in Madison, adopted a resolution providing for the federation of all humane organizations in the state under one central head and appointed a committee to perfect such organization. This committee will proceed with the work and meet in Milwaukee in four or five weeks, at which time the state organization will probably be perfected.

Members of the Wisconsin Humane society, with headquarters in Milwaukee, have approved the project and are willing, it is understood, to unite with a state organization such as the one proposed. The committee appointed to organize the state association consists of Prof. L. B. Wolfenson of Madison, chairman; Miss Kate Clark-Greene of Fond du Lac, secretary; Mrs. E. J. George of Waukesha, treasurer; Miss Elizabeth Marshall of Milwaukee, the Rev. E. A. Cutler of Milwaukee; Dr. A. M. Benson of Hartford and Col. W. J. Anderson of Madison.

Home Grown Seed Best if Obtainable

"Beware of seedmen from other states who offer great things in the line of guaranteed seed. Don't take things for granted. As the state seed law cannot be held to apply in the case of interstate sale one has no protections in such instances."

This is the warning issued from the office of A. L. Stone, the state seed inspector. He reports that an increasing number of highly decorated catalogs full of rich promises is being mailed broadcast throughout the state.

The officials of the inspection service are urging grain growers to sow home grown seed, if such is obtainable. Seeds that have been proven "best by test" and are reasonably certain of producing good yields cannot be obtained through hit and miss mail-order buying.

Will Need to Treat Seed Grain For Smut

It is not unlikely that more Wisconsin farmers will treat their seed grain this spring than ever before.

Grain smuts and blights were unusually severe last year and it is expected that much of the seed to be sown the coming spring has in it an abundance of spores or germs which must be killed if heavy losses are not to result.

Realizing the seriousness of the situation, officials of the Wisconsin experiment station and some of the leading growers of the state are planning a campaign to encourage widespread treatment of seed grains. A circular, containing complete directions for the formalin treatment of seed grains published by the agricultural experiment station at Madison, is being sent free to any one in the state who applies for it.

There is a Real Difference

Cream of tartar, derived from grapes, is used in Royal Baking Powder because it is the best and most healthful ingredient known for the purpose.

Phosphate and alum, which are derived from mineral sources, are used in some baking powders, instead of cream of tartar, because they are cheaper.

If you have been induced to use baking powders made from alum or phosphate, use Royal Baking Powder instead. You will be pleased with the results and the difference in the quality of the food.

ETIQUETTE

In replying to invitations, acknowledging gifts, sending notes of congratulation or condolence, simple wording is always in better taste than elaborate sentences. Invitations of any sort should always be replied to promptly.

Tried Recipes
Grapefruit Pudding—One half cup grapefruit, one cup of boiling water poured over and let cool while you mix; one half cup sugar, one teaspoonful melted butter, yolks of two eggs.

Lemon Cake—One cup of sugar, four eggs, three tablespoonfuls of sweet milk, three tablespoonfuls of melted butter, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one cup of flour.

Sauce—One lemon juice and grated rind, one cup of cold water, one cup of sugar, one egg, and tablespoonful of cornstarch. Beat lemon rind and egg together; stir in sugar and lemon juice; dissolve cornstarch in cold water. Cook in a tin over hot water till it jellies.

Walnut Tarts—Four eggs, one cup cracked starch, half cup grated chocolate half cup chopped walnuts, one heaping teaspoon baking powder, one cup sugar. Cream the yolks of eggs and the sugar together. Stir in beaten whites of eggs, add chocolate, cracked starch, baking powder, walnuts and flavoring. Bake in two layers. Fill with whipped cream.

Sand Hearts—Two pounds of flour, two pounds of sugar, one pound of butter, three eggs. Make up into a dough and work till the ingredients are well incorporated. After rolling out and cutting into heart shape, place the cakes on a pan and heat up one egg spread some of it over them with a brush, and then sprinkle with granulated sugar. If a little coarse grained, all the better, mixing with it a little finely powdered cinnamon.

Apple Cake—A pleasant variation on the jelly and cream filling used for apple cakes may be made of apples. Beat one egg light in a bowl, and into it a cup of sugar. Add to this the strained juice and grated rind of a lemon. Peel and grate three firm apples or other ripe, tart apples directly into the mixture, stirring each well before adding another. When all are in put into a farina cake and stir over the fire until the apple custard is boiling hot and quite thick. Cool and spread between the cakes.

Worth Knowing.
To prevent made mustard from drying and caking in the mustard pot add a little salt when making.
When making thickening for sauces, gravies, etc. use half flour and half cornstarch.

Stains on flannels may be removed by applying yolks of eggs and glycerine in equal quantities. Leave for half an hour and then wash out.

Macaroni Pie.
From one half pound of raw ham remove the fat and try this out in a frying pan. In this fat brown two medium sized onions, cut into slices. Add the ham cut in small cubes and cook thoroughly. Next add a cup of any left over cooked meat, one cup of tomatoes and one cup of stock or water. Season with salt and pepper. Simmer 20 minutes. If not thick enough add a little flour moistened in water. Place this mixture in a baking dish, cover with well cooked macaroni or spaghetti and set in the oven to heat through. A grating of cheese may be added if desired.

