Busy on the Job Again

CAMPBELLSPORT IN DECISIVE WIN

Before the largest crowd of fans that witnessed a ball game here this season, the local base ball team went down to an overwhelming defeat last Sunday afternoon, at the hands of the Campbellsport team by a score of 5 to 17. The visitors made good their intentions in coming to this village and giving our boys a neat trimming playing tip edge ball throughout, and holding our boys at their mercy at every stage of the game. The brand of ball the locals put up Sunday morning was of such poor quality that practice is wanted in order for them to get in condition to cope with such teams as that sent here from our neighboring village. However, last Sunday's game ought to be encouragement to our boys in getting down to some real hard work, the material is there, all it needs is development. So get busy and show the fans that you mean business in developing a good team.

PERTAINING TO OUR SCHOOL

Mr. C. L. Rich of Soldiers Grove, Wisconsin, has been engaged as Principal of our High School. Mr. Rich has attended the Oshkosh Normal School for four years, the University of Wisconsin for two and one-half years, and has had three years experience. This is what one of his professors has to say: "Mr. Rich is a scholar and goes into the classroom prepared and enthusiastic and happy. He is liked by all and has very good results because of this fact students get the spirit of his enthusiasm. Discipline and interest is not a problem with him."

As stated in a former article that we would keep you in mind in these columns as to matters pertaining to our High School, the letter from Mr. C. L. Rich, High School teacher, published last week, stating that our school building would be condemned the coming year if nothing is done at the regular meeting to meet the requirements. The following shows the amount of interest this has been gone over and discussed at some length at the regular meetings held some time ago, by a score of 13 to 5.

MEET WITH BAD AUTO ACCIDENT

A party of tourists, whose names we were unable to get, driving a Nash car over the road near Mich. J. One of the members of the party was seriously injured about the head, while the rest, with the exception of a few minor bruises, escaped being hurt. The car was badly damaged.

TO PRESENT HOME TALENT PLAY

The members of the St. Bridget's Dramatic Club will present a home talent play, "The Old Fashioned Mother", at Frank Wietor's hall, Wayne, Wis., on Tuesday evening, June 27. The play is a three-act comedy drama, written by Ben Hare, a noted playwright.

The cast which consists of twelve characters is being coached by Arthur Schaefer. They have been hard at work rehearsing same, and are getting along very nicely. The members of the cast have taken parts in plays before, and in the manner they take to their various characters which they will represent are sure indications that the play is bound to be a success in every respect, and a most enjoyable evening's entertainment is in store for all. Mr. Robert Sallesbury, makeup man of Milwaukee, and well known here has been engaged to make up the cast. Reserved seats are now on sale at Frank Wietor's place, Wayne. Get yours early.

The play is a parable on a mother's love triumphing over the ingratitude and neglect of her children, and is arranged as a comedy drama in three acts.

The action of the play takes place in the tiny village of Canton in northern New York, the scene of the entire action being laid in the front "settin' room" of Aunt Deborah Underhill's farmhouse. Aunt Deborah is an old mother of four boys and two girls. All of the children, however, have married and moved away from the old home with the exception of John and Charley. John is the youngest and the idol of his mother's heart. He is led astray by evil companions and they find in him a weak and subservient tool for their misdeeds.

The play opens with a rehearsal of the village school. John breaks up the meeting by bringing home a poor exhausted tramp whom he had found sick and starving by the wayside. The tramp tells the story of his life and Aunt Deb gives him money to return to his home in Buffalo.

John is later arrested and dragged off to prison. In the third act Aunt Deb is found for the poor-house but is saved from the disgrace by the arrival of John, a prosperous and respectable miner in Oklahoma. The village's zinc mine is for a surprise party and all start to sing.

A dance will follow the play.

LIGHTNING STRIKES JACKSON CHURCH

The thunderstorm which raged with tropical fury during Friday night and which followed the heat wave of days previous, did much damage in this neighborhood. The climax of destruction came when about four o'clock Saturday morning a bolt of lightning struck the steeple of the Evangelical Reformed Peace church, about half a mile west of Jackson and set fire to the building which was of frame.

The fire was discovered by the driver of one of the Jaeger bakery trucks of Milwaukee, who passed the scene at the time, and he hastened to arouse Rev. Schladweiler, the parsonage being only about fifty feet away from the church. But the pastor was up and getting ready to look after things. However, the fire spread with such uncanny speed, that only a few things, the bible, etc., could be saved from the building and the latter soon was a mass of flames. Two organs and two pianos, one belonging to the choir and the other to be tuned for Frank DeGrove, also a lot of dishes, valued at several hundred dollars and used for serving meals at celebrations, all of which stood in the basement, were also destroyed.—West Bend News.