The Gas Range.
A gas or coal range must be well aired for, inside and out, and the hot shelf should be kept scrupulously clean. One woman keeps a tin pan in the shelf containing the spoons, knives and forks that she uses while cooking, when forking she places a paper on the shelf and dries the table napkins, cuffs and collars upon it. If the range is placed in a rather dark corner, the oven can be whitewashed and you will really be surprised to see how clean and how light this coating makes the oven.

Labor Saved
Spread a couple of thicknesses of newspaper on your sink board. Set your skillets, saucers or other dirty dishes on the paper instead of on the board. This saves the board from many a stain and saves much scouring.

THE CHIEF LEGATEE

A STORY OF LOVE & MYSTERY, INVOLVING STARTLING INCIDENTS, COMPLICATIONS & ADVENTURES.

By ANNA KATHERINE GREEN.

SYNOPSIS
CHAPTERS I TO III—A few hours after marriage the wife of Roger J. Ransom is missing from the hotel where they have just registered. A detective, Mr. Gorrage, is called into the case. The bride, formerly Miss Georgian Hazen, becomes alarmed over something which happened while passing down the aisle from the altar.

CHAPTERS IV TO V—The woman who left by the basement door was traced to a meeting with the man with a broken jaw. Ransom receives a note from his wife who claims to have found a long lost twin sister, supposed to have been dead. The twin is of unbalanced mind and stone deaf. Ransom meets the man with the broken jaw and who declares himself to be Mrs. Ransom's brother who was in need of money.

CHAPTERS VI TO VII—Ransom interviews his wife's lawyer, who insists that she has a twin sister. Leaving the office the office boy gives him his wife's address. Ransom goes to Stittford, Conn., and finds the hotel where his wife has secured rooms. He visits the cemetery and finds a man about to efface from the tombstone the record of the death of the twin sister, which was supposed to have occurred years previously. He also finds the announcement of the death of the man with whom he had recently talked, who claimed to be his wife's brother.

CHAPTERS VIII TO X—Ransom learns that his wife, her sister, and the lawyer, are coming to the inn. The sister who had left the coach for a walk appears later and he is surprised at the resemblance to his wife. He learns that his wife has had the lawyer draw her will. CHAPTERS XI TO XII—The inmates of the hotel were aroused by a piercing cry in the night. The sister declared that Ransom's wife had gone to the waterfall to destroy her life. The mill stream never gave up its dead. A letter was found from Mrs. Ransom confirming the fact that she had tired of life. Some doubt was expressed by the detective.

CHAPTERS XIII TO XV—After a full investigation of the house and grounds by both Ransom and the lawyer come to the conclusion that the woman remaining in the hotel and known as Anitra was Ransom's wife. CHAPTERS XVI TO XVII—The lawyer insisted from further advice, but signed as he followed his new client into the hall. At the turn of the staircase they were stopped by the sound of wrangling voices in the office below. Mr. Harper heard his name mentioned and hastened to investigate. Assuring Mr. Ransom of his speedy return, he stepped down-stairs, and in a few minutes reappeared with a middle-aged man of characteristic appearance, whom he introduced to Mr. Ransom as Mr. Goodenough.

CHAPTERS XVIII TO XX—The lawyer insisted from further advice, but signed as he followed his new client into the hall. At the turn of the staircase they were stopped by the sound of wrangling voices in the office below. Mr. Harper heard his name mentioned and hastened to investigate. Assuring Mr. Ransom of his speedy return, he stepped down-stairs, and in a few minutes reappeared with a middle-aged man of characteristic appearance, whom he introduced to Mr. Ransom as Mr. Goodenough.

CHAPTERS XXI TO XXIII—The lawyer insisted from further advice, but signed as he followed his new client into the hall. At the turn of the staircase they were stopped by the sound of wrangling voices in the office below. Mr. Harper heard his name mentioned and hastened to investigate. Assuring Mr. Ransom of his speedy return, he stepped down-stairs, and in a few minutes reappeared with a middle-aged man of characteristic appearance, whom he introduced to Mr. Ransom as Mr. Goodenough.

CHAPTERS XXIV TO XXVI—The lawyer insisted from further advice, but signed as he followed his new client into the hall. At the turn of the staircase they were stopped by the sound of wrangling voices in the office below. Mr. Harper heard his name mentioned and hastened to investigate. Assuring Mr. Ransom of his speedy return, he stepped down-stairs, and in a few minutes reappeared with a middle-aged man of characteristic appearance, whom he introduced to Mr. Ransom as Mr. Goodenough.

CHAPTERS XXVII TO XXIX—The lawyer insisted from further advice, but signed as he followed his new client into the hall. At the turn of the staircase they were stopped by the sound of wrangling voices in the office below. Mr. Harper heard his name mentioned and hastened to investigate. Assuring Mr. Ransom of his speedy return, he stepped down-stairs, and in a few minutes reappeared with a middle-aged man of characteristic appearance, whom he introduced to Mr. Ransom as Mr. Goodenough.