"THE GIRL FROM PORCUPINE"

Curwood's latest and greatest "The Girl From Porcupine" by James Oliver Curwood, which is to be seen at the Opera House on Sunday, June 18, is one of those pictures even the tired motion picture fan cannot afford to miss.

It was written especially for the screen by this great writer, James Oliver Curwood, and demonstrates, perhaps better than any other picture ever shown, what a plastic material afforded by the screen can be made to do in the hands of an artistic writer. The man who knows his types and country and his atmosphere as Curwood does.

James Oliver Curwood lives amongst scenes which he describes, knows nature in the great north-west in every mood, knows the desert trail, the adventurous miner, the way-faring homeward, the women of the dance hall and the tough characters which are to be found on the water front of modern civilization. In fact, he knows the wild and wild still exist. Curwood puts the life of the wild on the screen.

Everybody who wants to see a real American picture produced and acted by Americans, thoroughly American in sentiment should not neglect the opportunity of visiting the theatre to see "The Girl From Porcupine." Fairs Binger Barber Cousins and the supporting cast go remarkably conscientious work in the picture, which is splendidly directed, well acted and beautifully photographed. The all around examination has produced a wonderful result.

Experts who have seen this great picture unhesitatingly declare that it is one of the best acted pieces of work ever seen on Broadway. All concerned in the production entered heart and soul in the work last summer and fall and the result is a wonderful triumph.

"Well, there's one good old boy with our class for a while, but we won't see him in any good old army! Old rough-neck Lusk that you put the knob on his nose for. Yummie Hopper says he saw him last summer in Chicago soup-boats, you'll see his head of cussin' every government under the sun, but mostly ours and the allies', you bet, and going to run the earth by revolution and representation of unskilled labor immigrants nobody that can read or write allowed to vote, except Lusk. Tommie Hopper says he knows all about Lusk—he never did a day's work in his life—too busy trying to get the workmen stirred up against the people that exploit 'em! Yummie says he had a big crowd to hear him, though, and took up quite a little money for a cause or something. Well, let him believe! I guess we can attend to him when we get back from over yonder. By George, old Ram, I'm getting kind of floppy in the gills!" He admitted a tremendous slap to his comrade's shoulder. "It certainly looks as if our big days were walking toward us!"

He was right. The portentous days came on apace, and each one brought a new and greater portent. The faces of men just a driven look besetting them in the days of budgeted wallets, and instead of that heavy apprehension one saw the look of a man's face must have worn in 1776 and 1861, and the history of the old days grew clearer in the new. The President went to the congress, and the true inclination he made there reached soothing Potsdam with an unspoken prophecy somewhat chilling even to Potsdam, one guesses—and then through an April night went almost quietly the steady word: we were at war with Germany.

The bugles sounded across the continent; drums and rifles played up and down the city streets and in town and village squares and through the countryside. Faintly in all ears there was a multitudinous noise like distant, and passed in the dark outside. She spoke to a girl whom she did not know.

"I beg your pardon—"
"Yes?"
"I wanted to ask: Do you know who was the student Doctor Crovis spoke of? I mean the one that was the first to enlist, and that they were cheering last night when he went away to be a private in the United States army. Did you happen to hear his name?"

"She started. Was it imaginary? She went downstairs and stood upon the steps of the dormitory in the open air. No; the cheering was real and loud. It came from the direction of the railway station, and the night air surged and beat with it.

Below her stood the aged janitor of the building, listening. "What's the cheering for?" she asked, remembering grimly that the janitor was one of her acquaintances who had not yet stopped "speaking" to her. "What's the matter?"

"It's a good matter," the old man answered. "I guess there must be a big crowd of 'em down there. One of our students enlisted today, and they're giving him a send-off. Listen to 'em, how they do cheer. He's the first one to go."

She went back to her room, shivering, and spent the next day in bed with an aching head. She rose in the morning, however—a hand!! had been laid upon her door at five o'clock, calling to a "Mass Meeting" of the university at eight, and she felt it her duty to go but when she got to the great hall she found a seat in the dimmest corner, farthest from the rostrum.

The president of the university addressed the tumultuous many hundreds before him, for tumultuous they were until he quieted them. He talked to them soberly of patriotism, and called upon them for "deliberation and a litigiousness." There was danger of a stampede, he said, and he and the rest of the faculty were in a measure responsible to their fathers and mothers

"You must keep your heads," he said. "God knows, I do not seek to judge your duty in this gravest moment of your lives, nor assume to tell you what you must or must not do. But by hurrying into service now, without careful thought or consideration, you may impair the extent of your possible usefulness to the very cause you are so anxious to serve. Hundreds of you are taking technical courses which should be completed—at least to the end of the term in June. Instructors from the United States army are already on the way here, and military training will be begun at once for all who are physically eligible and of acceptable age. A special course will be given in preparation for flying, and those who wish to become aviators may enroll themselves for the course at once.

"I speak to you in a crisis of the university's life, as well as that of the nation, and the warning I utter has been made necessary by what took place yesterday and today. Yesterday morning, a student in the Junior class enlisted as a private in the United States regular army. Far be it from me to deplore his course in so doing; he spoke to me about it, and in such a way that I felt I had no right to dissuade him. I told him that it would be preferable for college men to wait until they could go as officers, and, aside from the fact of a greater prestige, I urged that men of education could perhaps be more useful in that capacity. He replied that if he were useful enough as a private a commission might in time come to him, and as I say, I did not feel at liberty to attempt dissuasion. He left to join a regiment to which he had been assigned, and many of you were at the station to bid him farewell.

"But enthusiasm may be too contagious; even a great and inspiring motive may work for harm, and the university must not become a desert. In the twenty-four hours since that young man went to join the army last night, one hundred and eleven of our young men students have left our walls; eighty-four of them went off together at three o'clock to catch an east-bound train at the junction and enlist for the navy at Newport. We are, I say, in danger of a stampede."

He spoke on, but Dora was not listening; she had become obsessed by an idea which seemed to be carrying her to the head of tragedy. When the crowd poured forth from the building she went with it mechanically, and passed in the dark outside. She spoke to a girl whom she did not know.

"I beg your pardon—"
"Yes?"
"I wanted to ask: Do you know who was the student Doctor Crovis spoke of? I mean the one that was the first to enlist, and that they were cheering last night when he went away to be a private in the United States army. Did you happen to hear his name?"

"Well, I don't want to be rude; but, of course, it seems to me that you're suffering because you think you know more about what's right and wrong than anybody else does."
"Oh, no. But I—"
"We wouldn't get anywhere, probably, by arguing it," Fred said. "You asked me."
"I asked you to tell me why he enlisted."
"The trouble is, I don't think I can tell that to anybody who needs an answer. He just went, of course. There isn't any question about it. I always thought he'd be the first to go."
"Oh, no!" she said.
"Yes, I always thought so."
"I think you were mistaken," she said, decidedly. "It was a special reason—to make him act so cruelly."
"Cruelly?" Fred cried.
"To whom?"
"Oh, to his mother—to his family. To have him go off that way, without a word—"
"Oh, no; he'd been home," Fred corrected her. "He went home the Saturday before he enlisted, and settled it with them. They're all broken up, of course; but when they saw he'd made up his mind, they quit opposing him. And I think they're proud of him about it, maybe, in spite of feeling anxious. You see, his father was an artilleryman in the war with Spain, and his grandfather was a colonel at the end of the Civil war, though he went into it as a private, like Ramsey. He died when Ramsey was about twelve; but Ramsey remembers him; he was talking of him the night before he enlisted."

Dora made a gesture of despairing protest. "You don't understand!"
"What is it I don't understand?"
"Ramsey! I know why he went—and it's just killing me!"
Fred looked at her gravely. "I don't think you need worry about it," he said. "There's nothing about his going that you are responsible for."

She repeated her despairing gesture. "You don't understand. But it's no use. It doesn't help any to try to talk of it, though I thought maybe it would, somehow." She went a little nearer the dormitory entrance, leaving him where he was, then turned. "I suppose you won't see him?"
"I don't know. Most probably not till we meet—if we should—in France. I don't know where he's stationed; and I'm going with the aviation—if it's ever ready! And he's with the regulars; he'll probably be among the first to go over."

"I see," she said, nodding. "I've wanted to speak with you about Ramsey."
"All right."
She bit her lip, then asked, abruptly: "What made him do it?"
"Enlist as a private with the regulars?"
"No. What made him enlist at all?"
"Only because he's sort of," Fred returned briskly. "He may be inexcusable to people who believe that his going out to fight for his country is the same thing as going out to commit a war."

"She lifted her hand. 'Couldn't you—'"
"I beg your pardon," Fred said at once. "I'm sorry, but I don't know just how to explain him to you."
"Why?"
He laughed, apologetically. "Well, you see, as I understand it, you don't think it's possible for a person to have something within him that makes him care so much about his country that he—"

"Wait!" she cried. "Don't you think I'm willing to suffer a little rather than to see my country in the wrong? Don't you think I'm doing it?"

The business of the waiter was to show this to each member of the gay and joyous company and say, 'Look upon this, when dead you will be like this.' Herodotus wrote about 2,500 years ago that 'this practice they have at all their drinking parties.'

CHAPTER XV.
Fred Mitchell, crossing the campus one morning, ten days later, saw Dora standing near the entrance of her dormitory, where he would pass her unless he altered his course; and as he drew nearer her and the details of her face grew into distinctness, he was indignant with himself for feeling less and less indignation toward her in proportion to the closeness of his approach. The girl that came over him was mingled with an unruly admiration, causing him to wonder what unpatriotic stuff she could be made of. She was marked, but not whipped; she still held herself straight under all the hammering and cutting which, to his knowledge, she had been getting.