CHAPTERS XXX TO XXXII—The lawyer insisted from further advice, but signed as he followed his new client into the hall. At the turn of the staircase they were stopped by the sound of wrangling voices in the office below. Mr. Harper heard his name mentioned and hastened to investigate. Assuring Mr. Ransom of his speedy return, he stepped down-stairs, and in a few minutes reappeared with a middle-aged man of characteristic appearance, whom he introduced to Mr. Ransom as Mr. Goodenough.

CHAPTERS XXXIII TO XXXV—The lawyer insisted from further advice, but signed as he followed his new client into the hall. At the turn of the staircase they were stopped by the sound of wrangling voices in the office below. Mr. Harper heard his name mentioned and hastened to investigate. Assuring Mr. Ransom of his speedy return, he stepped down-stairs, and in a few minutes reappeared with a middle-aged man of characteristic appearance, whom he introduced to Mr. Ransom as Mr. Goodenough.

CHAPTERS XXXVI TO XXXVIII—The lawyer insisted from further advice, but signed as he followed his new client into the hall. At the turn of the staircase they were stopped by the sound of wrangling voices in the office below. Mr. Harper heard his name mentioned and hastened to investigate. Assuring Mr. Ransom of his speedy return, he stepped down-stairs, and in a few minutes reappeared with a middle-aged man of characteristic appearance, whom he introduced to Mr. Ransom as Mr. Goodenough.

It already without the women hiding and listening behind every shut door you see, adding their gossip to the rest.
A knowing look, a twitch at the corners of a good-natured mouth, and the man followed them down the hall, past one or two of the doors alluded to, till they reached the one against the panel of which Mr. Ransom had already laid his ear.

"Still asleep," his gesture seemed to signify; and with a word of caution he led the way in.
The room was very dark. Mrs. Deo had been careful to draw down the shade when she put her strange charge to bed, and at this first moment of entrance it was impossible for them to see more than the outline of a dark head upon a snowy pillow. But gradually, feature by feature of the sleeping woman's countenance became visible, and the lawyer, turning his acute gaze on the man from whose recognition he expected so much, impatiently awaited the nod which was to settle their doubt.

But that nod did not come, not even after Mr. Ransom, astonished at the long pause, turned on the stranger his own haggard and inquiring eyes. Instead, Mr. Goodenough lifted a blank stare to either side beside him, and shaking his head, stumbled awkwardly back in an endeavor to leave the room. Mr. Ransom, taken wholly by surprise, uttered some peremptory ejaculation, but a glance from the lawyer quieted him, and not till they were all shut up again in that convenient room at the head of the stairs did any of the three speak.

And not even then without an embarrassed pause. Both the lawyer and his unhappy client had a deep and, in the case of the latter, a heartrending disappointment to overcome, and the clock on the stairs ticked out several seconds before the lawyer ventured to remark:
"Miss Hazen's face is quite new to you, I perceive. Evidently it was not her twin sister you met on the highway last night."

"Nor anything like her," protested the man. "A different face entirely; prettier and more saucy. Such a gal as a man like me would be glad to call darter."

"Oh, I see!" assented the lawyer. Then with the ineluctable caution of his class, "You have made no mistake?"

"Not a bit of a one," emphasized the other. "Sorry I can't give the gentleman any hope, but if the sisters look alike, it was not this woman's twin I met. I'm ready to take my oath on that."

"Very well. One catches at straws in a stress like this. Here's a five to pay for your trouble, and another for the lad who brought you here. Good day. We had no sound reason for expecting any different result from our experiment."

The man bowed awkwardly and went out. Mr. Harper brought down his hat heavily on the table, and after a short interval of silence, during which he studiously avoided meeting his companion's eye, he remarked:
"I am as much taken aback as yourself. For all he had to say about her gay clothing, I expected a different result. The girl on the highway was neither Mrs. Ransom nor her sister. We have made a confounded mistake and Mrs. Ransom—"

"Don't say it. I'm going back to the room where that woman lies sleeping. I cannot yet believe that my heart is not shut up within its walls. I'm going to watch for her eyes to open. Their expression will tell me what I want to know;—the look one gives before full realization comes and the soul is bare without any thought of subterfuge."

"Very well. I should probably do the same if I were you. Only your insight may be affected by prejudice. You will excuse me if I join you in this watch. The experiment is of too important a character for its results to depend upon the correct seeing of one pair of eyes."

CHAPTER XVI.
"Love."
SHE lay in the abandonment of profound slumber, one hand under her cheek, the other hidden by the white spread. Mrs. Deo had been careful to draw closely about her. Both Mr. Harper and Mr. Ransom regretted this fact, for each instinctively felt that in her hands, if not in her sleeping face, they should be able to read the story of her life. If that life had been a hard one, such as must have befallen the wife, Anitra, her hands should show it.

But her hands were covered. And so, or nearly so, was her face; the latter by her long and curling locks of whose beauty I have hitherto spoken. One cheek only was visible, and this cheek looked dark to Ransom, decidedly darker than Georgian's; but realizing that the room itself was dark, he forbore to draw the attention of the lawyer to it, or even to allow it to affect his own judgment to the extent it reasonably called for.

His first scrutiny over, Mr. Harper crossed over to his old seat against the wall. Mr. Ransom remained by the bed. And thus began their watch. It was a long and solemn one; a tedious waiting. The gloom and quiet of the small room was so profound that both men, for all their suspense and absorption in the event they awaited, welcomed the sound of a passing whisper or the careful stepping of feet in the corridor without.

And so motionless was this figure in the profound slumber in which it lay enchained, and so motionless were they in their increasing suspense and expectation, that time seemed to have come to a standstill in this little room. There was one break. The lips which had hitherto remained mute opened in a quiet murmur, and Mr. Harper, watching his client, saw him clutch the headboard in sudden emotion before he finally rose and, with looks still fixed on the bed, approached him with the startling announcement:

"The word she whispered was 'Love'! It must be Georgian."

"Alas! the same thought struck them both. Was this a proof? Mr. Ransom flushed hotly and crept softly back to his post.

Again time seemed to stop. Then there came a cautious rap on the door, followed by the hasty retreat of the person knocking. It caused Mr. Ransom to stir slightly, but did not affect the lawyer. Suddenly the former rose with every evidence of renewed agitation. This drew Mr. Harper from his seat.

"What is it?" he cried, softly approaching the other and whispering, though after events proved that he might have spoken aloud with impunity.

Mr. Ransom pointed to her temple from which her hair had just fallen away.

"The veining here. I have often studied it. I recognize its every convolution. It is Georgian. Georgian who lies there—ah, she's stirring, waking! Let me go—"

He dragged himself from Mr. Harper's detaining hand, bent over the bed and murmured softly but with the thrilling intensity of a suffering hoping heart, the name which at that moment meant the whole wide world to him:

"Georgian!"

Would she greet this expression recognition and a smile? The lawyer half expected her to and stepped near enough to see, but the eyes which had opened upon the white wall in front of her stared on, and when they did turn as she did after one halting, agonizing minute, it was in response to some movement made by Mr. Ransom and not in reply to his voice.

This sudden and unexpected overthrow of his secretly cherished hopes was terrible. As he saw her rise on one elbow and meet his gaze with one which revealed the astonishment and resentment of a wild creature suddenly entrapped, he felt, or so he afterwards declared, as if the ropes which had hitherto clung cold and deathlike about his heart had suddenly sprung to life and stung him. It was the most unaccountable moment of his life.

Agghast at the effect of this upon his own mind, he reeled from the room, followed by the lawyer. As they passed down the hall they heard her voice raised to a scream in uncontrollable shame and indignation. This was followed by the snap of her key in the lock.

They had made a great mistake, or so the lawyer decided when they again stood face to face in Mr. Ransom's room. That the latter made no immediate answer was no proof that he did not coincide in the other's opinion. Indeed it was only too evident that he did, for his first words, when he had controlled himself sufficiently to speak, were these:

"I should have taken your advice. In future I will. To me she is henceforth Anitra, and I shall treat her as my wife's sister. Watch if I fail. Anitra! Anitra!" He reiterated the word as if he would fix it in his mind as well as accustom his lips to it. Then he wheeled about and faced Harper, whose eyes he doubtless felt on him. "Yet I am not so thoroughly convinced as to feel absolute peace here," he admitted, striking his breast with irremissible passion. "My good sense tells me I am a fool, but my heart whispers that the sweetness in her sleeping face was the sweetness which won me to love Georgian Hazen. That gentle sweetness! Did you note it?"

USED TURQUOIS TO DECORATE MOUTHS

NATIVES OF CENTRAL AMERICA INLAID THEIR TEETH WITH GEMS

IS PHOSPHATE OF ALUMINIUM

Stone Invested With Great Virtues as Cure-All by Writer

Washington—The division of Mineralogy of the United States Museum at Washington has on exhibition a large collection of the gem known as turquoise. In the exhibits of the division of anthropology additional specimens are to be seen which fact goes to vouch for its historical value and its close relations to the life of man.

Dr. Joseph E. Pogue, late of the museum staff has made an exhaustive study of this mineral, which has recently been published.

The turquoise is an opaque mineral, prized mainly for its perfection of color, since it lacks the brilliant lustre which forms the chief charm of transparent gems. Specimens of the finest quality possess a soft and pleasing blue tone like the color of the sky called in the trade sky blue or robin's egg blue, but the value is often lessened by a greenish cast, while in many stones the green predominates.

It occurs near the surface of the earth where it is readily found and mined. Being but slightly harder than glass, it may be worked with ease, even by primitive people who possess only the crudest tools.

Chemically the turquoise is a phosphate of aluminum carrying small quantities of copper and iron, to which its color is due. With variscite, a green mineral of similar character but less value and beauty, it is the only phosphate to find a place among the precious stones. Like many minerals, this stone has more than one origin.

It is usually formed, however, by the percolation of surface water through aluminous rocks containing apatite and disseminated copper minerals.

Although at the present day this stone is outranked by the diamond, ruby, sapphire and other gems among the civilized peoples, with semi-civilized peoples it takes foremost rank, its value depending not only upon its intrinsic worth, but also upon the mystic properties and religious significance it is supposed to possess.