She stopped him, "for only a moment," she said, adding with a wondrousness: "That is, if you're not one of those who feel that I shouldn't be 'spoken to.'"
"No," said Fred, stiffly. "I may share your point of view, perhaps, but I don't feel called upon to obtrude it on you in that manner."

"I see," she said, nodding. "I've wanted to speak with you about Ramsey."

Green Bay—With rail transportation to the south cut off on all but one line, rivers overflowing their banks, bridges, culverts and tracks washed out, crops ruined in the low lands, northeastern Wisconsin was visited by one of its worst floods in history as a result of what amounted to a cloudburst. The Green Bay weather bureau reported a rainfall for twenty-four hours in excess of 3.7 inches. The Fox river is dangerously high and the East river, which unites with the Fox at Green Bay, has swept over its banks, carrying away outbuildings, garages and shacks. Damage to crops will be heavy. South and west of Green Bay the rainfall seems to have been heaviest. On highway number 16, near DePere, there was seven feet of water on the main road at one time.

Mrs. Gardner's defense was that her husband had committed suicide, but the state proved she had purchased rat poison three days before his death and that she had altered her story when confronted with this proof.

Green Bay—A plea issued from the pulpit for donations to wipe out an old mortgage on the Union Congregational church property, Green Bay, has resulted in the clearing up of the obligation and the establishment of a fund for the redecoration of the new edifice. The Rev. Torrance Phelps called for volunteers to gather the money and within two weeks the campaign leaders turned in contributions amounting to $3,360. The goal of the drive was only $3,000.

Birchwood—A disease among horses which is said to be fatal in many cases and which is said to be difficult to fight has appeared near Birchwood. The disease apparently is fast reaching epidemic form and farmers are becoming alarmed. It is reported that the disease has appeared on farms between Birchwood and Rice Lake. When a horse catches the disease it is very difficult for it to breathe, the animal bloats and will not eat.

The dead are: Ethel Genrich, Wausau; Margaret Bradley, Stratford; Dorothy Hawks, Abbottford, and Martin Hanemann of Wausau. The three girls who lost their lives, decided to go in bathing, being the only ones who cared to venture into the chilly water. They walked out further into the river, hand in hand, and suddenly came to a stop, and were plunged into deep water. Martin Hanemann attempted to rescue them but was caught by one of the struggling girls and the two went down together. The other two girls also sank, after ineffective struggles to regain shallow water.

This Paint Goes Further; Costs Less
 You can't get any more out of a can of paint than the manufacturer put into it. Therefore, why expect to buy the best paint for the price of the next best? Lowe Brothers are paint makers with a reputation. They have been making dependable paint for more than 50 years. Their High Standard was the first high-grade paint made and sold in this country. If you've never used it, you've never used as good a paint. True, it costs a few cents more per gallon, but it goes further, which makes it cost less per job. Lasts longer, too. Come in and ask for details.

Keep Canada Thistles Out of Your Grain

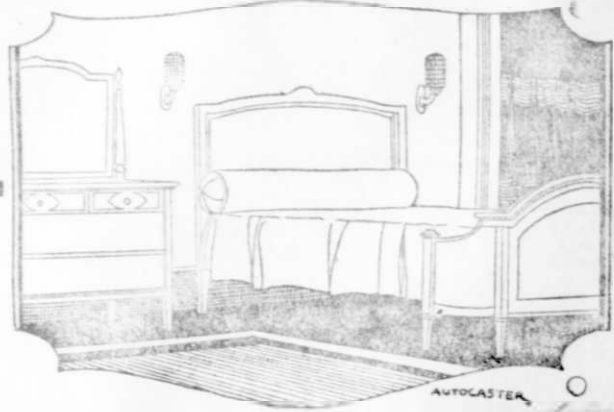

You cannot profitably raise grain and thistles on the same ground; therefore eliminate the thistles. Digging them out or cutting them off with a scythe is a slow, back-breaking, unsatisfactory job and always damages the grain.

The K. M. W. Thistle Destroyer

Combats the thistles out of the grain—not by uprooting them or cutting them off and merely retarding their growth, but by stripping off leaves and buds and so breaking and bruising the stalks that it puts them out of business for that season, prevents their spreading and disseminating their growth so that they will disappear. Easy to use—simply hitch a horse to it and go over the entire field before the grain has headed, with no damage to the grain, but big gains to the thistles. The operator in grain field and farm where it is used will soon pay for a K. M. W. Thistle Destroyer for use in pastures and meadows. The K. M. W. Thistle Destroyer has made good wherever used. It is substantially built, simple in construction and WE GUARANTEE IT TO DESTROY THE THISTLES AND OTHER NOXIOUS WEEDS WITHOUT DAMAGE TO GROWING GRAIN.