It is the most highly prized possession of the Navaho Indian of the deserts of Arizona, and the Bedouin of the plains of Arabia, while the Tibetan and Mongolian natives esteem this gem no less than do the Hopi and Zuni pueblo dwellers in our own south west.

By virtue of this general use in parts of the Orient and America, and its introduction into legends and myths of diverse and widely separated peoples, the turquoise has considerable ethnologic interest.

From the dawn of civilization down to the present day the turquoise has played an important role and found a variety of ornamental and religious uses. Not only was it always held in the highest esteem but it was frequently invested with marvelous virtues. From the tombs of the earliest Egyptian kings has come beautiful jewelry inlaid with turquoise from the Sinal peninsula.

The inhabitants of central Asia have long valued the turquoise and have lavished in its use, while the Persians and neighboring races of Western Asia have from time immemorial drawn upon the famous Nishapur deposits near the Caspian Sea. The mineral was probably known in Europe even prior to the beginning of the Christian era.

Turquoise occurs in but few places on the globe, most of them barren and arid, yet in nearly every place where it has been found prehistoric mining sites have also been discovered, showing that the ancients knew nearly all the localities of this stone.

Many early writers attributed great medicinal value to this pretty blue stone. They also held that this gem brought good luck, fortune, etc. and protected its wearer from harmful accidents, even death itself. Another virtue was its supposed ability to prevent a horse from tiring.

Medical properties were also claimed for it in Mexico by the Aztecs, although there this gem had more of a religious value, being offered or devoted primarily to divinities, and at first worn only by priests and the mightiest nobles.

The natives of Central America are said to have inlaid their teeth with turquoise, and an ancient jaw studied with these gems unearthed in Yucatan attests to this belief.

Mythologically the turquoise has a long and curious history, both with the ancients and the ignorant of today. Its color, varying from blue to green, was significant for ages as representative of the sky, sea and verdure.

"It cures all diseases of the head and heart. By application over the eyes it insures their lustre, and prevents the fall of fluid therefrom. It is a sovereign remedy for flatulence, dyspepsia, insanity, and ulcers. Whether taken with other drugs or simply with honey, it has the power of curing epilepsy, spleen, etc."

The turquoise seems to have been a veritable cure-all.

INDIANS RETAIN OLD NAMES

Picturesque Titles Brought to Light by Reservation Sale.

St. Paul, Minn.—That Indian names still possess their early strength and picturesqueness is shown by those which figured prominently in the recent sale of Indian lands in the Standing Rock Reservation in North and South Dakota.

An inspection of the list reveals such names as Kate Good Crow, whose nearest neighbor is Barney Two Bears Mary Yellow Hat adjoins Melda Crow-ghost while Mrs. Crazy Walking, on the southeast quarter of section 12-23-25, has probably reached the condition indicated by her name through being in the same section with Elk Ghost.

Mary Lean Dog rather envies Agatha Big Shield for her aristocratic name. In like manner, Jennie Dog Man and Mary Shave Head may be all too willing to assume on short notice the heroic name borne by Morris Thundersheld, heir apparent to Long Step Thundersheld.

Mrs. Did Not Butcher, judging from her name, is in no condition to supply the wants of her nearest neighbor, Mrs. Frosted Red Fish, who lives on a half section not far from Helen Difficult.

SEES HUMAN GROWTH CONTROL

Science May Dictate Size and Weight of the Race

Philadelphia—That science is on the threshold of discoveries which will make it possible to retard or hasten the growth of human beings was the statement made by Dr. M. W. Jacobs. He asserted that experiments with rats have proved that animals fed on certain proteins for extended periods maintain a constant weight, but as soon as other necessary constituents are added, growth is resumed.

He cited one instance in which a rat was kept stunted for 532 days, an age corresponding to about 45 years in human life. By changing the diet growth was permitted to develop that would normally have taken place in youth.

"We have it in our power," said Dr. Jacobs, "to say whether animal shall do its growing in youth or old age or whether it shall have several periods of growth. This being true, it is not too much to expect that the ultimate outcome of such work will be the scientific control of the forces of organic growth even in human beings."

"There are two interesting costumes worn by Washington: the first an infant's robe of white brocade silk, lined with old rose China silk, used on the occasion of his christening, and the other a continental army uniform, worn when he resigned his commission as commander in chief of the continental army at Annapolis, Md., December 23, 1783. Representing as these costumes do, two such separated periods of the life, they tend to remind the observer of the great things which were accomplished by Washington between the times these diversified costumes were worn. Other articles of wearing apparel comprise a waistcoat and what were known as small clothes or knee breeches.

"Three tents with poles, pegs and pouches, a mess chest, spyglass, field glass, portable writing case and shaving glass, make up the field equipment used by Washington in his campaign. Other relics, including an iron treasure chest and a zither and a Chinese music case of mahogany, a Chinese tea chest and a gold medal commemorating his death besides a number of other miscellaneous articles complete one of the most interesting collections of historical objects in this country.

"Since many of the articles relate so pertinently to the home of Washington, a brief mention of its history is here made.

"Mount Vernon House, historically the most interesting of American mansions and closely associated with nearly all the objects herein described, was erected in 1743 for Lawrence Washington, the half brother of George, and so named in honor of Admiral Edward Vernon, R. N., under whose command Lawrence Washington had served during the British expedition against Cartagena in 1741. The property passed into the hands of George after the death of Lawrence in 1752 and the house was later improved and enlarged.

"When Mrs. Washington died in 1802, Mount Vernon became in accordance with Washington's will, the property of his nephew, Bushrod Washington who in turn bequeathed it to his nephew, John Augustine Washington, from whom it passed to a son of the same name, and in 1858 was purchased from him by the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association.

"By an act of Congress, approved June 20, 1878, the Government purchased a collection of Washington relics from G. W. Lewis and others, the heirs of Mrs. Lawrence Lewis, the adopted daughter of Washington, and the wife of his nephew, Maj. Lawrence Lewis. After the death of Mrs. Washington, in 1802, these objects had passed into the hands of Mrs. Lewis, and on her death in 1852, were received by her heirs, who held them until their purchase by the government in 1878, when they were deposited in the United States Patent Office, where they remained until transferred to the United States National Museum in 1883.

"The objects purchased from the Lewis heirs form the greater portion of the Washingtoniana in the museum, and are designated as belonging to the 'Lewis collection.' The sources of other Washington relics received by the museum at various times as loans or gifts, are noted on the descriptive labels."

Lewistown, Pa.—Mrs. B. Ballentine, of this place has in her possession a large steak platter that is over 167 years old. She can trace its existence back that many years.

G. WASHINGTON RELICS SHOWN

COLLECTION OF MEMENTOES OF FATHER OF COUNTRY HEART TOUCHING DISPLAY

BIG VARIETY OF MATERIAL SHOWN

Infant Robe Worn at Christening Vice With Old Continental Uniform

Washington, D. C.—"Among the many interesting objects pertaining to the history of this country, there is probably nothing which touches the hearts of true Americans more quickly than the relics and mementoes of 'The Father of His Country,' George Washington, many of which are displayed at the old building of the United States National Museum in Washington," says a statement issued by the Smithsonian Institution.

"This collection consists of a variety of material gathered from numerous sources. While composed largely of articles of domestic and artistic interest owned by Washington at Mt. Vernon, the collection also includes mementoes of his life in the field during the War of the Revolution, and a number of other miscellaneous relics of greater or less importance.

"The most noteworthy objects are: Four pieces of plaster statuary, and a face mask; several portraits and engravings; many pieces of furniture, including Washington's easy chair, tables, chairs, mirrors, bedstead and footstool; numerous candelabra, lamps and candlesticks; glass and chinaware and table furnishings; as well as many personal relics. These latter perhaps represent more to the visitor, since they were the individual property of this great statesman and warrior.

"There are two interesting costumes worn by Washington: the first an infant's robe of white brocade silk, lined with old rose China silk, used on the occasion of his christening, and the other a continental army uniform, worn when he resigned his commission as commander in chief of the continental army at Annapolis, Md., December 23, 1783. "The objects purchased from the Lewis heirs form the greater portion of the Washingtoniana in the museum, and are designated as belonging to the 'Lewis collection.' The sources of other Washington relics received by the museum at various times as loans or gifts, are noted on the descriptive labels."

SOCIETY FOR POOR GETS "OLD MEN'S TOY SHOP."

The making of toys as a means of employing physically handicapped men in the Empire City has been taken over by the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor. The toy shop grew from one of the enterprises started by the mayor's committee on unemployment. The increasing number of applications for work and the demand for its toys built up a business bigger than at first planned.

YOUNG BRIDE IN JAIL WARNS GIRLS OF DRUG

Tells Tragic Story of Ending of Romance and Her Fight Against Morphine.

Los Angeles, Cal.—A little wanderer in the gray land of drugs tossed and turned on a cot in a cell at the matron's department of the city jail.

"Never take the first dose," she sobbed. "It's grip is terrible."

She was Mrs. James Dellarocca, 19 years old, and a bride but three months.

In a separate cell on the floor below was her husband, facing a charge of forgery.

But even in the torment of her soul, that "little wanderer" sobbed that her next fight against the use of morphine would be a successful one, and with tears rolling down her cheeks told the story of her life in the clutches of drug habit.

"When I did start" she sobbed. "Oh, that is the worst part of the story. It was a woman who started me—a woman who said she was my friend. That was about four months ago. I knew that she was queer—that is, she was a drug user."

"One day I was very sick. I had been ill for several weeks. I was suffering terribly. Then this woman came to me and told me she could relieve my suffering. I knew what she meant and I refused."

"She kept right after me. I was in agony. She said I could take it once and then not again. Finally I gave in. The pain was numbed."

"Oh, it's the same old story from then on. I could not stop."

"I was compelled to increase the dose every day. Inside of a few weeks I was taking a grain and a half."