—Farmers in this vicinity have started to make their first cutting of alfalfa and from reports received at this office, the crop is a good one. MORGAN TYPE IS USEFUL ON FARM

Horse Is Gaining in Favor in Southwest Because of Many Sterling Qualities.

POPULAR NEW ENGLAND BREED

Stallions Are Being Used on Native Light Mares to Produce Animal That Satisfies Ranchers' Chief Demands.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

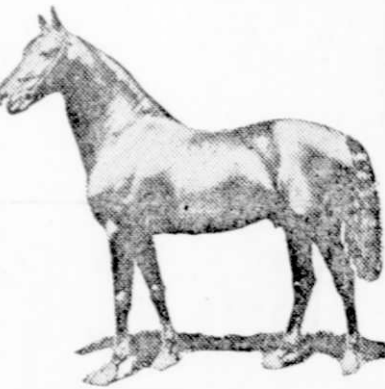

Because of its superiority in activity, hardiness and stamina, the Morgan horse is increasing in popularity in the Southwest where stallions of the breed are being used to improve the saddle horses on the range. Used on the native light mares they produce a useful animal that satisfies the ranchers' demands.

Good Show of Breed.

At the Southwestern Exposition and Fair Stock show, held at Fort Worth, Tex., March 11 to 13, this year, there was a particularly good show of the breed. Sixteen horses were exhibited and there was a strong class of aged stallions. Red Oak 5289 was the best aged stallion and champion Morgan. This horse, bred by General Gates, was developed at the United States Morgan Horse farm at Middlebury, Vt. The Morgans were placed by one of the best known horse judges in the country, who described the champion as one of the finest horses he had ever seen.

Useful American Breed.

As a result of the efforts of the United States Department of Agriculture in improving the Morgan and in stimulating a renewal of interest in this useful American breed, good breeding specimens are now found in many parts of the country. In order to obtain suitable mounts for the service the army has placed Morgan stallions in Kansas, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska and Texas. A few are owned privately in Illinois, Missouri, and Iowa, but the stronghold of the breed remains in New England, particularly in Vermont, where it was first developed.

STATE INSPECTS HATCHERIES

Poultry Industry in Wisconsin Under State Regulation—Certificates Are Given.

The Wisconsin poultry hatcheries are the only ones in the United States which are under state regulation and inspection, according to information collected by the United States Department of Agriculture. Because of the menace to the poultry industry through the sale of young chicks of inferior quality and breeding, the state department of markets and the poultry department of the University of Wisconsin have established regulations and requirements for hatchery flocks and for hatcheries, and those that fill the requirements and live up to the regulations will be known as "Wisconsin inspected and accredited hatcheries and hatchery flocks." A list of the accredited hatcheries and flocks has been prepared and published. Chicks purchased from hatcheries on the list bear the mark of the department of markets, which gives assurance that they are standard bred and from reasonably good egg-producing strains. Inspectors issue certificates to owners of hatcheries and flocks that fill the requirements.

CLEAN OUT ALL FENCE ROWS

Such Pests as Grasshoppers, Wire Worms and Cut Worms Can Be Controlled.

Insect pests, such as grasshoppers, wire worms and cut worms, can be controlled to quite an extent by cleaning up the old grass and weeds on the unused land along fence lines and on waste land. According to F. A. Penton, entomologist at Iowa State college, these locusts harbor such pests, and by cleaning them up early, many insects will be killed before they start work.

PLANT ONLY BEST CORN SEED

Possible to Secure Results of Another Man's Life Work in Breeding and Selecting.

Perhaps in no other farm crop is there as little excuse for planting poor seed as in corn. It takes only about a peck to the acre, and the best of seed can be planted with little expense. When one can secure the results of another man's life efforts in breeding and selecting, the small cost comes back many times the very first year.

Pasturing Alfalfa.

Alfalfa may be pastured to all kinds of live stock, but this is rarely done in regions where the hay commands a good price, except when the field has become weedy.

FARMERS ENGAGED IN RAISING SILVER FOX

Estimated That $8,000,000 Is Invested in Industry.

Problems Met Require Knowledge of Species, Treatment, Sanitation, Diseases and Parasites—Handle Wild Animals.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

More fur farmers are engaged in raising foxes than any other fur-bearing animal, according to reports to the biological survey of the United States Department of Agriculture. Observations made in the field by representatives of the survey indicate that at least 500 ranchers are raising silver foxes, and that there are between 12,000 and 15,000 foxes in captivity. It is estimated that about $8,000,000 is invested in this industry.

The industry of breeding fur-bearing animals has grown because of the rapid development of the modern fur trade in the last twenty-five years. The United States is the largest fur market and fur-consuming country in the world.

Many inquiries concerning fox farming are sent to the biological survey. The problems met by fox and other fur farmers require, as in the case of other live stock, a knowledge of species, temperament, sanitation, diseases and parasites. In addition, fur farmers are handling wild animals in captivity and not domestic stock. A knowledge of pelts, particularly of values and market requirements, is essential to success from the business standpoint, and this ordinarily means to visit personally warehouses, manufacturing furriers, or sales of furs. As breeders cannot always do this, representatives of the biological survey are constantly bringing before them all possible information relating to the fur industry in all its phases.

SLIDES ON BETTER FARMING

Most Popular Set Has Been One Illustrating "Better Sires—Better Stock."

Two hundred and ninety-one sets of lantern slides were loaned to extension workers in 46 states during January, February, and March by the United States Department of Agriculture for use in illustrating better methods in farming and home making. Agricultural instructors and other teachers also found the slides useful, for 451 sets were sent to schools during this time.

The most popular set has been one illustrating "Better Sires—Better Stock." Next in demand to slides on this subject were those on home grounds improvement, followed by corn production, public road improvement, poultry management, dairying, forage crops and a wide variety of agricultural and home economics subjects.

The states making the largest number of requests for slides during this period, were Arkansas, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois and Pennsylvania.

BIG IMPORTANCE OF TOMATO

No Single Garden Crop So Easily Grown—Success Depends on Soil and Cultural Methods.

There is probably no single garden crop so easily grown, and at the same time playing so large part in the winter supply of canned goods, as the tomato. Therefore, in the face of the high prices of canned and uncooked food stuff, more attention should be given to this valuable crop, to provide an abundant supply for the home and local market.

Successful tomato growing is largely dependent upon judicious soil selection, fertilizer application, and cultural methods. The best soil for tomatoes is the well drained garden loam soil.

BETTER TILLAGE FOR FARMS

Small Acreage Is More Profitable When Properly Cared for Than Large Tracts.

A small farm well tilled will give better returns than a large acreage poorly cared for. If more farmers would learn this lesson, which the gardener learned long ago, he would have better farms and the owner would likely have more ready money.—LeRoy Cady, associate horticulturist, University Farm, St. Paul.

To Kill Plant Lice.

For killing plant lice on cabbage, roses or other plants, spray with a strong soap solution or with a tobacco solution, by soaking tobacco stems in water.

Save the Moisture.

Cultivate the row crops in such a way as to keep a good dirt mulch on the surface of the soil so as to hold the moisture that falls this spring. The crop will need it later in the season.

Succession of Snap Beans.

Plant bush beans every ten days or two weeks for succession of snap beans. Beautiful Black Valentine and Giant Green Pod are good varieties for the home garden.

Wraps for Summer Trips; Knitted Accessories

THE least showy and conspicuous of our friends often proves to be the best friend in need, and so it is with coats and wraps. Now that the time for summer journeys is here, ask the unexperienced globe-trotter, and she will tell you to begin your outfitting with a practical, roomy coat, made of a soft, warm material, in a neutral or dark color. Whether your path leads to the mountains or the sea, the tropics or the desert, take a sturdy coat along, for you will have need of it.

One does not acquire a coat of this kind for a single journey or a single season, therefore, eccentricities of style are not among its possessions. We may count on straight lines, youthful and mannish styles to be long-lived and not affected by passing whims of fashion, but entirely comfortable. Such a coat is shown at the right of the two pictured here. It is provided with capacious pockets, an ample collar and is loosely belted. Made of homespun, tweed, duvetyne and camel's-hair and similar coatings, it is the tourist's delight.

The coat at the left of the picture proclaims itself as of this season with its wide, capelike sleeves, but it is a candidate for the position of traveling companion and has much to recommend it. Where only one wrap is to be taken along for a journey or visit, it is prepared to serve for all sorts of occasions, and will prove as good a choice as any. It has a convertible collar and long girdle of the material. In beige color or tan and lined with soft shrim to match it will harmonize with everything.

Already coats for fall are occupying the attention of manufacturers. They assure us that lines will continue straight and sleeves large. Even if these details are changed, the straight-line, simple coats of today are a good investment. There will be no great difficulty in shaving off a little of the emptiness that Fashion approves this summer if she changes her mind by fall. Coats can't grow larger—they may become snufler.

Striding along, keeping pace with the ever-increasing disposition to outdoor, many knitted things have been added to the belongings of women. The sweater has been multiplied to suit occasion, scarfs have been varied for the same reason, hats and bags to match them have joined the cheerful company of knitted accessories. These things, and others, are taken as a matter of course in the wardrobe while emphasis is placed on the kind of yarns employed and on style and color.