"Then I met Jimmy—Dellarocca—it was love at first sight. I loved him. He asked me to marry him. I was foolish and told him yes. He did not know I was taking morphine. I decided it was best to tell him before we were married and I did so—two days before."

"I remember he put his arm around me and said, 'Never mind, little girl, you and I will fight it out together, you'll be all right in a little while.'"

"We were married and we started to fight. We began saving our money so that I could be cured. I could not stop, tho. I would take a little each day. But we fought hard and we smiled as we fought, because we were going to win."

"Then his business went broke. Our money went fast. He could not bear to see me in agony without morphine. He would buy it for me but he would not give it to me."

"I became worse. The fight seemed hopeless. I was taking two grains 3 or 4 times a day. Then we were arrested."

"I am glad I have been arrested. I will have another chance to fight morphine. They tell me I can be cured and I am going to try, oh, so hard, for Jimmy's sake and my sake."

"Oh, tell girls never to touch drugs. Tell them to run from it. Tell them to stop their ears every time it is mentioned. Please do, 'cause it may do some good."

The "little wanderer" declared that her husband was innocent of the charge of the forgery of counter signatures to nine $100 checks.

"I will stay by him until the end," she sobbed as she turned her face to the wall.

Wins Life Partner. Passaic, N. J.—Called by neighbors "the man with the big heart," Thomas Miller, bulder and contractor, is going to marry. And his love affair grew out of his pity for a baby wail, to whom nobody wanted to give a home.

Miller, a bachelor, adopted sickly Frances Albina Berkowitz, who was born September 1, 1910, and left by her mother with a poor Polish family in Passaic.

"She was in mighty bad shape," Miller said, "but I bathed her and powdered her as I thought a woman would, and in the end she came out of it like a pink and white jewel, and she has been well ever since. The best medicine for a baby is love, and she has had all mine from the start."

Correspondence followed with several women and he is to wed Miss Louise Niedermann of McComb City, Miss.

TRAIN INSANE IS NEW MOVEMENT

PHYSICIANS AND NURSES ADOPT SYSTEM AT PHILADELPHIA GENERAL HOSPITAL

TO SELL THE WORK OF PATIENTS

Instructor of Handicrafts Gives Regular Lessons to the Unfortunates

Philadelphia, Pa.—One of the most encouraging movements within the walls of the Philadelphia General Hospital at Brockley is the movement for the training of the insane.

While this is being taken up by the physician and nurses in charge, and while insane patients are being given, under the supervision of Miss M. E. Turner, supervisor of the woman's department, a new vision of life and a new opportunity for forgetting their maladies, great credit for the occupational work done in the insane department is due to the Association for the employment of the insane.

The association will hold a sale of patients' work at 115 South Thirteenth street, which will demonstrate the capacity of the insane for artistic achievement. The work includes many varieties of handicrafts, embroideries, basket weaving, matmaking and kindred occupations, the introduction of which have completely changed the patients' outlook upon life, and has proved the immense value in maintaining discipline in the hospital.

So thoroughly have the physicians in charge of the insane department appreciated the value of the occupational training for patients that they have encouraged the association to employ an instructor of handicrafts, who gives regular attention to the work.

Miss S. Lillian Clayton, chief nurse of the hospital says in a letter that has been sent out to members of the association and deals with the tremendous advantage of the work, that it has caused a spirit of anticipation among the patients; that they forget to quarrel among themselves, forget their pains, fancied or real; that they talk of their work and plan for it, and have become so absorbed that the new interest has brought life and interest into the wards where previously there was only deadly monotony.

While the work of the association dates back to 1896, it has taken on a new aspect and become part of the socializing movement which is gradually taking hold within the walls of Brockley. Those in charge of the sale are particularly anxious that it should be a success, for the money realized will go toward carrying on the work during the coming year and providing funds for the monthly balls given to the patients.

MAN LOST SEEKING MINE

Prospector Insane from Suffering Thought Desert Sand Was Water

Prawley, Cal.—Losing himself in search for the lost "Peg Leg" mine, Henry Zimmerman, 50, of Alhambra, was found in the desert west of the Salton Sea, crazed from thirst and stumbling over the sands under the delusion that he was wading in water.

He was found by Tom Marshall of Brawley.

Marshall was on his way to Harper's Well for water and when eight miles this side came upon Zimmerman. The prospector was wild and delirious. He had removed his shoes and carried them in his hands. His trousers were rolled to his knees. His mouth was open and sand stuck to the thick lips where he had scooped handfuls thinking it water. Marshall gave him a sip of liquid from his canteen and took him to camp.

There Zimmerman was cared for and he had so far revived that his speech became rational. He talked but a short time when he lapsed again into unconsciousness. He said he and his partner were looking for gold, for the "Peg Leg" mine.

The story of the mine is that years ago a stump legged miner descended upon Los Angeles periodically and each time with a new supply of wealth. He jealously guarded the secret of his store and eluded those who sought to trace him.

In a brawl in a dance hall of those days he was killed and ever since efforts have been made to find the lost mine. The common supposition is that it was in the superstitious Mountains west of the valley.