Knitted things, including dresses, are especially voguish for sportswear, and their usefulness does not begin or end there, unless we make "sportswear" a term of very wide application. Knitted garments, cleverly styled, appear almost everywhere. Many of them are products of wonderful looms and many of them are hand-knitted—the latter having the usual prestige of handwork over machine work. Now that they are so fashionable it is well worth while to learn to knit. Women find it fascinating work, good for the nerves—and an important relief to the strain on their pocketbooks.

A novice might make a beginning in the gentle art of knitting by copying the pretty scarf of Iceland wool shown here at the right of the illustration. A zipper, in any color desired, is used for it and the border of stripes in contrasting colors, may suit individual fancy.

The slip-over sweater at the left is machine-knitted and may be had in almost any color. It is a practical and youthful affair with a "V" neck, elbow sleeves, and fancy border banded with white. The collar and cuffs match the border and a narrow knitted belt, having no particular business, is there because it is there, to make a pretty finish. It buttons at each side after crossing at the front.

Just at the moment many slip-over sweaters are shown in gay colors with horizontal stripes in white, or white interwoven with the color, and manufacturers are featuring sweaters in white with horizontal stripes in Navy blue patterns. They are fine for sports wear. The tuxedo maintains its place for older people.

Little Girl's Coat.

Coats for the six-year old are shown in the same tweeds and homespuns as mother's, and hats of the same material are shown with them, in many cases.

Summery Hats.

Large poke hats of black horsehair braid or malines are among the prettiest summer hats.

Drops Half Mile in Log Chute; Uninjured

Snoqualmie, Wash.—Stepping out on the edge of a snow-covered precipice to carry timber in summer to the river far below.

Mrs. Rupert quickly notified men nearby, who looked for Rupert. They were able to give up the search on account of darkness when the missing man appeared. He declared he had dropped into a loose snow drift and falling through, landed directly into an unused log chute to the river far below.

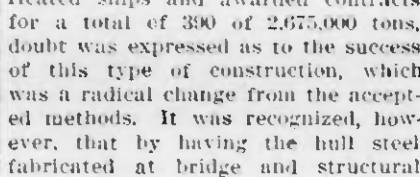

Rupert said the chute was filled with ice and that he had bogged down into the valley as such a high rate of speed he could not yell loud enough to be heard. Loggers found he had taken a ride of fully half a mile in the ice-bound log chute. Rupert was uninjured, but was minus a large part of his wearing apparel.

Arrange the lettuce on individual plates, place on each a peeled tomato, a slice of bacon, a slice of lettuce and some mayonnaise dressing, top with some of the chicken, more mayonnaise and a sprig of parsley. Around the dish, spike fashion, arrange four or six tiny toast points.

Baked Corn With Cheese.—Take one cup of minced clams, one cup of corn, one cup of bread crumbs, one cup of milk, two tablespoons of butter, one teaspoonful of salt, pepper, onion salt and paprika to taste. Mix the ingredients except the butter, put in a buttered baking dish and cover with bits of butter over the top. Bake one-half hour. Fresh corn may be used.

The KITCHEN CABINET

Provision is the foundation of hospitality, and thrift the fuel of magnificence.—Sir F. Sidney.

SOMETHING YOU WILL LIKE

When you have roasts lamb the next time, try this sauce to serve with it:

Orange Sauce.—Take one-half cupful of flour and two tablespoonfuls of flour and brown sauce, add the juice of two and the rind of one orange grated, or the peeling boiled in water five minutes, then removed and cut in strips. Add one-half cupful or more of boiling water, salt, cayenne and the juice of a lemon. Serve hot.

Caramel Sauce.—Soften one-fourth of a package of gelatin in one cupful of water. Brown one-half cupful of sugar, then add one cupful of boiling water, stir until dissolved, add the gelatin and stir over ice water until it thickens. Have ready two egg whites beaten stiff, add them to the gelatin mixture; combine beating until stiff. Turn into a mold. Serve with thin cream.

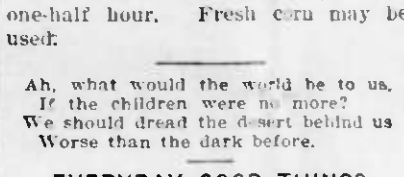

Glazed Tongue.—Wash and soak the tongue over night. In the morning place it in a kettle with cold water to cover. Bring to the simmering point and cook at that temperature for several hours until the tongue is very tender. Scrape and cook in the liquor. When cold remove the skin from the tongue and trim. Fasten the tip and end together with a skewer and lay in a mold. Heat three cupfuls of the liquor, add one cupful of tomatoes, a bay leaf, a slice of onion salt and pepper as needed, twelve cloves, one or two allspice, and simmer for twenty minutes. Strain and add one ounce of gelatin which has been softened in a little water. Then cover the tongue and set away on ice to harden. Unmold and garnish with olives and parsley.