Zimmerman says he became separated from his partner, lost his bearings, and finally drank the last drop from his canteen. The partner returned to Rockwood a station north of here, and reported Zimmerman missing.

MAN OPERATED ON 131 TIMES

St. Louis, Mo.—Harry Smyth, 42 years old, is one of the most cheerful patients at the city hospital here, despite the fact that 131 surgical operations have been performed on him. Tuberculosis of the bones have made these operations necessary. Since childhood Smyth has passed most of his time in hospitals.

To occupy his time Smyth took up sewing and crocheting and he is now an expert with the needle. He is always good natured.

WASHINGTON MOST WASTEFUL

Leads all American Cities in Throwing Away Food

Washington, D. C.—The federal government conducts many kinds of investigations, but Washington was hardly prepared to learn that United States agents had been digging into the garbage dumps of the country.

As a result of this latest inquiry, the department of agriculture announces that Washington is the most wasteful city in the United States. Careful examinations of the contents of garbage cans were made with a view to determine what percentage of food products daily thrown away might have been put to wholesome use had housewives of the various cities conducted their establishments more economically.

A complete report on the Federal Government's investigation will be published soon.

Rabbit Discloses Treasure

Pratt, Kan.—A Mexican hunting near here, ran a rabbit into a hole. He pulled bunny out, but the rabbit held to a sleeve in a man's jacket. The jacket contained a large swag of heavy silverware.

MODEL 75--$615

ROADSTER $595

F. O. B. TOLEDO

MODEL 83-B--$695

ROADSTER $675

F. O. B. TOLEDO

A real automobile—an Overland—for $615! That is Model 75—smaller, lighter and more economical to run, but with the advantages of larger and higher-priced cars.

No other maker has ever produced a car with anywhere near as many advantages as this one to sell for less than $750.

No other maker, lacking the stupendous facilities of this company, can produce such a car for less than $750.

But Model 75 is only $615 f. o. b. Toledo; Roadster $595 f. o. b. Toledo.

For this you get certain very definite and important advantages.

You get pride-begetting appearance—a long unbroken streamline body, with sloping hood, one-piece cowl, full-curved back and crowned fenders. This car looks like and is a real automobile.

You get comfort—the lasting comfort of deep, soft upholstery, buoyant cantilever rear springs, and large tires. The little jolts and bumps of the road never reach you.

You get convenience—electric starting and lighting; one-man top; folding type rain-vision, ventilating windshield. You get electric control buttons on the steering column, where you can reach them without even leaning forward.

You get economy in operation, for in spite of its size and roominess—in spite of its rugged strength—the car is exceptionally light. It weighs but 2600 pounds.

You get high-tension magneto ignition—the hottest spark, uniform year in and year out, and certain. There is no complication with starting and lighting, no deterioration, no need of attention.

You get an easily-operating, smoothly-engaging clutch. Pedals are large, giving firm foot-hold, and are adjustable for reach.

You get an irreversible steering mechanism, avoiding backlash at the steering wheel on bumpy roads. The steering column is firmly supported near the top, preventing vibration at the wheel.

You get a floating type rear axle, with four differential gears instead of the two or three ordinarily used.

You get 4-inch tires—larger than on other cars of this size. This means added comfort and greater tire mileage.

You get demountable rims—with one extra rim.

And you get Overland thoroughness in design, in quality of material, and in workmanship—a thoroughness that is possible at this price only under the Overland method of manufacture in huge quantities.

And added to all this you get time-saving service advantages that you can get with no other similar or even higher-priced car.

There are over 4500 Overland dealers, one in practically every city and town of importance in this country. Each one is required by contract to carry a stock of parts proportionate to the number of Overlands in his territory. You will find every Overland dealer equipped to give prompt and intelligent service—and wherever you go in your Overland, you are always in reach of this service.

In no other car of even considerably higher price can you get all of these Overland advantages. No other car of similar price even compares with it in the essentials that make for complete satisfaction.

With unerring judgment of value—

With a rush that swallowed up a record production in jig time—

The public took more than 50,000 of the $750 Overlands in six months.

In six months The Willys-Overland Company absorbed all the overhead; absorbed all the development expense; realized on all the experimental cost that is usually spread over a year.

They covered material requirements at before-the-war prices—saved three and a half million dollars on aluminum and another million on steel.

They increased their production capacity of 300 cars per day last June to 1000 cars per day.

So again they have broken all records.

Again they have planned and bought material for a bigger production program.

And again they are setting a new and supreme standard of value—

You can now buy the big, roomy, comfortable, thirty-five horsepower Overland for $695.

Here is the value which has clearly dominated the automobile market for the last six months—now made even more clearly dominant.

Here is the car with a performance record never even approached by any car of its size ever built—fifty thousand in every day service.

And though the price is reduced the car is improved.

It has an up-to-the-minute power plant, en bloc type, developing full thirty-five horsepower. It has abundant power and speed and an exceptionally quick get-away.

The value is pre-eminent—unapproached.

They guarantee that the price for this model will never be lower.

But this price reduction is made in the face of a rising material market—they cannot guarantee that it will not be higher.

See us now—anticipate your requirement if need be—but make sure of your delivery NOW.