Club Salad.—Take one and one-half cups of cooked chicken, twelve slices of bacon, three tomatoes and lettuce. Arrange the lettuce on individual plates, place on each a peeled tomato, a slice of bacon, a slice of lettuce and some mayonnaise dressing, top with some of the chicken, more mayonnaise and a sprig of parsley. Around the dish, spike fashion, arrange four or six tiny toast points.

Baked Corn With Cheese.—Take one cup of minced clams, one cup of corn, one cup of bread crumbs, one cup of milk, two tablespoons of butter, one teaspoonful of salt, pepper, onion salt and paprika to taste. Important to all Women Readers of this Paper

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. The kidneys are not in a healthy condition if they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Ringhoughton, N. Y., you may receive sample size bottle by Parcel Post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.—Advertisement.

TIME HAD BROUGHT CHANGES

Aunt Jane Not Now Quite as Considerate as She Had Been in the Courting Days.

In the days when Uncle Joe and Aunt Jane were courting they sat in the garden one night under a summer moon, silent and adoring.

"Joe, dear," suddenly said Aunt Jane at last, "I want to ask you something."

"Ask me anything, darling."

"Something is tickling my neck," she whispered. "If I let go one of your hands to drive it away would you mind very much?"

Their home is now noted for its extreme neatness, and Uncle Joe has been thoroughly trained to keep it neat; how thoroughly is shown by the fact that on a recent afternoon he went into the kitchen to get a drink.

For a moment Uncle Joe stood before the sink gazing at the shining faucets. "Guess you've just washed up the sink, ain't you?" he inquired at last.

"Yes, I have," she replied. "Why?"

"Well," exclaimed Uncle Joe, with a slight sigh, "I did think I'd wish a drink of water, but I guess I can get along without it."—Los Angeles Times.

Cutting Off the Last Word. Archeologists have recently been puzzled over the finding of the headless body of an Egyptian princess in an ancient tomb. It seems that the question as to how the lady lost her head is important in archeologic circles.

In certain Oriental countries it is customary for the head of the house, in the event of a domestic argument, to behead the lady, thus cutting the lady as well as the argument short. Doubtless, the last words that issued from the lips of the headless princess were: "Where have you been?"—Judge.

The people who can do everything in a pinch ought to be pinched more often.

Unkind Remark. A scientific writer experienced great difficulty in getting his plots accepted. As a rule, they were so uninteresting that a complete hearing was seldom granted. At last he managed to persuade a weary producer to listen to the synopsis of his latest play.

"Imagine," he began, "midnight, all silent as the grave."

"Two burglars force open library windows, and eventually commence operations on the safe. The clock strikes one—"

"Which one?" yawned the producer.

Literary Amities. George Moore, the English novelist, and a group of other literati were discussing recent books. Mr. Moore wished to refer to the author of a new publication, but could not recall his name. "You know," said Moore, "the man with the funny name. Dear, dear, what is it? You know, a stupid name, a silly name." "Shaw!" suggested some one. "That's it," said Moore. "Shaw! What an extraordinary name!"

Western Canada Land of Prosperity

offers to home seekers opportunities that cannot be found elsewhere. The thousands of farmers from the United States who have secured Canada's generous offer to settle on FREE homesteads or buy farm land in her provinces have been well repaid by bountiful crops. There is still available on easy terms

Fertile Land at $15 to $30 an Acre—land similar to that which through many years has yielded from 20 to 35 bushels of wheat to the acre—wheat, barley and flax also in great abundance, while raising horses, cattle, sheep and hogs is equally profitable. Hundreds of farmers in Western Canada have raised crops in a single season worth more than the whole cost of their land. With such success comes prosperity, independence, good homes and all the comforts and conveniences which make life worth living.

Farm Gardens, Poultry, Dairying are sources of income second only to grain growing and stock raising. Attractive climate, good neighbors, churches and schools, good markets, railroad facilities, rural telephone, etc.

TELEPHONES ARE HIGH IN JAPAN

Instrument, Property of User, Sometimes Sold for $1,250—New Subscriber Out of Luck.

Tokyo.—A telephone instrument is one of the most prized possessions of citizens in Japan. Under the gold standard system the instrument is sold outright to a subscriber, and as the government's supply is apparently never replenished, it is next to impossible for a new subscriber to have one installed, applicants who sent in the order even ten years ago still waiting to have their request complied with.

As a result instruments, ownership of which carries with it the right of payment of a small fee to have it moved or transferred to another individual, are held at a high price. In Tokyo, for example, an instrument is valued anywhere from $700 to $1,250.

Thomas Carley had a room built in his house in Chicago with double wall so that he could not hear any of the noise from outside, and in this room he wrote "The French Revolution." Gangler, on the other hand, could not think well unless he was in a newspaper office where there was a lot of noise and racket going on. The human brain gets accustomed each day to a certain time for action and it works better and is more active at that time than any other time in the 24 hours.
